U.S. Will Not Pay 50 P.C. of Budget For U.N. Assembly

Plenary Sessions Suspended And Committees Go to Work

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 1 — (CP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie today submitted a budget in excess of $20,000,000 a year for the United Nations and was followed by a United States declaration that this country could not be expected to pay 50 per cent of the total, as suggested.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg ((Rep.-Mich.) was the United States delegate on the finance committee and he bluntly told his associates that the "capacity-to-pay" yardstick by which administration costs are to be assessed was "inadequate and unreliable."

He said the United States was prepared to pay 25 per cent and suggested that should be the ceiling of assessment on any one country.

The budget for 1946 is $19,627,964 and for 1947 Mr. Lie estimated it would be $23,790,000.

Finance Committee At Work.

The finance committee was one of four of the six standing committees which began work today in the Lake Success hearquarters following the suspension of plenary—sessions of the General Assembly at Flushing Meadows Park.

The social and humanitarian committee, under chairmanship of Sir Carl Berendsen, New Zealand, began consideration of a number of subjects which will include the controversial refuge question.

Main document before this committee is the report of a subcommittee of the economic and social council, under chairmanship of Canada's Hon. Paul Martin, secretary of state, recommending the establishment of an international refugee commission.

Russia attacked the report in the council because it does not advocate enforced repatriation of refugees and because the Soviet government is not prepared to pay any part of the cost of repatriation.

Tailors Remove Priority Sign From Suitings

Ottawa, Nov. 1 —(CP)— The day of the frayed cuff and the unmatched coat and trousers is waning throughout Canada as tailors removed the "priority" sign from their suits and prepared to sell to needy civilians.

Prices board officials said they believe lifting of priority certificates on suits for former servicemen and women may mean a temporary easing of the shortage as merchants now may allow civilians to dip into the 35 per cent of their stocks which formerly they set aside for certificate holders.

In saying "temporary" officials mean that once this stock is used the situation will be the same as it is now. However, they pointed out that tailors no longer are faced with putting a large number of veterans back into civilian clothes, and therefore as over a period of time fewer persons will be requiring suits, more will be available.

Outstanding certificates must be honored until the end of December.

PLAN TO SET UP FUND TO SECURE COUNSEL

St. Catharines, Nov. 1 — (CP) — A trust fund to obtain counsel for Berger Nixon, 33, charged with causing grievous bodily harm, will be set up in nearby Merriton, Rev. C. J. Lamb, rector of St. James' Anglican Church, Merriton, said today. Rev. Lamb will act as president of the committee planning to raise the funds.

Nixon, who shot Peter Wirt, 30, streetcar motorman, on a trolley last week, was remanded for one week when he appeared in court yesterday.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 1—(CP)—Synopsis: Skies are clear this morning throughout most of Eastern Canada and temperatures are near normal. A disturbance centred in Missouri is causing rain over a fairly extensive area south of the lower lakes. The rain will spread into the Lake Erie region this afternoon and southern Ontario tonight and part of Saturday.

Canadians Cold And Unfriendly Say War Brides

London, Nov. 1 — (CP Cable) —Five war brides of Canadian servicemen returned to Britain yesterday.

Two of them, Mrs. A. Edmiston and Mrs. M. Harrison, sisters returning from Toronto to their family at Carshalton, Surrey, said they left Canada because they "found Canadians so cold and unfriendly."

The five reached London last night from Southampton after crossing the Atlantic on the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Britain Proposes Means to Avoid Depressions

London, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Britain proposed today an international convention on employment policy and co-ordination of different international agencies "so that action can be taken to avoid economic depressions."

The proposal was made in a memorandum by the United Kingdom delegation to the prepatatory committee of the International Trade and Employment conference now in session here. It put additional weight behind the British contention that full employment is essential to elimination of international trade barriers.

'One Woman Lend Lease' on Visit

Boston, Nov. 1. (AP)—"Britain's one-woman lend lease" today embarked on a five-month countrywide tour of visits with servicemen she entertained at her English state during the war.

"I hope to see as many as possible of my old friends—from GI's to generals," said Mrs, Louis Oppenheimer, poetess wife of the South African diamond corporation manager.

Pre-war author of five volumes of verse in English, French, German and Italian, Mrs. Oppenheimer won her nickname because of the huge amounts of food she raised and distributed to American and Canadian troops stationed in England.

After her London house was blitzed, the attractive white-haired matron moved to her early Georgian country place near Windsor and turned a mile and a half of walled gardens into a fruit farm. On 11 adjoining acres she raised vegetables, goats, chickens and rabbits.

"I made about 11 tons of cake and nearly eight tons of jam for my American and Canadian friends," she estimated.

U. N. DIPLOMATIC BREAK WITH SPAIN IS PREDICTED

Vishinsky Declares "It Is Time For Action, Not Words" and Many Delegates Agree

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

New York, Nov 1 —(AP)— Action by the United Nations resulting in a posible concerted break in diplomatic relations with Franco Spain was predicted today by many U. N. delegates.

Andrei Y. Vinshinsky, Soviet Vice Foreign Minister, expressed the sentiments of many delegations when he declared that "it is now time for action, not words" on the "accursed Spanish question."

The way for assembly action was expected to be paved Monday when the Security Council meets to take up the Franco case again. At that time the council will decide whether to drop th Spanish issue from its agenda in order to permit assembly discussion and action.

It was recalled that Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko vetoed every attempt of the majority of the council members last June to send the Spanish case to the Assembly for action.

Place Before Assembly

But Russia now is behind the move to place the case before the Asembly, thus removing any likelihood that the Soviet Union will block the proposal to drop the issue from the council agenda.

This council action must be taken before the Assembly can discuss the issue. Under the Charter, any matter which is before the council can be discussed by the Assembly simultaneously.

The fact that the Assembly voted unanimously yesterday to place the Franco case on its agenda practically rules that the Security Council will drop the the issue.

Power Limited

However, the Assembly's power is limited to making recommendations to the Security Council in this matter. But it could recommend to members that they break diplomatic relations with Franco Spain. Only 21 members of the United Nations now have diplomatic relations with the Franco Government.

The Assembly could also make its recommendations direct to the Security Council. The Security Council could then direct members of the organization in the action to be taken.

Thus far, none of the delegations which have spoken in opposition to the Franco Regime have suggested a concrete proposal for dealing with the Madrid Government.

Guillermo Belt of Cuba, however, told the Assemby that if the case came before the international Forum that he would submit proposal that had "teeth" in it.

Some delegates have suggested in addition to breaking off diplomatic relations, that the United Nations withhold vital supplies such as oil from Spain.

Lama Remanded Week Without Plea

Cornwall, Nov. 1. (CP)—William Earl Lama, Harrison Corners' farmer charged with the murder of his wife and daughter, August 16, was remanded for one week without plea today. The remand was made in jail where Lama has been held since his capture last Saturday after a 71-day hunt. Township police requested the remand, since their case against Lama is not yet complete.

Police Prevent Violence When Veteran Interrupts Attack on Race

Atlanta, Nov. 1—(AP)—Police prevented possible violence last night when a Jewish war veteran interrupted to describe as 'lies' attacks on his race by speakers at Columbians, Inc., — recently chartered group centering its wrath on Negroes in the call for a "progressive white community."

Emory C. Burke, president of Columbians, set the pace for the meeting earlier when he presented a "medal of honor" to James R. Childers, 17-year-old boy under police court bond charged with black-jacking a Negro Monday night.

Both Burke and Homer L. Loomis, Columbians secretary, attacked Negroes, Jews and Atlanta newspapers in speeches heard by an estimated Jewish veterans who attended the organization's mass meeting.

"I hate the Jews," Loomis shouted.

He described Jews as the "original Nazis" aspiring for world domination.

A half dozen Columbians, in their uniforms, moved forward followed by others from the front rows. Jewish veterans stood their ground but four city detectives moved quickly between the groups to thwart possible trouble.

Loomis announced the remainder of the meeting would be "closed" and the Jewish veterans left without incident.

Detectives who attended an earlier meeting of Columbians said members 'take it upon themselves to patrol streets, check up and watch Negroes in certain sections.'

Science on Verge of Producing Memory Machine Says Mountbatten

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 1 (CP Cable) — Admiral Viscout Mountbatten told the 21st annual dinner of the British Institute of Radio Engineers last night that science is on the verge of producing an electronic brain and a memory machine.

E.N.I.A.C.—the inials denoting one machine in this field—already solves complicated mathematical problems in a few seconds. he said, and there are machines actually in use which "can exercise a degree of memory."

"The reference library of the future will be a kind of memory machine the size of a large desk," he said.

"It will store such a fantastic amount of information that it would take hundreds of years to fill it even if the user inserted every day what is now 5,000 pages of material."

Radio tubes would be the controlling factors in the machine, Lord Mountbatten said.

Wellsian Development

"The stage is set for the most Wellsian development of all.

"Now that the electronic brain and memory machines are upon us it seems that we are really facing a new revolution; this time it is not an industrial one, but a revolution of the mind...

"It is considered possible to evolve an electronic brain which will perform functions analgous to those at present undertaken by the semi-automatic portion of the human brain.

"That is to say, it will receive information about the condition of machinery under its control and will promise an intelligent link between that information and action necessary to keep the machinery in general conformity with the over-all directions given to it by man

"The, electronic brain will greatly expand to scope of the human brain not only in essence but in distance This will be done by radio valves activating each other in the way that brain cells do."

Lord Mountbatten said machines now are being designed capable of exercising some choice and judgment. One could even be made to play "a rather mediocre game of chess."

"It is beginning to seem possible that an electronic technique can be developed which will enable us to store items of our ever increasing range of human knowledge in a compact form."

GOVT. PREPARES TO MEET MINE WORKERS' CHIEF

Lewis Demanding New Contract and Nov. 20th Set as Strike Deadline

New York, Nov. 1 —(CP)— John L. Lewis' implied threat of a work stoppage by 400,000 soft coal miners unless the United States Government agrees to a new wage contract remained in the background today as Federal officials prepared to meet with the President of the American Federation of Labor United Mine Workers.

The U. M. W. chief or one of his aides was expected to relate the union's grievances over the present contract with the Government. Lewis has said he wants a new contract on wages, hours and other issues, replacing the pact made with the government last May 29 to end the 59-day strike by the soft coal miners.

The time limit is Nov. 20, and without a new agreement it is considered likely the 400,000 miners will not go to their pits.

On the credit side were reports from Chicago that a threatened strike by 450 C. I. O. stockhandlers at the stockyards, which would have idle some 25,000 other workers was averted.

In Washington, the strike of 5,000 A. F. L. service employees in 18 major hotels ended. Also from the capital was a report that striking A. F. L. pilots and trans world airline officials studied a new but undisclosed proposal for ending the 12-day walkout arising from a dispute over wages.

In San Francisco, the C. I. O. Longshoremen's Union said it had offered employers a new proposal designed to settle a month-old shipping strike on the Pacific coast.

The week-old strike in New Orleans by Municipal garbage collectors ended and an A. F. L. spokesman said that grievances were to be arbitrated.

There was a renewal of violence on the picket lines at the big plant of Allis-Chalmers manufacturing company at West Allis, Wis., marking the fourth successive day fighting has broken out between pickets, police and non-striking workers. In yesterday's melee seven persons were arrested. No one was injured. Labor department officials sought to end the six-month-old strike to get negotiations resumed between company officials and leaders of the C. I. O.-United Auto 94 (34'.

Boy Spends Hours Munching Apples, Candies in Streetcar

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP) — A nine-year-old boy found ensconced in a street car at 2:30 a. m. today, following a vigorous evening of "shell out" activities, told police he didn't want to go home because it was "so comfortable in the trolley.

He had ridden through the city for hours munching apples, candy and peanuts collected earlier. Police took him home in a patrol car.

QUIET HALLOWE'EN, REPORTED BY POLICE STAFFS

No Large-Scale Disturbances and No Casualties as Night is Celebrated

(By The Canadian Press)

Street lights were smashed in Winnipeg and Vancouver, windows were smashed in Toronto and the odd piece of movable property was overturned or transported, but on the whole municipal police staffs across the country today reported it was a quiet Hallowe'en.

There were no large-scale disturbances and no casualties directly attributable to the annual celebration of All Hallows' Eve, thanks largely to an unprecedented number of organized parties and parades across the Dominion.

Toronto police and fire departments reported it had been an "unusually quiet night." It was at Toronto that the worst outbreaks occurred a year ago.

This year the most uproarious celebrations appear to have taken place in Vancouver. There hundreds of street lights were smashed and police broke up at least 50 extemporaneous road blocks. An epidemic of window-smashing also occurred in Winnipeg. At Dartmouth, N. S., nine were arrested for illegal possession of liquor, and another man for loitering.

A typical Hallowe'en prank has tragic results at Cooksville, near Toronto, when the small gift shop operated by Mrs. Elizabeth Rolling was pushed off its foundations and her small stock of gifts smashed. The damage was between $150 and $200. Mrs. Rolling was attending a community "shell-out" at the time.

Harmless Pranks

Chatham followed a pattern set in many communities for keeping the younger element out of mischief, with organized school parties arranged in sequence. Hamilton had thousands of celebrants on the streets, many in fancy costumes, but reported no accidents.

At London, 54-year-old Mrs. Jennie Guay suffered shock and facial burns and the front room of her home was badly damaged when a lighted candle in a pumpkin set fire to window curtains.

At Windsor, police reported no incidents.

It was quiet in Winnipeg with a record low of only four or five false fire alarms. A few lights were broken at Brandon. Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and Regina were orderly.

Church of England Mass Interrupted By Skirmish

London, Nov. 1. (CP) — A Church of England mass was interrupted today by a skirmish which brought a bloodied head to one adherent of the National Union of Protestants an organization opposing masses in the national church.

Union members shouted "no popery" and threw leaflets as Bishop J. C. Wand was reading mass at St. Columba's. Besides the man who suffered a slight head wound, another was dragged from the church by a clergyman.

Chinese Govt. Troops Encircle North China Port of Chefoo Where Battle Rages in Streets

Peiping, Nov. 1 (AP)—Chinese government armies, increasing the tempo and range of their civil war, rushed vanguards to within 33 miles of Dairen today and encircled 100,000 fiercely-fighting Communists in Chefoo.

The pro-government Jih Pai said vanguards reached Pulantien, only 33 miles north of Dairen on the border between Manchuria and Kwantung Peninsula. Their objective is to cut off the Liaotung Peninsula Communists from the Manchurian mainland. The Nationals had driven south down the Mukden-Dairen railway.

Government sources previously said they would not menace Dairen itself, but would establish a 30-mile safety zone around that Russian-occupied open port.

Nationals striking at Chefoo and the Shantung Peninsula to cut off the Reds' Yellow Sea route to Manchuria approached the suburbs of Yehhsien, one of the four largest ports on the northern coast, and engaged Chinese Red forces in two others.

The Communists massed thousands of troops in five Shantung peninsula ports east and west of Chefoo, presumably to try to break through to the garrison.

Pro-government dispatches said they were assembling at Weihaiwei, the one-time British port 40 miles east of Chefoo, Penglai, 40 miles northwest of Chefoo, Lunghow, 60 miles west, and two smaller ports on the peninsula.

Field accounts said the eastward claw of the government pincers had been thrust 10 miles inland and had swept up Mowping, 20 miles east of Chefoo on a main road to U.S. marine-occupied Tsingtao, 115 miles south.

Government commanders apparently had struck an unexpectedly tough core of resistance, because they had predicted the city would fall by Thursday.

While the government strove to pinch off this springboard to Manchuria, its armies were spreading swiftly across Liaotung peninsulo above Russian-occupied Dairen in Manchuria itself.

They had seized at least two strategic points along 100 miles of Korea Bay, where Communists might put in or take off to or from the mountain redoubt in Shantung Province.

These were Chwangho, 93 miles northeast of Dairen, and Tsinotuitze, 20 miles farther northeast —two of the best landing points between Dairen and government-hel Antung at the Korean frontier.

Donald McLean Appears in Court On Theft Count

Hamilton, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Donald MacLean, 68-year-old father of Evelyn Dick, made a brief police court appearance today on a charge of theft of tickets and cash from the Hamilton Street Railway. Hearing was adjourned until Feb. 27 next, after his trial on a charge of murdering John Dick is held in January.

MacLean is charged with William Bohozuk for the murder of his son-in-law John Dick, for which his daughter already has been sentenced to hang Jan. 7. Both Dick and MacLean were employees of the Street Railway Company and the theft charge was laid by police while they were investigating the murder.

Canada Develops High-Speed Camera To Take Million 'Shots' Per Second

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP) — A 75-pound high-speed camera, built by the National Research Council, has photographed sound waves and another is being built to "shoot" one million pictures a second, Kenneth M. Baird, 23-year-old NRC physicist, said.

The new camera will be the fastest—by 880,000 pictures a second—ever built. Already it has been proved operationally successful in principle in a test model.

The "lightweight" camera, now in use, takes 70,000 pictures a second. American physicists have developed one which takes 120,000 a second, but it weighs more than three tons. A three-year effort by Japanese scientists, during the war, produced a five-ton camera clicking 60,000 photos a second.

The sound waves photographed by the Canadian camera are those which limit the speed of aircraft to 650 miles an hour. At a greater speed the waves' vibration tear an aircraft to pieces.

(Sound waves piling up on the wings were believed to have caused a jet aircraft piloted by the famed designer, Geoffrey de Haviland, to explode over the Thames River, in England, recently.)

Mr. Baird's photographs of sound waves show them as shadowy ripples resembling tiny waves on a quiet pool of water.

The new camera will weigh about 200 pounds and be operated by special small, high-speed electric motors. It is expected to make possible photographs of gasoline engine combustion, and of bullets in flight.

Jews to Protest Deportation By General Strike

Demonstrations and Mass Meetings Called for Sunday

Jerusalem, Nov. 1 —(AP)— A general strike of Palestine Jews was proclaimed for Sunday to protest the deportation of 1,200 illegal immigrants from Haifa today. The announcement came as police prepared security measures for Saturday's scheduled Arab strike marking the anniversary of the Balfour declaration, which said Britain regarded with favor the establishment of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land.

Jewish factories, shops and offices will be closed from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday while mass meetings and demonstrations are held in Jewish towns, villages and settlements.

New violence erupted in Tel Aviv, where two office clerks were attacked and overpowered by three armed, masked men who fled with satchels containing nearly $12,000.

Meanwhile, the Palestine Arab Army Futuwah was summoned for a parade and mass meeting 33 miles north of Jerusalem, and some Arabs pictured this as a "show of strength."

Two British Soldiers Killed.

Two more British soldiers were killed and two others wounded critically near Tel Aviv last night when their truck hit a road mine.

Another military vehicle was blown up during the night on the highway between Haifa and Acco, injuring one British soldier.

A freight train was derailed south of Haifa on the Palestine-Egypt railway line, but no casualties were reported.

Both the Inner Zionist Council and the Jewish National Council (Vaad Leumi) have denounced the methods of Jewish Extremists who have been blamed by police for recent violence in which a score or more persons, including several Arabs, have been injured.

One of the underground groups, Irgun Zvai Leumi, broadcast a declaration that it was prepared to fight against the British authorities and any Jewish organization which attempted to interfere with it.

Arabs are angry with both the Jews and the British command. Futuwah leaders said their meeting today was "a show of strength by Arabs on the heels of the same sort of demonstration by Jews." Many authorities expressed fear that it might serve to set off an oft-rumored Arab revolt.

Haifa, Nov. 1. (CP)—Despite defiant screams and intermittent violence, 1,200 Jewish refugees were transferred today from the almost-foundering immigrant ship San Dimitrios to two British vessels for deportation to Cyprus.

The transfer followed by only a short time a general strike and mass meeting at which the deportation of the refugees was protested by Haifa's Jews. Two thousand Jews, leaving the mass meeting, marched on British street barricades but dispersed before any violence occurred.

The marching Jews, facing signs in Hebrew and English reading "disperse or we fire", broke up and went away singing Jewish anthems and carrying black mourning flags.

Haifa's 60,000 Jews stopped work at 8.30 am., for a 2 1-2-hour general strike and a mass meeting was held at which speakers cried: "Our brothers already are starving in Cyprus".

The strike and mass meeting were called as a destroyer-escort refugee vessel carrying 1,400 prospective European immigrants neared Haifa.

Vessels Listed Badly

The vessel, listing so badly that the red paint of her keel was visible above the waterline, was the San Dimitrios. As she drew abreast the entrance to Haifa harbor she appeared to be lashed to two minesweepers.

Reports that the San Dimitrios was in imminent danger of foundering were said to be untrue. The whole port area was under rigid curfew and security was so strict that even customs, health and immigration officials were barred from their offices.

Depth charges were exploded in the harbor at intervals during the night to forestall any possible attempt to sabotage the British troopship Ocean Vigor, which has been used in the past to carry refugees to Cyprus, with explosives carried by so-called "Frogmen".

Reliable reports here said two members of the refugee ship's crew deaped overboard off the Lebanese coast and were picked up by the destroyer. They were said to have informed the British authorities that the Jewish passengers overpowered the ship's crew, hoisted a blue and white zionist flag and set a course for the Palestine coast.

Bagpipes and Drum To Be Presented To War Memorial

Cornwall, Nov. 1 — (CP) — When a proposed $200,000 war memorial is constructed at Peterboro, Ont., it will contain bagpipes and a drum carried in action by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in the Second Great War, it was announced today.

Peterboro authorities had sought the mementoes from Lt.-Col. D. R. Dick, oficer commanding the regiment's reserve battalion here who replied the pipes and drum would be sent to Peterboro whenever the town wanted them.

PARKING TICKET BADLY PARKED

An Ottawa motorist thought a mail box was a good place to deposit the pink parking ticket he found on his automobile The ticket was post-marked in the regular way—and delivered at police headquarters.

May Nationalize New Diamond Field

London, Nov. 1 — (CP)—The government is considering nationalizing Canadian-born Dr. John T. Williamson's rich new diamond fields in Tangagyika, whose surface workings have yielded as much as £150,000 ($600,000) a month, it was authoritatively reported yesterday. The Colonial Office refused to comment officially upon the report, but it was recalled that Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones said recently in an interview that "we certainly will nationalize certain public services and even mineral resources in the colonies when it suits the widest interests of the population to do so."

SUPPLY DEPENDS ON RETURN

Toronto, Nov. 1—(CP)—Officials of the brewing industry last night said the supply of beer for home consumption during the next two months will depend largely on the return of empty bottles. If returns are slow, supplies will be short, they said.

These sources said it may be the first of the year before new bottles are available to the industry. The supply has been cut off for weeks as the result of the summer strike at the Brunner Mond soda ash plant at Amherstburg which resulted in closing of glass-making plants.

FARMER PINNED BENEATH TRACTOR

Mr. Ray Archer, age 44, R.R. 1 Campbellford, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital early Thursday afternoon following injuries received when he was pinned beneath a farm tractor. Details of how the accident occurred or the extent of the unfortunate man's injuries were not immediately learned. He is being attended by Dr. G. H. Stoble.

SPECIALIZED TRAINING FOR ARGYLL REGIMENT

The 9th Anti-Tank Argyll Regiment is concentrating this year on specialized training of its officers and N.C.O.'s, Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the regiment said today.

"We are mainly interested this year in efficiency of officers and non-commissioned officers with a view to having a solid foundation of training knowledge when recruiting for the units begins," he said.

The regiment now is officered by a number of unit veterans as well as those who saw lengthy service overseas. Col. Sisler felt, he said, that with the present officer set-up plus potential officer material, that the regiment would compare next year with any in reserve army Ontario.

MONTREAL MOTORISTS ESCAPE INJURIES

Driver and passenger of a Montreal auto luckily escaped what might have been severe injuries shortly after ten o'clock this morning when the steering gear of the car went wrong with the auto going out of control and crashing into a cement culvert east of Gibson's Crossing on Highway No. 2.

Driver of the car, Robt. Coldville, Montreal, while on leave from the army, was driving his mother to Toronto when the accident occurred. The front end of the car was badly damaged, while the two occupants were taken to Belleville General Hospital, by Martin's ambulance where it was found they were suffering only from shock.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY IN SERGEANTS' MESS

The Sergeants' Mess of the 9th Argyll Anti-Tank Regiment in the armouries was the scene of gay Hallowe'en doings last night when the senior non-commissioned officers of the unit were hosts to friends and wives at a Hallowe'en masquerade party.

Lieut.-Col. Sisler, commanding officer of the unit, Major Milton Davison, second in command, Major Elmer Dixon and other officers of the regiment were present and intermingled with the guests during the evening.

Prizes were given to the costumed dancers with officers of the regiment acting as judges. About sixty sergeants and their guests were present.

Smoke Screen May Be Used to Protect Tobacco, Corn Crops

Chatham, Nov. 1 (CP) . . Smoke screens laid by airplanes may help Ontario farmers to protect tobacco and corn crops from frost damage next year. E. M. Warwick of nearby Blenheim said yesterday he plans to experiment with the smoke screens in his flue-cured tobacco and hybrid corn plots. "Smoke screens are not new to the tobacco business," he said, "but I intend to have the smoke screen laid by airplane, something never before tried by tobacco growers."

Residents Chase Escaped Monkeys Over Boston Area

Boston, Nov. 1 — (AP)—Monkeys were actually guilty of most of the monkeyshines in Boston's observance of Hallowe'en.

Firemen and police finally entered the chase.

One tiny animal was cornered in a chimney after a pursuing policeman lost part of his pants going over a barbed wire fence. The wildly cheering youngsters liked that.

The Animal Rescue League was called in with its trained monkey —Jocko. The domesticated specimen was not alluring enough to bring the wild variety out of the flue.

As a last resort, a League agent inserted an ammonia saturated pad into the chimney. That did the trick. The fuming escapee came out.

That was only one down, however. The others were still missing long after the cheer leaders had gone to bed.

"Y" Crowded for Hallowe'en Party, Stunts Feature Show

A packed gallery of parents as well as a ring of them around the wall back of the children, watched a gym floor full of boys and girls in gaily colored costumes enjoy the annual Y.M.C.A. Hallowe'en Fun Frolic last night. The night was sponsored by the Y's Men's Club who were assisted by members of the Kinsmen, Phalanx and Optimists.

Shortly after seven the children left the "Y" and paraded through the downtown section led by Jamie Clarke and his pipes, and escorted by a police car. Returning to the building, they marched onto the gymnasium floor where the program got under way with the judging of costumes. Bill Navin was at the piano. Parading around the floor in their costume classes for judging the children presented a pageant of color, led by Jim Rapino with his bagpipes. Adding to the occasion were several entertainers, Jamie Clarke with the Muir lassie in full highland costume to dance Scottish dances, Charlie Tilbrook and his accordion, Barbara Thurgood and Gladys Beatty in tap and acrobatic dances.

Program of Group Stunts

Individual stunts, songs were put on in impromptu manner by the children and a program of group stunts closed the program following which the children received bags of candy and apples as they left the building.

Larry Buck acted as Master of Ceremonies, Gerry Hyde as Master of Impromptu, Bill McCoy as Parade Marshal, Roy Menary as Master of Group Stunts. Robbie Clarke and Joe Shortt handled the prizes and Ed Shortt was responsible for equipment.

The committee provided 600 bags of candy, and all disappeared. Winners in costume, judged by W. H. Finkle, President of the Y.M.C.A., Archie Boyd, President Y's Men, Gord Mifflin, Primus of Phalanx, and Gord Henry, of Ingersoll, Ontario District Governor of Y'sdom, were as follows:

1 Boy dressed as a girl: Jimmie Houston, 246 Church Street.

3. Best Clown: Bernard Mikel, South George Street.

6. Fairy Tale Character: Joan Goyer, 100 S. John Street.

8. Comic Strip Character, Superman: Rose Davis, 37 1-2 E. Moira Street.

9. Best Original Costume, single: Billie Foster (Uncle Sam) 63 Gordon Street.; pair: Betsy Ann and Peggy Lou Shortt (Indian Chief and Squaw) 59 Everett Street.

10. Best Costume, children under 8 years of age: 1 Mighty Mouse: Mary Semark, 67 Station Street. 2 Gypsy: Sharon Nathan, 51 Charlotte Street. 3 Bunny Rabbit: Jacqueline Phillips, 57 Station Street.

Stunt Winners

Those selected from the many offering individual stunts were: Gordon Lee, 18 Frank Street, song; John Nolan, Herchimer Ave., song; Billy Poste, handsprings; Kathleen Dennie, 253 Ann Street, song; Jane Gibson, 375 Front Street, song, and Bill Navin, comedy entertainment.

Winners in the group stunts were;

1. Apple on a string: Nancy Thompson, 273 Sidney Street.

2. Balloon Breaking: Doug Cournyea, 4 Dafoe Street.

6. Pie Eating Contest: Mary Dennie, 253 Ann Street.

Members of the various clubs assisting were on hand to act as ushers, door keepers and floor police, and the thanks of the Y.M.C.A. and the citizens of Belleville to them for their contribution to a safe and sane Hallowe'en are heartily expressed.

Eight Veterans' Homes Will Be Turned Over to V.A. Dept. for Sale

Following months of delay caused through inability of the contracting firm to secure the necessary materials to complete the dwellings, the eight veterans' houses built north of College Street just outside the city limits will in the near future be turned over to the Veterans' Land Act department for sale to Belleville and district veterans.

The above information was received in the city today by Everett Liddle, local veterans' officer, from Col. Armstrong of Kingston, supervisor of the V.L.A. for "T" district. Price of the houses will be within the $6,000 which veterans can borrow from the department, it was stated.

Started Year Ago

Several types of houses are included in the eight dwellings which the Frontenac construction company started more than one year ago. All are of frame construction with 1 1-2 storey dwellings predominating, although there are two or three bungalow type.

Veterans with the longest combat service overseas will receive the highest priority among applications for purchase of the dwellings, with the critical need of the veteran, and size of family coming in for next priority. The veteran with disability will come in for third category with veterans with lower categories qualifying in the event of lack of applications.

Apply Under V. L. A.

Veterans will be called upon to apply under the V. L. A. for qualification certificates and local veterans will be advised of the date when the V. L. A. board will next sit in Belleville, thus saving the veteran a special trip to Kingston.

Although V. L. A. small holdings regulations have been revised as of Sept. 13th, setting a minimum of two to three acres per small holding before approval for financial assistance will be given the veteran, twenty-three, half-acre lots from the Tracey farm will be offered as building lots to local veterans. These lots are from the same farm as that on which the above eight veterans' houses were constructed and the fact that they had already been surveyed is given as the reason they are being offered in view of the new regulations.

Particulars regarding the new veterans' houses or the half-acre lots can be secured by the veteran from the V. L. A. office in Kingston.

Believe Wage Controls May End Dec. 31

Ottawa, Nov. 1—(CP)—Efforts are being made to speed the winding up of wage controls with a Dec. 31 target for their abolition, it was learned today. Salary controls are expected to disappear at the same time.

Already there have been signs of a slowing down in activities of the National War Labor Board. One indication came this week with the resignation of George Hodge of Montreal, technical adviser to the board.

FILES LAST CLAIM —WITH DEATH

Dawson, Y. T., Nov. 1—(CP)—The gold-seeking husband of Klondike Kate has filed his last claim — a claim with death. Prospector Joe Sestak struggled out of the northland wilderness Wednesday night to tell the one-time "Queen of the Yukon that her 83-year-old husband, John Matson, died in his tiny cabin on Matson Creek lying 100 miles from here. Sestak indicated the old miner died of natural causes —possibly he had become ill and suffered lack of food. Police left for the cabin on a routine investi-

TIMBER FOR U. K.

London, Nov. 1 — (CP Cable) —The port of London Authority announced yesterday that seven vessels loaded with 40,000 tons of Canadian timber docked here last week. The S. S. Beaverglen also arrived with 1,453 tons of Canadian apples in barrels, plus shell eggs, cheese and milk powder, and is docked opposite her sister ship, the Beaverdell, which arrived a week ago.

Too Fragile To Be Weighed

New Rochelle, N.Y., Nov. 1 (AP)— Ten-week old Richard David Mann tipped the scales at a trifle more than six pounds today—almost six times his weight at birth. The infant son of Richard and Anna Mann, went home from New Rochelle hospital yesterday. He was too fragile to be weighed at birth.

Hallowe'en Was Quietest in Years

Celebrants were on especially good behavior on Hallowe'en night according to reports from the local police station today with officers reporting it one of the quietest Hallowe'en nights in years.

"Everything was very quiet insofar as police circles were concerned," stated Police Chief Walter Probert today. "So far we have had no reports of any serious Hallowe'en pranks, although there is still time and it is possible that we may get a few."

Window washers were the chief sufferers today as they were called upon to clean away applications of soap. But here again the current soap shortage made things a little more difficult as the occasional celebrant decided to use crayon in lieu of the difficulty to procure soap.

Provincial Police officers also reported a very quiet night with no reports of property damage being received at the local office up to late Friday morning.

Synthetic Rubber Price Decreased

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Price of the synthetic rubber type Grs (Buna-S)—the type used mainly for automobile tires, and Butyl, the type used mainly for inner tubes, has been reduced from 20.35 cents to 18.5 cents a pound at the government-owned Polymer Corporation at Sarnia, Ont., Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today.

Mr. Howe said this was the seventh price reduction effected by the Polymer plant, the price of original batch of commercial synthetic rubber sold in October 1943, being 39.96 cents a pound for Buna-S. During the last nine months it has been 20.35 cents.

"Foreseeing the day when natural rubber prices would become more competitive, Polymer has striven to increase the efficiency of the plant and thus make possible a gradual lowering of the price of Canadian-made synthetic rubber," Mr. Howe said. "Polymer has been able to reduce its prices and is continuing to meet competition from natural rubber despite the recent drop in the price of that commodity from 23.5 to 20.5 cents at Singapore."

Reduced U.K. Purchases May Affect Agriculture

Campbellford, Nov. 1 — (CP) —Inability of Great Britain to buy as much food abroad as she did before the war soon will affect Canadian agriculture, William Watson, assistant director of the livestock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, predicted Wednesday night in an address at the Farmers' Night dinner of the Rotary Club. Lack of foreign markets has reduced British buying power, he said. J. H. Dain, chief dairy instructor for western Ontario, complimented central Ontario cheesemakers for making a larger percentage of 94-score cheese than eastern and western Ontario combined.

Say Stockhandlers Of Chicago Yards Threaten Shutdown

Chicago, Oct. 31 — (AP) — A threatened shutdown of operations at Chicago's huge stock yards, making idle some 25,000 workers, came today as a result of a wage dispute involving 450 stockhandlers. Frank Monaghan, president of Local 44, C. I. O. United Packinghouse Workers, said the stockhandlers employed at the yards might strike "anytime after tonight" if demands for wage increases of 16 cents an hour are not met. If the stockhandlers quit work, other employees in the world's largest yards will be made idle.

Padre of Christie Street Hospital Accepts $10,068 Cheque From Hotelmen's Assoc. for Amps

"This is the most magnificent gesture on the part of an Ontario community that it has ever been my pleasure to participate in. You people of Belleville have made the largest contribution of any single place in Ontario and I convey to you the heartfelt gratitude of not only the War Amps organization, but of every crippled war veteran in Canada," Lieut.-Col. the Rev. Sidney Lambert, beloved padre of Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, and himself an amputation of the First Great War, told members of the Ontario Hotelmen's Association yesterday.

Col. Lambert, visibly moved, accepted a cheque amounting to $10,068.87 from Mr. Walter Allore, Belevedre Hotel and director of Zone 11 Hotelmen's Association, raised from this city and district in the recent campaign for the building fund of the new War Amps Health Centre to be erected in Toronto in the near future.

Luncheon Held.

The presentation was made before a cross-section of Belleville organization life with upwards of fifty men and women representing those associations who assisted Chairman Allore, of the Belleville War Amps Campaign Committee in raising this amount, at a luncheon held in the New Queen's Hotel yesterday.

Col. Lambert told the gathering that the cheque he held was the largest single amount contributed to the fund by any community in Ontario and it had a double meaning. First it was the largest amount tendered the Fund by an outside centre and secondly it put the general objective of $500,000 well over the top.

Never Repay Debt.

"We are indebted to you, if you want to call it that, but you like the rest of the Dominion are indebted to these men who gave so much for us who perhaps gave so little. The Dominion of Canada can never repay the debt it owes to the gallant men of the navy, army and air force who won the war for you and me. I accept this cheque," the padre said, "with the knowledge that this fine city of yours which, I am told, has yet to fail to support to its fullest extent a worthy humanitarian cause."

Advantages Pointed Out.

The padre pointed out what the new Health Centre will mean to Canada's amputations. "It will give these boys of mine," he said, "the privilege of enjoying themselves among themselves. An amputation naturally is cognizant of his disability, but in the new centre he will be able to relax among his own kind and enjoy himself to the utmost."

Col. Lambert paid special tribute to the women's organizations of this city who made such a "grand contribution to the fund through their efforts." Present were representatives of the I.O.D.E. chapters of the city and of the Canadian Women's Service Corps.

Mr. Dalton Caswell, president of the Ontario Hotelmen's Association, paid fine tribute to the fine effort given by the residents of this city and told the meeting that the response to the appeal for fund affirmed the faith of the residents of this city in its hotel proprietors. "After all," he said, "the hotel men of yours or any city are the official hosts to tourists and travellers. They are the barometer of hospitality and on them is the responsibility of making or breaking the community. A traveller or tourist who is well received in a hotel leaves with a pleasant taste in his mouth, or vice versa."

Tribute Paid.

Mr. Robert Wilson, chairman of the War Amps Health Centre Building Fund, expressed the heartfelt gratitude of his committee at the generous response to the approval for funds for the project, on the part of Belleville. He paid tribute to all concerned in the campaign and stated, that the publicity given the appeal was one of the main contributing factors to its success.

Mayor Frank Follwell extended to the guests an official welcome and stated that this city was ever war veteran conscious and in the future it would do its best to help the maimed veteran especially the amputations.

Present at the luncheons were the presidents and other representatives of the city's service clubs, business and industry, the Y.M.C.A., veterans' organizations and a number of amputation cases of the city and district.

Savings Bond Sale To be Continued Indefinitely

Ottawa, Nov. 1 —(CP)—The new Canada Savings Bonds which since Oct. 15 have sold to the value of $ 257,947,600, will remain on sale indefinitely, Finance Minister Ilsley announced today.

"Results reported to date...of 670,691 applications for $257,947,600 prove conclusively that this new security is meeting a substantial public demand," he said.

"No national objective was established but plans were laid on a scale which would find reasonable justification in a sale of $200,000,000 or better. Taking in account returns yet to be officially recorded it is clear that performance will outrun this reason-expectation by a considerable margin."

Mr. Ilsley said the bond would be withdrawn at any time the demand did not justify its continued sale. Interest would be added to the price of the bond after Nov. 15.

Of the total to date, $71,503,050 was in sales under the payroll savings plan.

He said the success of the bond sale "without the stimulus of the urgent presentations of previous campaigns," showed that war-developed thrift was being maintained.

PAINT USED FOR SOAP

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP) — The quietest Hallowe'en in years was the report by police and fire departments today—but some store owners were hoping there'll be enough soap for youngsters to use on their windows next year. The shortage of soap resulted in many store windows being dabbed with paint.

IN MEMORIAM

MOSSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, James Mosson, who passed away so suddenly, one year ago today, November 1st, 1945.

Not just today, but every day,
In silence, I remember.
—Sadly missed by his Wife.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly remembered by sister, Norma and brother Gordon and families.

COOK — In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, Flight Sergeant Clifford Cook, R.C.A.F., missing after a raid over Hamburg, November 1st., 1944, now presumed dead.

All you had hoped for, all you had you gave,
To save mankind—yourself you scorned to save.
—Sadly and proudly remembered by sister, Ferne, Bev. and Clarence.

A beautiful memory, dearer than gold
Of a son whose worth can never be told.
Alone, unseen, he stands by our side
And whispers, don't grieve, death cannot divide.
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
And though the years be many or few
We'll always be thinking, dear Clifford of you.
—Sadly missed by Mum, Dad, Sisters and Brothers.

Cover Waterfront Following Rooming House Bombing

Baltimore, Nov. 1 (AP)—A steady procession of detectives and uniformed policemen patrolled the waterfront here today in an intensive search for the perpetrators of the bombing of a rooming house in which four merchant seamen lost their lives and five others were injured.

Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson, assuming personal direction of a round-up of every waterfront personality "with whom we have ever had any trouble," described the home-made bomb blast as "one of the worst crimes in the history of the city."

The fire department said yesterday's blast was caused by a home-made incendiary bomb consisting of two cans fastened together, one containing a substance smelling like gasoline, the other exuding an odor like banana oil.

Throughout the night detectives trooped into eastern district police station with a constant stream of suspects, most of whom were questioned and released.

Amid denunciations of the bombing by city officials and labor leaders, the Federal Bureau of Investigation was called to study two warning notes which police said were delivered before the bombing.

Jesse Rodriguez, proprietor of the rooming-house, said one of the notes was thrown through a window of the house last week attached to a monkey wrench. Police quoted it as follows:

"Stop rooming finks (labor spies) in your house, which is owned by Bethlehem Steel. This is your final warning."

Duke of Windsor Visits Attlee

London, Nov. 1 (CP) — The Duke of Windsor paid a visit to Prime Minister Attlee this morning and Whitehall sources suggested the interview concerned the Duke's future.

The former King entered No. 10 Downing Street unobtrusively by a rear entrance at 11.45 a.m.

A spokesman for Cunard Lines, meanwhile, said he understood the Duke and Duchess would sail for New York aboard the Queen Elizabeth Nov. 6, arriving Nov. 11.

Since the Duke came from Paris for a stay in England, London has been humming with reports that he wanted work to do, perhaps something like his previous post as Governor of the Bahamas.

Salary Control Order Relaxed

Ottawa, Oct. 31 — (CP)—Wage and salary controls are expected to be wiped out early next year, it was learned today. Labor Minister Mitchell has said repeatedly that it is the government's intention to abolish wage controls as soon as possible.

The actual date may depend to some extent on what happens to Canadian prices but it is known that present expectations are that wage control regulations will not be extended beyond the March 15, 1947, deadline on which emergency powers authority terminates. There is some hope that they may be ended before that date.

GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—After almost 39 years as an officer of the Salvation Army, Lt.-Col. Charles Tutto is retiring and last night he and his wife were guests of honor at a farewell party in the Salvation Army Toronto Temple. Commissioner Benjamin Orames, territorial commander for Canada, expressed thanks of the organization for Lt.-Col. Tutte's work as national campaign director and public relations secretary of the Salvation Army for the last eight years.

Maintenance Camp Destroyed

Fort St. John, B.C., Nov. 1 (CP)—In a spectacular fire, throwing up a cloud of flame and smoke that could be seen for miles, the largest government-owned maintenance camp on the Alaska Highway was destroyed Wednesday. Damage was estimated at $50,000. No one was injured. The camp, a half mile from White Horse, was recently turned over to War Assets Corporation.

TRUMAN NAMES ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL COMMISSION

U.N. Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Russian delegates to the United Nations General Assembly, in the palatial Long Island estate they have rented, probably enjoy many a chuckle as they relax with the newspapers and radios after a hard day at the Assembly headquarters.

Even on the days when Soviet spokesmen have not been heard the newspaper reports and commentators link all assembly deliberations with the attitude of Russia.

But when, as on last Tuesday, there is a typical tirade from Foreign Minister Molotov, the public prints and the air are filled with it.

Mr. Molotov had the satisfaction of facing an auditorium more crowded than on opening day when the chief speaker was President Truman.

His speech was unity-shattering, a refusal to admit anything decent in American ideals or policy. It was devoid of even the most commonplace niceties in which a debater normally indulges.

That night Molotov's name and his words shrieked from the front pages all over the United States. His condemnation of Russia's major allies and everything they stood for was spoken to a comparatively small audience and in a language only a tiny fraction of that audience could understand.

But the free press of the world carried it in detail to people of all languages — and that is why, no doubt, there were extra hearty chuckles in the Glen Cove Mansion as the chief Soviet delegates toasted and dined Tuesday evening.

It was notable too that throughout the Molotov speech whenever the small groups or individuals who understood Russian interrupted with applause, the applause was picked up by large sections of the seating provided for visitors.

The Russian assembly procedure — "treat 'em rough and tell 'em nothing" — may not contribute to unity but it certainly keeps Soviet interests in the forefront of national interest.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King spent four days in New York and visited the General Assembly but he remained strictly in his role of an observer without official standing. He made certain at all times that he would not get in the way of Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, external affairs secretary and delegation leader, or of the other accredited delegates. His visit was so unofficial that he did not bring his private car into the United States. It would cost an extra 15 round trip fares to use the private car, in addition to the fares of the three in the prime minister's party.

During his overnight stay in Washington the prime minister made a pilgrimage to Bethesda naval hospital where his old friend Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, is making a gallant fight for recovery from his latest attack of illness. Mr. Hull could not receive visitors but the prime minister talked with Mrs. Hull who gave him optimistic reports on her husband's progress.

One of the most interesting and active figures at the general Assembly building is Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose husband was chief founder of the United Nations. As a member of the delegation she attends every meeting and at mealtime, spurning the special provisions made for top delegates, she crowds into the cafeteria open to everybody.

JEAN GENEST APPOINTED

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—The Justice Department yesterday appointed Jean Genets, Ottawa, lawyer, to fill one of two vacancies on the bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario. Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night telephoned Mr. Genest to congratulate him on his appointment. This was the only word that it had gone into effect, since there was no immediate official announcement.

Houdini Ghost Fails to Appear At Seance

Detroit, Nov. 1 (AP)—The ghost of Harry Houdini failed to appear last night at a seance held by a group of Detroit magicians on the 20th anniversary of the great magician's death. Promptly at midnight, Robert Ungerwitter, a Detroit magician called upon Houdini's spirit to make itself known before 15 persons assembled in a darkened room. But nothing happened.

As the clock struck twelve and sounds of Hallowe'en celebrations echoed through the downtown area, the ceremony started. The participants—13 professional magicians and amateurs — quietly seated themselves in a circle, leaving a 14th chair vacant. On it were placed mementos of Houdini's life — his favorite handcuffs, an autographed picture, a broken magician's wand and a copy of one of his books.

Tensely, the group watched the 14th chair. Not a sound was heard as the room remained in almost darkness for five minutes.

As the lights went on again, magician Al Monroe said "I saw something but it must have been the flickering of the candles."

Unerwitter was philosophical about the failure.

"We didn't fail, we just haven't succeeded," he said.

Mercy Flight Saves Mink ill with Distemper

Regina, Nov. 1 —(CP)— A different type of mercy flight was completed recently when vaccine was flown to bush country mink ranch where the rich-coated animals were in danger of being wiped out by distemper contracted from sleigh dogs, it was learned today.

Resources Minister J. L. Phelps of Saskatchewan said the vaccine was flown to the ranch about 175 miles north of Prince Albert near Ile A La Crosse, by a department aircraft equipped with floats.

Outbreak of the disease which threatened to wipe out valuable breeding stock, was checked by the vaccine.

MORE COUPONS AVAILABLE

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)—Announcement yesterday by the Ontario Liquor Control Board that coupons 101 to 104 inclusive will be valid Nov. 1 means in effect that the individual quota for home deliveries has been boosted from 24 pints to 32, an increase of 33 1-3 per cent, it was estimated last night. Under the Ontario system individual coupon books contain only numbered, not dated, coupons, each good for six pints. Today's announcement means that since Sept. 1 and to the end of November at least 16 coupons have become valid, permitting purchase of 96 pints for three months instead of 72.

O. P. A. LIFTS CEILINGS

Washington, Oct. 31 —(AP)— The Office of Price Administration today removed price ceilings from pulpwood imported from the three Canadian provinces of Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The price agency said it had decided that ceiling prices established in Canada by the Canadian government were "sufficient to insure satisfactory price controls and no purpose will be served in having parallel O.P.A. ceilings."

Only a few days ago O.P.A. had raised its own ceilings on these same imports to the level of the Canadian ceilings, retroactive to Aug. 19.

Concert Tours Of Secondary Schools Planned

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP)—Plans for a program of concert tours of secondary schools throughout Ontario were outlined last night by the Ontario Department of Education.

The Department said the aim is to reinforce the present musical programs in the schools, to raise the level of music appreciation in the province, to stimulate activity in school music and to assist young artists to obtain professional recognition.

The Leslie Bell Choir of Toronto and the Barrie Collegiate Institute Band are two of the groups chosen for this activity. Other groups will include soloists and duets, generally working in groups of four.

The program for this year includes 16 schools, divided into three sections: Eastern, Lindsay, Peterborough, Smith's Falls, Brockville and Cornwall; Northern, Barrie, North Bay, Sudbury, Port Arthur, Fort William and Timmins; Western, Guelph, Kitchener, Sarnia, St. Thomas and Brantford. Four to five concerts will be held in each and subsequently the activity will be widened to take in other centres.

Mother's Milk Rushed to Baby

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—A cylinder of mother's milk, rushed by airplane from New York to save the life of 18-day-old Jeffrey Kindle of Ottawa, arrived early today. Hospital officials reported the baby now is out of danger and is progressing favorably.

The child was one of twin boys born prematurely to Mrs. Edward Kindle. The other died Tuesday. With no mother's milk available in this city the father telephoned his sister in New York in an effort to obtain a supply. The milk was forwarded by the Children's Welfare Federation.

HAS NO CONSCIENCE

London, Nov. 1 —(CP)—A "thief without a conscience" is being sought by city detectives. He stole a coat and shirt from a delivery boy, while the lad was receiving first aid for injuries suffered in a collision between a truck and his bicycle yesterday.

Babe Arrives At Hospital Before Mother

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP) — Five minutes old and weighing nine pounds, William Wayne Ramsey arrived at the San [illegible] Community Hospital ahead of his mother. The infant was born in the back seat of his father's hospital-bound automobile yesterday in the middle of a traffic jam.

When they arrived at the hospital, frantic father Onie Ramsey honked the horn for help and his wife, Evelyn handed the baby out of the car door to an attendant.

Not realizing the infant had just been born, the attendant permitted Mrs. Ramsay to remain in the car until someone asked about the mother.

NO ONE SCRATCHED

Toronto, Nov. 1 —(CP)— A two-ton truck loaded with glass hit the curb at the outskirts of the city Thursday, turned over, smashed the glass and the top of the cab—and the two men inside walked out without a scratch.

Truck Driver Robbed Of $2,[illegible] in Cash

Montreal, Nov. 1 (CP)—Provincial police reported that two armed bandits robbed a truck driver of Victoriaville, Que., of $2000 cash Tuesday night.

The driver, Paul-Emile Lavigne was driving along a highway between St. Clothilde and Notre Dame De Bon Conseil in Drummond-Arthabaska county when two men in an automobile staged the holdup.

No other details were available. The investigation is continuing.

Passengers Face Backwards

Washington, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Like the mythical bird that did not care where he was going but wanted to see where he had just been, a plane-load of passengers flew yesterday from Washington to California facing backward. The principal reason for the change was a study of combat and crash research findings which showed that in rough landings passengers are safer when the deacceleration shock is distributed over most of the body and absorbed by the back of the seat.

The Corvette's Bell

Belleville during the Second World War made a memorable contribution to the war effort in every field, her young men and women serving in very large numbers in all branches of the service and her people at home undertaking every possible task to build up and maintain the home front in support of the cause and of the great numbers who served.

One of the efforts made on behalf of the members on service was the fitting out of the corvette, which had been dedicated in the name of the city, with supplies and gifts for the ship's company. The bell of that ship is now to be returned and presented to Belleville as a memento. It will therefore be a symbol and visible evidence of the city's and community's war effort and of the career of her younger citizens in the naval forces of the Dominion in which they enlisted and served with devotion and distinction. The community also has the proud record of the young men and women on active service in the navy whose record will never fade.

Future Growth

Professor Gilbert Taylor of the University of Toronto has given an estimate of the population which Canada can sustain. Speaking in Montreal on "Geography and National Planning" he declared that today all but about 800,000 of Canada's 3,500,000 square miles are "empty" and could support a gradual increase of population up to 50,000,000. He sees that two most promising areas for settlement as the Mackenzie-Slave-Peace river area and a rather harrow fringe bordering the St. Lawrence. As to the St. Lawrence it is his view that it is already quite well occupied in regard to agriculture. Besides during the past forty years there has been a gradual migration towards the "Mackenzie triangle." He noted that the Russians in Siberia plan to settle many of the 340,000,000 they expect to inhabit Russia before the end of this century.

He also expressed the opinion that Canadian authorities were wise to discount settlement possibilities in the Canadian north because, he said, it is so difficult to place even a few thousand immigrants easily.

The question of Canada's future growth will always be a topic of interest to the Canadian people. How large a population this country will support will always be an intriguing subject for Canadians. The growth of this country has been steady. Canada's people are optimistic and energetic and may be depended upon to develop this country's vacant areas as much as possible.

Improved Food Habits Needed

Sufficient quantities of different foods are available in Canada to provide every Canadian with nutrients needed for health, Dr. E. W. McHenry of the University of Toronto said in an address at a nutrition meeting sponsored by the Health League of Canada in Toronto. He added, however, that there is evidence that the food habits of many Canadians need to be improved and that the available foods are not being properly used.

"The two main causes for malnutrition in Canada are ignorance and indifference," said Dr. McHenry who is Professor of Public Health Nutrition at the University's School of Hygiene. "These two causes can be most effectively wiped out by the adequate training of children in healthful living."

Food habits are formed in childhood and persist through life with little change in most people. Firmly entrenched habits were difficult to change and it was difficult to arouse people sufficiently to cause them to change.

The Doctor stated that "Our main hope of improving nutritional conditions is proper training of children with regard to food habits and other aspects of health. We need to instil in children a liking for the foods which are good for them and to cause that liking to be entrenched as a habit."

However, nutritional conditions in Canada are sufficiently good that only one deficiency disease, goitre, occurs with any frequency among adults. Two deficiency conditions, rickets and scurvy, are occasionally found in babies.

In regard to goitre—caused by lack of iodine—he pointed out that iodized salt is the most practical method of obtaining iodine.

He includes obesity under malnutrition.

Superpants

Extension of the ban on two-pants suits need not cause any great agitation among the "aristocrats" who can afford to buy two pairs of pants at once. As a matter of fact, chemical developments have reached a stage at which the promise is made that one pair of common, everyday pants can be so treated as not only to last indefinitely but also to retain their creases through rain and snow and whatever mussing up they may encounter, says Christian Science Monitor.

This chemical treatment also makes them water-repellent, unshrinkable, and fireproof. Just think of it—one pair of pants that will resist wrinkles, shrinkage, repel water, flame, mildew and mold; superpants, the gift of chemistry to the two-pantless, the opening of a new era in the long history of long pants! There should be no more weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth, no more panting over the bi-pantless situation. Sooner or later the two-pants suits will return, and in the meanwhile the chemical developments promised may result in an era of "the forgotten pants."

The King of Diamonds

It is hard to say whether Dr. John T. Williamson, McGill graduate in geology, is to be admired more for his skill in locating what may be the greatest deposit of diamonds yet to be discovered, or his cool refusal of $20,000,000 to bring his property into one of the great world diamond cartels. That a man should reject an offer so princely for an as yet unproved diamond field staggers the imagination. Yet we rather think Dr. Williamson knows what he is doing—knows the conditions of the diamond world market almost as well as he knows the rich blue soil in which the precious stones lie.

At the present time, price of diamonds in Canada has been going up, due partly to the fact that more men have more money to buy engagement and other types of diamond rings, and also the deep-seated belief—solidly founded over a period of many years—that however much other assets might depreciate, the value of diamonds would remain stationary or increase. It is a satisfaction for Canadians to know that one of their own university-trained geologists has succeeded in divining this hoard of incredible wealth in Tanganyika, and they will hope his turn-down of the diamond cartel's offer will be vindicated as good business. The success story of a Canadian in the United States is common; in Tanganyika, it is breaking new ground.

Any effort to change the diet of the Japanese (or the Chinese or Indonesians) raises questions as fundamental as any there are to be found in the Orient. Orientals do not eat rice in preference to beefsteak. They eat rice and fish because they have so little land in proportion to population. It takes little land to produce a few bowls of rice—provided that the farms are cultivated by hand. It takes far more land to produce meals which include fruit, green vegetables and meat, says New York Herald Tribune.

QUESTIONING

The children question how and why;
And bothered, still be glad 'tis so.
With patience unto them reply.
There is so much they want to know.

With how and why and when and where,
Life's secrets they would ferret out.
Oh, grownup in your easy chair,
There is so much they think about.

We, too, whose hearts must ache and burn,
Who see our cherished loved ones die,
As children to "Our Father" turn
And trouble Him with questioning why.

Be patient with them, lest from you,
To learn from strangers, they may go.
We question oft our whole lives through.
There is so much we want to know.

Predict Revival of Seal Hunting in Newfoundland

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 1 (CP)—Seal hunting renewed on a small scale this year after dropping to almost a standstill during the last few years of the war, is expected to be renewed on a steadily increasing scale from now on.

Wrecks and enemy action crippled the industry by reducing the seal hunting fleet, operated by St. John's merchants, to one ship in 1943. Now steps are being taken to rebuild the fleet and it is expected that the industry will retake its place in the economy of the country.

The hunt takes place in late March and early April in the frigid waters northeast of Newfoundland. During the winter months the seal from the Arctic move down to the Grand Banks off Newfoundland.

With the coming of spring the seal begin to return to their Arctic haunts. The move north is so timed that the female seal give birth to their young on icefloes moving southward. The young seal are particularly sought because their pelts can be sold to seal coat manufacturers. Others are used in the manufacture of leather goods. Seal oil is used in the making of soap, in the tanning industry and sometimes as fuel.

In pre-war years the hunt gave employment to approximately 1,500 men. Because the hunt comes before the opening of the cod season there is usually little trouble in finding the number of men needed, despite the fact that the job is not without its hazards

Study Ships Needed

The types of ships used in the hunt are usually of the 300 to 400-ton icebreaker class which can crash their way into the icefloes where the hunt is carried on.

Men frequently have to leave their ships and travel several miles over the floes in search of seal. Cases have been rcorded seal. Cases have been recorded sudden blizzards and frozen to death on the floes.

When the industry was operating at its peak, the number of pelts taken ranged between 100,000 and 350,000 a season.

Whaling, abandoned almost entirely when the price for whale oil dropped in the 1920s, was resumed a few years ago on a small scale and is not expected to expand to any great extent unless there is a greater demand for whale products.

Two companies, one in Labrador and the other in the south coast of Newfoundland, now operate about five whaling ships. Most of the products from the catches go to Canada, the United State and the United Kingdom.

"NO BAD FEELINGS" SAYS CONDEMNED MAN

McAlester, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP)—Mose Johnson, 34, announcing "I have no bad feelings and am prepared to go," was electrocuted today at the state penitentiary for the murder of a fellow convict, L. C. Smalley. Johnson's criminal record began 12 years ago with chicken stealing.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

THE BREAD DOLLAR

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer:

On the surface, that statement on tomorrow's bread prices, as given by Agriculture Minister Gardiner (in your issue of Oct. 18) does not seem to mesh with what has been happening along the "milk" front, since the government subsidy was withdrawn.

However, the scene clarifies quite a bit if that initial paragraph gets read closely rather than as a casual item in the news. As your radio friends would say, I quote—which, by the way, is the central flaw in radio broadcasting, i. e., that such statements leave no record and are "sunk without trace" in the public mind—from your report: "Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today that the price of bread 'is likely to go down as to go up' if and when federal controls and the wheat subsidy are needed."

The busy urban reader would tend to accent the words 'wheat subsidy' and to conclude that the words 'federal controls' are purely subsidiary. But how about the possibility, and maybe the desirability, of ending the wheat subsidy here on the home front, long before the conclusion of the wheat agreement with Great Britain?

At the present as you are well aware, the domestic wheat price is away below the export wheat levels, and after the drawback or "subsidy" has been paid by the government to the millers (in the interests of the consumer) Canadian bread eaters are getting wheat at about 50 per cent of the British—Canadian contract price. In the circumstances, the average reader, who is still paying a respectable price for his loaf, might be forgiven for wondering why? Well, the central reason is that the wheat-growers only get about 13 cents out of the urban bread dollar; the balance being distributed as follows: baker, 60 cents; retailer, 15cents; miller, 5 cents; transporation, 4 cents; handling and storage, 3 cents.

Free-Wheel up Hill

(Ottawa Journal)

English-made bicycles have long held supremacy, and up to the outbreak of the recent war English manufacturers exported more bicycles than the manufacturers of all other countries combined. There is a very large market for British bicycles in the United States.

In the present drive for overseas trade the bicycle-makers are naturally out to retain their leadership with the best article. At the "Britain Can Make It" exhibition in London, the first model of the bicycle of the future is on display.

The machine is built-in or streamlined, from the instrument panel to the toolbag. Oh yes, this bike has an instrument panel just like an automobile, because it has so many gadgets in its makeup. It is partly operated by pedals and partly by electric power. The chain drive is gone, and in its place is a shaft propelled by a small electric battery concealed in the framework. This enables the rider to free-wheel up a one-in-ten gradient for a distance of more than half a mile. It has an electric bell, electric lights, an electrically operated brake, an anti-theft lock and a concealed parking stand. Remarkable to relate, it is fifteen per cent. lighter than an ordinary bicycle, and will be even cheaper than the best bicycles of today.

Last, but not least, it has a built-in radio. Imagine coasting up a hill and listening to music instead of pushing the pedals down hard, or even having to walk up and push the bike before you!

Milk Prices Will Stay Unchanged Report Awaited

Toronto, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Milk prices in Ontario will remain at present levels until the royal commission on milk makes its report, it was indicated yesterday by announcement that the Whole Milk Producers' League and the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association had formally renewed their agreement of Oct. 1 which raised the price three cents a quart. Earlier, E. W. McLean, appearing on behalf of the Milk Producers' League, won an adjournment to two weeks in hearing of an application for an injunction sought by Elizabeth Morton of Toronto to restrain the League and the Distributors' Association from extending the agreement.

Tojo Trial May Continue Long

Tokyo, Nov. 1 — (AP) — The war crimes tribunal was handed defence motions today indicating that the trial of Hideki Tojo and other Japanese leaders may drag on well into next summer. As the prosecution prepared to move into the final phase of its case, the defence presented a series of motions for permission to make extended opening and closing statements that would pile weeks on the trial.

PUT ON YOUR MASK, YOU DISEASE DISSEMINATOR

Bertie who suffers with delusions of grandeur graciously consented to give some newspaper man an interview, but, according to the story published about this Chicago burlesque, insisted on keeping fifteen feet away from the visitor because he (I can't make out from the story whether Bertie or the interviewer) seemed to have what, in rag-tag parlance, is called, in the early stages, a "cold".

A news item telling of the send-off given General Eisenhower as he boarded ship for a trip to England mentions that the general was recovering from a heavy you know what the reporter can call it nothing else but, and that Mrs. Eisenhower remained in her stateroom, as she was still feeling the effects of an attack of flu, bronchitis or something—well, anyway, the general didn't say cold.

The item reminded one editor of a family who live in his neighborhood. They have three growing children. When one member of the family develops the C-R-I (I can prove the editor used this term), "we have often noticed how it ripples through the home and all five members of the family have their whirl at it....an article on how to confine the C-R-I to the one member of the family who brings it home, instead of allowing it to go the rounds, as it does in so many households."

The best way to do that is described in detail on p. 21 of the booklet "Call It Cri" (for the booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope), but unfortunately it involves wearing a mask, and most people would rather catch whatever the trouble may prove to be than do such an unconventional thing as wear a suitable mask even in the privacy of home.

The next best way is to keep out of range of the person who has the cri. That means one must keep not less than ten to twelve feet away from the person if he or she coughs or sneezes open-face or without holding handkerchief or other screen over nose and mouth to prevent spattering the environment with mouth or nose spray—visible or invisibly fine droplets of moisture which may carry the virus of germs of the disease. The effective range of the spray given off during polite conversation is only two or three feet, not more than five feet, so that it is not so difficult to keep out of conversational spray range, as, say, across a desk or a counter or a table.

If a suitable mask is not out of the question, let the member of the family who brings home the cri wear over nose and mouth a mask consisting of not less than ten layers of gauze (cheesecloth) having a mesh of [illegible] threads to the inch, or else the more comfortable, cleaner, more efficient, transparent Silvers mask described in the cri booklet.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Negative

Is a negative tuberculin test a sure sign that there is no tubercular infection anywhere in the body? (W. L. R.)

Answer—A negative test is not a sign of anything. It is comparable with no news—which is better than bad news. Tuberculin test is for tuberculosis only; other tubercular infections, such as syphilis, do not respond to a tuberculin test. The word "tubercular", although often misused pertains to tubercle, and tubercles are lumps or swellings or nodules which may occur in syphilis, leprosy, tuberculosis, etc. The word pertaining to tuberculosis is tuberculous, not tubercular.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

any people believe that brown eggs are richer and more nutritious than white ones and this popular belief is an important factor in the commercial distribution of eggs. Some years ago a survey made by American poultrymen showed that light-colored eggs were generally preferred by the public in New York City and dark-colored ones in Boston.

There is, however, no good reason for supposing that the richness of an egg is related to the color of its shell. Analysis shows that eggs are virtually the same in chemical composition regardless of the color of the shell and that there is no appreciable difference in the food and nutriment content of light-colored and dark-colored eggs.

All eggs are designed by nature for developing chicks and they contain a great amount of nourishment in small space. The white eggs require as much food while in the shell as do the young young of birds and fowls that lay of birds and fowls that lay dark eggs.

Ehe edible part of a hen's egg consists roughly of 76 per cent water, 13.4 per cent protein, 10.5 per cent fat, and one per cent minerals.

By weight the white of an egg accounts for about 58 per cent, the yolk about 32 per cent and the shell about 10 per cent.

The white is composed of about 87 per cent water, 12 per cent protein and one per cent fat, sugar, minerals and other substances; the yolk is composed of 49 per cent water, 32 per cent fat, 17 per cent protein, and two per cent of sugar, minerals and other substances; the shell is composed chiefly of calcium carbonate with some water, minerals and organic matter.

The food value of eggs varies somewhat with the diet of the hens.

By feeding hens certain dyes they can be made to lay eggs with vari-colored yolks.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Maybe This Man is More Loyal Than Sensible

Loyalty is one of the finest things in the world. Nobody will dispute that. We'd all be pretty sunk most of the time if those who love us didn't stick by us through thick and thin, no matter what foolish things we do or whether we deserve it or not.

But even so, there may be times when loyalty can be carried too far; where it goes beyond the bounds of commonsense. And I'm inclined to feel that the situation described in the following letter may be one of these.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am very much in love with the most wonderful girl in the world. I have been waiting for her, and asking her to marry me, for five years now. But she told me she was in love with another man. I know he doesn't love her, though. She has told me many things about him, including the fact that he has lied to her.

"Two weeks ago this girl I love went to visit her aunt in another town. While there, she met a girl who showed her love letters she had from this man, and she found out many other bad things about him.

"How can I make this girl forget that cheap fellow so we can be married and have a home and children?

"Davis"

You have certainly had an unusual amount of patience to wait five years for a girl who all that time has been infatuated with another man, and apparently a rather poor specimen of manhood at that. It must be true love you have for her not to have become disgusted with the situation long ago and looked elsewhere for someone to make that home with you.

But don't wait too long. Don't let your loyalty carry you to foolish extremes. It's high time you had that home and were starting that family, and high time, too, to let the girl friend know you don't intend to hang around forever.

It is possible that she may care more for you than she is even conscious of herself, or she would probably not have confided in you as she has. But she needs something to wake her up and make her realize how fortunate she is to have a man like you who cares enough to wait around until she sees what poor judgment she's been using. I'd suggest that you tell her flatly that she's got to make up her mind whether she wants you or not. That might turn the trick. Then, if she keeps on stalling, say goodbye to her for good, and mean it.

In fact, I'd advise you to give careful thought to the whole thing right now, and ask yourself if this girl is honestly worth the consideration you've given her. Are you quite certain that she'd be as loyal to you as you would be to her, or do you think that, even after she was married, she might develop the same sort of infatuation for other men that she has had so long for this particular one?

Don't gamble too recklessly with your happiness. Remember that even though you may feel it would break your heart forever if you gave this girl up, actually hearts have a way of mending themselves eventually, no matter how shattered we think they are. So it might well be that if you decided to let her go her own foolish way, someone else would come along and make you far happier in the end than she ever could.

It's worth thinking about before you take on a wife who may bring you ever greater worry and unhappiness than you've had to date.

Don't Believe All That the Boys Tell You, Mary R.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have known a soldier for nearly a year. He came to my house once and said that he loved me but that he knew I did not care for him. I told this to a lady who knows him, and she told me that he was going around with a woman, not a girl.

I love him very much. Should I ask him to come back, or should I forget him? I don't go out with boys because I am in love with him. Please advise me what to do.

Mary R.

My advice is to put this man out of your mind and start going out with other boys at once, Mary R. You're a very foolish girl to stay home dreaming about some irresponsible young man who tells you he loves you while he is going around with someone much older than you are.

All girls have to learn that many boys tell girls they love them just to be agreeable, or because they want something from them, and it doesn't mean a thing. Wait until some boy is really in earnest about you before giving your heart away.

Better Go Out Without the Other Boys, "Lonesome"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for the past year and we were very much in love. But somehow we began to change. He fooled with other girls and I went out on a blind date.

Since I went on the blind date he has only called me up once, and then he said I had some nerve going out with another boy. I had told him a few days before that I was going on a blind date and he said it was O.K. Do you think it is really my fault that he doesn't speak to me? I feel that it is.

I have had a chance to go out with many fellows since he was mad, but I stayed in, thinking he would call. Now I have changed my mind and I am going to go out with other fellows. Do you think I am doing the right thing?

Lonesome

Since you have already made up your mind that you're going out with other fellows, why ask me about it? Is your conscience hurting you? Or could it be that you're still interested in this first boy and would like to get him back, but since he doesn't call you up you're going to act as if you didn't care and try to get him jealous?

If you really like him, and feel that part of the trouble is your fault, as you say, why not be sport enough to tell him so? It might put everything right again.

However, I suspect that you just don't know what or whom you want yet and shouldn't be trying to decide. It's probably much better to go out with other bys for awhile and be friends with a lot of them. You're undoubtedly young enough to have plenty of time ahead in which to find the right man.

Marmora

Marmora (Special)—Approximately five hundred persons were fed at the annual chicken supper of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening. In addition to success favoring this well-prepared meal, the bazaar also was well patronized. The Guild had a fancy work table and the Junior W. A. also had a candy and work table besides operating a fish pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Wally Hilton of London are visiting friends in Marmora and Deloro.

Out-of-town guests at St. Paul's annual chicken supper on Tuesday evening included: Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hutchinson of Madoc, Mrs. Archie Grayling and daughter Gladys and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harryett of Havelock.

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Brownlie and several parishioners of St. Paul's attended the Service of Witness at St. John's Church, Stirling, on Wednesday evening. Provost R. K. Seeley of Trinity College, Toronto, was the special preacher.

Mrs. D. E. LaPlante and three children of Peterboro are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Shannon.

MOVED ON A WEEK

Cobourg, Oct. 31 (CP)—A drunk driving charge against Judge J. G. M. German today was moved on for another week by consent of Crown and defence. The charge was adjourned until today when Judge German was released on $2,000 bail Oct. 23 on a charge of dangerous driving. The charges arose out of a traffic accident early in September when Mrs. Jean Taylor of Cobourg was seriously injured.

BEAUTY

Reducing Methods For Lazy Girls

Specialists who operate reducing salons claim that beauty of figure is at every woman's doorstep. Sounds cheering? You trot out and bring it in as you bring in the morning newspaper. Laugh, if you must, but it is a fact that, if one has the price for professional services and if one will pay a little heed to the intake of calories, figure molding is possible.

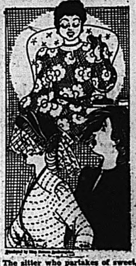
Different establishments have different methods, but they are all based on health rules. Many of them require, before beginning treatments, that there be a medical check-up. Occasionally, but not often, avoirdupois is caused by a glandular disturbance. The common cause is too much food, or not the right kind of food, and an insufficient expenditure of energy to burn up the calories. If one is a sitter and partakes of foods that contain fats, sweets and starches, one can be sure that the curves will keep right on developing and the battle of the bulge will be a tough one.

In a popular salon, the candidate for slenderness is given a sheet and papier-mache slippers. She is placed in a super cabinet bath designed for a reclining position. She basks in light rays that are supposed to stimulate circulation, evaporate fat cells and eliminate toxic poisons.

An alternating hot and cold shower follows. Then the masseuse gets in her work. For nearly an hour the adipose tissue of the patient is nipped and pinched, pounded and stroked. The results are measured by the inches that are evenaually deleted.

Massage is the proper treatment for localized fat. It is a blessing to the poor dear whose frame is normal above the waistline but who has overdeveloped hips and thighs.

All this is nuts and raisins for the lazy girl who gets goose flesh at the thought of exercise. She does nothing but sweat and swelter—which requires no effort on her part—and she submits to a mild beating of her too rotund frame.



The sitter who partakes of sweet, fat and starchy foods will find curves developing.

Results will come more quickly, of course, if exercise is a part of the project. Torso-twisting, floor-rolling and arm-swinging, done under the supervision of an instructor of physical education will make muscles firm and strong. On a healthy musculature that is subjected to a daily workout, fat cells will find a housing shortage. They can't stand activity.

In the majority of cases of obesity A new set af habits must be formed. The intake of food must be cut down, yet must provide all the elements that are necessary for well-being. There should be some form of daily exercise, not too many hours of sleep no dipping into the candy box.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Signature to Letter to Comparative Stranger

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently been married, and I am trying to figure out the correct forms for my signature to letters and notes. Of course I sign my first name to letters to intimate friends, and I believe I sign my business letters correctly (first my informal name as signature, with my formal name in parenthesis under and to the left of my signature). But what stumps me is how I should sign a letter to a person I don't know very well, someone who probably wouldn't know how to address a reply to me. I should think this name-signing would be the same as that for a business letter, but stil this doesn't seem quite right to me. Will you please explain this to me?

Margaret

You're right in figuring out that your name-signing to a business letter and a letter to a comparative stranger are really the same form. But the difference between the closing of a business letter and a social one is indicated by using the complimentary close of "Very truly yours" for a business letter and "Sincerely yours" for the social letter to someone you don't know very well. But in both cases your signature is your informal name, and your formal name (for identification or information) is written below and to the left. Like this:

Sincerely yours,
Margaret Smith Brown
(Mrs. John Brown)

When Someone Thanks You For Sending a Card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me what is a proper reply to make when someone thanks you for a sympathy card? Also, for a birthday card or Christmas card or other similar card of greeting? I'd like something brief, yet polite.

"An excellent beginning is, I think "I wanted you to know," or "I wanted to tell you," which is, after all, the reason for sending cards of friendship and greeting. So when someone thanks you for a card of sympathy you may say ("something brief, yet polite"), "I wanted you to know that I was wishing you you with sympathy and loving understanding." For a birthday card, "Betty dear, I wanted you to know that I was washing you all happiness on your birthday and for all your birthdays". For a Christmas card, "I wanted to tell you 'A Happy Christmas', and I wanted you to have my greetings for the New Year."

Of course the important thing is the way you make these replies, the warm friendliness in your manner, the sincerity in your voice, and inevitably the charm of adding the person's name.

Duties of "A Hostess" at a Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been asked to be a hostess at the reception following the wedding of my nephew. It is to be a large wedding, followed by a large reception at one of the largest hotels here. What should I wear and what would my duties be?

A. R. C.

You should consult with whoever asked you to be a hostess, finding out what type of dress you should wear, and what your duties are to be. As "a hostess" you may be expected to preside over the refreshments-serving, or you may be asked to make introductions and to see that everyone is taken care of and is directed to the room in which the refreshments are being served.

Fashion Flashes

THE GLEAM of satin brightens the Autumn scene. A handsome dinner dress of wine-colored satin has peg-pockets set into a softly draped skirt. The blouse has wide shoulders crossed surplice fashion above a girdle fastened with a jewelled pin.

Much more subdued than the piled-high-with-silver-fox jacket, is the new fur-trimmed suit. A smartly tailored suit of gunmetal gray flannel has a collar and notched revers of beaver. Skirt slit front and back.

A great season for suits, isn't it? Typical of the smart models seen lately is a dressmaker suit of apricot-brandy-brown. The trim jacket has a gentle cutaway peplum that is softly rippled. Four black jet buttons close the jacket which has a tiny collar and arrows of black braid marking the seamless shoulder.

No matter what color is being promoted, the white evening frock always shines. White crepe makes a graceful dinner dress detailed with push-up, balloon sleeves, and a roll collar at the wide, rounded neckline. Basque bodice is featured above a skirt that is softly gathered in front. A large Chinese dragon motif, done in gold sequins and tiny gold and pearl beads, adds interest to the bodice.

This year the short coat has to be good to get by. A smart shortie wins honors because it has a quarter belt in back combined with a box pleat. Rounded collar and lapels, draped shoulder, and three double rows of tiny gold ball buttons detail this dark-beige-wool go-everywhere coat.

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 1. (CP)—These days it's hard enough to save sugar for canning purposes without watching it go down the drain in a mass of jelly that either won't jell, or has gone mouldy.

Home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have found good reasons for every fault in jelly and remedies for them.

Crystals may form too much sugar, over-cooking, or allowing the jelly to stand too long before sealing. In grape jelly the cream of tartar may form crystals, but this may be overcome by letting the juice stand after dripping to let the crystals settle. The clear juice may then be poured off and used for the jelly.

Jelly is said to "weep" when the jelly mass separates from the liquid much like curds and whey. This occurrence is more likely among fruits high in acid such as red currants, cranberries and sour plums.

If jelly has been made from the earlier fruits and stored for a time, it is wise to check it over now so if there is any sign of spoilage it may be detected. The mould may be removed carefully and the jelly used. If left until later it would soon become unpalatable.

Frosty Winter days are practically here, and mothers faced with the task of packing appetizing lunches for school-trekking offspring may get a few ideas from the following lunch-box menu suggestions.

The second has Spanish rice with bacon as the main dish, assisted by carrot sticks, and a bread and butter sandwich. Stewed dried fruit is the dessert, plus milk.

Meat and vegetable chowder is main course on the third menu, along with muffins, prune cottage pudding, and milk.

Mothers will find that sandwich fillings such as the following will tempt the most lackadaisical appetite:

Bologna— one-quarter pound bologna or wieners, two tablespoons chopped pickles, one and a half teaspoons vinegar from pickles, one-quarter cup mayonnaise, half a teaspoon minced onion, one-quarter teaspoon spicy meat sauce, one-quarter cup ground raw carrot, two tablespoons chopped celery. Grind bologna, add other ingredients and mix.

Cheese—sliced plain or with thin slices of Spanish-type onions. Pack a few carrot or celery sticks to eat with this sandwich.

PRAISES BRITISH PRESS FOR DEBATE REPORTS

London, Nov. 1 — (Reuters) — The British press "did itself credit" in reporting Tuesday's House of Commons debate on Britain's newspaper press, Haydn Davies, Labor Member of Parliament who moved the motion seeking an official inquiry into British newspapers, said last night. "Newspapers that came in for special attention and attack gave their readers what had been said about them," said Mr. Davies, whose motion was approved 270 to 157. "I believe that as a result of this debate we shall have a fairer presentation of parliamentary news than hitherto."

Economy in the Meat Course

For a certain number of homemakers the meat course presents a big problem and even a headache. They fume against meat rationing, against the price of meat, etc., but when asked whether they have tried the cheaper cuts, which are also coupon savers, the answer is generally, no, and their question is, "Are they any good"?

They are good if properly cooked say the home economists of the Consumer Section of the D. D. A. The cheaper and consequently less tender cuts of meat require long and slow cooking in moist heat. In this category are classed the following cuts: blade, brisket, chuck, flank, heart, neck, plate, round, rump, shank, short ribs and shoulder.

Proper seasoning plays an important part in making these cuts of meat better flavour. If used with discretion, fresh or dried herbs, spices and sauces add distinction to meat dishes. Parsley, bay leaf, thyme, savoury, garlic, marjoram celery leaves, pepper corns, chives, chili powder, curry powder are some of the seasonings used. Nothing is quite as good as mint with lamb; mace or paprika blend well with veal; sage with pork; cloves, horseradish or mustard with beef. The following meat dishes using less tender cuts of meat are suggested by the Consumer Section.

Meat Loaf

1 pound pork liver
1 medium onion
1 cup dry bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg

Scald liver for 5 minutes then drain and grind with onion and beef (unless hamburger). Add other ingredients and mix well. Pack in a greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., for 1½ hours. Serves six to eight.

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie

1 to 1 1-2 pounds beef, 1-2 to 1 pound beef kidney—2 lbs. meat
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons fat
1-2 cup flour
3 cups hot water
4 whole cloves
1-2 teaspoon mixed pickling spice.
2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Biscuit dough or pastry

Cut beef and kidney in 1 inch cubes. Brown onion in hot fat, skim out. Dredge meat with flour. Brown well and remove from pan. Add water to pan in which meat was browned, stirring well. Add this gravy, with spices tied in cheesecloth bag, to meat and onion. If necessary add more water to cover meat. Cover tightly and simmer slowly until meats are tender— 1 1-2 to 2 hours, removing spices at the end of the first hour. Season with salt and pepper. Place in casserole. Cover with biscuit dough or pastry. Cut slits in dough to allow steam to escape. Bake in hot oven 400 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes, until crust is cooked.

Sweet-Sour Beef

4 pounds beef chuck, shoulder, rump or round
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
1 teaspoon whole black peppers
3 bay leaves
3 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt

Remove excess fat from meat and reserve. Soak meat 8 hours or overnight in vinegar and water to which peppers and bay leaves have been added. Turn meat once during soaking. Drain very well, saving liquid. Heat fat from meat in heavy kettle, add meat and brown on all sides. Add salt and 1 1-2 cups of the reserved liquid. Cover and cook slowly 2 to 2 1-2 hours or until tender, adding more liquid during cooking if necessary. Remove meat and serve with gravy and potato dumplings. Eight to ten servings.

Retiring Noble Grand Entertains Her Officers

The home of Mrs. J. A. Charlton, 248 Foster Avenue, was the scene Thursday evening of a very successful Hallowe'en party, when Mrs. Charlton, retiring Noble Grand of Quintena Rebekah Lodge, entertained the other retiring officers, the house being decorated in the traditional colors of orange and black, with pumpkins, witches and black cats in evidence everywhere.

In the dining-room, where buffet refreshments were later served the table, covered with a beautiful lace cloth, being centred with a large pumpkin filled with orange-colored marigolds, flanked with rosy apples holding tall orange tapers. The color scheme was painstakingly carried out in the refreshments which the hostess served.

Before her guests left for home Mrs. Charlton thanked her colleagues in the lodge for their cooperation during the past year.

UNBEATEN LEAFS GET REAL TEST WITH CANADIENS

Will Play in Montreal To-night Before Packed Stadium

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

To distort a word or two from the mouth of Mr. Frank Selke, this in the night Toronto Maple Leafs come out for some wrestling on National Hockey League ice against Montreal Canadiens.

Nobody, of course, expects any airplane spins unless Montreal's Yvon Robert somehow gets mixed up in the thing, but Mr. Selke, manager of the Canadiens, is willing to take movies of tonight's game to back up his charges that Leafs are prone to use wrestling tactics.

From the league-leading Leafs, undefeated in five starts, comes forthright denial but, happily for all concerned with hockey's big time this controversial little matter of to wrestle or not to wrestle has only served to spark the biggest build-up for any games this young season.

Leafs Out in Front

"If Selke trots out Yvon Robert we can always get Whipper Watson," quipped forward Bud Poile as Maple Leafs rode into Montreal fresh from a 5-2 win over Chicago Black Hawks. That win left Leafs out front in the league standings three points ahead of the third-place Canadiens.

Elsewhere league teams were idle with Leafs at home to the second-place Boston Bruins tomorrow night while Detroit Red Wings play New York Rangers. Rangers go to Detroit Sunday and the Chihawks play host to Bruins.

Fort Line Strong

Despite all this wrestling talk Leafs seem well-shaped for action, happy over the new-found form of their "Flying Forts" forward line of Poile, Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar.

Manager Conny Smythe attributed this to a change in attacking tactics whereby the centreman now sets up the play and passes to the wings. That form gained three goals in four minutes in Chicago.

Canadiens did not work out yesterday but were all set with the exception of Buddy O'Connor, out with a broken wrist and Murph Chamberlain who dislocated a shoulder recently. Speedy Elmer Lach who suffered an injured hip will be back in the lineup again.

Baseball Boys Still Battling Over the Manager

By The Canadian Press

The baseball boys are still battling around the New York Yankees managership. Yesterday they cornered Brooklyn Dodgers manager Leo (The Lip) Durocher at Columbus, O., following a mysterious meeting between Durocher and his general manager, Branch Rickey. They asked him point blank if he had been approached by his old boss, Larry McPhail, with an offer to join the Yankees.

Asked specifically if he had "the offer of the New York Yankee job in your pocket now" he smiled and said, "no one's approached me."

Manager Frank Boucher said yesterday Norman Larson, New York Rangers right winger, has been sent to New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League, a Ranger farm club.

The American Davis Cup selection committee announced yesterday that a six-man tennis team will leave by air Nov. 15 for the challenge round in Melbourne, Australia, to be played Dec. 26, 27 and 28. The team consists of Jack Kramer, American national champion, Frankie Parker, Fred Schroeder Sr., Gardnar Mulloy, Billy Talbert and Tom Brown Jr., Walter Pate, non-playing captain, will be in charge.

Tom Inch, 65, former world weight-lifting champion, recently re-established his claim to the title with a lift of 540 pounds, a report from Kingston-on-Thames, Surrey, Eng., states. For 12 years he has shared with Len Harvey a record for 520 pounds.

With an 8-8 victory over Windsor Assumption College, the Windsor A.K.O. junior yesterday moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Junior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MICHAEL O'HARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs — currently riding atop the National Hockey League's early-season standing—show plenty of promise that they will bear out cheer-leader Conny Smythe's predictions this year. Conny has issued his customary warwhoops that his squad is a young, fighting, fiery outfit—average age 24.1 years — and this time youth is apparently paying off.

It's not the first time Conny has given the league some of its best players still in their trembling teens or tender twenties. The immortal Primeau - Conacher - Jackson line, Reginald (Red) Horner, Syl Apps and Wally Stanowski are just a few of his finds that burned up the big time. But Conny has come up with pretty sad prospects at times, too —generally with the same-hoarse shouts of "young blood" and "great future."

The undefeated Leafs face their first big test of the season tonight when they meet the Stanley Cup-holders — Les Canadiens — in Montreal's Forum. If they can jump over the Irvin-Selke squad — and Frank Selke has laid a cunning "grudge battle" smokescreen over the scene already with his "wrestling tactics" charges — it will be time enough for some soul-felt mutual admiration in the Toronto wigwam.

Meanwhile, it has occurred to at least one Toronto fan—this one—that Conny sometimes hurls his bib-and-tucker shock troops into the fray a bit too often for customer comfort. There was a time when he bought stars — Frank (King) Clancy cost a hatful and helped win a Stanley Cup — but nowadays you can't buy players with just money so he develops them and peddles away established luminaries like Walter (Babe) Pratt and Billie (The Kid) Taylor. The cost of a rail seat should entitle a fan to see hockey by the best players available — not merely the most promising.

These "youth" ventures in sport have been known to backfire. Early last summer, for instance, Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers produced from the bush leagues three youthful outfielders and irked the Flatbush faithful — which included this reporter at that time — by benching Fred (the peepul's cherce) Walker, Augie Galan and Toronto's Goodie Rosen in their favor.

"The best prospects in years," fanfared the Gowanus savant, eyeing his "rookie sensations" as they batted an approximate collective .153 and tripped over their enthusiastic young feet in the farefree transformation of enemy singles into triples. Ebbetts Field rooters — the most baseball-wise in the world — booed, jeered and hollered for their favorites to be put back into the lineup. Rickey conceded the point and, although Rosen was traded across the river to the Giants, both Walker and Galan ended the season as regulars and had a big part in pulling the Dodgers into an unprecedented first-place National League tie with the since-crowned World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Just why they were benched in the first place presents a bit of a mystery in logic. If admittedly inferior players are used regularly in order to give them experience and "build a team," while better men stay off the field, the corollary would seem to be that as soon as rookies become seasoned they too will be benched for another batch of untried prospects.

There's nothing in that to attract a young man into professional sport and while the testing is in process the public is exposed to some pretty harrowing exhibitions.

The fans in the Toronto case, however, seem to enjoy the efforts of the scrappy young Leafs and if they continue to like what they see and the Leafs stay near the top Conny's current experiment may be pronounced successful.

We're waiting for the score from Montreal.

Says Poland's Co-operation With Russia Economic

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)— Karol Swierozowski, Poland's Vice-Minister of National Defence, said his country's "co-operation" with Russia is purely economic and that Poland has no political parts comparable to the Soviet's Communists.

In Canada for a brief goodwill visit, the General said in an interview that Poland now has complete freedom of religion and that all Roman Catholic churches seized during the German occupation have been returned to their owners.

Polish authorities used no censorship on the dispatches of foreign correspondents in the country "and I think this is one of the reasons that untruthful impressions are going out of Poland today."

GIVEN JAIL TERM

Hamilton, Nov. 1—(CP)—William Penny, operator of a Steel Workers' Union boat, the Whisper, Thursday was sentenced to three months for intimidation. He had been convicted earlier this week.

Penny's conviction followed an incident on Hamilton Bay when, the Crown charged, the Whisper nearly swamped a small boat containing two men who remained at work at the Steel Company of Canada during the recent strike. The Whisper was used to picket the waterfront entrance to the plant.

FARMERS APPLY FOR SERVICES OF POLISH WAR VETERANS

Ottawa, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Applications from Canadian farmers for the services of Polish war veterans are increasing daily, Labor Minister Mitchell said Thursday. The first group of 1,700 is scheduled to reach Halifax about Nov. 13 with a second detachment of about 1,300 arriving a week later.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 1 (CP)—Along Broadway they tell you that professional athletes are spenders with a taste for the gaudier forms of entertainment. But not so the hockey player... Maybe they get paid less than some others, or are just quite northerners, but it's a fact they usually conduct their celebrations with decorum... After the National Hockey League opener here Wednesday night, a bunch of the New York Rangers and Boston Bruins started talking and you'd think they got a bigger kick out of Wapella, Sask., than New York... After discussing the housing shortage, high prices and noise in the Metropolis, Eddie Laprade of the Rangers said: "We should get $1,000 a year bonus just to live in this town."

Cagey Quip

Nedso Irish, Madison Square Garden basketball promoter, showed up at the hockey dinner here Wednesday night for President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League... Ned was beating the drums for the new professional American Basketball Association when somebody asked how he thought the cage game would go in Toronto—which has entered the circuit... One sports writer quipped: "Conn Smythe told me Maple Leaf Gardens don't draw flies except for hockey... If Ned can fill that sports palace for basketball Conny probably will give him the keys to the city."

No Rose Without its Thorns

Dan Parker, the hard-slugging columnist of the New York Daily Mirror, came up with some praise this week for Frank Boucher of the Rangers. Then he cut loose with a blast at the Garden for raising its hockey prices about 50 cents a seat... Quoth Daniel: "...even with a championship club this price boost wouldn't be warranted but the Garden does it for a four-time loser."... Jimmy (New York Post) Cannon (who doesn't care for hockey) suggested that all regular N.H.L. games be billed as exhibitions because "...there is no incentive for a club to finish higher than fourth until the Stanley Cup playoffs start..."

24,000 Killed in Traffic Accidents in U. S. in 9 Months

Chicago, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Twenty-four thousand persons have been killed in United States traffic accidents in the first nine months of 1946, an increase of 30 per cent compared to the corresponding period in 1945, the National Safety Council says. Compared to the first nine months of pre-war 1941 the total was 13 per cent lower.

Police Criticized For Method Of Getting Statements

Stratford, Nov. 1—(CP)—With statements the Crown sought to introduce ruled inadmissible, the murder trial continued today of 19-year-old Edna Ruth Parrish of nearby Listowel, charged in connection with the death of a newborn baby last May.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells late yesterday ruled out the statements said to have been made to police by the girl. In an initial police warning and remarks to the accused, he found a hint of "inducement and implied threat," he said.

"Putting all the facts together, there must have been such pressure placed on the accused that the statements could not be voluntary."

At the same time Mr. Justice Wells criticized Police Chief Rocher of Listowel for failing to notice the physical condition of the girl at the time of her arrest and interview May 9.

"It is more by good luck than by good management that Rocher is not faced with a manslaughter charge," he said. "He found her shivering when he went to the factory where she worked and later bundled her into a car for the ride to the county jail in Stratford. If she had died through neglect, he might well have faced a charge."

Dr. M. J. Fraser said the girl was in "precarious" condition when he examined her at the jail following her arrival from Listowel. She was suffering from sepsis, had a temperature of 102.2 and a pulse rate of 112. He added that she was confused mentally at the time of the examination.

Police Chief Rocher, recalled to the witness box, said he obtained a galvanized tub, a bread knife and pieces of blood-spattered wallpaper from the accused's room and turned them over to Inspector Alex Macleod of the Ontario Provincial Police who sent them on to the medico-legal department in Toronto.

Verda Vincent, analyst in the Attorney - General's department said she made tests on the articles and found traces of human blood on them.

Dr. S. J. C. Miller, Stratford pathologist, said from an examination of Miss Parrish May 11 he concluded she had given birth to a child within the previous week.

Commons Hears Suggestion For Imperial Defence

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 1 (CP Cable) — The House of Commons last night approved a new centralized defence setup for the United Kingdom which will co-operate with defence machinery within the British Commonwealth.

Defence Minister A. V. Alexander, whose appointment was approved with the parliamentary approval given the new defence organization, told the House that sufficient military forces must be available for the Commonwealth to "hold a situation" anywhere within its borders until the proposed United Nations force could come to the Commonwealth's assistance in the event of aggression.

In the course of the Commons' discussion of the new defence system, R. W. G. Mackay, Labor member for Kingston-Upon-Hull, criticized the Canadian-United States joint defence board as an indication of how little the Dominions are prepared to do toward Commonwealth defence.

(The joint Canadian-American Board was set up in 1940 to coordinate plans for the defence of the North American continent. The Canadian branch is headed by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former Dominion Defence Minister, and the United States branch is under the direction of Fiorello La Guardia who also is Director-General of U.N.R.R.A.)

Must Form Federation

Mr. Mackay, a former professor in Australia, said that Australia's failure to contribute to the defence of Singapore is an example of the Dominions' unwillingness to share in Imperial defence machinery. The Commonwealth could be defended only if all its members formed a defence federation, he said.

A Conservative amendment calling for greater co-ordination of Imperial defence was tabled. Prime Minister Attlee said, however, that the Dominions must be left free to arrange their defence in their own way.

Mr. Alexander told the House that the government will seek to increase opportunities for exchange of defence information with the Dominions.

"We must have sufficient forces for the British Commonwealth in order to enable us to hold a situation until such time as the general forces of the United Nations can come to our assistance in that part of the Dominions and colonies which might be affected," he added.

Canadian Football Reaches Decisive Stage on Saturday; Argos and Varsity Must Win

In the West Winnipeg Bombers Have to Beat Calgary Stampeders

(By The Canadian Press)

In the short Canadian rugby season all the games are crucial, but this Saturday they're really important.

In Saturday's seven fixtures a western Canada champion will be decided; the play-off teams will be settled in the senior Ontario union, and the eastern big four and intercollegiate loops will set the stage for the final league standings a week later.

The fact that it's "win or else" for a number of teams probably accounts for the scarcity of pre-game predictions. Warren Stevens, coach of University of Toronto, says all seats have been sold for Varsity's intercollegiate battle at Toronto against Western University of London, Ont. That means a crowd of 19,000.

In the West, the Calgary Stampeders clash with Winnipeg Blue Bombers at the latter's Osborne Stadium. It's the second of the two-game total-points series for the western title. And Calgary starts with a lead of three points, gained in their 21-18 victory over Bombers last week at Calgary.

In the Eastern big four, it's Toronto Argonauts at Montreal Alouettes, and Ottawa Rough Riders at Hamilton Tigers. The teams wind up the league schedule Nov. 9 with two squads going into a play-off. Right now, Argos and Alouettes are tied with 14 points. Ottawa is third with 10, and Tigers are out of contention, with two points.

As the same teams meet on the following Saturday, it can easily be seen that Toronto and Montreal are the play-off teams unless one of them loses this week and next while Ottawa wins both weeks. That would give Ottawa a tie with the Montreal or Toronto team that loses both games. Nobody claims this can actually happen.

In the senior Ontario union, four of the six teams will qualify for the play-offs. Their schedule finishes today with Toronto Indians at Sarnia Imperials, and Toronto Balmy Beach travelling to Windsor Rockets. The two other teams played this week's game at Hamilton on Wednesday night, when Hamilton Wildcats beat Ottawa Trojans 23-7.

Hamilton On Top

That mid-week O. R. F. U. game put Hamilton on top with 17 points, displacing Toronto Indians who have 15, Balmy Beach have 10, Sarnia 8 and Windsor 6. Ottawa hasn't any points.

Saturday's game in the O.R.F.U. therefore will decide the four play-off teams unless Windsor beats Balmy Beach.

The eastern intercollegiate also has two Saturday's left for scheduled play. University of Toronto could tie Western for first place, with eight points each, if they win Saturday's rah-rah festival at Toronto, leaving the decision over for the week following. In this Saturday's other intercollegiate game the winless Queen's University squad entertain McGill at Kingston.

STYMIE GOES IN PIMLICO SPECIAL

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

Baltimore, Nov. 1 (AP) —The 10th running of the Pimlico Special today shapes up as another golden opportunity for Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie to close the gap on the world money-winning record of Whirlaway.

Only four will face the issue in this mile-and 3-16th winner-take-all affair: Stymie, King Ranch's Assault, Mrs. Helen Lebowitz's Turbine and J. R. Bradley's Bridal Flower.

Stymie approached within $44,876 of Whirlaway's all-time bankroll of $561,161 when he won the Gallant Fox Handicap in New York last Saturday. Beginning the year in 15th place in the list of leading money-winning horses with a total of $277,635, the five-year-old chestnut son of Equestrian-Stop Watch collected $59,050 in the Gallant Fox to move into the runner-up spot with a total of $516,285.

Chicago Negro Stands Out as Dangerous Challenger for Lightweight Title

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

Chicago, Nov. 1 — (AP) — A 19-year-old Chicago Negro stands out today as the most dangerous challenger for the world's lightweight championship.

Johnny Bratton, a graduate from Golden Gloves amateur competition just two years ago, is a natural. With a spit-fire left hand, he thrilled a crowd of 9,042 in the Chicago Stadium last night by defeating the No. 1 challenger, veteran Willie Joyce, in a major lightweight upset. The action, without a clinch throughout the 10 rounds, was so furious that the fans, who paid a gross gate of $39,067, were in an uproar all the way.

Joyce, 28, an eight-year campaigner in three divisions, generally was conceded to possess the best left jab in the sport. But Bratton, a cagey boxer with exceptionel hitting powers, owns one that is just a split second faster.

Joyce was the aggressor during the first seven rounds. He moved in constantly, but at times missed by great margins.

Starting with the seventh, Bratton began to apply the pressure. He beat Joyce to the punch in every exchange. Finally Joyce broke ground. Then he discovered that Bratton could carry the battle to him.

Joyce weighed 138½ to 136¼ for Bratton. As a result of his victory, Bratton will box Beau Jack, the Georgia shoeshine boy, in the Stadium Nov. 15 in a 10-rounder.

It was Bratton's seventh straight victory. His last defeat was a split-decision loss to Ike Williams, the N.B.A. lightweight title-holder, in New Orleans, last January.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

With the return to the city of a number of veteran basketball players, prospects for a smart Intermediate "B" squad begin to loom up with more than anticipated brilliancy, according to Dr. George Faulkner, who has assumed the role of playing coach.

• • •

At the initial practice the other night Coach Faulkner was impressed with the early season form shown by the veterans and by the team as a whole. Jack Dickens, Don Mason, Ralph McCabe and Johnny Hayman turned in stellar efforts while other aspirants for squad positions showed up well.

• • •

"If we can hold the team together" the coach stated today "I think we have a smart team that should give an excellent account of itself against any Intermediate "B" squad in the district. I have players with plenty of experience and younger fellows with lots of ability, spirit and enthusiasm."

• • •

"But the team has not been selected as yet, not by any chance," he went on. "Every position is open and I would like to see every player of intermediate age turn out for practice so we can field the best squad available in the city." He mentioned such court luminaries as Bill Wright, "Hot" Muir, Willie Mills, Jack Whiting, Larry Buck, Jack Ostrum and others who are known to be in the city.

• • •

The team practices tonight at eight o'clock at the "Y" and all players are urged to turn out. Further practices will be held next week. Efforts are being made to secure a sponsor for the team, and if this is made possible then this city will once again take its rightful spot in basketball circles of the district.

With the veterans of the squad besides those mentioned in an earlier paragraph are Don Mason, Ben Ritchie, Jerry Hyde, Doug Mott, Abe Tobe, Jack Cooper, and Eddie Schreider, as well as Gord. Bankier. But, as Coach Faulkner informs us: "They won't make the squad on reputation alone. They must show that they are good enough on the floor to make the team. As I said before, all positions are open and will not be filled until the proper material is available."

• • •

And the honorable coach should know whereof he speaks for in former days he wore the Red and White of the McGill University basketball squad and was a star in intercollegiate basketball circles.

• • •

Karl 'Krippler' Davis who meets Natie Brown here tonight has no delusions about the kind of brawl he has agreed to enter. "I've heard plenty about this Nastie Nate Brown" says Davis, "and I don't intend to be caught napping. I'll give this renegade boxer a taste of my shoulder-smash and see how that suits him. When I find out that he's a set-up for the "posting" I might play him a bit and show the fans a bit of cat-and-mouse game before I finally crack him wide open."

• • •

The statement is one of the most threatening ever made before a bout here but most of the fans will recognise it as typically Davis. The hard-shelled Texan is one of the most violent contenders of all the big bouncers and even Brown's undoubted boxing ability may not save him from the Krippler.

• • •

From the other side of the main bout however comes a statement from Joe Louis' former foe which at least shows that Knock-'em-down-Nate has plenty of confidence. "That tough talk don't faze me a bit" said Brown. "I've fought the best men in the whole world in the last ten years. I stood up under ten rounds of punching from Joe Louis and I don't imagine this Davis is any tougher than the greatest champion of them all. I took care of myself against such men as Schmeling, Max Baer, Leo Lomski, Tony Galento and many others. I'll mix boxing with what I know of wrestling and I'll make things plenty hot for Mr. Krippler Davis. When I shoot my Sunday punch into his chin he won't be so cocky". Well there it is and it certainly looks like a real old-fashioned evening of slug and slam for everyone.

• • •

GET BEHIND 'EM

The new Belleville Hockey Association, the former junior hockey administrative minds, which has taken practically all organized hockey in the city under its wing, is not letting any grass grow under its feet. They are tackling this business of getting the winter pastime back on its feet here in no uncertain manner and already action has been taken.

• • •

Just to refresh your memory, the executive consists of President Bill Dennis, vice-president, Tom Flurey, secretary-treasurer, Wally Berry, and directors "Toots" Holway, Jack Yanover, Bill Cook, Fred Reid, Dr. Austin Walters, Walter Gerow Sr., with Dr. "Nig" Ross as club physician. This serious-minded group of men who are tackling a big job, deserves the support of every hockey fan in the city, as well as that of business and industrial heads.

• • •

Within a few hours of their assuming the overall administration of organized teams in the city, the executive had things moving. They formed special committees to investigate purchase of equipment, insurance for players and co-operation of employers in assisting to locate out-of-town hockeyists. They are off on the right foot and laying the foundation for what should be a good season.

• • •

Furthermore they have called a special open meeting for next Tuesday night in the Hume Arena to which all intermediate and junior players of the city and district, as well as fans and the hockey-minded public are invited. It will be an open affair and no doubt much hockey good will come of it. It is hoped that every one interested in hockey this winter and in future winters will put in an appearance. Remember the time and place, Hume Arena, Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

• • •

A Dodger fan is just that to the bitter end. The last words of Raphael Skopp, sent to the electric chair in Boston for the killing of a liquor store owner, proves it beyond fear of contradiction. Skopp walked the last long mile to the chair with only one regret.

"Now I won't be able to see the Dodgers play in the World's Series against the Red Sox," he whispered to Warden Francis J. W. Lannagan, as he entered the death chamber.

CAPITALS AGAIN IN POSSESSION OF FIRST PLACE

Down Flyers in Riotous Game in Which Three Majors, 13 Minors and Match Penalty Handed Out

Indianapolis Capitals once again are in sole possession of the lead in the western division of the American Hockey League.

The Caps broke a three-way tie for the top rung with Cleveland and Pittsburgh last night by downing the tail-end St. Louis Flyers, 5-2 in a riotous game at Indianapolis while Cleveland and Pittsburgh were idle. Three majors, 13 minors and a match penalty highlighted the game.

Goalie Hec Highton of the Flyers drew the match penalty in the second period when he climbed over the railing and knocked down goal judge Roland Verneham when the judge flashed the red light signifying a Cap score.

Officials had ruled the goal did enter the cage but before they could announce their decision, Highton was banging away at Verneham. Highton was put out of the game and Stan Robertson, Flyer centre went behind the nets.

Eddie Olson of the Flyers drew a 10-minute major for sassing the referee from the bench in the first round and Doug McCaig of the Caps served a five-minute major for fighting with Harvey Fraser of St. Louis in the last chapter.

The Caps goals were scored by Tony Licari, who got two, Doug McCaig, Simpson and Morris. Rosy Rossignol and Mosey Rimstad collected for the Flyers.

In the only other game, New Haven Ramblers moved to within a point of the front-running eastern division Hershey Bears by nosing out the Providence Reds, 6-5.

The Ramblers tallied four times in first period with Joe Bell counting twice, Norm Burns and Hal Brown, one apiece. Two more markers in the middle session by Alex Shibicky and Juzda sent the Ramblers into the last frame with a 6-3 advantage. Providence hammered often at the Rambler goal in the third period but failed to break through until with less than two minutes to go, Bill McComb and Johnny Chad beat Sugar Jim Henry to pull the Reds a goal short of a deadlock.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SA GORDON
The Kibitzer

Avoid a finesse with a strip-and-endplay. It takes three steps. First, strip all the cards you can. Second, throw opponent into the lead. Third, take advantage of his return lead.

For stripping before the exit, equal length suits in your two hands are not always necessary. There are ways of exhausting in good time some of your unbalanced holdings.

Take a deal like this:

NORTH
♠A 5 4 3 2
♥A K 3 2
♦J 2
♣3 2

WEST
♠9 8
♥10 9 8 7
♦K Q 10 9
♣K J 10

EAST
♠7
♥Q J 6
♦8 7 6 5 4
♣9 8 7 6

SOUTH
♠K Q J 10 6
♥5 4
♦A 3
♣A Q 5 4

You are south as the declarer in a contract of six spades. West leads the diamond king This tells you that he has the queen. It is information you will soon take advantage of.

Strip west of as many cards as you can. This is the first step in your plan. Then you throw him into the lead. That is step two. This sets the stage for the third and last step.

Your aim is to force west to lead a card in a suit that will be in your favor. If he does not lead a club, you want him to lead a suit that enables you to trump in one hand and sluff in the other.

Take the first trick with diamond ace and plan to exit to west with your second diamond. Before doing so, however, strip him of spades and hearts. This forces him to return clubs or diamonds.

Look ahead for entries enough to exhaust dummy hearts. So, lead only one trump round before taking two top hearts. Lead a third dummy heart and trump it with a south spade.

A south spade to the ace enters dummy and the fourth heart is led from there. This is ruffed by south and the hearts are stripped. Now your diamond lead enters west.

His return of a club will end your worries in that suit. If he returns a diamond, sluff a dummy club and trump in your south hand.

AFTER BEATING DRUM BEATS IT FROM POLICE

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP)—An unidentified man walked into the Salvation Army Mission last night and told a Lieutenant that the Mission's Major, James Peyton, had sent him for a bass drum. In the next hour there were scores of complaints at the police station about a one-man drum corps marching along dark streets thumping a drum. Police investigated and found the drum—outside a tavern. As they entered the tavern the man who had been beating the drum, beat it out the

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 1 (AP)—You're not the only one who's amazed by Hollywood marriages. So is Robert Taylor.

Hollywood, which sometimes plays at marriage in the manner of a game of musical chairs, is undergoing another of its periodic marital upheavals. Not the least confounded by it all is the husband of Barbara Stanwyck.

As to his own marriage, Bob said: "Every six months since the wedding there's been a rumor around town that we're breaking up. I don't pay any attention to them any more."

The Taylors are part of that unusual movie group that manages to keep its private life to itself.

Among their closest friends are the Jack Bennys, the Fred MacMurrays and the Ray Millands, all of whom have managed to steer clear of divorce courts.

Howard Hughes and Preston Sturges can't agree on how their picture "Vendetta," should be made, so Sturges has stepped out as director with the movie 60-per-cent completed and Hughes is scouting around for a successor. The wealthy Hughes exercised a contract option to buy controlling interest in their California pictures corporation.

Sturges retains 49-per-cent interest but Hughes now holds 51 per cent.

In the film palaces... The Verdict (W.B.—36 min.) is another of the assembly-line murder films. Laid in the familiar foggy London setting (one expects Basil Rathbone to pop up any minute), it is not different from its predecessors in mood, characters or treatment. But the thing is well acted by Sidney Greenstreet, Peter Lorr, Joan Lorring and Rosalind Ivan, who make the far-fetched plot seem almost creditible.

Son Witnesses Family Tragedy

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 1—(AP)—The ten-year marriage of the scion of a wealthy family and a pretty janitor's daughter ended with the wife dead of a gunshot wound and her husband charged with homicide.

Authorities said Mrs. Marie Shannon Purdy, 37, was shot last night in her bedroom before her six-year-old son in the climax of an argument with her husband, Charles, 42, over drinking.

"Poppy shot mommy. They were arguing and they got pretty excited and poppy said, 'I'll fix you,' and he went and got a gun and poppy shot mommy."

SILKS, CIGARS SEIZED

Southampton, Nov. 1 (Reuters)—Customs officers seized quantities of silk stockings, cigars, cigarets, clothing and jewelry when the Queen Elizabeth arrived here Thursday from New York, the Daily Express said today. Passengers who tried to smuggle goods through a cordon of customs men were caught and probably will be prosecuted, the newspaper said,

AT THE BELLE — Ray Milland, winner of the Academy Award for his excellent portrayal in "The Lost Week-End," and lovely Olivia DeHavilland are the romantic interest in "The Well Groomed Bride," rollicking romantic comedy featuring Sonny Tufts. Closing at the Belle tonight.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was opening her mail at breakfist, saying to pop, Well William, I've heard from Jeen Nittjacker.

That's more than I ever have, who is she? pop said, and ma said, Dont you remember? I sent her a luke warm invitation to our class reunion because it wouldn't of been quite fair to ignore her entirely, although most of the class members would of appriciated her absence more than they would of injoyed her presence, I assure you.

Oh, I remember, she was the snooty member of the class who wouldn't join any of your sororities, pop said, and ma said, That's Jeen Nittjacker in a nuttshell. She thought she was too good and nobody else was good enough. The newspapers were full of her gawdy wedding reception, but not a single member of the class was invited to it. Anyway I sent her a letter informing her about the class reunion, so as the chairman of the committee my conscience is clear, ma said.

You requested her to kindly stay away, wasn't that it? pop said, and ma said, Certainly not, just the opposite. I told her that as a class member she was just as entitled to attend as anybody else, and that I'd be glad to send her ferther details about the time and place in case she happened to be interested. Anyway, here's her answer. It seems a little bit criptic. I'll read it to you, William, to see what you think, ma said.

And she read it out loud, being, "Dear Pawleen, Thanks so much for your kind note, I'm sure. Are you going to have a magician to entertain the gerls at the reunion? If you are, and you think you see me there, I assure you it will only be another optical illusion. Yours truly," ettsetters. What do you think, William, ma said.

I think she wont be there, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

Veterans' Housing Leader Told To Purge 'Communists' From Com.

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—In a stormy meeting of the Citizens' Housing Committee, an organization set up at the request of Mayor Stanley Lewis, F. E. Hanratty, head of the Veterans' Housing League which has seized a half dozen buildings in the city as squatters quarters, last night was told to purge his organization of "Communist" elements or resign from the committee.

Mr. Hanratty was given a seat on the committee at his own request after it was set up two weeks ago.

Chairman C. E. Pickering, who heads the committee, declared "if such proof is not forthcoming by next Mnoday, I'll have to ask you to resign from this committee," after another committee member, Rev. Father John A. Macdonald walked out of the committee meeting.

Father Macdonald, director of the Catholic Family Service, withdrew after announcing his refusal to sit on the same committee with Hanratty until the former R.C.A.F. Air Observer "throws the Communists out of his Veterans' League."

Walks Out of Meeting

Father Macdonald said "the Communists are not interested in housing. They are interested only in using the housing problem as a means of undermining the Christian foundations of our country." He then walked out of the meeting.

Mr. Hanratty said he had no Communist sympathies and that he could give no undertaking regarding a "house-cleaning" of the league until he had consulted his executive.

In an interview later, Mr. Hanratty said he would not force resignation of two Communist members in the V.H.L. He said he had called an executive meeting of the league immediately following the Citizens' Housing Committee meeting "and determined unanimously that these two members should not be forced out of the league executive." The "two members" were not identified.

"We have 14 members on our executive. Of these, two are Communists and the rest are Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F. and Social Credit. How can anyone say that the league is dominated by Communists?"

Garbage Strike Soon Ends

New Orleans, Nov. 1 (AP) — New Orleans' week-old garbage strike was settled last night a few hours after volunteers, including 400 navy and marine personnel, had completed a second city-wide cleanup as a civic undertaking.

CUP COST $50

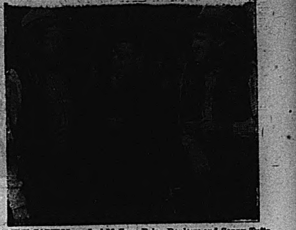
Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—John Cavan found in Magistrate's Court yesterday that the cup of coffee he ordered and didn't drink in a Chinese restaurant on Elizabeth Street in Toronto's Chinatown cost him $50. He was fined that amount by Magistrate R. J. Browne, after a waiter, Pon Dean, testified Cavan threw the contents of the cup in his face and followed that up by tossing the cup itself. Dean lost a tooth.

SAYS HE WAS "LOOKING FOR PLACE TO SLEEP"

Port Arthur, Nov. 1 (CP)—Albert Putras, 21, of Winnipeg, was fined $25 and costs on a vagrancy charge in Magistrate's Court here yesterday. Putras was found climbing a hydro pole in downtown Port Arthur at 2 a.m. He told the Magistrate he had been "looking for a place to sleep."

PRANKSTERS CHAIN DOORS AND SEAL WINDOWS

Wendell, Idaho, Nov. 1 (AP) — Clye Peterson arose before dawn to go deer hunting but found that the front and back doors couldn't be budged. Pranksters had wound a length of chain around the house, effectively securing both doors and sealing the windows. Sympathetic neighbors severed the chain.



AT THE CAPITOL — Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy and Sonny Tufts exchange heated words in a tense scene from Paramount's western extravaganza, "The Virginian," now at the Capitol Theatre. This Technicolor picturization of the much-loved Wister novel features lovely Barbara Britton in the feminine lead, and includes Fay Bainter and Henry O'Neill in the supporting cast. The added western, "Under Arizona Skies," stars Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton.

Material Arrives For Distribution Christmas Seals

Mr. D. L. Storey, chairman of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal campaign, announced today that all material necessary for the opening of the drive on November 25 has been received from the National office of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, with which the local association is affiliated.

Material includes seals, letterheads for appeal letters, envelopes, posters, movie trailers and other supplies. The voluntary committee for the hadling of the large volume of clerical work entailed has already been formed and is awaiting the "go ahead" signal.

The 1946 Christmas Seal, which is to be hoped the public will use on all Christmas letters and parcels, is one of the most attractive yet designed. It shows a lamplighter against a rich blue background, and captures the spirit of peace and good will among all men.

CHILDREN'S AUTHORESS DIES

New York, Nov. 1 (CP) —The creator of "Little Black Sambo"—fictional character dear to millions of children—is dead.

She was Mrs. Helen Bannerman, author and original illustrator of "The Story of Little Black Sambo," an ingratiating tale of a little black boy who lost his fanciest finery to four tigers but got it back when they turned into butter.

A letter from Mrs. Bannerman's daughter-in-law in Scotland to a New York publishing firm revealed today that the shy Scotswoman died at her home in Edinburgh Oct. 13. No obituary notice was published and there had been no previous word of her death, a check here showed.

CHAPTER 2.

The night wore on and Sally sighed gratefully when her relief arrived at seven. She said goodbye to Mrs. Telford and the patient unbent to the extent of commending her care and informing her of her intention of mentioning it at the next Board meeting. Sally left and joined the night shift as it assembled in the dining room for breakfast or supper—she could never quite make up her mind which to call it. The night supervisor, Mrs. Alexander, sat at the head of the table and said grace. The night shift was usually to late for morning chapel. Some of the girls were glad of that; while others missed the lift that came from the brief twenty-minutes in the shaby but still beautiful little room with its big stained glass window on the east wall, its air of quiet and peace and the reading together from the psalms.

And this morning Sally, too, was glad she was too late. She was bone and nerve weary and looked forward to bed with almost eager yearning. Her ears were deaf to the chatter that went on around her and she left the table after the scantiest of fares and hurried to her room in the Annex. She slipped into bed gratefully, stretching between the sheets with a sigh of relief. That last case had been especially trying. More so because the patient had not at any time been really ill; just tired out and out of sorts.

One oclock and the hospital seemed unusually quiet. Doctor Willoughby slipped into his laboratory where he was working on an experiment of his own. Margaret went down to the diet kitchen to see if she couldn't hurry lunch. Sally stood for a moment looking into the inky blackness beyond the radius of light thrown by the windows of the Receiving room. She had been on night duty here for nearly a week with Margaret Adams assisting.

The street was deserted. Rain and sleet fell in wide slanting sheets,striking the windows with vicious metallic jabs. What a night! Suddenly from nowhere there appeared a car close by the entrance to receiving. Sally hadn't seen it drive in, apparenly it bore no lights. Two men got out and lifted a third, a slender youth who was probably sixteen years old. Sally opened the door. They staggered inside and dropped their burden on a wide bench that stood against the wall. Blood and mud matted his hair and covered his torn clothing. One foot was turned grotesquely and an arm hung limp. Without a word, the two strangers turned to leave but Sally had other ideas.

"Wait a minute,' she said crisply. "Where are you going? What is this? Who is this boy and who are you? Doctor Willoughby!" she called and the resident hurried to her side. The newcomers fidgeted and edged toward the door; but Sally stood her ground.

"Ain't nothin' t' do with us," one man blustered. "We found 'im 'longside th' road an' brung 'im here."

"Your name, please?" she asked coolly.

"That ain't necess'ry," the blusterer muttered. "It ain't nothin' t' do with us. We're gettin' out —now."

"Call the police, Sally," the resident said quietly, without pausing in his examination of the boy. "Better not move, either of you," he went on, "or we shall have three patients instead of one here. You are both covered."

• • •

If it hadn't been so serious Sally would have laughed. But she was at the telephone calling the police station. As she turned she saw the eyes of the two men darting about the big room in search of a possible means of escape or, perhaps, for the gun covering them. In an unbelievably short time the siren of the police ambulance shrieked above the storm and the intruders squirmed and backed toward the door. Doctor Willoughby's head jerked up.

"Stay right where you are. Come in, Sergeant. Now, you two. tell the officers your story and see if they swallow it more easily than I did. I'm taking the patient to the operating room—call an orderly, Maynard," the doctor said and stood aside to listen while the police officers questioned and took notes. At last the one called Sergeant pocketed his notebook and turned to his companion.

"We'll take 'em to Headqquarters, Doctor, and let the Chief have a go at them. Come on, you two. I don't like the looks of this. Your story sounds fishy. It smells, too. Oh, your car'll be all right where it is. Out you go."

The two went with surprising docility and Sally breathed easier. An orderly had arrived with a stretcher and Sally was surprised to see Dr. Hallock enter immediately after.

"Oh hello, Doctor!" the resident greeted him. "This is right down your alley. Suppose you take charge of this case—I'll be along in a minute."

Doctor Hallock laughed. "Willoughby the Sleuth!" he jeered. "Always solving mysteries." He followed the stretcher from the room and Sally and Margaret prepared to clean up.

They had been unable to get any information as to the lad's identity from either of the men who accompanied him; but when Sally lifted the coat that had been cut from his battered body, a small leatherbound book slipped from the ripped lining. Doctor Willoughby pounced upon it.

"This may contain the answer," he said as he opened it. The name on the fly leaf was printed in large letters: "DEAN BAXTER" and below in finer printing the words "Winston Farms." There was no town mentioned nor county nor state. Well, the police should have no difficulty in locating Winston Farms. The book was filled with personal items written in a fair hand — items somewhat in the form of a diary. Either the boy lived at the Farms or had been there recently. The doctor called the police station and reported his find, then with a flashlight went out to the car parked in the drive and examined it. It was a shabby coupe with bent fenders and a missing headlight. Inside the worn cushions were bloodstained and dirty. The key was in the ignition and the doctor removed it and proceeded to lock the machine. He returned to the two girls who were waiting eagerly for what he had to tell.

"Not much to see out there right now," he told them, shaking back his wet hair. "I took the license number and am sure I should know that car anywhere. It isn't a local number—no one around this county. I'm going upstairs for a while. If anything comes up and you need me, give me a ring."

The midnight luncheon of sandwiches and coffee arrived soon after the doctor left and Sally and Margaret sat down to enjoy their repast. The town clock struck two. The sleet slashed at windows, the wind roared and trees sighed and groaned.

"For heaven's sake, Maggie!" Sally cried. "You certainly are in a cheerful mood. I'll be glad when Willoughby gets back. After all—what was that?" For a sound like the crack of doom brought both girls to their feet.

"It sounded like a gun, Sally," Margaret whispered, teeth chattering. "Near, too. I'm going to put out the lights for a moment."

But it wasn't necessary for suddenly the lights went out. Receiving was in total darkness. Street lights down in the city had been out for some time. Now the whole world was black. Sally crept to the outside door and stealthily turned the key in the lock. At the faint click Margaret caught her breath and reached for Sally only to find she wasn't there beside her. She felt for her chair and slowly lowered herself into it.

"Sally!" she whispered, then more loudly: "Sal-ly!"

"I'm right here," the other said and proved it by falling into her lap. Margaret gave a little squeal and the two went off into spasms of suppressed laughter. From the darkened room it was now possible to see the passing of an occasional truck on the highway below the hill. But the hospital appeared to be completely isolated.

"I locked the outside door," Sally explained. "Until the lights come on—well, there isn't anything we could do and who knows what might happen?"

• • •

"Spooks and murders," giggled Margaret, nervously. "Gosh, Sally, I'll sure be glad when this night's over. Believe it or not, my dear, I've suffered."

'It hasn't been very pleasant, has it?" asked a voice from the corridor and both girls sprang to their feet and faced the invisible speaker.

"How did you get in?" Sally demanded, trying to make her voice stern. "And who are you?"

"I walked in and you wouldn't know me if I told you my name," the voice said cooly. A slightly darker shadow glided across the room to a window overlooking the drive and Sally thought it must be one of the unwelcome visitors of a little while before although the voice was different —almost that of a gentleman; but of course that couldn't be.

"If you ladies will kindly remain right where you are you will avoid complications," the unseen visitor went on, "and unpleasantness. I have my reasons for being here. They are all my own and no least concern of yours. My stay will be brief—I hope, and you need be none the worse for the slight interlude."

Silence reigned for a long moment in which the two nurses clung together. After what seemed to them hours but was perhaps merely a few minutes, the soft, almost stealthy tread of rubber-soled shoes on the hard floor of the corridor outside reached them. Now what? Sally's knees threatened to let her down and Margaret's arm tightened about her waist. The intruder, too, had heard. A key clicked in the lock—the door silently opened admitting a rush of damp air and as quietly closed.

• • •

From the corridor Doctor Harlock entered with a flashlight. Both girls sank into chairs and Margaret Adams stammered:

"Th-that m-man! W-who was h-he? W-what d-did h-he w-want? Wh-where d-did h-he g-g-go? A-and th-the l-lights?"

"What man? There's no man here except me. What ails you two? Don't tell me you're afraid of the dark—two big girls like you!"

Margaret was beyond speech. Sally tried to explain. "We don't know what man," she said sharply. "That's just it. When the lights went out I locked the outside door and all at once the door into the corridor opened and a strange man came in and told us to remain where we were and his visit would be brief. He must have heard you coming and went out that door into the drive. How did he know where the door was? How did he know it was locked? There's something fishy about this performance, Doctor Hallock,' 'she said pointedly.

"I think someone connected with this hospital was trying to be funny," she explained.

"Nonsense!" he retorted. "Did you recognize the voice?"

"N-no," she acknowledged doubtfully. "But just the same—"

"The gun!" Margaret crid. "A gun went off just before he came in. We both heard it—"

Lights blazed and the three in the big silent room blinked at the sudden glare. Sally ran to the door and opened it, letting in a rush of wind and sleet. She looked up and down the driveway but could see nothing.

Sally closed the door and returned to the others.

"I don't suppose we shall ever find out," she said regretfully. "I hate practical jokes—if that's what it was; but what else could it have been? He must have been terribly wet." She fled to the corridor and examined the floor. Fresh footmarks were clearly shown mounting the stairs to the foyer and on to the front door which was now locked. That, in itself, was odd. That front door was never locked. She turned to the others, who had followed. "There! See the footprints? He came in this door—probably just before the lights went out."

"We might both have been murdered!" Margaret breathed, shuddering with dread.

"Now who on earth would want to murder you, Maggie?" Doctor Hallock demanded. "Don't get morbid ideas. Just the same, thought, I intend doing a bit of investigating when it gets light. This whole affair is most unusual —in a town like Lintonville, especially."

He opened the front door and looked out. Nothing was to be seen. Wind, cold and wet, roared into the vestibule and he hastily shut it again, turned the key in the lock and led the way back into Receiving where he proceeded to lock that door also.

"Now in case of fire I should be held for murder—certainly for negligence," he told them.

"How about the boy?" Sally asked. "Is he going to be all right?"

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP) — The market was strong in the early session today and still stronger in the early afternoon with the trading bulking in the cheaper golds. At mid-day the gold stocks were up 1.57, the industrials 1.07 and the other groups had minor index gains. Volume totalled 1,150,000 shares for the first three hours.

The food, paper, liquor, senior oil and utility stocks were higher industrial groups.

In the golds the leaders in the action were Linghan Lake, Rush Lake, Pen-Rey and Donalda, all higher by 5 to 15 cents. Pickle Crow, Harricana, Louvicourt, Trans-Resources, Arjon, Detta and Bevcourt were gainers on good volume.

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Grade A dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Hull $20.15 delivered, in the only market reporting settled quotations early today.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Nov. 1 — (AP) — The stock market rally encountered profit taking today although a wide assortment of leaders managed to achieve further substantial progress.

An early runup lost headway for a while when cotton futures cut initial advances of $10 a bale. The staple then rebounded and shares hardened. Brokers suggested that many customers intended to take a lengthy weekend holiday and trimmed accounts accordingly. Markets will recess Tuesday for the election and a number of clients apparently decided to skip the sessions of tomorrow and Monday. Earnings and dividends continued to air selected issues but were ignored by others.

Easiness was the prevailing note in the Canadian group at mid-day. Canadian Pacific was off 1/8 and Dome Mines lost 3/8. Distillers Seagrams eased 1/8 but Hiram Walker was outstanding with a gain of 1/2, reacting to improved earnings.

CEYLON RUBBER PRODUCERS EXPECT DROP IN PRICE

Colombo, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Ceylon rubber producers, foreseeing a drop in price, have shipped almost every available pound of rubber.

Shipments have proceeded satisfactorily and while all September rubber has been exported, the October purchases of the Ceylon Rubber Commissioner have been negligible so that there is no accumulation of stocks here.

Former Jap Tenis Star Dies

Tokyo, Nov. 1 (AP)—Ryosuke Nunoi, 36, former Japanese Davis Cup tennis star, died in the services in Burma in July, 1945, it was reported today.

In 1935, Nunoi and the late Jiro Sato competed at Wimbledon and lost to Britain's Fred Perry and Bunny Austin in cup matches.

EXPRESS ROAD TO NORTHLAND BRIDGES HOLLAND MARSH

Tractor-hauled "marsh wagons" with ten-inch steel tires are needed to get vegetables out of the back reaches of Holland Marsh. Even then the "pilot" has a ticklish job of guiding his unwieldy vehicle over the narrow brush mattresses on the muskeg of the marsh. By contrast, motorists will be able to sail across the wet flatlands at 50 miles an hour when the new Toronto-Barrie four-lane highway is completed. Biggest job of earth-moving on a provincial highway was done this summer. At the south shoulder of the marsh, this cut yielded 280,000 cubic yards of stiff clay to fill in the quaking humus of the marsh.

TRENTON

Men's Association Of St. Andrew's Holds Meeting

Trenton — At the first meeting of the season of the Men's Association of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, held in the Sunday School rooms on October 25th, the guest speaker was Squadron Leader the Rev. J. Minto Swan, padre at Trenton R.C.A.F. Station. The subject of his address was "Vital Christianity — The World's and the Individual's Need".

"Christianity is something more than a faith in God which comes to the surface in a time of crisis or an occasion of Thanksgiving. It is a constant abiding, thrilling experience which lives in every sphere of life. Too many have tried to carry their faith instead of letting their faith carry them. God is an eternal reality and through Jesus Christ revealed His interest in life — home life, family life, business life and relationships, social life and athletic life. God has a sense of humor too. One of my friends, the Dean of the Cathedral in Edmonton, when pronouncing the Benediction always says 'May the gaiety of God be yours'. If God does not touch all phases of life, then our Christian faith is incomplete. To achieve this vital experience, we must work much harder in our Christian life. Nations must take it up to touch all relationships for the peace of the world. Individuals must give it more serious thought and attention through prayer, conversation and study if they want to feel the sense of abundant life."

MONIQUE BONNIER WINS Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

The children playing on the third floor balcony on Montreal's St. Zotique Street, were trying to see a new swing on the balcony below. 5-year-old Rene Dumont had climbed a chair to peer down. He thought he was safe because of the high netting, but suddenly it gave way . . . and the boy went through, falling headlong towards the ground! Then an amazing thing happened: There was a clothes-line off the second floor . . . and little Dumont somehow managed to grab it. His fall was broken and he hung on for dear life. Upstairs, 8-year-old Monique Bonnier sprang to action. Shouting to the youngster to hold tight, she raced to the clothes line and began to pull him in. Soon she was joined by her brother and in a few seconds they had the frightened lad safe and sound.

To young Monique Bonnier of Montreal, for her coolness and presence of mind, we are proud to present The Dow Award.

One Dead, Two Boats Wrecked In B.C. Gale

Vancouver, Nov 1 —(CP)— Small craft emerged from shelter along British Columbia's rugged coast today as a westerly gale that reached a peak velocity of 54 miles an hour blew itself out, leaving one man dead, two fishing boats wrecked and a big packer badly damaged but safe in port.

As gale warning came down Victor Bell of Prince Rupert told how a companion, Jack Balfour of Toronto, perished in the storm when their fishing boat foundered. Pounded by mountainous waves their small boat smashed to pieces on a rocky ledge off Prince Rupert. Dell swam ashore but Balfour failed to make it.

Another fisherman Ian Hamilton of Victoria, narrowly escaped when his 27-foot craft Lady Luck, was ashore on the jagged rocks of Finlayson Point near Victoria at the height of the gale. Hamilton managed to scramble to the safety of the rocks.

Meanwhile ,the big fishpacker San Jose, owned by the Western Fishing Company of Vancouver, which struck a reef off the south end of Vancouver Island Wednesday, reached a Victoria drydock with the aid of two salvage tugs. She was badly holed.

The S. S. Princess Norah, C. P. R. coastal vessel, refloated herself from a sandbar near Comox where she grounded Wednesday. She later reached Vancouver, apparently undamaged.

So fierce was the gale that the 14,000-ton Australian freighter Waiehemo loading paper at Powell River was torn from her moorings. She finally re-moored with the aid of tugs.

The passenger vessel Gulf Wing, converted war-time Fairmile plying between Vancouver and Powell River, put into shelter in two different coves on a voyage.

Heavy Fines Levied On Two Que. Men

Montreal, Nov. 1 (CP)—Patrice Dubuc, wholesale grocer and butcher, was fined $7,000 by Judge T. A. Fontaine for entering into an arrangement aimed at evading Prices Board regulations, for possessing butter ration coupons illegally and for selling butter above the ceiling price and without valid coupons.

Ovide Lariviere of St Hyacinthe Que., was fined $3,000 for entering into a similar illegal arrangement, for possessing ration coupons illegally and for possessing falsified butter ration coupons. Both men pleaded guilty to the charges.

The accused were among a number of persons arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police during the summer for allegedly obtaining illegally more than 500,000 pounds of butter, most of which was said to have been sold on the black market in the United States at prices ranging from 20 to 50 cents a pound over the ceiling price.

In default of paying the fine, Dubuc was ordered to be imprisoned for 23 months while the alternative in the case of Larivitre was a year in jail.

CIDER JUG BLOWS UP

Portland, Ore., Nov. 1 (AP) — It was nothing but Hallowe'en "spirits" said police, who were called to a residence to investigate a "strange noise." They said a cider jub had blown up.

Cornwall Chief Visits London To See Witnesses

Cornwall, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Police Chief H. H. Hawkshaw returned from London early yesterday after consultations there and in Toronto regarding the Crown case against William Earl Lama, arrested last Saturday after a 71-day hunt on a charge of murdering his wife and daughter.

In London he interviewed Frederick and Daniel Lama, sons of the accused, who discovered the knife-slashed bodies of their mother and sister last Aug. 1, but made no comment on the interview Thursday.

He said his talks in Toronto with Provincial Police authorities were "satisfactory." Inspector W. J. Franks of the Criminal Investigation branch of the Provincial force will come to Cornwall this week to assist in drawing up the case against Lama.

Lama is lodged in jail here on remand to Nov. 1 but it was indicated Thursday a further remand would be sought before preliminary hearing.

Five R.A.A.F. Men Plan To Live in Canada

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 1 — (Reuters) — Five demobilized R.A.A.F. men, "disgusted with conditions in Australia," and accompanied by their homesick Canadian wives, were scheduled to leave Thursday in the 9,576-ton steamship Wanganella to settle in Canada, the Sydney Sun reported.

One of the party, J. V. Connelly of Brisbane, whose wife's home i sin Winnipeg, declared: "I don't think the average Australian is doing an honest day's work. Private enterprise is not encouraged in Australia, so I am going to try my luck in Canada."

False Promises Lure Two Negroes To Their Deaths

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1 (AP) —Two of three Negroes whose bodies were found recently in East Haven were lured to their deaths by promises of dates with white women and dug their own graves in the belief that they were preparing fireplaces for a hot dog roast, County Coroner James J. Corrigan said today.

The coroner made his statement in a finding holding Robert Bradley and William Lisenby, New Haven negroes, criminally responsible for the death of Benjamin Carter.

In the same finding, Corrigan said the death of Oscar Matheny, whose body was found near that of Carter, "follows practically identically the pattern of Carter's death." The coroner also said that there was no "direct testimony" relating to the death of Henry Edwards, whose body was found in another section of East Haven some time before the discovery of the bodies of Carter and Matheny, but that it "grew out of the operations of Bradley."

The finding was issued as a Superior Court grand jury convened to consider indictments against Bradley and Lisenby.

ALL TIRE TREADING IS NOT ALIKE

Run Cooler • Last Longer • Better Traction

Hawkinson Treads are cured to the casing while both the tread and casing are retained approximately in the same cross sectional shape they assume under load on the road.

Dear "Carol Teen:"

I knew you could be depended upon to send the newest New York-inspired styles to my favorite C.D.S., but didn't expect quite such beauties as the Rayon Houndstooth number, and the dreamy Rayon Crepe Date Dress! The girls are raving about the Houndstooth . . they like the big push-up sleeves, and the high round neckline. I love the way the broad leather belt belittles my waist. My favorite is the Black and White check, but the Brown, Green, Gold-tone, Grey, Navy and Tan, with white each had their "fans."

And the Rayon Crepe Date Dress! It's simply beautiful in the Romantic Rose shade you chose for me . . . the heart-shaped motifs made of felt, on the bodice, and repeated on the belt, didn't escape my eagle eye. Mother noticed the pinked seams, and the generous hem allowance. Must tell the girls it comes in Heavenly Blue and Birchbark White, too, and that both frocks are in sizes 10 to 16.

Appreciatively yours,
BETTY.

P.S.—Must remember to tell the gang that the Houndstooth check is 12.95 and the Date Dress 13.95.

BRITISH EMBASSY IN ROME DEMOLISHED BY EXPLOSION

View of the front entrance to the British embassy in Rome which was completely demolished following an early morning explosion. One man was killed and two injured in the blast. Two suitcases, loaded with explosives, were discovered in the entrance to the embassy by two Italian policemen assigned to routine patrol of the area. The entire facade of the building from the ground floor to the first floor was ripped open by the blast. An expression of regret was sent by the Italian government and immediate investigation into the explosion was started by highranking officials.

U.S. IN THROES OF NAT. ELECTION CAMPAIGN ENDING

All 435 Seats in House and 32 of 96 Senate Seats at Stake

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 2 (CP)— The United States is in the throes of a national election campaign windup in which all 435 seats in the House of Representatives are at stake, and 32 of the 96 Senate seats.

When the voters go to the polls next Tuesday, an estimated 35,000,000 or 59 per cent of the eligibles are expected to cast their ballots. They will decide whether Republicans or Democrats dominate congress for the next two years.

But their votes have no effect on the presidency since this is an "off-year" election. If the Republicans win control it will make no difference to the executive wing of government which has two more years to go.

Such a situation would not be new—a Republican Congress and a Democratic administration. That situation in reverse existed during the last two years of the presidency of Herbert Hoover — only living ex-president.

Nor would it necessarily make such difference to the President. He could scarcely expect any less co-operation from a Republican Congress than he has received in the past year from a Congress nominally controlled by the Democrats.

Must Gain 26 Seats

The Republicans can win a majority in the House of Representatives by gaining 26 seats from the Democrats. They can win control in the Senate by winning 10 seats from the Democrats.

The United States constitution and its amendments have left the country with a political system badly in need of reform but unlikely to get it.

Because the house members are elected for only two-year terms they are almost constantly in the turmoil of political fence building and campaigning. Two years passes swiftly in political life.

The senators are better off in that they are elected for six-year terms, one third elected every two years, and it is fortunate that the main burden of legislating rests upon the Senate rather than upon the Lower House as in British commonwealth parliaments.

Next Tuesday's elections also decide the governorships in 34 States and possibly will mean the difference between success and failure for a number of aspirants for the presidential nomination in 1948.

JET-PROPELLED FIGHTER FOR CARRIER LANDINGS

Washington, Nov. 2 — (AP) — The United States Navy disclosed Friday it is testing a jet-propelled fighter for carrier landings aboard the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt off the Virginia Capes. Carrier operation of jet planes is "a field which the navy expects to expand considerably," the announcement said.

Two Canadian Students Are Charged With Murder After Holdup Slaying in Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 2. (AP) — Two Canadian high school students today were charged with first degree murder in the slaying of a cigar store clerk during a holdup last night.

Police said Robert F. Burd, 18, Crystal Beach, and John W. Hocking, 17, of (59 Radford Ave), Fort Erie, were charged with first degree murder after they signed statements admitting that Burd shot and killed John William Graf 60, during a holdup of the cigar store at about 9 a.m., E.S.T. last night.

Police said the two youths, both students at a Fort Erie high school, just across the Peace Bridge from Buffalo, would be arraigned in city court today.

"They told us they had participated in other stickups in this area and then ducked back into Canada, that's why we never caught them before," said a police official. "We got them last night at the bus station, however, at about 11 p.m., when they were buying tickets.

"They told us that they had looked the cigar store over and had decided to put the clerk in a clothes press, but when he reached down behind the counter they thought he was reaching for a gun and Burd let him have it."

Under questioning following capture after a chase through streets and theatres here, both said they entered the store with no intention of committing a crime, statements released by police said. Deputy Commissioner Oscar A. Dabritz quoted Burd as saying: "Let's take the place" after they were in the store. The statements indicated Burd admitted firing the shot which killed Graf after the clerk had reached under the counter when Burd produced his pistol.

The youths took refuge after the shooting in the Great Lakes Theatre, but pedestrians followed them and reported their whereabouts to police. The bandits escaped the police net, only to be captured a few minutes later as they were buying tickets in a bus station.

Overdue Plane Safe at Hamilton

Montreal, Nov. 2 —(CP)— A single-engined Cessna plane, reported overdue on a flight from Montreal to Toronto, landed at Hamilton late yesterday, Edgar Wray of Montreal, brother of the aircraft's owners and pilot, said today.

Mr. Wray said he received a wire from his brother, G. Kenneth Wray of Montreal, last night saying he had landed in Hamilton at 1.50 P. M. and was believed to have been accompanied by his wife.

Officials of the transport department's airways traffic control said Mr. Wray was the owner of a plane for which they have been searching since it was reported overdue in Toronto last night.

Col. D. G. Joy, district inspector of air regulations, said the name of the mising pilot was Wray. But he did not know his first name or whether there was a pasenger.

"We're not worrying about him," said Col. Joy. "He could set that plane down anywhere."

He aded that the plane was flying from Cartierville, Que., to Barker Field.

Search at Campbellford

Some 200 residents of the Campbellford area began an intensive search after provincial police received reports from a radio range station near there that a plane may have come down.

Early reports were that a mail or passenger plane may have been involved but in Toronto officials of the Trans Canada Airlines said there was "no irregularity" in connection with any of their flights.

At Barker Field, officials said they were notified yesterday that a plane left Montreal at 1:30 p.m. bound for their field. This morning they were notified by air control officials at Malton that the plane was missing.

London, Nov. 2 (CP)—At least three women suffered fractured legs and more than 100 persons were given first aid treatment last night as thousands of film fans jammed Leicester Square for the royally sanctioned premier of the new British motion picture, "A Matter of Life and Death."

"I thought we might be casualties ourselves on the way here," said the King, who attended the showing with the Queen and the two Princesses. "Our car almost on two wheels instead of four at times."

Spectators described "frightening" scenes in the crush outside the Empire Theatre. Mounted police riding three abreast were unable to hold back the throngs and Hollywood notables and British dignitaries were delayed from 15 minutes to a half hour in getting inside.

The royal entourage itself was stalled for a time and entered the theatre only after police had backed their mounts to the very steps of the theatre.

It was the first time the royal family had attended a film premiere internationally-known stage and screen stars gave "in-person" performances.

96 ATOMIC BOMBS OWNED BY U.S., SAYS THE EXPRESS

Bases Figure on An Assumed Output Of Six a Month Since Nagasaki Bombing

London, Nov. 2 (AP)— The Daily Express weapons expert, Chapman Pincher, says the United States probably has 96 atomic bombs in its stockpile, each 25 feet long, torpedo-shaped, powered with 100 pounds of plutonium in two lumps, and weighing about 9,000 pounds.

The article, which appeared today under a banner head "atom bomb secret out," gave no source for its information. Pincher based his figure of 96 bombs on an assumed output of six bombs a month since the time of the Nagasaki bombing.

Estimating that there were eight bombs in stock at the time Nagasaki was hit, minus two used in the Bikini experiments and assuming that the rate of production of six a month had not changed, Pincher arrived at his figure of 96.

Accompanying Pincher's article was an artist's conception of the bomb with a cut away portion showing the working parts. The sketch showed a conventional casing with four small fins and two "drogues"—parachutes open at each end—which, Pincher said, operated to slow the descent for better control of a time fuse mechanism operating a detonator.

Missile Detonated

The writer said the missile was detonated by an apparatus which fires one lump of plutonium at one end of the gun to the other lump at the opposite end. This, he said, necessitated the unusual length of the bomb—25 feet.

The article said the massive casing and protective lead covering for the gun tube comprised a large percentage of the bomb's 9,000 pound weight.

In Washington, Maj.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan project which manufactured atomic bombs during the war, said that under United States War Department policy, he could neither "confirm nor deny" any of the details of Pincher's article, but commented that it was a "very interesting story."

Details of some of the research involved in producing the atomic bomb have been released by the War Department, but it has not given out any information as to definite dimensions or other structural details of the missile.

Rabbi Feinberg Says Statement Entirely Wrong

Toronto, Nov. 2. (CP)—Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg from his pulpit here last night charged Dr. I. M. Rabinowitch of Montreal, with "intemperate, reckless and destructive" statements concerning the Palestine problem. Dr. Rabinowitch recently in an address at Montreal said the Zionist Movement was political, not religious, and that creation of a Jewish state in Palestine would mean war.

Rabbi Feinberg here said tonight that "the Habinowitch statement has cast indignity and the shadow of a confusion on the entire Jewish people by implicity denying to the Zionist cause its moral foundation. The address he delivered in Montreal nowhere permits a glimpse of the ethical values to which the longing for Palestine cleaves today."

He said also: "Not once did Dr. Rabinowitch venture the suggestion that the Attlee Administration, in Palesine, has ever been guilty of error or misdeed or neglect of its avowed purpose to establish a Jewish homeland. . . the fact is, the implementation of the mandate by British officials in the Holy Land has been riddled with indecision, blundering or downright sabotage from the beginning.

"The personnel with whom Britain entrusted it as a rule had no faith in a Jewish homeland and no strong anxiety to create one. As for the Foreign Office in London, it has gradually whittled away the clear promise of the Balfour declaration and the mandate in which it was officially incorporated."

KILLED IN TRUCK

Goderich, Nov. 2 —(CP)— When a former army jeep being used as a truck by Storm Construction Company of Toronto plunged into a ditch and overturned, John William McKay, 34, of Burlington, was killed near here last night. There will be no inquest.

Winnipeg Murder Trial Soon In Hands of Jury

Winnipeg, Nov. 2—(CP)—The case of Lawrence Deacon charged with the "iron bolt" slaying of taxi driver Johann Johnson, will go to an assize court jury today.

Mr. Justice W. J. Major delivered his charge to the jury this morning after a defence attempt to have him direct the jury to bring back an acquittal was denied last night The acquittal motion came from associate defence counsel Harry Walsh.

Deacon, 32-year-old former serviceman, was tried for the murder last March 31 which left cab drivers in Winnipeg fearing an unknow assailant for days until an arrest was made. The crown claimed robbery was the motive for the slaying which was one of 10 this city this year.

Interest was focussed on what the jurors would take regarding the evidence of the crown's key witness, Mrs. Helen Berard. Both the crown and defence admitted the outcome of the trial hinged on the statements made by the 28-year-old brunette subsequent to the trial and in evidence.

Attended Party

Deacon attended a party at the Berard home the evening before the fatal clubing of the 42-year-old Johnson on an out-of-way road in the residential suburb of Tuxedo. But information Mrs. Berard gave police conflicted with her testimony on the witness stand.

In their summations of the case, both the crown and the defence agreed on the preliminary details. There had been at the Berard home the evening before the murder, celebrating the 11th wedding anniversary of the Berards. Deacon had been a guest. During the evening an argument started between Deacon and his common-law wife, Mrs. Yvonne Hamilton, and she left for their Dónald Street home.

An argument also started between Sgt. and Mrs. Berard which ended in Mrs. Berard and Deacon going in off in a taxi.

At this point argument of the counsel differed, each pointing out which of the several and varied statements made by Mrs. Berard should be accepted as truth.

PRICES WILL RISE IF CONTROLS ARE LIFTED—GORDON

Says We Live in World Where Necessities Are Painfully Short

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)— Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, warned in a radio address last night that prices on basic necessities—food, clothing and rents in particular—will rise sharply in Canada if Canadians choose "uncontrolled re-adjustment."

"We still live in a world where necessities are short—painfully short," said Mr. Gordon in the first of a series of five talks aimed at calirfying the price control picture. "We live in a world where people are still cold and hungry, where the demand for the essential materials and foodstuffs greatly exceeds the supply."

He told Canadians they must choose between "controlled readjustment and uncontrolled readjustment.

"Whichever course you choose there are difficulties and problems. If you want uncontrolled readjustment, which is what we would get if controls were abandoned now or weakened to the extent they have been in the United States, then you must accept the fact that our cost of living would rise sharply."

He attributed current difficulties and criticism to the effect of inflationary tendencies in other countries, particularly the United States, and to removal of the empetus of war and the pressure of various groups for the removal of controls.

Even with controlled re-adjustment, some price rises were to be expected. Rigid stability of prices was "beyond achievement and this is a fact we should face squarely . . . "

"In wartime most disagreements could be settled by asking what action would best increase our war effort. Under conditions of peace, however, and as we return to more normal living, this single test is no longer available and the conflicting interests of producers and consumers in every field make it very difficult to avoid contradictory thinking.

"That is why there can be so many honest differences of opinion about a question like price control. Why difference policies ranging from rigid control to immediate removal of controls are argued, and why questions arise about the best time to take off particular controls."

UNKNOWN PERSON SETS FIRE TO TORONTO HOTEL

Pours Gas on Floor Of Clifton Hotel Lobby After Clubbing The Night Watchman

Toronto, Nov. 2 —(CP)— An unknown person early today poured gasoline on the floor of the three-storey Clifton Hotel lobby and set it afire after clubbing the 55-year-old watchman.

Michael Poslowski was taken to hospital suffering from laccerations about the face after his unknown assailant assaulted him at 3:35 a.m. and set fire to the hotel before fleeing into the night. The night guard and porter's condition was said not serious.

Forty-two guests escaped. One was sent to hospital with a rope burn on his hand but was released a few minutes later and another, James Hollo, 49, address unavailable, was overcome by smoke. His condition is not serious.

Peter Bobechko, owner of the hotel, also was admitted to hospital. He suffered slight burns around his hands.

Meanwhile police and the fire marshal's department launched an investigation into the blaze, which caused damage estimated at about $8,500.

Murder Charge Taken From Jury By Justice Wells

Stratford, Nov. 2 —(CP)— The murder charge against 19-year-old Edna Ruth Parrish was removed from the jury by Mr. Justice Dalton Wells late yesterday, and in its place the jury was given a charge of concealment of birth.

The lesser charge will be proceeded with, but the capital charge is annulled on His Lordship's agreement with defence counsel that the Crown had failed to prove any case.

The decision hinged on the point whether a new-born baby was dead when it was born, or whether it died as the result of injuries inflicted by a knife. L. C. Fischer of Kitchener, a pathologist and last Crown witness yesterday, testified that death was due to a knife slash in the baby's neck.

Cross - examination however brought out the point that Dr. Fischer could not state positively whether this wound was inflicted before or after death. The witness said a test showed the baby had breathed, but he agreed to the fact that the baby had breathed was not proof that the baby had lived after birth.

Black Market Flourishes in Paris Nearly Everything for Sale--at a Price

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paris, Nov. 2 (CP)— Around the Opera and Place De La Madeleine, shabby men sidle up to foreign servicemen and obvious tourists to ask in halting English: "Anything to sell?"

Jewelry, cameras, clothing — anything of considerable value—can be sold there but the big demand is for foreign currency and travellers' cheques. British £1 notes in lots of 20 bring anything up to 800 francs apiece through the official rate is only 480. United States dollars are worth about double the official value.

Next to the almost-open street sale of American cigarets at 140 francs ($1.20) a package, this is probably the most flagrant black market in Paris. Everyone knows about it and the "going" rate for currency is common knowledge.

The British tourist is limited to £5 ($20) in currency when he leaves home but many manage to smuggle out some extra ones to swell their one-year quota of £75 in travellers' cheques for foreign travel.

So many British travellers have been living luxuriously in posh resort hotels in southern France that British treasury officials have started an investigation. Some are borrowing from continental friends who are paid back when they come to Britain Others exchange holidays with French families, taking their holiday as guests and later returning the hospitality.

A British traveler, so the story goes, landed at Geneva and cashed about '70 of travellers' cheques at the official 17-to-the-£ rate. Then he moved on to France where, on the black market, he sold 1,200 Swiss francs for 120,000 French francs—more than three tmies the official value.

In Paris he deposited 112,000 francs with an agen and got £160 for them on arriving in London. Having started his trip with 75 he lived well and finished with a clear profit of £85.

That may or may not have happened—but it is possible.

While the black marketeers at the Opera and Place De La Madeleine make their contacts on open streets, their deals are never completed there. Sellers are escorted by roundabout routes to dingy cafes and bars where currency transactions are made literally "under the counter" in semi-darkness.

Holy Land Tense As Arabs Call Protest Strikes

Jerusalem Streets Deserted And all Shops Closed

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Holy Land was in a virtual state of paralysis today as Jews paused for their Sabbath and Arabs engaged in their traudional general strike on the 29th anniversary of Britain's Balfour declaration favoring a Jewish "national home" in Palestine.

Jerusalem streets were almost deserted. Shops were closed, Taxicabs were out of sight and traffic was scarce. The only pedestrians were strollers in the balmy weather. An undercurrent was apparent in both the Jewish and Arab quarters.

Thousands of Arabs were expected to the old city for a possible mass meeting in the mosque areas. Police were taking extra precautions to prevent any procession.

Palestine Jews have been called to strike from noon to 6 p.m. tomorrow and to hold mass meetings in protest against yesterdays deportation to Cyprus of 1,279 Jewish refugees taken off the ship San Dimitrio as they were trying to enter the country without permits.

The San Dimitrio, listing badly, has been towed to a "graveyard" of illegal ships in Haifa harbor. Reports that refugees resisted a British boarding party were denied today by the officer of the party.

Shipped to Cyprus

The Jews were shipped to Cyprus aboard the British vessels Ocean Vigor and Empire Heywood.

Arabs planned their "Lord Balfour Day" strike for all day in Palestine, where Jewish and Arab demonstrations have heightened tension this week, and for one hour in Syria and Lebanon to the north, Iraq to the east and Egypt to the southwest.

(A general strike scheduled for an hour in Damascus, Syria, shut down ships, transport services and other activities at 9 a.m. The Moslem brotherhood and other sponsoring organizations were on guard against breaches of public order, and none was reported.

(A Beirut dispatch reported the general strike effective throughout Lebanon. Youth associations led a big demonstration before the parliament building this morning. Guards were placed around the British and American legations and institutes, the dispatch said.

Daily Advertising Up 15.7 Per Cent

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)— Daily newspaper advertising during September was up 15.7 per cent over the same month last year, a report issued today by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association said today.

There was a gain in all classifications, with national advertising up 13.9 per cent classified 33.1 per cent and local 11.3 per cent.

During the first nine months of 1946, daily newspaper advertising showed an increase of 13.1 per cent over the corresponding 1945 period.

Milk Commission Likely to Hold One Sitting Here

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)—Mr. Justice Dalton Wells, Commissioner appointed to enquire into the production and distribution of milk in Ontario, said yesterday the Royal Commission would commence its sittings Nov. 18.

The Commissioner proposes to sit first in Toronto and will deal initially with the history of the relevant legislation and control of milk and milk products and the operation of the Ontario Milk Control Board.

The Commissiòner plans to sit in various Ontario centres selected with a view to giving the fullest consideration to any special local conditions. Tentatively it is planned to sit in Hamilton, London, Windsor, North Bay, Port Arthur or Fort William, Ottawa and Belleville. The final public hearings will be held in Toronto.

Napanee Hotel Loses Licence For One Month

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)— Five Ontario beverage rooms have had their licences suspended for infractions of regulations governing the sale of beer. the Ontario liquor Control Authority announced today. Suspensions range from two weeks to two months.

Licence of D. Burstrom of the Kemperly Hotel at (191 Pear Street) Port Arthur was suspended two months for allowing drunkenness and uncleanliness in the beverage room.

Suspended for two months for selling beer on Sundays were the licences of the Palm Beach Hotel in Rivre Canard, Eessex County (Mrs. A. Desjardins) and Royal Hotel at (255 Rideau Street) Ottawa (Davis Hotel Company).

The Paisley Hotel at Napanee and the Lasalle hotel at Noelville near Sudbury lost their licences for a month for selling beer after hours. Edgar Bergeron holds the Lasalle licence and Mr and Mrs. Edgar Tyson—who have been licence-holders only a few months, an authority spokesman said — held the Paisley licence.

PRICES BOARD CLOSES SHOP

Kitchener, Nov. 2 —(CP)— A groceteria operated by Gilbert F. Brohman was closed by authority of a special order issued by Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, it became known today. Board officials and Royal Canadian Mounted Police yesterday served a copy of the closing order on Mrs. Brohman after several days' search for her husband. The closing was for breaches of board regulations.

SEA CADETS TO HOLD A PUBLIC MEETING

An inaugural meeting of the General and Sea Cadet committees of the Navy League of Canada (Belleville branch) was held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. It was decided to hold, in the near future, an open meeting for the benefit of any of the Belleville public who may be interested in the Navy League work. A tentative date of Nov. 20 was suggested. At this meeting prominent speakers from Navy League headquarters will lay the principles and operation of the League correctly before the public.

Discussion followed regarding the obtaining of larger and more satisfactory training quarters for the local Sea Cadets. Their ranks now number one hundred and twenty, with a large waiting list ready to join when extra training facilities are available.

OCTOBER WARMER THAN SAME MONTH OF LAST YEAR

At least one record — that of warm weather — may well have been established during the month of October with the high temperature recorded being 73 degrees. Low temperature for the month was 28 degrees, making a mean temperature of 51 degrees for the month.

High temperature during October last year was 70 degrees with a low of 30 degrees and a mean reading of 47 degrees.

Rainfall was slightly greater last month with 4.02 inches being recorded while a trace of snow made the total precipitation 4.14 inches. One year ago the rainfall was 3.80 inches.

RECORD COPRA OUTPUT

Port of Spain, Trinidad — (CP) — Copra output in Trinidad established a record when in 1945 approximately 35,000,000 pounds were produced. This figure shows an increase of 6,000,000 pounds over the previous year.

Result of increased quantities being offered on the market, potatoes dropped to 40 and 45 cents the peck here Saturday with bag lots being available for $1.50. Several farmers offered spuds in considerable quantity with truck loads being offered by some farmers.

Otherwise prices held steady as parsnips, beets and carrots sold at 40 cents the peck with onions fetching 60 cents the peck. Squash and pumpkin sold up to 20 cents, cabbages a dime and cauliflower up to 40 cents each.

Eggs held at 50 cents the dozen for firsts with extras being quoted at 55 cents and mediums at 45 cents. Well finished chicken sold generally for 40 cents the pound, although birds were available at a slightly lesser figure. Ducks sold up to $2.50 and $2.75 each. One vendor offered mudcats at 25 cents the pound.

Apples again were featured on the outside market with top grade McIntosh, Delicious and Spy varieties bringing $3 per hamper, although one vendor offered fancy McIntosh at $3.25. Domestic grades were quoted down to $2.25 per hamper. Talman Sweets sold at 70 cents per basket.

Young pigs were a trifle easier with farmers quoting as low as $6 each and up to $8 for better quality. One farmer offered soft wood slabs sawed into stove lengths for $5 the cord.

Senators Strengthen Lead in Quebec Loop

Ottawa, Nov. 2 —(CP)— Slamming home five late goals, Ottawa Senators last night overwhelmed Valleyfield Braves 6-1 after two hard-fought periods to remain undefeated and strengthen their lead in the Quebec Senior Hockey league standings.

In the whirlwind finish, Jim McFadden, Jack Giesebrecht, Jackie McLean, Stu Smith and Ray Trainor each improved their scoring averages with Ottawa goals, while Rosy Joannette averted a Valleyfield shutout.

Both goalies played spectacular games, Dechene staving off repeated Ottawa attacks and legs Fraser withstanding a heavy first-period barrage.

Army Announces 7 Appointments

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)— Army headquarters last night announced seven appointments They are:

Lt.-Col. G. F. Stevenson, 34, of Toronto has assumed command of the Camp Borden Army Service Corps School. He has been officer commanding A-19 Service Corps Training Centre at Borden.

Acting Lt.-Col. J. A. K. Rutherford, 41, of Oakville, Ont., has been appointed general staff officer in the directorate of staff duties.

Lt.-Col. A. J. B. Bailey, D.S.O., M.B.E., 32, of Duncan, B.C., has been appointed G.S.O. in the directorate of military training at headquarters

Lt.-Col. D. F. Forbes, 40, D.S.O. and bar, of Sydney, N.S., has received similar appointment in the training directorate.

Considering use of helicopters for delivery of mail, Ottawa authorities had a visual demonstration of the wingless craft to show its ability to land in small "backyard" areas and to hover close to the ground while light packages are landed. The machine — a Sikorsky 'copter — landed on the lawn in front of the supreme court building, not far from Capital Hill after hovering while demonstrators passed papers to senior R.C.A.F. officials in the craft. Picture shows the helicopter landing in front of the supreme court building with Ottawa crowds watching the demonstration.

TRENTON

Regular Street Employees' Pay Increased 10c Hr.

Trenton, Nov. 2 —The town council had a busy session when it met on Tuesday evening last and a resolution was passed, effective January 1st, 1947, the price the town will pay Ross Wilman the garbage contractor will be $5,300, an increase of $500.00 over the present price. Council received a letter from the contractor asking for the increase.

By-laws were passed setting Friday, November 29th, as nomination day, and Monday, Dec. 16th as election day, in the town of Trenton.

It was decided to sell hospital debentures when the market is more favorable, and to hand the money over to the hospital board when received as it is required for actual building.

In response to a petition from employees of the town works department asking for increase in pay, and pointing out that it costs them more to live to-day the council voted unanimously that regular street employees get an increase in wages from 50 cents to 60 cents an hour, effective Nov. 1st, 1946.

Councillor Bradshaw was appointed to the Court of Revision in place of the late Councillor Walter Gainforth.

A by-law was passed entering into an agreement with the Trenton Amusement Co. whereby, under certain terms and conditions, the company is allowed to retain the present projection over the street line of the roof structure on the southerly side of the Company's theatre, The Trent.

Driver Disappears After Load Of Wild Animals Crashes Into Tree on Dundas Street East

If residents of the Bleecker Ave.—Dundas Street district were disturbed suddenly from their dreams early Saturday morning with the impresion they were in the midst of a flood, or the habitant of wild animals, they might have had good reasons.

For on Dundas Street a truck belonging to the Nelson Wild Animal Circus of Quebec City had come to grief as it struck a sturdy maple tree and crates of wild animals and other circus paraphernalia were scattered about the street. The truck also broke off a hydrant and the whole scene was showered with water

When police arrived on the scene they found animal crates lying about the roadway, but the driver of the vehicle had disappeared and his identity had not been established up until late morning.

According to police the truck had entered the city from the east with the driver in some way losing control of his vehicle and the truck mounting the curb to crash into a tree. The entire upper part of the van was torn away at the front, the truck then careening away from the tree to crash into the hydrant.

Public utilities employees were called and turned off the water from the broken hydrant while a local garage was called to tow the disabled vehicle from the street. At noon today police were still searching for the driver of the vehicle.

Chinese May Take Administration Of Port of Darien

Nanking, Nov. 2 —(AP)— Chinese and Russian authorities today were reported negotiating for China to take over administration of Dairen, Russian-occupied open port city toward which government troops are driving against Chinese Communists.

The Nanking newspaper, Hsin Min Pao, reported in a Mukden dispatch that representatives of the two governments are conferring in Dairen.

It said satisfactory progress has been made and there is a possibility Chinese officials will be permitted to assume control of Dairen within 15 days. There was no official confirmation here.

Chinese government officials were sent to Manchuria some months ago in anticipation of resuming administration of the city. Russians have occupied Dairen since the end of the Pacific War.

Dairen was declared an open port, to be jointly administered by the two countries, in the 14-month-old Sino-Soviet Treaty. However, the Chinese Government for months was busy seizing vast areas of Manchuria from Chinese Communists and only recently announced it was ready to move into Dairen.

A week ago, President Chiang Kai-Shek's troops began moving on Dairen in a move to cut off Chinese Comunists on the Liaotung Penninsula from Manchurian mainland. Latest reports placed vanguards 33 miles north of Dairen. Government sources said President Chiang's forces would not attempt to take Dairen, but would throw up a safety zone around it.

Cannery in Alaska Destroyed by Fire

Ketchikan, Alaska, Nov. 2 (AP) —Fire destroyed the Nakat Packing Corporation cannery near here Thursday with a loss estimated by Attorney Lester O. Gore at $750,000.

Origin of the fire was undetermined but it started in the newly established Alaska Communications System quarters, Gore said.

The blaze destroyed the cold storage plant, Filipino houses, salmon canning plant, Commissary-Dormitory, trap and seine gear, and a number of skiffs.

News of Stolen Inoculated Cow Hurts Tokyo Sales

Tokyo, Nov. 2. (AP)—Business slumped in butcher shops and restaurants after police warned that meat from a stolen experimental cow, inoculated with deadly anthrax germs, might find its way to the black market.

Today a Tokyo cafe rose to the occasion with this sign::

"Absolute safety guaranteed for our beef steaks. We are using horse meat, as heretofore."

Canadian Wives' Bureau in London Closes Nov. 30th

London, Nov. 2 — (CP Cable) —The Canadian Wives' Bureau in London, which handled the repatriation of approximately 50,000 servicemen's dependents, will close Nov. 30, Canadian military headquarters announced yesterday.

An official statement said no further applications for government-paid and-arranged transportation from Britain to Canada will be considered. An official said remaining troops and dependents previously were informed that Oct. 15 would be the deadline for applications.

Those qualifying for free passage need not leave the United Kingdom by the end of November, but if they plan to travel after that date they will have to make their own bookings and travel to the docks on their own instead of being taken from their homes to the ship's side by the army. Travel warrants will be issued by the Canadian Immigration Department's London office.

Wives of soldiers marrying between Oct. 15 and Nov. 30 still are eligible for consideration by the bureau. Holders of free travel warrants must leave Britain by next June 30, after which all government-paid repatriation for dependents ceases.

BROCKVILLE RECTOR DIES

Brockville, Nov. 2. (CP)—Rev. Stanley G. Jackson, 42, rector of St. Peter's Anglican church since 1941, died suddenly of a heart attack. He graduated from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1930. His widow and two sons survive.

Untouchables May Unite With Mohammedans

London, Nov. 2 (Reuters)—Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, leader of India's millions of untouchables, yesterday admitted the possibility of the untouhables joining the powerful Mohammedan party government.

He denied a statement in Toronto last night by Ameen Ttaeen, Indian student at the University of Toronto, who quoted Dr. Ambedkar as saying he had already advised his followers to join the Mohammedan group.

Dr. Ambedkar came to London to protest the untouchables' failure to get representation in the new government.

Failure to give the untouchables representation in the government, he said, denies them "their mother's milk," and instead gives them "two foster mothers" —Mohandas K. Gandhi and Mohammed Ali Jinnah, Molsen League leader.

Armed with a voluminous manifesto stating what he considers to be injustices to the untouchables, Dr. Ambedkar has met government and opposition leaders here. Next Tuesday he will address the Conservative Party's India Committee.

While here, the self-educated untouchable leader who holds dostorates from universities in Canada, Britain and the United States, will attempt to see his group established as a definite minority in the new Indian government.

Gave Away Pants With $1,000 in Pocket; Money is Returned

Warwick, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP) — Giving away a pair of trousers he had outgrown almost cost Lloyd Cook, Warwick general merchant, $1,000. But he has his money back now, thanks to the honesty of the recipient, John Prince, a former Warwick man working in Sarnia, Ont.

About three years ago, Cook mislaid $1,000 in banknotes Diligent search revealed no trace of the money and Cook concluded he had dropped the roll somewhere

Yesterday Cook received the missing bankroll from Prince who found it in a pocket of the trousers.

NON-TARGET SHIPS NOW FREE OF RADIOACTIVITY

San Francisco, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Non-target ships which took patr in the atomic bomb tests at Bikini have become safe enough from radioactivity for shipyard workmen to discard many precautionary work routines, the United States Navy has announced. Complete changing of clothes, scrubbing in showers, after work and lunchtime washing have been eliminated.

St. John's W. A.

St. John's W. A. held their October meeting on Tuesday last in the church hall with a splendid attendance. The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, 'Thy Kingdom Come, O God', which was followed by the Litany given by the president, Mrs. H. Rodgers and the Members' Prayer. Mrs. E. Cooke read the Scripture lesson and owing to the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Savage, the minutes and correspondence were read by Mrs. B. Woodbeck. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. F. Kent and the report of the Deanery by Mrs. B. Woodbeck. Mrs. B. Belshaw gave chapter nine of Study Book on "The Far East".

The program of the afternoon opened with a reading entitled:—'Youth of Today' by Mrs. McMurray followed by a contest "Over the Hills of Hastings" arranged by Mrs. Reg. Coombes. Another reading 'This Is the Time' was given by Mrs. Edgar Morrow. Mrs. John Stiles and Mrs. B. Belshaw were elected for the program committee for November and Mrs. E. Cooke and Mrs. H. Rodgers for the visiting committee. The meeting closed with the singing of "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and the serving of delicious refreshments.

Personals

Miss Julia Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Savage, has been confined to her home on Baker Street with an attack of measles.

Mr. Harry Sheridan of Port Hope was in town on Thursday, renewing acquaintances.

Mrs. George Thorpe of Burlington is a guest this week of her sister, Mrs. Pepperall and Mr. Pepperall.

A number of real estate deals have been completed in the village the past week. Frank Stapley purchased the property on Emma Street belonging to Bert Conley and his sister, Mrs. Earl Adams, of Levack, Ont., while Mr. J. Sleeper of Batawa has purchased Ed. Gorman's property on Front Street. Mr. Gorman in turn has purchased the property belonging to Mrs. N. E. Eggleton on Front Street, now occupied by Mrs. A. E. Armstrong.

TRAFFIC RE-ROUTED

Hamilton, Nov. 2 —(CP)— A crowd of 2,000 citizens gathered as fire-fighters late last night battled a blaze in the warehouse of the Hamilton Plumbing and Supply Service. Frequent explosions with flames bursting 50 feet above the roof attracted the crowds and caused re-routing of traffic on nearby streets.

Expenses Incurred In Earning Income Are Not Taxable

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—Expenses incurred in earning an income are not taxable, regardless of whether the taxpayer is on a fixed salary or receives his income by some other means, Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, President of the Exchequer Court, ruled Friday.

The ruling was given in appeals by lawyers who held that, although they received salaries rather than being paid by fees, they were entitled to deduct their fees paid the law society.

The decision was on appeals by G. F. D. Bond, counsel for the City of Winnipeg, and Gerald S. L. Rutherford, Winnipeg, legislative council for the Province of Manitoba.

The Income Tax Department had ruled, and its decision had been upheld by the Minister, that lawyers who received their income through fees might deduct the law society fees as an expense but such a practice was not permissible in the case of lawyers who had the fixed income of a salary.

"In my view it is clear that what is to be taxed is the annual net profit or gain or gratuity, regardless of whether the profit or gain or gratuity is ascertained as being one kind of income or unascertained as being a different kind," Mr. Justice Thorson found.

"Such an interpretation is a sound grammatical one; it also removes the unfair discrimination of the present departmental practice.

"In my judgment an income is not necessarily net annual profit or gain or gratuity, and therefore, taxable income merely because it is a salary of a fixed amount, and there is nothing in the Income War Tax Act that excludes the deduction of proper disbursements or expenses from such fixed amount in order to determine the amount thereof that is taxable."

SEEK SOLUTION TO WORLD FOOD PROBLEMS

Sir John Boyd Orr, director-general of the United Nations' food and agriculture organization, has warned that stabilization of farm prices and expansion of world agriculture is essential to the attainment of "any lasting peace." Sir J. B. Orr, LEFT, is shown with S. M. Bruce, of Australia, chairman of the preparatory committee on world food proposals, at the opening session of the F.A.O. preparatory commission which is meeting in Washington to draft a program of world co-operation in solving world food problems.

Abbreviations

The last thirteen years of the late Jack Miner's life he was rated by several newspaper agencies as "Canada's best known Canadian in private life." While Eddie Guest, the Detroit poet, always referred to him as the best loved Christian in America.

The big thing that won the late Jack Miner's heart to his fellowmen was his simplicity. When Henry Ford visited him it was always "Henry." When Sir William Mulock paid his annual visit he was always addressed as "William."

He even carried his plainness in his bird banding activities. In 1909 when he started his bird banding he stamped Write Jack Miner on his bands. Everybody knows what the word write means. In 1921 some twelve years later he was largely responsible in persuading the U. S. Government in banding birds to learn what percentage are shot in each state and province but they put on their bands "Notify Bio. Sur. Wash." which was the abbreviation of Biological Survey Washington. This proved very confusing because the Indians and Eskimos and several shooters didn't know what the word "notify" meant but they all knew what the word "write" which Jack Miner used meant. The result was a goodly number would write Jack Miner about these Bio. Sur. Wash. bands because they didn't know what the word "notify" meant. Thus the U. S. bird banding was so confusing with such abbreviations.

The latest report is carried in the September issue of the Readers Digest, page 74, which reports an Alberta farmer who shot a crow with one of those bands which read "Wash. Bio. Sur." The farmer wrote: "Dear Sirs—I shot one of your pet crows the other day and followed instructions attached to it. I washed (Wash.) it and biled (Bio.) it and served (Sur.) it. It was turrible."

P.E. County Judging Competition Resumed

Picton, Nov. 1.— After a lapse of six years the county judging competition in livestock was resumed. Some twenty young men of Prince Edward County met at the Agricultural office on Tuesday morning.

Excellent classes of Holsteins and Clydesdales were supplied by Morley Williams and Dunam Foster. These were judged in the morning and during the afternoon the boys gave the reasons for their placings to the judges. Grover Smith, Jr., and Clifford Wilson both having represented the County on judging teams at the Royal and Ottawa assisted F. J. Webster with the competition.

Seniors

50 Years Ago

In the column "Looking Backwards" today appears a reference to the increase of bread to eleven cents a loaf on November 2nd., 1896.

The loaf of bread of that time half a century ago was quite different in appearance and in size from the loaf of today. The loaf delivered by the bakers of that age was what today might be called a double loaf if there were any of them. The loaf of 1896 was high and really double, one part could be separated from the other by just parting the two pieces of the loaf and the baker's man became became adept in that operation. Then the loaf of the nineties was not all surrounded by crust like the 1946 model loaf. One side and one end of each half loaf were without crust, this being explained by the manner of baking four half or small loaves in the one pan.

Today the consumer gets the benefit of more types of bread besides the crust which today entirely surrounds each loaf.

Before the late war much of the bread was sliced by machine. Nothing has yet been said of the return of slicing though it was formerly very popular until the exigencies of the day required the saving of time in manufacture.

Sane and Safe Observance

There was on Thursday evening a commendable observance of Hallowe'en across the Dominion without rude pranks or outlandish horseplay and the youngsters and youth are to be commended on their mannerly behavior in the festivities. The public expected a good report of them and they lived up to that expectation. In fact youth and childhood did not show any sign that they desired a noisy or unrestrained observance. They behaved in the most orderly manner because they wanted so to act and because they found the most fun and sport in that manner of celebration. There is not the slightest doubt that those who celebrated in this way did enjoy themselves to the fullest extent and that they felt they were the better for their thoughtfulness. They were reasonable and considerate in their enjoyment.

The fact that police authorities across the country were able to report a general orderly celebration proves the good spirit of the boys and girls and those who are older.

Community planning did a great deal to add to the entertainment. What social organizations did bore good fruit in the pleasures which they provided the younger. Those who were responsible for this enterprise for the sake of the youngsters and young people are to be commended upon the success of their efforts. It was a good investment, it encouraged the kindliest mood and it did give the young a maximum of enjoyment in helping the young. These efforts did not act in any sense of restraint, though they served to direct the evening's demonstration in the most satisfactory way.

To those who arranged such programs and helped to furnish so much fun and to the police who while keeping watchful eye were considerate and had the good will of the younger element a debt of gratitude must be paid, because the celebration and festivity went off without any untoward incidents.

November

November has come trailing with it the memory of the most enjoyable month of October that people can recall. The new month will bring a change which is inevitable at this late season but what it will bring is something that is unpredictable in detail as all long-range forecasting must be. Science with its latest inventions and devices gives an exact close-up of the future hours, for two days, three days or so. But the trend of the month is not so predictable. That uncertainty is something that lends charm to the passage of time, since one cannot predict what the next week will bring forth in weather. Something longer than now possible in long-range forecasting is considered possible with invention piling upon invention and with no end of them in sight as long as man can make use of them. However today the margin of error in forecasting weather is reduced to a minimum for the next day or two, as a result of new methods and invention and of collection of weather data.

November may be expected to live up to the spirit of the month for months while they indicate a certain leeway generally suggest the spirit of the season. It is in the poets that one finds very close observation of nature's behavior from month to month and from season to season.

Bryant the American speaks of "bleak November winds," Hood of England refers to the appearance and condition of November in these words:

> "No park—no ring—no afternoon gentility
> No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease,
> No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees,
> No fruits, no flowers, no leaves, no birds.
> November."

November though it brings the cold, also leads up to the winter's great festival of cheer and faith, Christmas. From now on the main thought is the mid-winter celebration at the time of the winter solstice.

Aluminum Houses in U.K.

Some interesting facts are given by United Kingdom Information Office regarding Britain's aluminum houses: "Housing experts in 20 countries have made inquiries about aluminum prefabricated houses — Britain's latest answer to the housing shortage problem. Now being made at five wartime shadow factories at the rate of five hourly, by next February they will be coming off the lines at the rate of one every 2½ minutes. They are quickly erected too — in Bristol the record has been achieved of erecting a house and connecting all services in 42½ minutes. These houses are as durable as brick and have passed all weather tests including being frozen, having steam pumped into them and being exposed to an 80 miles per hour gale produced by Beaufighter exhaust.

Britain Leads in Shipbuilding

Evidence of the vitality and spirit of the British people is seen in the shipping tonnage construction during the first three quarters of the year 1946, the total being about five times that of the United States' total construction. In Northwest England yards alone building was nearly three times that of Sweden, the leading Continental shipbuilding nation. Returns issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping last week reveal these interesting facts.

Merchant shipbuilding throughout the world totalled about 3,570,000 tons of which Britain constructed more than 52 per cent, approximately 1,875,000 tons. United States figures were 352,000 tons, and Sweden was third with 241,000 tons. About twenty per cent of the United Kingdom total was for overseas countries, compared with fourteen per cent during the previous quarter.

In addition to the 464 vessels actually under construction, the United Kingdom has on order no less than a million tons of shipping.

Winston Churchill is hard at work on his history of the war, hoping to finish the first volume by April and follow quickly with others. He dictates from his bed to a secretary until lunch; later he resumes dictation in the library, striding back and forth. He sees few visitors and lets only parliamentary and party duties take time from the book, says Newsweek Magazine.

Modesty is not only an ornament, but also a guard to virtue.—Addison.

COUNSEL

What would you tell a young fellow
  Starting his life work today,
Now that you're ripened and mellow
  And nearing the end of the way?
Your boy or mine, how advise him,
  Eager were he to succeed?
Soon when the first duty tries him,
  What are the traits he will need?

Would you sit glumly head-shaking,
  Voicing despair and dismay,
Telling him there's no mistaking
  Chaos is world-wide today?
Drift with the current or fight it?
  Cling to the truth or disdain?
Seeing a wrong, but to right it,
  Say every effort is vain?

Or, as our fathers once taught us,
  Always the world's need is men.
Teaching the ways that they taught us,
  Change comes again and again.
Never is shamefulness clever.
  Character's proved by our deeds.
Nothing but honest endeavor
  Ever entirely succeeds.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Where do earthworms grow ten feet long?

An earthworm native to southeastern Australia attains extreme lengths of ten or twelve feet and diameters of three-fourths of an inch, although the average specimen is only three or four feet long. This species belongs to the same animal group as ordinary angleworms, being scientifically known as "Megascolides australis."

The progress of these gigantic worms through the soil is attended by gurgling and sucking sounds clearly audible to persons walking on the surface. Their eggs resemble large olives. Related species that attain a length of several feet are found in South America, Java and other parts of the world.

Owing to a loop or double bend in the Mississippi River there is an area of about ten square miles in the extreme southwest corner of Kentucky that can be reached from the rest of the State only by passing through a part of Mississippi or Tennessee. By the treaty of 1783 between the United States and Great Britain the middle of the Mississippi became the western boundary of Kentucky, then part of Virginia. Kentucky successfully claimed the detached area because Missouri had no claim to territory on the opposite side of the river and Tennessee could claim no territory north of the line 37 degrees and 30 seconds north latitude.

A series of parallel black lines are required by the U. S. Post Office Department on what are known as "business reply envelopes." The short horizontal black marks are to call the attention of the various postal officials to the fact that the mail is not to be delivered until the addressee has paid the postage.

An extra charge is made on such mail. When business reply envelopes or cards reach a post office they are stamped with postage-due stamps and not delivered until the addressee has paid for the stamps. Business reply envelopes and cards, according to the Postal Laws and Regulations,, must be furnished by the user without cost to the Post Office Department and must bear on the address side the printed name and address of the person or firm to whom they are to be returned, together with the permit number and such other information as may be required.

BRITAIN SEEKS IRON WORKERS

Bolston, England (CP)— British manpower, already taxed by the demands of scores of industries, will be combed for an additional 20,000 iron foundry workers, William Leonard, joint parliamentary secretary to the ministry of supply, said in an address here.

A winter recruiting campaign will be aimed first of all at obtaining 10,000 who can be used in the production of light castings fo rthe housing program. Most of them will be unskilled workers between 16 and 45.

Mr. Leonard said the shortage of labor in iron foundries was one of the most restrictive bottlenecks in the national economy. Production was at an annual rate of 2,500,000 tons, compared with 3,300,000 in 1938. To reach the 1930 labor force of 140,z00, an additional 21,600 men would be needed.

Say Veterans Find Timber Land In Companies' Hands

Port Arthur, Ont., Nov. 2 —(CP)— Veterans returning from overseas found all accessible Ontario timber land in the hands of big pulp and paper companies, several ex-service men told the Ontario royal commission on forestry at its sitting here today.

"The government sold us short," Gerald McGanigal, district bush worker, submitted to the commission. "I saved my money before and after the war in the hope of going into the timber business myself, but I found I could only work on somebody else's limit on a narrow margin—their margin of profit."

Another bushworker and veteran, O. A. Kaulbeck, said pulp and paper companies held "practically all" the timber to the exclusion of manufacturers of other forest products.

He suggested all raw wood shipments to the United States be stopped and that every consideration be given to companies, big or small, who would offer good utilization of wood. Individuals or groups, he said, should be given blocks of timber 35 to 50 miles square. The blocks, could be operated under the guidance of a trained forester appointed by the department of lands and forests.

R. J. Prettie, general manager of the Northern Wood Preservers Limited said it appeared, in more recent years, that the policy of the Ontario department of lands and forests had developed from one of granting limits to independent timber operators who did not pretend to have plant, mill or similar permanent investment in the community to one of giving limits only to pulp and paper companies whose large permanent investment, actual or potential, was unquestioned.

"We commend the government for instituting such a policy," he said," but we also suggest that there is much evidence to the effect that established sawmills or other timber industries are consequently being neglected to a dangerous degree in the matter of a permanent supply of ray products."

Preparations are being made for the construction of a mill to convert wood waste into wood pulp or building board or both, the commission was told by E. E. Johnson, president of the Pigeon Timber and the Great Lakes Lumber and shipping companies.

The two companies also operate portable sawmills for the cutting of poplar and birch, with the number of these mills being increased "as rapidly as the necessary machinery can be purchased or built . . . we are now assured of markets whose requirements exceed considerably the maximum amount of this lumber which is likely to be taken from the Thunder Bay district," he said.

Huge Diamonds In Shop Window Closely Guarded

Toronto, Nov. 2. (CP)—Anybody walking along Toronto's main thoroughfare, Yonge Street, can see in a jewelry shop window just what a few hundred thousand dollars worth of raw diamonds look like.

And if they have any notions of snatching, the police are prepared to take care of it. Constant guard is maintained inside and outside the premises on the shipment which is removed each night to the company vaults.

One of the huge diamonds weighs 167 1-2 carats and is worth a mere $100,000, but that's because it hasn't been cut and polished. When it is, it will probably make two diamonds worth $100,000 each.

The stones, mined in the great Kimberley diamond mines of South Africa, form the largest shipment ever to enter Canada.

Spirit of UN Must be Basis, Inonu Declares

Ankara, Nov. 2—(AP)—President Ismet Inonu told the new National Assembly yesterday that there would be no obstacles to friendship between Turkey and Russia if relations between the two countries were founded on the spirit and conditions of the United Nations.

Inonu repeated that the Turks are willing to revise the 1936 Montreux convention for administration of the Dardanelles, but added that any revisions must take into consideration the interests of all powers as well as the integrity of Turkish sovereignty.

He spoke warmly on Turkey's close friendship with Britain and the United States and expressed sympathy with Egypt, the largest of Arab countries, toward whom the Turks have appeared to be turning more and more.

"We nourish with pleasure the hope that our relations with Egypt will develop in friendship."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH OLD

Numerous authors and philosophers, I gather from Bartlett's and Stevenson's handbook, have talked about it in an idle, resigned way. For instance Swift said "Every man desires to live long, but no man would be old." Ben Franklin said it with three less words. Emerson twisted it into this: "We do not count a man's years, until he has nothing else to count." And Sophocles (so Stevenson says — otherwise I wouldn't know) put a taunt in it: "Nobody loves life like an old man." Don't take that seriously, folks — of course we all know it is not so.

These people talked about it, but, aside from the entertainment or amusement their talk has given millions of readers, none of them has ever done anything about it.

Now if the poets and philosophers have quit finished—

Shove over and make room for my satchel, but, thank you, no, just sit comfortable. I'll stand and deliver my cart-tail patter here under the light of my torch.

The subject of my lecture, friends, is how to be happy tho' old. In the first place, nobody knows whether you are old, nobody but you yourself and you need not—in fact I think you should not commit yourself about it.

In my satchel here are four things you can do about it. If my course of treatment does not appeal to your common sense or imagination, you needn't — but here it is, to wit,

1. Prphylactic. The Iodin Ration.

2. Corrective. Suitable daily supplementation of diet with essential vitamins and minerals.

3. Palliative. Two glasses of wine, ale or beer with food, every day.

4. Ambulatory. A few miles of oxygen on the hoof every day —or the equivalent in other moderate general exercise.

If you are fond of things in pretty packages or dollar-eighty collections of euphemisms about your "nerves" you will probably notice that all of these suggestions are physical. Told on, tho' —come to think of it there is just one thing I may add—

5. Equanimity. There, doesn't that sound nice? I thought I should put it in here just to show that I know psychology as well as any sophomore does. How to culminate evenness of mind or calm temper — well, after all, the best way I know to achieve it is described in items 1 to 4, inclusive, as above.

In talks to follow we shall consider in detail the four main features of this design for keeping as young as your years.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Varicosities

—I am a sports wear designer, on my feet on cement all day, walk two miles to and from work daily. Getting little swellings of veins back of knees. Have been to dances, still skate a good deal, legs well developed, but am afraid of varicose veins. (C.A.)

Answer — Cement floor has nothing to do with it. Long standing predisposes to varicosities. Lie down a minute now and then during the day with legs in the air. Practice belly breathing. Avoid artificial supports. Avoid crossing knees when sitting. Avoid high narrow heels, and go barefoot or in moccasins or similar heelless, soft footwear as much as possible. Cultivate good posture. When you walk, walk briskly, do not stroll or drag along.

Sweating

Your answer on the relation of sweating to health is sadly wrong. I am a registered nurse, trained in ——— Sanitarium, and I know hydrotherapy. Any individual who has had sweating treatments and massage would never, never say he has received no benefit from same. (V. T. R. N.)

Answer — That's different. I merely pointed out the physiological fact that no "poison" of consequence is removed from the body by sweating. I do not doubt that various forms of heat and massage are beneficial in treatment.

Habit Corrected

I have had wonderful results from following instructions given in your booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene." I tell folks it has been worth a million dollars to me. (L. R.)

Answer—Thank you. Copy of the booklet mailed on request — inclose ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

BOY TO CHOOSE OWN NAME

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 2 (AP) —Joseph Corey's baby boy won't have any complaint over his name when he grows up. Corey and his wife, Lucille, told hospital attendants: "We've always thought a child was handicapped by names chosen by doting fathers and mothers. When our boy is old enough to know what he wants, he can choose his own."

FLYNN BUYS FREIGHTER TO RUN FLOATING CABARET

Acapulco, Mex., Nov. 2 (AP)— Erroll Flynn, U.S. screen actor, said Friday he would open a $100,000 floating cabaret here Jan. 1, 1947, aboard a converted freighter. Flynn said he already has purchased the freighter "Lottie Bennett," previously used in filming "Mutiny on the Bounty" and other sea movies, for $10,000.

CHARGE JAPS WITH TORTURE OF CANADIANS

Yokohama (CP)—Four Japanese charged with contributing to the deaths of at least 69 Canadian prisoners of war are on trial before a United States army military commission.

The four defendants are also charged with beating, torturing and abusing a number of American prisoners.

Heading the four accused is Masato Yoshida, formerly a first lieutenant in the Japanese army, charged with contributing to the deaths of Canadians and with maltreating others.

The brutalities alleged to have been inflicted on prisoners under his control earned Yoshida the reputation of being one of the most hard-boiled of all Japanese camp commanders. According to the record, the crimes of which he is assused took place from August 1943 to February, 1944.

During that time, there were 69 deaths resulting from neglect of sick and injured and maltreatment of others. These were several also being held responsible.

It is charged that Yoshida compelled Canadian prisoners to be quartered in a hut unsafe for human habitation, which collapsed on or about Jan. 1, 1944, causing the death of eight Canadians and injury to numerous others.

Specifications state that Yoshida also lined up a number of Allied prisoners and urinated upon them; that he tortured one Canadian by holding a shovelful of red-hot coals within a few inches of his chin; and that he compelled two others prisoners to walk to and from camp to the Rinko coal docks in their bare feet, which contributed to their deaths.

On trial with Yoshida are Takeo Takahashi, former medical orderly at Yoshida's camp; Katsuyasu Sato, former guard at the camp, and Hyoichi Okuda, medical orderly in the Japanese army at the same camp.

Refused Medical Aid

Takahashi, it is alleged, not only refused medical attention to Allied prisoners of war, but forced the sick, weak and undernourished to do hard labor, as a result of which numerous prisoners died of disease or were permanently disabled. It is also charged that Takahashi, for his own use, stole Red Cross supplies, medicines and other supplies intended for the benefit of Allied prisoners. The falsification of numerous death certificates also is attributed to Takahashi.

Sato is described in the charges as a ruthless task-master who visited his cruelty upon any prisoner who afforded him the slightest provocation. It is charged that while working the sick and weary prisoners of war at the Rinko coal docks in Niigata he often satisfied a dadistic urge to torture his helpless victims. Sato also is accused of stealing Red Cross supplies.

Okuda is accused of having stolen the meager rations intended for the prisoners, thereby contributing to the sickness, disease, and death of many. The prisoners called Okuda "Shorstop," "Pee Wee," "Little Caesar" and "Slap Happy."

The death of Rifleman James Mortimer of Durward, Ont., is cited as one of the worst examples of the brutalities alleged to have been inflicted by Yoshida. The Legal Section charges that Mortimer was tied to a gate post at the camp in freezing weather lightly clothed, and left there for several days, during which he was beaten and kicked by camp guards.

Other charges against the camp commander include the withholding of medical attention and supplies, neglecting to provide shelter and bathing facilities, compelling diseased and physical unfit prisoners to perform hard labor, stealing Red Cross supplies, and beating many prisoners. All of these acts, it is stated, caused the death of many of the prisoners in his camp.

Victims Listed

CONVICTED AS SPY

James Scott Benning, 33-year-old native of Montreal, who has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary after he was found guilty of communicating confidential information to Russia while he was an official of the wartime munitions department.

Indians Like Travel by Air

New Delhi (CP)—India is becoming increasingly airminded. A survey carried out by the civil aviation directorate of the government of India shows that during the first half of this year the number of passengers carried on the air services trebled as compared to last year.

The civil air services were restored to commercial operation on Jan. 1, 1946, and within six months the mileage of air routes and the number of routes in operation had nearly doubled. The number of passengers carried on the air services during the first half of this year was 37,633, as compared to 24,090 in the whole of 1945.

London Debates "Honesty Boxes"

London (CP)—The London Passenger Transport Board is wondering whether it would make or lose money if it installed "honesty boxes" on buses for the benefit of hurried passengers.

Some other English cities have such boxes near the bus exits so that passengers who hop on a busy bus for a short run may deposit their fares if the conductor hasn't had time to get around to them.

But London Transport is dubious.

"They might encourage more dishonesty than honesty," said one official, "for it would be easy for unscrupulous passengers to say they had already placed their money in the box when the conductor came around to collect their fares."

"NEW SECRET" UNUSUAL NOVEL

Problem of Atomic Bomb Basis for Story by Winnipeg Woman

By The Canadian Press

What hopes does the future hold for mankind as long as the atomic bomb can be used to destroy civilization? That was the problem that haunted Bob Harrow, who had helped make the atomic bomb, when he came home from the war. How he calmed his fears and came to see that nuclear fission might also be a force for good provides the theme for New Secret, (Thomas Allen Limited) an unusual first novel by a Winnipeg writer, Lillian Beynon Thomas.

"Dad, that atomic bomb is the most tremendous thing that has ever happened," Bob said at the supper table on his first night home. "We'll have to live differently, think differently or we're headed straight for suicide. This old earth has reached a dead end. Man can destroy that on which we live and from which we get our life. Man can blow this earth and man himself to smithereens."

It bothered Bob so much that he decided to leave his Minnesota farm and his wife, Little Dutch, and go to university for a psychology course which he hoped would fit him for the atomic age. In Minneapolis, where his associates included a kindly minister and a young divorcee, a girl from his home community led him into the hands of spies who sought to pry from him his knowledge of the atomic bomb.

The minister, arriving at just the right moment and handling a pistol with uncanny skill, rescued him from that delimma. Together they exposed the spy ring to authorities in Washington and the adventure helped Bob decide to go home. There he befriended some neighbors and, having become a father, decided the outlook for mankind was not so dark after all.

"Our food, clothing and shelter, I insist must be merely equipment to enable us to discover what man is, where he came from, where he is going and what the purpose of life is," he said. "Can you think of any more splendid ideal, anything more likely to draw all men of all nations together? .... Ever since the night my son was born I have realized there is some living force in this world—call it Life, God, whatever you like — that is worth living for and I'm going to live for it."

And on that note, "New Secret" ends. It is a novel with a message and departs from the usual story pattern to emphasize its argument.

Raise Production Standards

New Delhi (CP)—To raise the standard of Indian products to the level of other industrial countries, the government of India will set up an Indian Standards Institution. Among other things, experts will consider and recommend national standards for the measurement of length, weight, volume and energy.

Champion Breeder Once Hated Cattle

Craven, Sask. (CP) — When Kenneth Holt left Coventry, England for Canada in 1912, he decided that he would return when he ammassed £100 ($400) but he has stayed to make at least 130 times that amount with the aid of animals he previously had no use for—Aberdeen-Angus cattle.

The 51-year-old farmer recently shipped his herd—rated among the best in the world—down to Regina, 25 miles southeast of here, and the 130 "black beauties" were knocked down by an auctioneer's gavel for a cool $52,000.

Only 15 years ago Mr. Holt started in the cattle business when a neighbor gave him two Aberdeen-Angus heifers in payment for a pasturing debt.

Previously he had worked as a farm-hand then rented a farm and finally bought it in 1919 and almost forgot about his desire to return to England.

From then until 1929 he grew grain and specialized in hay. That was when he learned to hate cattle, for his neighbors' animals would wreck his stacks by foraging in them.

But when the two heifers were forced on him his attitude changed. He became fond of the animals with the shiny black coats and within three years he bought a grand champion bull and a pure-bred cow and sold the first calf for $800.

Soon he bought another champion bull and more cows, the grandson of one selling for $3,000.

The championship bug bit Mr. Holt and he started the round of fairs with his animals switching from beef cattle to all pure-bred stock. In the last 10 years his animals have won a dozen grand championships and more than 200 first prizes.

But it was not all fun. At the Montana state fair at Grand Falls several years ago, he arrived with the temperature touching 110 degrees and worked all night preparing his animals for the show. They won four firsts, eight seconds and three thirds.

But with the shortage of labor in the war years the work was telling on Mr. and Mrs. Holt and they decided to sell out.

They leave for England on the Queen Elizabeth early in December. One of the first things Mr. Holt intends to do is visit the home of the Aberdeen-Angus in Scotland.

Inscriptions Tell Early Cape History

Capetown (CP)—Workmen on the site of the old general post office here have unearthed inscriptions by early visitors to the Cape, who arrived up to 100 years before Van Riebeek in 1652.

According to Graham Botha, chief archivist of the Union, the find may be of the greatest importance in placing the early history of the Cape, as many names of ships and people, with dates, are being uncovered.

Sally is Booked For Indecent Show

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 — (AP)—Sally Rand, who fanned herself to fame, was booked in jail today on charges of appearing in an indecent show. Sadly she complained: "It costs me a lot of money to prove that what I do is art."

"All she was wearing was a very small triangle patch," a police officer averred, redding a bit. The rest of her costume, he added, consisted of the familiar fans and bubbles.

The actress carried along a sheaf of clippings, including several describing how a San Francisco judge — after a special performance four months ago — decided she was innocent of indecent exposure.

Accused of violating a municipal code which describes indecent performances, she gave her age as 42 and was released on $500 bail. She and theatre manager Howard R. Williams, booked under the same code, were ordered to appear in court late today.

CLIPPED CURRENCY

The term "bit," which is a common expression in New Mexico, was derived when the early Spanish clipped silver doubloons into eight equal parts, each one being a "real." Thus the two-bits, four-bits.

Finds Debate Dull M. P. Darns Socks

Wellington, N.Z. (CP)—Dominion parliaments are usually less conventional than that in Britain, but even New Zealand parliamentarians were surprised at the method one of their number chose to pass the time during a dreary debate in the session just closed.

A Labor member, C. Carr, spread out on the seat beside him a pair of socks, a darning needle and wool, and one of those wooden gadgets for pushing down inside the sock, and set to work.

The occupation seemed to keep him happy and occupied until something in the debate attracted his attention. He rose to a point of Order, said his piece, and then sat down, rethreaded his needle and attacked the next hole.

Holloway Street Y.P.U. Holds Hallowe'en Party

Ghosts, gypsies, pirates and peasants, looked after when necessary, by doctors and Mounted Police were among the varied company attending the Hallowe'en party in Holloway Street Church at which Centenary Y.P.U., were guests of the local group.

An eerie ghost-walk interspersed with screams, of horror was "enjoyed", by those brave souls who dared the unknown, all of whom came out alive but somewhat shaky.

A good program of games, contests and stunts, was conducted by the Citizenship group, who were in charge of the evening.

The judges had a difficult task in arriving at a decision as to the best costumes and after much deliberation awarded the prizes to Margery Bell, a belle of the nineties and Douglas Ptolemy, who was doubling for Dr. Killum.

Apple cider, doughnuts, tarts and candy were served.

Ross Marshall, president of Centenary Y.P.U., expressed the appreciation of his group for the enjoyable evening a hearty vote of thanks was moved to Gordon Moynes and Ross Green, conveners of the Citizenship group, for the planning of the party.

A sing-song and 'Taps' concluded the evening.

V.O.N. News

A service of the Victorian Order of Nurses which is at all times greatly in demand is the regular part time nursing care given bedridden patients, especially older persons. In these cases regular professional services are of great benefit not only to the patient but also to the person in the home caring for him or her. Between visits of the nurse adequate and kindly care is given by those in the home, and this supplemented by the service of the Victorian Order keeps the patient comfortable while confined to bed for long periods.

Part of the work of the nurse in connection with bedridden patients is that of creating in the patient's mind as happy an atmosphere as possible. The nurses through their training and understanding are aware of the sensitiveness of older people who are unable to leave their beds. They are skilled not only in dispensing nursing treatments, but also in helping such a person to adjust himself to and accept his physical handicaps. It is for this reason that patients of this type welcome with eagerness the regular visit of the Victorian Order Nurse. Such care is available to anyone and a nurse will be glad to come to a home at any time and plan this service.

Hobby Fair at Q. A. School Sponsored by S. & H. Club Attracts Large Gathering

Excitement was at "fever pitch" Friday evening within the walls of Queen Alexandra School, for the night was a close second to Hallowe'en. This was the night of the children's hobby fair, and they were playing "host" to the grown-ups.

"Pride goeth before destruction, and haughty spirit before a fall," but the young "man" who was an interested spectator as the Intelligencer examined a well, and very neatly made tin sugar scoop, (the outside and wooden handle painted a delicate shade of green) was not averse to declaring ownership of this good looking gadget. Entering into conversation he was asked 'What you going to be, a tinsmith?" The answer came in a decided negative, "A carpenter." "Then," continued the visitor, "you ought to be making things like these," gesturing toward some fine products of wood-carving. "Oh," said the lad, "I've made lots of those, and some leather work and baskets. "Did you see the baskets?" "Yes". "Did you make one of those?" "I made two," was the quick rejoinder.

Pride? Yes, but not the kind to cause destruction. That youngster had good reason to be proud, as had many another boy and girl.

Many Crafts Displayed

Among the crafts displayed were models of airplanes of various types, a home with a garage attached, a barn, two summer cottages (one made of Canadian logs) and a very attractive, roomy punt with oarlocks and oars attached, which reminded the observer of lovely lakes and trout streams in the northland.

An unusually fine display of girls' work included all sort and sizes of doll clothes with a couple of well dressed dolls, knitted garments and really beautiful embroidery on household linens and wearables.

From the lower grades neat specimens of handwriting attracted considerable attention, as did the lovely leaves moulded from plasticine; and the grotesque postures of Hallowe'en witches could never be more realistic than those pictured in the crayon drawings by Grade 1 pupils. Other examples of art from the higher grades showed real talent in carbon, crayon, water colors and oils, while an artistic sense of color and arrangement was also displayed in the scrap-books; one on Animal Life, another a collection of Birthday Cards, and the third containing samples of beautiful Christmas cards.

Great Variety Shown

There was great variety shown in the collections of buttons, shells, match holders and gourds, the last taking a first prize. A pottery collection of The Seven Dwarfs appealed to several little girls who were anxiously looking for "Snow White."

"The Parents' Corner" was most attractive with beautiful samples of several hobbies exhibited. In the transparency of uncolored plastic was a jewel case, two photo frames and a rose bowl as perfect as any seen in the city's gift shops. The wood carving was distinctive, including a cribbage board (inlaid), a candle stick, a statuette of St. Francis of Assissi and another of one of the Seven Dwarfs. A collection of brightly-colored ornaments for a Christmas tree was displayed against a background of black velvet.

Fine Photography

Artistry in photography was realistically portrayed in a number of enlargements, encompassing a wide field of landscapes and skylines; as was also pictured in a group of oil paintings. On another table samples of short stories and of a song for boys and girls, both of which have been published by parents, were exhibited in this "Corner".

In the basement was the very popular "Pet Show", including goldfish, chickens, "bunnies", dogs and cats; some of the dogs were loudly protesting against their imprisonment; some cats were playing contentedly with their unusual ribbon decorations, and a few of both were just too scared to do anything but crouch in a corner. Three beautifully fluffy "Persians", grey, black and orange, were blissfully ignoring the commotion and enjoying whatever cramped comfort their small cages afforded.

Receives Attention

The home cooking table received concentrated attention from the "Mothers" who were present; the refreshment booth, the popcorn and the ice cream stands were all well patronized. A new venture this year was an "Auction Sale" which opened at nine o'clock. The auctioneer had no difficulty in disposing of the tempting cakes, the useful articles and the "Things-hard-to-get".

Thus closed another successful venture sponsored by the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association.

Makeup Should be Alluring

SAY WHAT you will about mercantile blushes, lip smears and darkened eyelashes, it has come to the point that a woman doesn't feel natural if she doesn't use artifice. That lovely natural complexion of which we used to hear grannie tell that perfect skin surface that had never been profaned by even a touch of powder belongs to a prehistoric period.

We wonder just how lovely the belles were in those days. Weren't they beset by the same beauty griefs with which we are bothered and fight to the death? Probably. It wasn't "quit nice" to do anything about them.

Protecting Veils

Women wore veils to protect them from sunlight, carried parasols. No wonder they had fainting spells. They squeezed themselves into steel-riveted, double-turreted corsets to regall themselves with an eighteen inch waist. A lot of water has run under the pulchritude bridge since then.

We've learned that a light film of rouge is more becoming than one that looks like a temperature of 106. We know that powder and rouge must be cleverly blended, colors selected with wisdom, that make up—used with restraint—makes the feminine countenance more vivid, more interesting.

High On Cheeks

When rouge is placed high on the cheek bones, brushed lightly over the lids, the coloring of the eyes appears deeper, more luminous. The soul lamps have a dewy appearance and, we have heard tell, dewy eyes make a strong appeal to the cavalier who waits upon his lady love.

The lipstick has become a cosmetic institution. Dark shades continue to hold their own. Orange reds, so favorable to the tanned complexion, now set aside for true reds or American beauty shades.

Fashion Flashes

HARBINGER of a season of elegance is the fine dress and jacket ensemble. Black crepe is used for a handsome dress and jacket, both simply styled, except that the short jacket has big sleeves of silver fox. The short-sleeved dress has fan-shaped inserts of black net on the bodice.

After all the fuss about elaborate fur lines and huge sleeves, the trim, double-breasted half coat, made with straight but easy sleeves, looks new and good. Alaska seal, broadtail or Persian lamb are used for these coats, some of which have big slanting flap pockets and a half-belt in back. Grand over a suit, for town or country.

Circling the mode is the belt, available in every medium from gold mesh to fabric. Ideal for campus wear is a three-inch double-buckled pigskin belt studded with large and small nailheads and multi-colored studs.

Going places in a big way is the carry-all vanity bag. A square vanity type bag ,nice for afternoon or informal evening wear, is of black antelope quilted in a diamond pattern. The covered metal frame has gold corners that are visible. Bag is lined in white moire and is fitted with polished gold metal cigarette and compact compartments. Twisted antelope handles.

New-looking is a suit of dark navy woollen teamed with a shirred pink chiffon blouse and a hat of matching pink felt, a small toque whose trimming of dark blue bird wings lends height.

Every Young Husband

Were the EXPENSES of starting your home greater than you expected? In most cases the answer is "yes." Probably there is a mortgage and other debts. Given time, you can pay them! But they could be a burden to your wife, if something should happen to you. That is one reason why you should have adequate life insurance protection.

Does it matter which COMPANY you insure with? Yes! Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. Evidence of the satisfaction of our policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life of Canada, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders. Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Husband Regrets his Misstep, But She Can't Forget it

As I see it, there are three reasons why a woman may find it impossible to forgive, wholeheartedly, a repentant husband, to put his misstep resolutely out of her mind and start all over again on a basis of renewed trust.

The first is that she doesn't believe in the sincerity of his repentance. She thinks he is giving mere lip service to the convention which requires that a person should say he is sorry when he has wronged or hurt another, and that the chances are he will do the very same thing right over again, whenever he feels like it.

The second is that she is the jealous type, ready to be suspicious of her husband if he so much as takes a second look at a particularly hilarious hat he sees on a passing feminine head.

And the third reason for not being willing or able to take her husband's desire to make amends at its face value and give him the opportunity he asks to prove that it was a mistake he will not repeat, is that she has lost her love for him.

One of these three factors, I believe, must be lurking in the background whenever a wife says that she "just can't forget".

Which of the three, I wonder, is behind the attitude of the wife who writes:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have been married almost 11 years. I was a very happy girl for nine of them, when I found out, through a very dear friend, that my husband was taking out a married woman, my own age, with a son of seven. Then I thought my world had ended.

"We have two lovely children. I have always been a good wife to him, kept his home and his children just so. There wasn't anything I wouldn't do for him.

"But, now, life doesn't mean a thing to me any more. I have tried everything to forget, but I just can't. That other girl is always in my mind. He does not step out of the house without me any more and there isn't enough he can do for me and the children. But, as I said before, I can't forget what he did to me. He went steady for seven months with this married girl who worked with him. Now her her husband is home from overseas, so she doesn't have a chance to call my husband. My husband told me she wasn't any good to do what she did to her husband but, then again, he doesn't realize that he did the same to me.

"All I want to know is what shall I do about this? I'm half out of my mind thinking about it night and day. I have tried every way to snap out of it, but I just can't. Should I leave him or ask him to leave my home? I could get along very well without him, as I am financially fixed.

"Heart-Broken"

Perhaps I am wrong, but my feeling is that it is the third reason that makes it impossible for thus wife to forgive and forget with perhaps a little of the first mixed in; that is, his behavior has killed her love for him and, in addition, she is not entirely certain that his repentance is sufficiently sincere.

Frankly, if I were in this wife's place, I wouldn't be entirely certain myself that his repentance would last, for the reason that what he says about the "other women" being "no good", because she was unfaithful to her husband, shows rather clearly that he has a double standard on matters of sex, since he apparently, as his wife says, doesn't think of his own conduct in the same light as he does hers.

The fact that this wife says that she could "get along very well" without her husband indicates that she has little love left for him. Even so, however, I think it would be wise to give him another chance and see if they can not, together, work the situation out.

Of course she was bitterly disillusioned and cruelly hurt by her discovery that her husband had been unfaithful to her. On the other hand, she admits that he is now trying to do everything he can to make amends, and I believe she should give him the benefit of every doubt and the chance to prove that he intends to be as faithful to her in the future as he, of course, expects her to be to him. If he repeats his error, then she will have to make up her mind to live him or not. But, right now, both for the sake of the children and because she had so much happiness for seven years, and it may be possible to recapture it and forget the interlude of unhappiness, it seems worth a try.

Can't you be strong enough "Heart-Broken", to stop thinking about this thing all the time? If you fill your time and mind with other things, concentrating, especially, on making a truly happy home for your husband and children, I believe you will find the incident will gradually lose its first bitterness. Don't keep it alive by going over it in your thoughts. Let it alone and the memory will fade of itself.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When Children Call Their Parents' Friends "Aunt" and "Uncle"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should a child of four address an older person? I am 24 years old and have always addressed older people who are not related to me as "Mrs. Brown" or "Mr. Brown". But lately I have noticed that so many youngsters call adults (not relatives) "Aunt Mary" (for example) or "Uncle John". I think this is very confusing, especially to strangers who don't know who is a "real" aunt and uncle.

D.

Many people object, as you do, to having children given the privilege of calling their parents' friends "Aunt" or "Uncle", and I grant you that this practice is overdone when it applies to all friends of the parents. However, in the case of particularly intimate friends of the family, friends who perhaps see the children oftener than relatives do, and who are as devoted to them, perhaps more devoted to them than relatives are, "Mr." and "Mrs." seem forbiddingly formal, first names seem too intimate, and "Aunt" and "Uncle have a warm radiance of affection and devotion.

And, as long as all those concerned with this name-suggestion are happy and satisfied with it, it generally doesn't make any difference whether or not strangers know the status of the relationship.

The Charm Of Prompt Thank-You Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My friends recently had a stork shower for me, and I received some of the most beautiful baby gifts I have ever seen. I want to thank my friends with personal notes even though I thanked them at the shower. Would it be in bad taste if I wait until my baby arrives and then send them announcement cards, writing on the cards little notes of thanks either from me or in the baby's name, and adding an invitation to come to see us at the hospital or at home? Do you think that my friends might think that this announcement suggested another gift? If so I do not want to send them, for they have already been exceptionally generous.

If you think it isn't good taste to write the thank-you notes on the announcements, would you suggest that I send the announcements and then a few days after, write thank-you notes to those who attended the shower?

2. Also, should I send announcements to relatives and friends who live in the same town I do and whom I could call on the telephone?

D. M.

1. Since you so deeply appreciate your friends' generosity, why not sit down at once and write a warmly enthusiastic thank-you note to each friend? Why wait to write these words of appreciation? To add them to the birth-announcements would seem, I am sure, like an afterthought, words of gratitude unnecessarily and casually postponed. I find myself wondering why you are trying to persuade yourself to delay writing these notes of appreciation when it is so evident that you appreciate these kind and generous gestures. If you'll begin your notes like this, "You were so wonderfully kind to me and your gift is such a beauty that I must tell you again of my appreciation," you will find that your thanks will flow freely and that you will think of many features of the gift to be enthusiastic about.

2. Don't send announcements to those whom you have informed by telephone.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Give Father Time to Laugh

Good health and a sunny disposition are the middle-aged woman's best weapons against the evidences of birthdays. Charm and zest for living form the building blocks with which the structure of good looks is erected. Sounds preachy, does it? Do not be snornful. Few women give sufficient thought to the art of living. If more did that little thing, the beauty industry would not thrive as it is now doing. There's too much reliance given to cosmetics that are nice to play with and fun to buy. But they can't make progress against the devastating effects of ill nature or lack of vitality.

Not to be interested in beauty aids and new fashions is to be a derelict indeed. After all, that is not the whole story. There must be strict regard for the laws of health. The body must be bathed daily so the skin will function as an organ of elimination and the kidneys will not be called upon for extra duty. Dead cells must be washed away so skin glands can throw off their waste materials.

Nutrition is important. When partaking of the good things of the table you are not only feeding your digestive organs, you are feeding your complexion hair and fingernails—all of them dependent upon the nourishment brought by the blood streams. You need plenty of water a large part of the human machine is composed of liquids.

Cosmetics cannot compensate for indiscretions in diet—eating rich foods overloading the stomach—which will eventually take a toll of the complexion. You can have a sallow skin for a time, but, unless the cause is removed, the yellow cast will become a permanent fixture. This good-looks grief must be treated from within; no external application will have any effect upon it.

The years bring grey hair—a fact, which should worry no woman who has reached the age of fifty. White hair has never been more fashionable. Usually, it is becoming. With the nifty hair-dos we have at the present time, it can be made attractive and lovely. It requires fastidious care. Shaggy ends may pass on the Sweet Young Thing, but they make the middle-aged or elderly woman look blowsy.

The real beauty curse is wrinkles. They are increased by worry self-pitty, a temperament that can't stand the slightest disappointment or irritation and, of course, ill-health. They should be treated before they appear—by keeping the skin surface well oiled. Prevention is easy, if one has vitality, but cure is almost impossible when lines are well established.

At mid-channel time ,sebaceous glands that lubricate the skin slow up; creams are more necessary then than they are on younger faces. Every night, after washing your face, friction in a heavy cream. Every morning bathe the face with cold water.

It's wonderful, but it does hold up. That's the word on the strapless corsage that appears on many of the newest evening frocks. A strapless gown of black crepe has a bodice insert of yellow and gold satin embroidered with gold sequins and bugle beads, that follows the curved neckline. Skirt drapery in front is caught with a bow of the same material, one end short, the other falling below the slit skirt hem.

Present demands for Hydro power taxes existing facilities to the utmost. This is due to ever-increasing use of low-cost Hydro service plus necessarily restricted Hydro construction during and since the war. Shortage of materials and equipment makes it impossible to speedily accomplish expansion long since planned.

Lines and transformers now serving any one district can carry just so much power. Wherever that capacity is being completely used by present consumers, addition of new customers could be made only at the expense of service to the old, until new materials for extensions are obtainable. This condition applies in city, town and country. Everything possible is being done to overcome it. New equipment is being installed as fast as it becomes available. Your Hydro Commission trusts and believes you will recognize the facts; and assist, by your patient co-operation, in the orderly restoration of the prompt service that your Hydro always strives to maintain.

In the meantime, let your Hydro know as early as possible of any planned substantial increase in your power needs, and use this low-cost servant wisely.

Art Ross Claims Canadiens Can Wrestle as Well as the Leafs

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fresh from the casted role of villains in a celluloid epic, Toronto's rollicking young Maple Leafs made a quick change-over to hometown heroes today as the National Hockey League scene-setters prepared for another Big Four game weekend.

The Leafs, still unbeaten and well out in front of the league race, gave a stellar performance in playing a 1-1 tie with the Stanley Cup Canadiens at Montreal last night, although falling down somewhat in their interpretation of "heavies". This General Manager Frank Selke of the Canadiens admitted after the game when he said of the pictures he ordered taken to prove Toronto's alleged malpractices:

"I'm glad we made the movies because they will help out a lot in training."

Those pictures, in case you hadn't heard, were supposed to provide Selke with evidence of the wrestling tactics he accused the Leafs of employing.

Perhaps Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins, who took his team to Toronto to do battle with the Leafs there tonight, had the right idea when he observed:

"I wouldn't say they (the Leafs) can wrestle one bit better than Mr. Selke's Canadiens."

Whether the wrestling had anything to do with it or not, 11,522 fans paid their way into the Montreal Forum to see a wide-open, scrappy game of hockey in which the Leafs took a one-goal lead in the first period and saw Canadiens tie it up in the last. Gus Bodnar scored for Toronto and George Allen for Montreal.

Both teams lay unbeaten records on the line tonight when Toronto, to the acclaim of home supporters, takes on Mr. Ross's Bruins in the Leafs' third game in four days. While the Toronto team has enjoyed this overdose of work, the Bruins have been idling since tying the New York Rangers 3-3 Wednesday night.

In the other Saturday night game, those same Rangers, now in fourth place, are at home to the Red Wings of Detroit. The Wings are tied for the cellar with Chicago.

Sunday night, Rangers and Red Wings stage a return engagement in Detroit while Boston goes to Chicago to meet the Black Hawks. Canadiens, who moved into a second-place tie with Boston by their split last night, get a weekend rest.

Football Picture Will be Clarified By Today's Games

(By The Canadian Press)

This is the day that's going to see the Canadian rugby football picture clarified considerably. It should produce a western champion and it will decide the playoff teams for the Ontario Rugby Football Union. It should also settle contending positions for the eastern interprovincial and eastern intercollegiate loops, both of which have still another week to play.

The western picture is clear enough—the Calgary Stampeders are battling Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Winnipeg in the second of their home-and-home points-to-count final for the western title. Calgary starts with a three point advantage; they beat Winnipeg 21-18 at Calgary last Saturday.

Stampeders figure to start a team even stronger than last week, because Harry Hobbs, flashy broken-field runner who was missing a week ago, will be on the line-up this afternoon. Bombers will be at full strength and full of plans for stopping Calgary's passing attack which accounted for many yards last Saturday.

Argos 'Wets' Tied

In the eastern Big Four, Toronto Argos are at Montreal Alouettes, and Ottawa Roughriders are at Hamilton Tigers. Next week it's Alouettes at Argos and Tigers at Roughriders. Before the hostilities commence, Argos and Alouettes are tied with 14 points, and Roughriders are next with 10. So Roughriders simply have to win today if they want to keep any hope of staying in the running.

In the Ontario Union it's Toronto Indians at Sarnia Imperials, and Toronto Balmy Beach at Windsor Rockets. Ottawa Trojans and Hamilton Wildcats played their game last Wednesday — Hamilton winning 23-7 to take the loop leadership. Windsor are out if they don't beat Balmy Beach today.

Varsity Can Tie

Probably the biggest crowd of the afternoon will be that at Varsity Stadium where University of Toronto seniors battle the University of Western Ontario. If Toronto University wins, they'll be tied with Western for the college lead.

The other college game is at Kingston, with Queen's University entertaining McGill from Montreal. McGill are far behind Toronto and London, but Queen's are farther back still. They have not won a game. And with only another week to go the Queen's tricolor might black out the red and white.

SHORT PUTTS, SHORT HOLD

A short hold on your putter, as demonstrated by Dorothy Wilson, will improve your putting when close to the cup

By ALEX J. MORRISON

"My approach putts and putts over six feet give me no room for complaint," said Chic Plunkett of Glendale, Cal. "But, oh, those short ones." Chic has his regular foursome in which a score in the low eighties wins. Each player bets his opponent a dollar on each nine and on the eighteenth. Some people claim the dollar isn't worth much these days but if you want to see just how much a man will do for a dollar just follow Plunkett's foursome some day. Competition and methods are sharper than a toothache. A fellow can't miss many short putts without contemplating suicide. I watched Chic's putting. True, his handling of the club with long putts was all right. When he had putts of less than five feet he often missed the cup 12 or more inches. His lack of confidence was pathetic. I found that he was making a mistake quite common in putting. He used the same long hold on the club that he used from the edge of the green. This encouraged him to take too long a backstroke which forced him to slow down his forward swing and thereby make it inaccurate. I pointed this out to him and suggested the use of a much shorter hold on the club. I told him to grip shorter as he found his ball closer to the hole. As an added help about making a backswing in keeping with the shorter putts I had him move the clubhead back from the ball simply with a little wrist action then swing his hands through the ball to avoid stabbing in the forward movement. Of course, the position of the head of pointing of the chin has a lot to do with putting just as it does with every other shot so this was also incorporated. With the short hold and backswing and chin back until after the ball was hit Chic holed eight out of 10 putts within five feet of the cup. You can do as well with Toronto, Nov. 2 — (CP)—An ordinary error can usually be forgiven but hunting mistakes — invariably caused by sheer carelessness and in many cases costing someone's life — cannot be condoned, for they shouldn't have occurred in the first place.

Inevitable as they seem now, they can be avoided if heed is paid to the continual warnings that rules of safety must be followed while hunting.

In Ontario alone since the deer hunting season began Sept. 20 at least four persons have been killed and five wounded. Because they could have been avoided the toll is shocking, especially to those persons interested in boosting hunting as a recreation and sport.

One such person, outdoor editor Pete McGillen of the Peterboro Examiner, has just about reached the end of his patience with hunters who refuse to be careful, the worst offenders being those hunting for the first time and knowing little else about a rifle except that a bullet comes out of the barrel.

"Trigger happy jokers who let loose a barrage as soon as a bush moves are next in line as assistants to the Grim Reaper," wrote Pete in a recent column. "Beware the mouthy fellow who tells you he shot a deer when all he could see was one ear, or perhaps the white tail in the bush. That tail is down if the deer is feeding unless Mr. Deer is nervous and starts flicking it up and down."

"The only time this white flag goes up is when your quarry takes off and, with every word in capital letters, Pete added: "Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger."

That's one of his 10 commandments to prevent accidents. The others: Treat every gun with respect due a loaded gun; carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open into your automobile, camp or home; always be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions; always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble; never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun; do not mix gunpowder and liquor; never shoot at a flat hard surface or the surface of water; don't walk behind a man if you are carrying a gun cocked."

TORONTO LEAFS TIE CANADIENS IN TOUGH GAME

Bodnar Scores for Leafs in First and Allen for Canadiens in Third

Montreal, Nov. 2. (CP)—You can't prove by the latest National Hockey League statistics which is the better team—Toronto's youthful Maple Leafs or the seasoned Montreal Canadiens.

The two Canadian teams matched bump for bump and goal for goal last night as they played to a 1-1 tie in 60 minutes of bruising hockey. The tie moved the Canucks into a second place tie with Boston and lengthened the Leafs League lead.

The rugged game proved costly for both sides as Bob Goldham suffered a wrenched knee when he collided with Canadians' Kenny Reardon in the third period and Joe Benoit, smooth-skating Hab Forward, reported a strained shoulder after the game. Both players will watch their clubs as a result of their injuries. next few games from the bench

Gus Bodnar gave the Leafs an early lead when he snagged Gaye Stewart's pass in the first stanza to beat Bill Durnan while Elmer Lach was cooling his heels in the penalty box.

Tempers flared throughout the battle and Garth Boesch of the Leafs drew a major in the first frame when he walloped Richard and the rocket replied with the same. Richard was awarded a minor for his part in the fracas.

The Canucks ganging rushes finally paid off in the third period when George Allen fooled Turk Broda on an easy dribbler.

Another brawl threatened in the middle frame when Bill Ezinicki of the Leafs and Reardon started shoving each other. Both teams joined in the melee that ensued, but no penalties were handed out.

Cameras recorded the game as general Manager Frank Selke of Canadiens kept his promise to film the event fter he charged the Leafs with "wrestling tactics" and with schooling their defencemen in the art of rough and tumble fighting.

THE BIG SEVEN

By The Canadian Press

Billy Reay of Montreal Canadiens notched an assist last night as Canadiens tied Toronto Maple Leafs 1-1 and moved into a six-way tie for fourth berth in the scoring race. Maurice Richard, Montreal, also picked up an assist to take sole possession of second place with seven points. Another Canadien and former Chicago Black Hawk, George Allen, scored to tangle himself in the fourth place scramble. Other scoring leaders were idle or held pointless.

AMATEUR HOCKEY TEAMS START TRAIL TO CROWNS

Hamilton Tigers Overwhelm Patricias and Staffords Beat Stratford

(By The Canadian Press)

Amateur hockey teams of the far-spread Ontario Hockey Association began the long trail towards Canadian senior and junior hockey titles last night with two openers in the senior "A" circuit and one in the junior "A" bracket.

The O. H. A.'s senior champions and Allan Cup finalists of last season, Hamilton Tigers, overwhelmed Hamilton Patricias 6-2 in one senior game at Hamilton while Toronto Staffords edged Stratford Indians 4-3 at Stratford.

Tigers had the edge throughout the Hamilton game but found Bob Binderbaugh in the Pat's goal a real stumbling block. Held 2-2 after 38 minutes of play, Tigers ran in four goals in the last two minutes of the second period.

For Tigers, the veteran forward line of Dillon Brady, John Conick and Clarence (Duke) Shillington carried most of the punch. Brady scored twice, Shillington and Conick once each and Miocinovich and Runions added the other tallies. Scorers for Pats were Murray Comfort and Hugh Barlow.

Stratford Indians disputed the winning goal scored by Williams of Toronto Staffords. Indians argued that the puck did not enter the net and the goal judge did not flash the light. Referee Red Reynolds held that the puck crossed the line and the goal was allowed.

William Scores Two

Williams scored two other goals for Toronto and Imonti one. Barber, Powers and Phillips each tallied once for Stratford.

A four-goal rally in the second period of the junior game started Barrie Flyers on their way to victory. Ray Gariepy, defenceman, paced the Barrie attack with two goals and Flyers' other counters came from Lawrence, Meger, Heale, Mousseau and Favero. Kroehlers' Billy Flick scored the first goal of the game and teammates Roth, Service, Michoski and Robertson got one apiece

Eight more junior "A" teams are to see action today: St. Michael's Majors at Windsor, Toronto Young Rangers at St. Catharines, Toronto Marlboros at Oshawa Generals and Hamilton at Galt Red Wings.

Junior "A" hockey reaches Maple Leaf Gardens next Wednesday night with a double-header pitting St. Catharines against Toronto Young Rangers and Stratford Kroehlers against St. Michael's.

BOMBERS PLACE SIX PLAYERS ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Squad Determined by Votes of Sportwriters in Three Cities

Winnipeg, Nov. 2. (CP)—Take six Winnipeg Blue Bombers, add three players each from Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders and you have Western Canada's 1946 All-Star football team as determined by votes of sportwriters in Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg.

Here's the team:

Dobler North Dakota, import, Glasser, Rowe, Wusyk, the first winner of the Jeff Nicklin trophy as the most valuable player to his team and the season's leading point-getter, Wilson, Ceretti, Adams, Gainor and Bell were practically unanimous choices. In the compilation, done by The Canadian Press five points were given for a first choice and three for a second.

The fight was close for the second tackle, end and halfback jobs. Bob Harrison and Rube Ludwig of Stampeders and Jack Manners of Bombers each got a fair share of votes but not enough to dislodge Nagy at tackle.

Harry Fitzgibbons of Bombers and Hal Harrison of Stampeders were just behind Shore in the voting for ends and Harry Hobbs and George Alexander of Stampeders and Harry Hood, Doug Gauthier and Don Hiney of Bombers were well up in the race for the halfback job.

While Bombers contributed six of the 12, three of the Winnipeg Stars came here by way of North Dakota where west coached previously. Ordway and Gainor, for a time West's assistant at N.D.U., are the other imports beside Dobler who made the select group. The other three bombers selected—Wilson, Shore and Ceretti—are veterans of many a Western football battle.

Of Riders' three, Nagy comes from Dayton, O., Glasser is a Regina boy and a freshman in senior football and Bell came west from Toronto.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Men of war enjoy the problems of play in bridge. They really go for grand strategy in squeezes, strip-and-endplays, and other coups. Also for tactics in creating or bucking crucial plights.

Time was when chess was a favorite game for sharpening wits and memory for manoeuvres. Bridge has a faster tempo in a wide range of pinches to meet and overcome in attack or defence.

This refers to a type of bridge found among hot bridge players. It is where each player is not only a vigilant co-operative. He is also a keen and clever antagonist.

West led a heart. Declarer sees tops in three spades, in three hearts, in two diamonds Capture of four clubs will accomplish his mission.

It looks as if a simple finesse through west K Q of clubs is the move. Accompanied by a delayed action, this should reach the objective. There seems plenty of leeway for good timing.

Dummy drops on the first trick with heart ace and south gets in with a spade. The club jack is led. If west covers, dummy refuses to win. This permits west to keep that trick.
preserve a sufficient reserve. In

This is the delayed action to this case the reserve is maintenance of a re-entry to dummy. It will be needed for taking the most club tricks.

When south gets in again, he leads club ten. If west does not cover, a third club from south answers the purpose. The west second big card is trapped until dummy can gather it and remaining clubs.

But west refused to cover club jack. Also club ten. On the last club from south, west put on the queen. North must win and get no more clubs. Or refuse and get less.

Never underestimate a worthy opponent.

Tony Pellone Wins Decision Over Greco

By The Canadian Press

Tony Pellone has another split decision to his credit after a Madison Square Garden fight but this time most of the customers agree that he really won over Montreal's Johnny Greco.

Although referee Eddie Joseph scored the 10-round scrap 7-3 in favor of Greco, the Canadian welter champ, both judges George Le Cron and Joe Agnello voted 6-4 for Pellone, the 22-year-old kid from New York's Greenwich village.

Greco, the heavier puncher, had Pellone in trouble in the second round when he caught the New Yorker near his own corner and pinned him against the ropes with a furious attack. It looked then as though Pellone would be lucky to last out the round but he weathered both storms and came on strong in the late rounds.

While Greco could carry the battle to Pellone, it was all his battle. The youngster couldn't take care of himself too well inside but piled up points while he could keep the Canadian at long range.

At 146 1-2, Gerco had 1 1-2 pounds on Pellone as well as several years of experience. The New York kid showed his gameness under fire and his ability to keep his head when hurt.

Paid attendance was 12,393 and the gross gate $55,561.

Windfields, E. P. Taylors' Canadian-bred colt, with six wins on Canadian and United States tracks this season, today starts in the $20,000-added Scarsdale Handicap at Jamaica Park. The three-year-old son of Bunty Lawless, likely will be held at 5-1 or better for the mile-and-70-yards event.

St. Michael's College last night defeated Argos 8-3 at Toronto in a sudden-death semi-final in the Junior Big Four Rugby League. The victory puts St. Mikes into the group final against Hamilton Tiger juniors.

A pair of field goals by Dick Murphy and a free throw by Tommy Burns in the final 2 1-2 minutes enabled New York Knickerbockers to nose out Toronto Huskies 68-66 in the opener of the Basketball Association of America season as the professional cage game made its bow in Toronto last night.

NATIE BROWN IS DISQUALIFIED BY BERT MAXWELL

Natie Brown, who had the distinction of fighting Joe Louis twice but coming out on the short end on both occasions has taken to the wrestling ring but he wants to bring his ring tactics to the roped arena and has found there are just as many tough guys in the game as there are in the fight racket. Last night at the Hume Arena, before one of the largest crowds of the season, the ex-pugilist lost a decision by disqualification to Sandy O'Donnell, who substituted for Karl "Krippler" Davis in the main go.

Brown came out fighting at the opening bell and soon had Sandy over the barrel. He pummelled the lad from Missouri from all angles and the temper of the crowd was increasing with every blow but Brown kept after his adversary and finally pinned him with a spread. O'Donnell came back full of fight and Brown was in a bad way in a few minutes and before he could recuperate he was laid for the count in nine minutes.

Thoroughly Disgusted

By this time the fans were thoroughly disgusted with the actions of Mr. Brown and he further angered them by bringing his ring education into play. He hit Sandy with everything but the ring posts and there were no love taps because Brown brought the blows up from the floor and in fact on some of them he wound up before letting go the lethal punch. O'Donnell wandered around the ring like a "drunken" man with Brown still pouring knuckles, Maxwell, the referee, called a halt to the proceedings and disqualified Brown. For once the crowd agreed with Bertram, which is seldom, and now the fans wants a man that will knock Mr. Brown kicking and quick.

Dunlop Loses to Dobie

Another bad man was beaten in the first bout, Bunny Dunlop hooked up with Jim Dobie and that young gentleman took a good going over for twenty minutes. Bunny pulled all the tricks out of his hat and trunks with his main weapon being elbow smashes when Dobie was pinned against the ropes. Finally Cliff Fox locked Dunlop's arms to his side and this was just the chance that Dobie wanted. He felled Mr. Big with an elbow smash, when the Dunlop baby could not defend himself and then fell on him for a quick count.

The semi-final between the bald Kwarianni and Ben Sharpe went the limit to a draw but the Russian drew all the boos around the ringside. The boys will be back at it next Wednesday night.

Racing Career Of Bernborough Is Completed

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 2—(CP)—The racing career of Bernborough, the idol of Australian turf fans, came to an unexpected end during the running of the MacKinnon Stakes at Flemington today. The seven-year-old horse broke a sesamoid bone in one of his forelegs and trainer H. Plant announced he would retire the Australian champion to stud.

Bernborough, making his first start since his defeat in the Caulfield Stakes a week ago after winning 15 straight, was second behind Flight when the mishap occurred. He was immediately pulled up as the crowd looked on thunderstruck.

He was examined by veterinaries who made the announcement of the bone fracture. There was no immediate comment from owner A. R. Romano who had hoped to take the "Toowoomba Terror" as Bernborough was called, to the United States.

Altogether Bernborough had run 17 races in the last 10 months. He was carrying top weight of 150 pounds when he was defeated in the mile and one-half Caulfield although he came from last in the 27-horse field to finish fifth.

Ramblers Have Chance To Catch the Bears

(By The Canadian Press)

The surging New Haven Ramblers, with five victories, three losses and a tie, have a chance this weekend of overtaking the front-running Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League's eastern division.

The Ramblers visit the third-place Springfield club tonight and are at home to the cellar-dwelling Philadelphians tomorrow. Hershey, with six victories and 2 losses, entertains Providence tonight and moves to St. Louis tomorrow for a game with the Flyers, last-place club in the western division.

All 10 teams will see action twice in the weekend schedule.

Meanwhile, St. Louis announced it had entered a protest with league president Maurice Pololoff of the Capitals' victory at Indianapolis Thursday. General manager George Carson of the Flyers claimed a faceoff was not allowed following the first goal scored by the Caps.

HUSBAND IS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Kingston, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Gerald Sheets appeared in police court today on a charge of assaulting his wife, a mother of eight children, and was remanded to Nov. 5 for hearing. The charge was laid last night.

Mrs. Sheets was released from hospital today after treatment for burns. Police and hospital officials said they did not know what caused the burns.

General Duty Nurse

"He's still unconscious and will probably remain so for some time. A bad concussion. Otherwise he should come along all right. He will probably be lame for some time though. His foot and ankle were pretty badly smashed. Looks to me like the work of a hit and run driver—unless, of course, the thugs who brought him in are the culprits. Doc doesn't think so. He figures they're the tools — of a gang, perhaps. Just what gang he wasn't prepared to say—yet. Fine-looking lad. Nice features— good hands."

"I hope they get the beasts who are responsible," Sally said fiercely. "I wonder if there's any connection between—"

* * *

"Not a chance," the young interne grinned, his eyes jeering. "You and Doc should get together on this, Maynard. Between you, you could write a really blood-congealing scenario. Maybe make a million. Who knows?"

Sally stiffened and Margaret Adams said staunchly: "I don't think it's so ridiculous. Maybe this stranger was the perpetrator of the foul deed—a guilty conscience and all that. Had to follow up and see how it ended. Could be, you know—only there's the shot. How does that come into the picture?"

"You tell me," Doctor Hallock said, shaking his head dubiously. "We'll have a look around in the morning. You said it was quite near?"

"Right outside — so close it sounded as if it might even have been fired at the porch. Probably he was standing there and—"

"Just the same—" Sally began; but the resident entered and she said nothing more.

"Why not take Doc into your confidence, girls?" the interne suggested. "He might even have the solution already worked out."

It was Margaret Adams who told the story and while she was talking Doctor Willoughby's brow wrinkled in deep thought. His clear blue eyes stared at her for a long moment before he said firmly:: "No doubt it ties up with this other."

Sally threw a triumphant glance at the younger doctor who grinned and winked at her in reply. She bit her lip and blushed furiously.

* * *

"Would you know the voice again?" the resident asked, his face wandering from one to the other.

Margaret shook her head. "I was too scared," she confessed.

"I—I think I should, Doctor," Sally said. "It was the voice of breeding—at least of an educated man—quite different from either of those two with the boy." She knew Doctor Hallock's amused eyes were on her and went on: "It puzzles me that he knew where the door of Receiving was located and that the door was locked. You see it was absolutely dark in here. The lights were out."

"Oh, there are people who can see quite well in the dark, Maynard," the resident explained, thus quashing her theory of a practical joke by a hospital employe. "Of course he may have been lurking around the grounds for some time before the lights went out."

"A fine night to lurk," Doctor Hallock said and for some reason Sally felt better.

"We'll get the police in on the case and without doubt it will be straightened out in a matter of hours," Doctor Willoughby said with conviction.

And now morning came on apace—a gray wet down—and at seven o'clock Sally and Margaret welcomed their relief. At breakfast neither mentioned their experience of the night before and after the meal they went up to their rooms in the Annex and to bed.

Even though the hour was approaching midnight there was nothing especially weird or disturbing about the receiving room tonight. Sally Maynard stood before a window that faced the valley in which Lintonville slumbered .It glowed softly beneath a brilliant moon and myriad stars. Cars and trucks passed the hospital slid silently down the long hill to the city and disappeared for a space to be seen later ascending the winding incline on the opposite side. The sight always fascinated Sally. She loved to watch those speeding monsters on their journey into the unknown.

"I don't supose we shall ever know who that stranger was," Margaret Adams said almost regretfully now that time had subdued her terror of two nights ago, "I wonder who he was and what it's all about."

Sally turned from the window and shook her head. "I still think he's someone local—perhaps the front..this end of the gang of thieves. Oh well anyway I'm glad they discovered that boy's family—or those who are acting in his family's place. The police made short work of that affair, didn't they?"

"A refugee," Margaret mused. "No wonder the English have the idea the United States is peopled almost entirely with thugs and Indians. But just the same, Sally I can't understand why his guardians were so ready to believe him a thief."

"As I heard the story," Sally said, "Dean was homesick—had been for months. He has wanted to go back to England. He was so determined, that his foster father has worried for fear he might even run away, so a week or more ago when he failed to appear at breakfast one morning, they thought he may have started perhaps, for Canada. Mr. Winston got in touch with the authorities and the border was watched, also all ports of embarkation. He felt that Dean was just the lad to try to stow away in some outgoing ship. It wasn't until several days passed that the robbery was discovered. So, if they did believe Dean guilty, it wasn't for very long. I'm glad he's coming along so nicely. They are taking him home as soon as he can be moved I went in to see him this afternoon. He's a grand youngster."

"So Willoughby was right," Margaret said thoughtfully, more interested in the perpetrators than the victim. "That was the first time I was ever in a police station and the only time I've ever been questioned. Scared me to death."

"But Sergaent Trimble was very kind Margaret," Sally pointed out. "And do you know I was almost relieved when none of the men who appeared in line proved to be our midnight visitor. They were such an ugly, uninteresting lot. Our caller was at least thoughful and polite—"

"Thoughful, my eye!" Margaret scoffed. "Took ten years from my life. I think I was never so absolutely sunk. But even I, scared as I was at the time, knew none of those thugs parading before us was the mysterious stranger. I hope to heaven I never do see him. There was something sinister about him—linky and—and—well, sinister."

Sally laughed. "I can see you're not at all intrigued by mysteries," she said. "Well, I am and I hope I find that voice if only to clarify my curiosity."

"They got all the loot back, didn't they?" Margaret asked. "They had plenty of time to get rid of it, seems to me."

"It was too 'hot' or they thought it was," Doctor Willoughby explained as he joined them. "After all, there was merely a lapse of a week from the time of the robbery and abduction to their capture. Already Dean is begining to accept therole of hero. You know they took him along because he discovered them in the act? That kid actually tried to capture those three ruffians single-handed. Great boy!"

"But how did he get so completely smashed up, Doctor?" Margaret wanted to know. "I've heard just scraps of the story but no one has explained that part to me. They didn't abuse him?"

"That happened on the night he was brought here. He had been kept a prisoner in some sort of shack near Lintonville and managed to escape. The discovered his absence and tracked him down some five miles out the river Turnpike. They swear he was lying in the road when they found him. That's their story and they all agree on it. The two men who brought him here declare they had nothing to do with it—that they were merely members of the searching party and didn't even know the other three. I don't know——I—can't believe they are entirely innocent. And, what is more, neither does Sargeant Trimble ."

"Then the case isn't settled?" Sally asked. "I have been wondering. It didn't seem to me the police could be so gulible."

"Don't worry. They'll ferret it out," the resident assured her with quiet confidence.

The resident stifled a yawn and threw back his shoulders. "Seems sort of quiet tonight after what we've been enduring here this week or two."

The ringing of the ambulance bell, followed by the eerie shriek of the siren as it reached the street, came in direct refutation of Doctor Willoughby's placid statement.

"I spoke too soon," he acknowledged, peering after the ambulance tail light until it was hidden from sight. He turned to the room where the two nurses were already on the alert. "Let us hope it's not an accident."

"Probably not," Sally smiled. "More than likely an appendectomy. We've had a lot of them lately. Isn't it queer how such things seem to run in spells like chickenpox and whooping cough? We'll have perhaps a dozen or more appendectomies within the space of three or four days and not another for weeks. The same with accidents. You've noticed it, haven't you, Doctor?"

"Superstition," the Doctor smiled, but Sally knew he had noticed it because she had heard him mention it to the chief.

Doctor Hallock entered and consulted with the resident for a few minutes after which the older doctor left the room. The interne remained. Almost at once ambulance returned followed by a big limousine. Both cars stopped before the door which Hallock opened and watched while an extremely fat Negress was eased from the ambulance and carried with some difficulty into the room From the car behind stepped a slim girl in evening dress, a velvet and ermine wrap about her shoulders.

"I am Angela Hutchison and this is my cook, Mrs. Prunella Brown. She appears to be suffering and I was unable to get a doctor at this hour so sent for the ambulance to bring her here. Give her a private room and special nurses if she needs them. I want you to take care of her and see that she has every comfort and attention. You may send your bill to my address. Good evening and thank you."

Sally stepped forward. "Will you please answer a few questions Miss or is it Mrs. Hutchison?"

"It is Mrs.—of course. I thought you knew. What is it you want me to tell you?" It was said arrogantly. She spoke as if to a rather dumb and presuming underling. Sally stiffened.

"It is customary to know something about the patients who come here, Mrs. Hutchison," she said coolly. Margaret was doing the usual things, recording temperature, pulse and respiration. Sally poised her fountain pen above a card and read the questions as they appeared there.

"Prunella has been married so many times even she can't remember. She is somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty, It think, though I'm not at all sure. She doesn't know herself. She has been with me since I was born. I suppose she is Protestant—anyway, she goes to the Negro over in the Hollow. That is Protestant, isn't is? If she has any children living they are scattered and never bother her. Is that all? Of course I am to be notified as to her condition from time to time and in case of death you may take the usual steps and send whatever bills there may be to my address. I think that covers the situation. And now good night."

The patient groaned and Sally wondered if she had heard the cool and, to her, calous recital by her mistress. Doctor Hallock was watching the visitor, a strange look on his pleasant face. He followed her to the door and stood while the chauffeur helped her into the car. Then he turned to find Sally glaring at him angrily.

"So that's the glamorous Angela Hutchison," he said as he closed the door. "Well, Prunella won't get any private room, my lady. We have none vacant. There's a vacant bed in K and she'll have to be satisfied with that. I wish you were back in K, Maynard. An old Mammy like Prunella is your dish. Personally, I don't think there's much the matter with her. Temper, partly, and overeating. You sensed that didn't you, Maggie? I've an idea she's punishing her 'chile' for something. Wasn't there talk of the Hutchisons separating, Sally?"

"I'm sure I wouldn't know," Sally said coldly. "I don't listen to gossip."

"Good gal!" the young man applauded unperturbed.

The stretcher departed and the young man followed it. The girls looked at each other for a long wordless moment.

"Of all the heartless exhibitions I ever witnessed that takes the prize," Margaret exclaimed. "That poor creature heard every word she said."

"And I think she intended that she should," Sally agreed. "I don't care for Mrs. Angela Hutchison, Maggie."

"Nor I. I don't care for her type—never did. Selfish, heartless gimme gals—every one of 'em. Seems to me, though, our Doctor Hallock was quite impressed. Didn't it strike you that way, Sally?"

"I didn't notice," Sally replied, She had noticed and resented it.

'QUAKE OFF ALASKA

Washington, Nov. 1 —(AP)— A "very strong" earthquake, apparently in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska, was reported today by Georgetown University.

Rev. Edward R. Powers, Seismologist, said the disturbance began at 6:25:06 A. M. E. S. T., reached a maximum intensity at 6:58 A. M., and still was being recorded at 7 A. M. Father Powers calculated it occurred 4,300 miles northwest of Washington and said this placed it in the Aleutians.

5 Crewmen Escape As 90-Ton Vessel Explodes

Steveston, B.C., Nov. 2. (CP) —Five crew members of the 72-foot fishpacker Ribac narrowly escaped death late last night when the 90-ton vessel exploded while fueling at this Fraser River port and sank within five minutes.

The crew, under command of Capt. Paul Bastion, jumped to safety but one member who was in the engine room almost was trapped when the packer caught fire and settled quickly. He escaped over the side just a minute before the packer went down in 20 feet of water.

SHOT BY GERMAN HE PURSUED

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—An Eighth Avenue liquor store proprietor was shot fatally last night by one of three gunmen he pursued after they held up his shop, police reported. The retailer, Arthur Match, 36, of Jamica, Queens, chased the trio about 25 feet down Eighth Avenue when one of them turned and fired. Police said the gunmen emptied the cash register of "several hundred dollars."

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP) — That sandy-haired, serious young student who graduated from Nova Scotia's Acadia University backs in 1913 with ambitions of becoming a lawyer is returning there in a couple of weeks to deliver the Founder's Day address.

The student's name was Ilsley—James Lorimer Ilsley. Nowadays there's a new prefix to the name in the title "Right Honorable" which indicates membership in the King's Privy Council and came in the King's Birthday Honors List last June as a richly-deserved reward for his work as Canada's wartime finance minister.

Through the years Mr. Ilsley has retained a fondness for the Wolfville, N.S., University, which conferred an honorary degree upon him some years ago, and he was particularly touched when the invitation came to deliver the Founder's Day address Nov. 15.

Very likely it was an honor which, in his quiet modest way, he hadn't expected. It was the same when his appointment to the Privy Council was announced. He was said to have confided that it was something he hadn't even thought of.

At Acadia he gave all his time to studies and neglected athletics, finally deciding to become a lawyer. He went to Dalhousie law school in Halifax, then entered a law partnership.

Urged by Liberal party officials to enter politics in 1925, he declined but accepted the following year and won what now is known as the riding of Digby-Annapolis-Kings by 80 votes. He has been in the House ever since.

He imposed income and other taxation scarcely imagined before the war and regulated almost every form of economic activity. In return, he became a target of all attacks from all political parties but he patiently maintained the course which he thought best if Canada was to emerge from the war economically sound.

There have been reports that Mr. Ilsley would like to quit politics, return to his law practice.

But now, refreshed after a bushman's holiday overseas this summer attending the U.N.R.R.A. conference and visiting Britain, he is believed to be ready to carry on at least through another session of parliament.

Indian Modernised Education

New Delhi (CP)—During the next 10 years the government of Bombay will establish compulsory, elementary education throughout the province, and will also launch a drive to remove adult illiteracy. Visual education, particularly film education, is an integral part of the scheme together with the maintenance of a large number of libraries.

Conservatives To Run Candidate In By-election

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP) — John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said Friday his party will be "in the fight" in the Federal by-election in Richelieu-Vercheres riding next month despite the "temporary handicap" of lack of organization in that constituency.

Mr. Bracken, a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly, came to Ottawa for a weekend visit. He will return to New York Monday.

The Richelieu-Vercheres riding was made vacant by the death of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Independent member and former cabinet minister. The by-election will be held Dec. 23.

"Sorel has been Liberal for 50 years and there is the temporary handicap that we have no semblance of organization there yet," said Mr. Bracken. "But we are a National party and we will be in the fight."

The controversial United Nations big-power veto would likely remain in force, he said.

"The majority of the nations are against the veto. There will be a debate on it and in all probability it will remain. How long only time will tell."

The assurance all nations wanted was that there would be international inspection to assure that none remained armed while others disarmed.

Mr. Bracken said his recent New York statement that he believed Solon Low, Social Credit leader, should be a member of the Canadian U N. delegation "was not intended to be controversial."

He parried the question of whether he believed all Canadian parties should be represented with the remark that with no Social Credit delegate "almost an entire province"—Alberta—was not represented at New York.

Deer Hunters Get Ready for Season

Toronto, Nov. 2 —(CP)—Deer hunters are moving into camps in the areas immediately south of Ontario's French and Mattawa Rivers to prepare for the deer season which opens Monday, Nov. 4, and ends Nov. 19.

Districts to which this season applies are Parry Sound, Muskoka, Haliburton, Ontario (North of the including Thorah Township), Victoria, Peterboro and part of the Nipissing lying south of the Mattawa River and north and west of Algonquin Park.

There will be no season for moose this year.

Districts in which deer season opens Nov. 11 and closes Nov.26 include Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac (except Howe Island), Renfrew, Lanark, Carleton (west of Rideap River), Prescott and Russel (except for twonship of Cambridge).

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and ma said to pop, What time do you expect to get home, William, is this going to be one of your early Saturdays?

I don't think so pop said, and ma said, That's too bad. Shirley Mansions is coming to see me this afternoon. I still call her Shirley Mansions, although of course she's had a married name for a good many years. We're going to werk out the final details for the class reunion. Well, it's too bad you wont see her, William, you always had a soft spot for Shirley, ma said.

What gives you that idea? pop said. She ha da soft spot for herself, and it was in her head. She was just a silly gerl like all the others, he said, and ma said, Oh you dont say so, including me, I suppose?

No, excluding you, my dear, pop said. You were the only silly gerl who was different from the others, he said, and ma said, Thanks for the backward compliment, I'm sure.

Of course I might make a special effort and break off erly today, pop said. It might be amusing to see how Shirley has held up after all these years, he said, and ma said, Now William, I know what that means. It means you'll come in and plump yourself down with your airs and graces and spoil our business meeting. Besides, Shirley has practically ruined her looks with the extreme way she's touched up her hair in a pitifill attempt to recapture her lost youth, and I wouldn't want you to make a special effort, as you call it, only to be disappointed, she said.

It's a womens werld, maybe I'll be late for dinner, pop said. If you show Shirley my picture, show her one of the erly ones when I still had hair. That'll give her a jelliss twinge, he said, and ma said, I'm not intristed, I'm sure.

Being the end of the subject.

Labor Party Gains In Municipal Elections in U.K.

London, Nov. 2. (CP)— The powerful Labor Party scored sweeping gains in yesterday's municipal Council elections, building up local control almost to match parliamentary strength.

The once-dominant Conservative Party held its own, but Communists, Liberals and Independents all lost, moving Britain apparently much nearer a clear cut two-party system.

The big losers were the Independents, whom Labor Party leaders had termed "Conservatives in disguise" in most cases. Labor had called for the election of its candidates to the borough councils so that cities and towns could better carry out National policies.

Mid-morning returns from all but a handful of the 360 cities and towns voting showed that Labor had made a net gain of 138 council seats and Conservatives a net gain of four while net losses had run to 19 for the Liberals, six for the Communists and 117 for the independents.

Seats gained and lost numbered, respectively, 230 and 92 for Labor, 131 and 127 for the Conservatives, 16 and 35 for the Liberals, none and six for the Communists and 60 and 177 for the Independents.

"What You Don't Know - - - doesn't hurt you." So goes the old adage. BUT IT DOES HURT—and badly—especially when dealing with YOUR eyes.

Ocular disabilities and troubles are insidious. Strain reactions may be slow in coming, yet serious none the less. The arrival of symptoms generally indicate advanced stages of strain.

The only intelligent way to be sure that eyes are performing as they should, without undue strain and waste of precious nervous energy, is to have a complete examination made by skilled and competent hands.

CANADIANS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Robert Burd, 18, (left), of Crystal Beach, Ont., and John Hocking, 17, of Fort Erie, Ont., are charged with murder and robbery in the hold-up slaying of John Graf, Buffalo, cigar store clerk. The robbery netted the two high school students $125.

Third Youth Admits Share In Holdup Slaying

Police to Probe Statements About Unsolved Crimes

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4 — (AP) — Police, continuing their investigation of a series of armed robberies in this area following the arrest of two Canadian youths for the holdup slaying of a cigar store clerk, announced today the arrest of a third.

William T. Fitzgibbons, acting detective chief, said the arrest solved the Oct. 19 holdup and assault of Gerald Goldsman, 32, in his jewelry store in downtown Buffalo.

Detective John J. Foy, Sr., said a 17-year-old Fort Erie, Ont., youth had admitted in a signed statement that he had participated in the Goldsman holdup with Robert Burd, 18, Crystal Beach, Ont., now held in the Erie county jail pending Grand Jury action on a first degree murder charge. He added that Burd also had admitted the crime. Foy said that no charges have been filed yet against the other youth.

Burd and John W. Hocking, 17, Fort Erie, were charged with first degree murder in the Friday night holdup shooting of John William Graf, 60-year-old cigar store clerk.

Foy said Goldsman was knocked over the head by the youths who then took $63 in cash and about $200 worth of jewelry.

Foy and several detectives, after questioning Burd and Hocking, found two revolvers and a supply of ammunition cached in the girders of the Peace Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie. Two more pistols and some ammunition were discovered under some rocks about 500 yards north of the bridge.

Most of the weapons, said Foy, were stolen last week from a window display in a Fort Erie drug store. Two others, he reported, were taken in a burglary of the Crystal Beach police headquarters.

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Ontario police said today they are investigating statements reported to have been made by three Canadian youths held in Buffalo, N. Y., concerning unsolved Canadian crimes.

Robert Burd, 18, Crystal Beach, Ont., and John Hocking, 17, Fort Erie, Ont., are charged with the murder of a cigar store clerk in a holdup and an unnamed youth is held.

Inspector Charles Wood of the Provincial Police who was assigned to unsolved slaying of Mrs. Ella Hannigan in her roadside stand near Hamilton in July, has left for Buffalo to question the youths.

In Buffalo acting Detective Chief William Fitzgibbons was reported to have said the youths made certain statements concerning Mrs. Hannigan's death. These are reported to involve two Hamilton youths.

A large sum of money Mrs. Hannigan was reported to have in her possession was missing after her killing.

Toronto, Nov. 4 —(CP)— Synopsis: For the past few days interaction between warm air from off the Gulf of Mexico and cooler air of Pacific origin has caused intermittent rain over the Lower Lakes region and southern Quebec. Drier air from west of Lake Michigan is moving into Southern Ontario today and the rain area will be displaced southward, cold air of polar origin has spread over Manitoba and in to the western part of James Bay region and is expected to move into most of Northern Ontario region today. In Southern Ontario and Alberta and over the western plains of the United States, the weather continues generally clear and cool.

MINISTERS MAKE START TO SETTLE GERMANY'S FUTURE

Will Put Into Shape Peace Treaties For Italy, Finland, Hungary Romania and Bulgaria

New York, Nov. 4 (AP) — Around an oval white pine table high in a skyscraper hotel, the Big Four Foreign Ministers meet today to tackle the last great issues blocking the peace of eastern Europe and to try, if they can, to make a start on settling the future of Germany.

Foreign Secretary Bevin, State Secretary Byrnes, Foreign Minister Molotov and Couve De Murville, Deputy Foreign Minister of France agreed to open their sessions at 4 p.m. E.S.T.

The United Nations Assembly, now operating through committees rather than in formal sessions, already was knee-deep in such problems as what to do about Franco Spain and how to handle vigorous small-power attacks on the veto system. Both these issues seemed certain to have high priorities on the Assembly's 65-item agenda.

Trieste—It has been agreed that the strategic Adriatic port, claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia, should be placed under the United Nations Security Council. Yugoslavia has held out for a lax control, presumably hoping to take over the port eventually, and has said she would refuse to sign the Italian peace treaty as now drawn.

A possible break in this situation as indicated last night when Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler said here that his country "is willing to do whatever she can in order that an agreement between the Allies he reached" on the Italian treaty.

Danube navigation — By the now famous votes of 15 to 6, with Russia in the minority, the Paris conference wrote into the Romanian, Hungarian and Bulgarian treaties clauses for freedom of navigation on the Danube, whose 4,000,000-ton a year pre-war traffice flow now is dried up.

Bulgarian frontier— Russia and the other Slav states sought unsuccessfully at Paris to have Western Thrace taken from Greece and awarded to Bulgaria. The border issue is intensified by the fact that the frontier lies not only between the two Balkan States but also between the Russian and western spheres of influence.

In their meetings here the Foreign Ministers can write their own tickets on the peace treaties despite the decisions at Paris, which were only advisory.

Georges Bidault, French President and Foreign Minister, may come to New York later to replace M. Couve De Murville.

At Paris it was agreed that during the Foreign Ministers' meetings in New York the German treaty question would be taken up about Nov. 20 and the western powers' representatives are known to be counting on this. The satellite treaties, if they are not concluded by that time, might be put aside for a time while Germany was discussed.

Railway Ticket, Dated Sept. 1898, Honored on Train

New York, Nov. 4—(AP)— An elderly woman handed a New Haven railroad conductor a ticket on boarding a train at New Rochelle, N.Y., and offered the explanation that "I didn't buy it today."

The conductor agreed. It was dated September, 1898.

He honored the ticket, however, because at the time of the purchase there were no time limits for its usage.

Charges 'Black Market' in Babies Of Unmarried Mothers for Adoption

Windsor, Nov. 4 (CP)— A "black market in babies" in which Canadian children of unmarried mothers are bought and then taken across the border for adoption by United States citizens was charged today by Roy J. Bondy, Superintendent of the Roman Catholic Children's Aid Society here.

Mr. Bondy told the Western Ontario Regional Conference of the Society that there was "nothing in present federal or immigration laws," to halt the traffic.

Mr. Bondy said the practice of taking children for a price was widespread in the United States and "I have information from a very good source which I am not permitted to reveal that this practice is going on here."

He said that a child under present laws may be legally taken across the border, with a slip of paper from its natural mother to the effect that she gives it up.

Labor Makes Extensive Gains in U. K. Elections

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, ov. 4 (CP Cable) —Labor supporters drew a sigh of relief today as final figures showed their party's extensive gains in last week's borough elections in England and Wales.

They were reassured that the party holds its popularity despite continued rationing, foreign policy differences, housing shortages and other difficulties and controversies.

Strangely enough the Conservatives also were comforted although their actual gains in council seats were only four compared with Labor's 159. But because Independents lost 138 seats and the Liberals 20, it appeared that more of such candidates and their votes would come under the Conservative banner next time.

Even in Friday's voting there were indications that all groups opposed to Labor tend to come under Conservative guidance. Both Labor and the Conservatives cheered the Communist party's disaster—only one Communist was elected from 223 candidates.

Despite the vote there was obvious impatience with the continuation of austerity conditions as export markets take most of nonessentials which Britain would like to buy. It appears there is a tendency to blame individual minister for individual woes and "austerity cripps" (Sir Stafford Cripps, President of the Board of Trade), who does not object to the role, often is blamed for bare shelves.

By common consent of all parties, Prime Minister Attlee's personal prestige is higher than when he took office. This is not true of other ministers and the Labor Party remembers the painful case of Sir Ben Smith, the Food Minister who lost public confidence and had to leave.

All of these complaints leave Mr. Tttlee alone. His quiet, unobtrusive methods, his often conciliatory policy with the opposition, appear to be more effective for the long pull than the blustering methods of colleagues such as Health Minister Bevan.

FULL-SCALE DRIVE AGAINST REDS IN SHANTING BEGUN

Offensive Against Cheffoo Becomes Campaign for Entire Province

By TOM MASTERSON

Peiping, Nov. 4 — (AP)—The government's offensive against Chefoo exploded today into a full-scale campaign for the entire Shantung province, while across the Gulf of Chihli the Nationalists swiftly were squeezing the Communist Army out of the Liaotung Peninsula.

As government troops continued their assault on Chefoo, the Communists' principal port in Shantung, other armies launched a campaign against the Tsingtao-Tsinan railroad, 120 miles south. Government sources said the Nationalists captured Pingtu, 54 miles north of Tsingtao.

Simultaneously, Communist reinforcements from northern Kiangsu province began moving into Shantung, and fighting was reported at several places along their route.

A separate government offensive had moved quietly down Manchuria's Liaotung Peninsula to within 30 miles of Russian-held Dairen, and was awaiting Soviet permission to enter that port. Dairen, one possible northern terminus of the Chinese Communists' Liaotung-Shantung sea lane, is only 85 miles from the nearest Shantung shore.

In the Shantung fighting, national troops reported the capture of Yehsien, 85 airline miles southwest of embattled Chefoo and were meeting fresh Communist assaults at points as much as 40 miles beyond Yehsien. Other government units were reported battling for Weihaiwei, some 40 miles east of Chefoo.

Chefoo itself, the Communist Shantung port, was hit by amphibious forces from the sea and fighting inside the city was continuing, the last government reports said. Government sources acknowledged, however, that a land thrust toward Chefoo from the south had stalled on the outskirts of the port.

Radar Being Used To Find Oil

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 4.—(Reuters)—Radar is being used by some of the world's largest oil companies, now preparing to sink their first test hole here in a new search for oil.

Hitler was at the peak of his power when the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, realizing Britain's need to control more oil within the Empire, selected the Bahamas for a search for new oil.

The Bahamas parliament excluded the island of New Providence, which is to be reserved as a tourist resort.

Activity since has been concentrated on Andros Island and areas nearest the Florida Coast. Many geologists believe that Andros Island is the oldest part of the Bahamas and that it probably formed a part of the North American continent millions of years ago.

Some oil companies believe there may be a connecting link between the small supply of low-grade oil found in Florida and the small supply of high-grade oil found in Cuba.

DOMINIONS WILL HAVE REGIONAL DEFENCE SYSTEMS

New Commonwealth Era Will Lessen Burden on United Kingdom

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4 — (CP Cable) — Whitehall sources today visualized the opening of a new era in Commonwealth defence, with the Dominions developing regional defence systems and the United Kingdom looking forward to some lessening of her burdens.

A. V. Alexander, defence minister-designate under the government's new military plans, said last week in the House of Commons defence debate that the United Kingdom seeks forces sufficient to hold "a situation" anywhere in the Commonwealth or Empire until United Nations aid could be obtained.

Significance was seen in the fact that Mr. Alexander spoke only for the United Kingdom, indicating that the Dominions can act as they please; but no one in London doubts that the Dominions and the United Kingdom will see eye to eye in any situation that now can be imagined.

1. Britain will proceed with development of a central organization under Mr. Alexander, recognizing her duty to protect colonial territories on all the seas and to provide her due share to United Nations armed strength.

2. The Dominions will provide regional systems wide enough to cover arrangements like Canadian-United States joint defence plans. Another instance of regional planning will be joint Australian-New Zealand defence co-ordination.

Use Liaison Officers

3. Liaison officers sent by the Dominions to London, from London to the Dominions, and exchanged by the Dominions themselves, will keep in touch with defence arrangements in countries where they are stationed.

4. While developing a hard-hitting, modernized force which might be used anywhere in the world, Britain is not likely to be able to continue over-all protection of trade routes with British warships on every sea lane.

Canadian ships are expected to patrol the North Atlantic and North Pacific while Australian ships probably will operate in the Indian Ocean and the Southern Pacific. Home waters and the Mediterranean probably will continue to be watched by the British fleet and by British aircraft.

Scientific developments in defence will not be secrets within the Commonwealth. Standardization of many weapons with the United States will facilitate association with that country.

Ruled Out.

Centralized defence machinery was ruled out definitely at last Spring's conference of Commonwealth prime ministers. The British attitude now is that regional developments leaving Dominions free to make their own defence decisions ultimately will prove most effective.

Between wars in the past, the Dominions were apt to leave general defence to Britain but it now is obvious they will make a greater contribution to general security in organizing regional defence and thus reducing the scope of Britain's responsibilities.

Brig. Howard Douglas Graham, 48, of Trenton, Ont., will head the Canadian army liaison section in London. He is the first appointment made by the Dominions under the new arrangement.

REPUBLICANS MAY CONTROL HOUSE AFTER ELECTION

Need Only 26 House Seats and Ten Senate Seats to Put Party In the Saddle

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 4 (CP) — An estimated 35,000,000 to 60,000,000 qualified American voters are expected to cast their ballots in tomorrow's off-year elections for the 435 seats in the House of Representatives, 32 of the 96 Senate seats, 34 Governorships and a long list of state and municipal offices.

Majority guessing gave the Republican Party a good chance of making the small gains necessary to gain control of Congress for the first time since 1930.

President Truman was at home to vote in Independence, Mo., facing the possibility of having to get on for the next two years with a Republican Congress.

It also was likely the Republican nominee to oppose the President in 1948 may be decided in tomorrow's voting in which such Presidential timber as Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York who lost to Franklin Roosevelt in 1944, and John W. Bricker, losing Vice-Presidential candidate in the same election, are facing tests at the polls.

Gov. Dewey, almost a certainty for re-election, evidently hopes to beat the Republican tradition against re-nominating for President a one-time loser.

In the Senate a majority is 49 seats and the Republicans already hold 39. In the House of 435 members a majority is 218 and the Republicans now hold 192.

Thus a gain of only 10 Senate seats and 26 House seats would put the grand old party in the saddle and enlarge its hopes to elect a President for the first time in five tries, in 1948.

34 Governors To Be Elected

Governors are being elected in 34 States and the high commands of both parties are watching the results for possible indications of what they will have to work with in 1948.

There is a fairly well established split in the G. O. P. as between the old timers who favor such conservative thinkers as Gov. Dewey, John Bricker and Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, and the more liberal group likely to rally around Harold Stasse, former governor of Minnesota and 38-year-old naval combat officer, who is campaigning openly for the 1948 nomination.

The nomination will be fought over by Gov. Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren of California who is sure of re-election tomorrow because he has the nomination of both Republican and Democratic conventions.

Can Pin Hopes On Lausch

The Democrats if President Truman does not choose to run in 1948, may pin their hopes on Gov. Frank J. Lausch of Ohio if he wins re-election tomorrow.

American elections are complicated affairs. In New York State for instance, there will be 160 names on each ballot for 62 offices ranging down from governor, lieutenant governor, comptroller, attorney -general, United States Senate, House, Judgeships, and State Legislature.

But the visible evidences seemed to give the republicans greater hopes for success and national Chairman Carroll Reece forecast a gain of 49 house seats which would provide a comfortable majority, and at least enough gains to control the Senate.

Knife, Club Fight By Jews, Arabs Brings Death to 5

Tension at High Pitch In Northern Palestine

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Nov. 4 (AP)—Police reported tension at high pitch in northern Palestine today but said there had been no repetition of the Arab-Jewish clash which brought death to five persons yesterday. Twenty-seven persons or more were hurt in this and other disorders.

Three Arabs were killed, while two Jews were slain and nine wounded in a knife-and-club fight over land ownership at a new Jewish settlement near Lake Hula, source of the river Jordan near the country's northern borders. Feeling was reported running high on both sides today in such cities as Tiberius on the sea of Galilee, south of Lake Ula.

Elsewhere in Palestine, quiet prevailed generally as Moslems celebrated the feast of Aladha with the sacrifice of hundreds of sheep and lambs. The practice commemorates Abraham's sacrifce of a lamb after first offering his son, Isaac, as a sacrifice.

A small mine exploded under a train at Battir near Jerusalem early today but did no damage. Another mine was found on the tracks nearby and removed.

Reports spread through Jerusalem that another refugee ship had been sighted by Royal Air Force planes off the Palestine coast, but they lacked official confirmation.

Three trainmen were injured severely last night when mines, evidently set off by electricity, derailed the locomotive and six cars of a freight train near Ras El Ain, north of the Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

14 Soldiers Injured

Fourteen or more British soldiers were injured Saturday and yesterday when military vehicles hit mines or wire obstacles in different parts of Palestine, bringing the week's military casualty list to five dead and 41 wounded.

The Arab-Jewish battle was the costliest in lives since the late 1930's. The government said Arabs from a nearby village came to the Jewish settlement and charged the Jews with plowing Arab-owned land. One of the slain Jews fas a a settlement policeman. One gun was brought into play during the fight, police said, but did not figure in the casualties.

A Jewish agency leader said the disputed land belonged to the Jewish National Fund and blamed the clash on "political incitement by Arab leaders."

Dr. Hussein F. Khalidi, Secretary of the Arab higher executive, said he was amazed that the incident 'did not spread into a nation-wide uprising."

"The very manner in which the Jews are pompously establishing these new settlements," he added, "is in itself an incitement to violence."

Palestine Jews staged a general strike yesterday to protest British deportations to Cyprus of Jews seeking to enter Palestine.

More than 6,000 Jews are held in detention camps on the island. A British communique issued yesterday at Nicosia, Cyprus, said that two Jews had been wounded Saturday by guards who fired to drive back a group breaking out through a fence at the Caraolos camp.

NO EMBALMING FLUID

Seattle, Nov. 4 — (AP) — A letter reporting there is no embalming fluid and only one casket remaining in Ketchikan, Alaska, because of the shipping strike, was received here by Robert D. Seal, business manager of the Alaska Fisherman's Almanac. Seal, a Ketchikan resident, is visiting in Seattle.

Ms. Ballard Hadman, editor of thte Almanac wrote that the situation has become critical and the proprietor of the only Ketchikan mortuary, is "frankly worried."

WINS NOBEL PRIZE

Prof. Herman J. Muller, who has been awarded the Nobel prize in medicine and physiology for 1946. Dr. Muller, geneticist and member of the faculty of Indiana University at Bloomington, Indiana, was given the award for his discoveries regarding hereditary changes or mutations produced by x-rays striking genes and chromosomes. His experiments would seem to indicate that atom bomb rays — very similar to those which he used in his experiments — might alter future races of mankind.

Nurse Convicted Of Involuntary Manslaughter

Las Vegas, Nev., Nov. 4 (AP)— Bridget Waters, dark-haired Irish nurse who shot and killed her estranged husband Sept. 2, was free on $5,000 bond today while Judge A. S. Henderson pondered the sentence he will impose Wednesday on her conviction of involuntary manslaughter.

Nevada law provides for one to five years in prison, a fine up to $1,000, or both fine and prison sentence. The state had asked for a verdict of first degree murder that would have carried the death sentence.

The jury recommended that Mrs. Waters eventually be deported, inasmuch as she is a British subject. Her 18-month-old son by the slain Frank Waters, may create a "conflict of laws between the British and American governments that might have to be decided in a federal court," the judge said.

The boy is technically a British subject, but the United States government could claim him because he was born of a civilian employee of the United States stationed abroad. The child was wounded lightly by the bullet which killed his father.

The 26-year-old war bride received the verdict calmly, told newspapermen she had received a fair trial.

"I'm glad it's over," she said. "I hope to get back to England with my boy as soon as possible."

But her lawyer announced he would file an appeal.

Bridget's defence was that she feared harm to her and the child; that the small pistol she held under a baby blanket was discharged accidentally as her husband came toward her.

Sees Canada's Housing Problem Easing 'Tremendously' Within Year

London, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Officials of the Canadian Construction Association, in conference here, agreed today that Canada's housing problem will ease "tremendously" within a year.

"Stabilization of the labor situation is the big factor," said Albert Deschamps of Montreal, President of the Association and member of the National Labor Relations Board. He added that the increased production of building materials as a result of the reduction in the number of strikes already has made itself felt in the building industry.

A. C. Ross of Ottawa said the building trade has already been able to provide "emergency housing" which will see many through the coming winter.

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE IS LAID AFTER ACCIDENT

Leonard Mischuck, 19, Toronto, narrowly escaped serious injury early Sunday morning when the auto he was driving went out of control as he was passing through the village of Shannonville and skidded 230 feet before going into the ditch and crashing into a concrete culvert. No other vehicle was involved in the accident.

Mischuck was not injured as result of the accident and was taken into custody by Provincial Police Sam Ervine on a charge of careless driving and for driving without a permit. Owner of the auto will be charged with permitting an unlicensed person to drive.

SWERVES VEHICLE TO AVOID CHILD

Swerving his vehicle to avoid striking a child riding a bicycle, John Malcolm, R. R. 8, Belleville, crashed his laundry truck into a fence on Station Street Sunday afternoon smashing off several posts before the truck was brought to a stop. Police investigated the accident with the driver of the truck agreeing to pay the costs of repairing the fence which was opposite the Speigel junk yard.

GREAT FLOCK WILD GEESE OBSERVED

One of the largest flocks of Canada geese ever seen in or over the city settled down briefly near the old rifle butts east of the Belleville General Hospital the other day, according to Byron Lott, who heard the trumpeting of the birds prior to their take-off.

"I have seen flocks in my life", stated Mr. Lott, "but never one this size. It was near evening, and just at dusk they rose and whirling into formation headed in the direction of Prince Edward County and other points south."

Mr. Lott who is in his nineties plans to go deer hunting again this year and maintain his record which covers a large number of years.

DEER SEASON OPENS IN NEIGHBORING AREAS

Deer hunting started in Peterborough and Haliburton counties today, with Hastings nimrods being forced to wait another week before invading the deer haunts of this county. According to reports from residents of the northern sections of the county as well as Haliburton and Peterborough, deer appear to be plentiful.

Hunters, too, will be more numerous this year, as a number of returned veterans were getting ready for the sport they missed during the war years. Hunting licences are showing a marked movement, according to Issuer Ed Thomas.

McINTYRE HOOD WILL BE GUEST SPEAKER AT GET-TOGETHER

Director of Publicity for the Department of Agriculture at Toronto, M. McIntyre Hood will be the guest speaker at a special Hastings County Junior Farmers' get-together which is scheduled for this Friday evening at the Armouries in Madoc village.

Purpose of the get-together is to present trophies, medals and prizes won by boys and girls in the various junior projects conducted throughout Hastings during the year. Parents of the Junior Farmers are especially invited ed to attend the function.

President of the Hastings county junior farmers, Mr. Allen Ketcheson, will act as chairman for the meeting which is scheduled to get underway at eight o'clock, while Mr. George West, Reeve of Madoc village, will officially welcome the guests. Presentation of trophies, medals and prizes won during the year will be under the direction of Mr. H. L. Fair, agricultural representative for Hastings.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS ON NEW BUILDING

Prompt action on the part of a special council committee was seen today when following the go-ahead signal received at a recent council meeting, a start has been made on preparing the foundation for the proposed public lavatory building on the market square. The building will be constructed on square close to the city hall and will cost an estimated $5,000. The building will be constructed above the ground and will have supervisors in attendance when completed.

NEW CARPET LAID AT BELLE THEATRE

A new carpet laid at the Belle Theatre adds considerably to the beauty of that show house. Mr. George Forhan, manager, stated that new carpets were being laid in all the principal theatres of the chain. The carpet is a deep wine in color with a lighter flowered pattern. Many favorable comment have been heard on the added feature.

EDUCATION WEEK BEING OBSERVED

In connection with Education Week throughout Ontario, the Home and School Association of the B.C.I. and V.S. is sponsoring a "Get Together Night" this evening in the auditorium of the Collegiate. Invitations have been sent to members of the Board of Education and to the Teaching Staff, the object being to give the parents and teachers an opportunity of becomng better acquainted, and to discuss problems of common interest to pupils, parents and teachers, and to strengthen an understanding between the home and school.

Entertainment will be provided by the showing of a film, and a chorus of girls under the direction of Mr. W. E. Fletcher, organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Later a social hour will be enjoyed over the tea cups.

Nomination Day Set by Statute Will Be Nov. 22

According to new sections, namely 64 to 72 of the Municipal Act as re-enacted in 1946 statutes, chapter 69, section 14, there must be fourteen days elapse between nominations and election days in municipal elections.

Section 65—(I)—states that the council, may by by-law passed not later in the year than the first day of November, fix the day for the meeting of electors for the nomination of candidates . . . provided that the day fixed for nominations is at least fourteen days prior to the day fixed for polling, and the by-law shall remain in force from year to year until repealed.

Conforming with the new sections of the Municipal Act nomination day for the city of Belleville has been set for November 22, according to City Clerk Wilfred Holmes, with the electors going to the polls on Monday, December 9.

This will give candidates for office at least seventeen days to conduct their campaigns, and should also serve to increase local interest in the elections.

Fortunes Await Missing Heirs

Johannesburg, Nov. —Many thousands of pounds are lying in South Africa awaiting the discovery of missing heirs, many of whom are probably in distant parts of the world. These sums of money amount to fortunes in some cases—and a few pence in others.

The money comes from deceased estates and other sources and has been placed in the Guardian's Fund by private individuals, business houses, mining companies and even the Durban Penny Bank. There is nearly £8,000 ($32,000) awaiting the unknown heirs of a man named George H. Althya: and more than £4,000 waiting to be claimed by the unknown heirs of Lawrence M. Smith. There are also many individual sums of more than £2,000.

Some of the beneficiaries under the Penny Bank Deposits, however, are likely to be disappointed as in the case of L. M. R. Bricourt. If this person puts in a claim, the answer will be: "Dear Sir; We have pleasure in

TB Control Work Most Ambitious Planned by Shriners—D.L. Storey

The 1946 tuberculosis Christmas Seal campaign, both locally and nationally, is to be strongly supported by all available publicity media.

Assurance of this was given this morning by Mr. D. L. Storey.

"No appropriate opportunity will be missed," said Mr. Storey "to impress upon our fellow citizens the unprecedented need of supporting this year's Christmas Seal sale to the utmost of their financial ability. Tuberculosis control work for 1947 is to be the most ambitious ever undertaken both locally and nationally and to assure its success, money is more urgently needed than ever before."

Mr. Storey said that plans for the new year call for extension of mass X-ray surveys, diagnostic clinics, nursing services and health education. He said all these projects, vital to tuberculosis prevention and control, were expensive undertakings but that their cost can be "underwritten to a large extent by the public's purchases of Christmas seals."

Tuberculosis, Mr. Storey stated, is seventh cause of all deaths in Canada, more than 5,000 having been killed in this country by the disease during the past 12 months. "Had diagnosis been made of these people when the disease was in its early stages, and had treatment been provided at once, most, if not all, of these lives could have been saved. It is tragic to think that so many of our finest citizens are dying every day from a disease that not only can be cured, but can be prevented and even, in time, eliminated entirely," he said.

The 1946 Christmas Seal Campaign, which is sponsored locally by the Belleville Shrine Club, will provide funds for T.B. casefinding in this community and surrounding district. The Ontario Intelligencer, Radio Station CJBQ, Board of Trade, Ministerial Association, individual merchants and service clubs already have given assurance of their cooperation toward making the local Seal sale an outstanding success.

Teachers' Federation To Broadcast Tonight

In connection with Education Week, which for the next seven days is being sponsored by the Ontario Teachers' Federation, the Belleville branch of the above organization will stage a half hour broadcast over station CJBQ this evening from nine-thirty until ten o'clock.

The specific aim of Education Week will be to publicize the efforts of schools in moulding and developing pupils into young Canadian citizens. Co-operations of service clubs, the clergy, home and school associations, industries and merchants will be asked to give the program the utmost publicity.

Every phase of school activity ranging from general class study to hobby crafts, sports, and health measures will be covered in national radio programs and in special articles in the press and in magazines.

Sunday evening at Tabernacle United Church Rev. J. W. Houston drew attention to the opening of Education Week presenting a special sermon on the part which education takes in the school of life. The theme of Education Week program is further carried out by a window display at the Canadian Department Store on Front Street.

Theft of an auto is a fairly common occurrence, but when it comes to stealing a circus truck loaded with wild animals and other show paraphernalia, it is something else again.

But according to information received by local police over the weekend, it was the theft of just such a truck which early Saturday morning caused considerable excitement on Dundas Street near Bleecker Ave., when a circus truck crashed into a tree and strewed animal cages along the street after breaking off a fire hydrant. Driver of the truck disappeared following the accident and Saturday afternoon police learned the truck had been stolen in Napanee the night previously.

City Dog Catcher Thomas Thorne was called upon to act as pinch hitter in the role of animal feeder and over the weekend fed the bears, coons, monkeys and dogs as well as the ant-eater and wild cat which comprised the truck load.

"I'd rather do three days' work than to look after that bunch of animals for one day," stated Mr. Thorne following his weekend joust at feeding the animals.

Acording to police owners of the circus had stopped on Friday at Napanee intending to stay the night. When the truck load of animals disappeared it was thought that circus employees had been responsible.

Tweed Man Loses $300 in Phone Booth, Recovers it Hours Later

Following his experience of Saturday evening, Mr. Murney Hall of Tweed is undecided whether to kick himself for his own carelessness or whether to congratulate himself on his good fortune. At least he is $300 richer than he might have been.

At nine thirty Saturday evening Mr. Hall visited the local police station and reported his wallet containing $300 in bills had either been lost or stolen. He last remembered having it while telephoning at a public telephone booth at a local hotel.

Shortly before midnight he again visited the police station and was still minus his purse and money. Just after midnight Mr. Hall called the local office on the telephone to inform the officer at the desk that he had recovered his wallet. The wallet was in the telephone booth he had used earlier in the evening, kicked back out of sight beneath the seat.

Forestry Official, H. Crosbie, Dies

Chief of the lands and recreational areas under the provincial department of lands and forests, Hazen W. Crosbie, died early Saturday in the Private Patients' Pavilion, Toronto General Hospital, where he was rushed Thursday after suffering a heart attack while attending a Scout rally near Minden.

HAZEN W. CROSBIE

Mr. Crosbie, 48, joined the department of lands and forests in 1923 after graduating with a bachelor of science degree in forestry from the University of Toronto the same year. Previous to that he had fought in World War I and attended the University of Edinburgh. For some years he was forester in the Trent district, later in charge of all areas south of North Bay.

In 1941 he was made chief of the province's recreational areas. In the department he was regarded as an authority on administration of public lands after he had reorganized land administration in Ontario as the first undertaking in his post as chief. Prominent and active in the Canadian Society of Forest Engineers, he was highly esteemed by his associates and staff at Queen's Park, and by division subordinates.

He was born in Chatham, N.B., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Crosbie, reside. Other survivors include his widow, Mrs. Donalda Galbraith Crosbie, and one son, Robert, both of Toronto.

The funeral was held this Monday afternoon.

Food Refused for 23 Days

Dublin, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Patrich Fleming disclosed today that his brother, David, imprisoned Irish Republican Army leader, has refused food for 23 days and has gone without water for six days in his cell at Belfast Prison. Farley Faulkner Given Publicity Job in London

Special representative for Canada in J. Arthur Rank's Central Publicity Bureau, London, England, will be James Farley Faulkner, son of the late Dr. Bert Faulkner, Belleville, who was the accredited Johnston Office representative in Hollywood of the Winnipeg Free Press, Ottawa Journal and five smaller Canadian newspapers prior to his enlistment early in the war.

Faulkner, who will work in the organization run by John Myers, will be mainly concerned with the publicity requirements of Canadian newspapers and magazines, providing human interest stories. Arrangements were made in Canada by James Cowan, who has charge of the publicity for Rank's enterprises here. After discussions with Jock Lawrence, who heads the USA publicity setup in New York, Faulkner will sail, accompanied by a special photographer.

When war broke out Faulkner returned to Canada from Hollywood to enlist in the infantry, and, after a year here, served three and a half years overseas, returning with the rank of major. While still in Britain he was offered a post with Reuters news service but had decided to join the Rank organization. He made many friends in the Old Country and was given a farewell party at the London Press Club, of which he was an honorary member for three years, before his return to await permits from the ministry of labor and the British treasury.

Faulkner entered the newspaper business as Prince Edward County representative for the Toronto Daily Star, with headquarters in Belleville, Ontario.

Miss Mary Forster Shown in Film "Meet the Navy

Included in a picture of the chorus of the famous navy show "Meet The Navy" featured in Time Magazine last week is Miss Mary Forster, well-known dancer and instructor of this city who has been overseas with the cast for a long time.

The show, stood head over heels above Canada's wartime revues, according to the Time writer and early this year faced the cameras in Britain's Hollywood, Elstree, to make a movie musical of the stage show.

When the film was finished the cast headed home for discharge. More than one headed for the same home; on the two-and-one-half year tour there had been sixteen marriages. Some of the cast picked up British stage and Hollywood contracts. The Canadian premiere of the film "Meet the Navy" was held in Ottawa a few weeks ago.

Miss Forster, was one of Belleville's talented dancers and entertainers and operated a dancing school here prior to her enlistment in the Navy during the war years. Her musical and dancing talents came to the fore and she soon became a member of one of the navy's shows later going to the cast of "Meet the Navy."

Deacon, Sentenced To Die, Will Appeal Murder Conviction

Winnipeg, Nov. 4 (CP) —Unless the Manitoba Court of Appeal intervenes, Lawrence Deacon, 32-year-old former army sergeant, will hang next Jan. 16 for the iron bolt murder of Johann Johnson. Deacon was sentenced by Mr. Justice W. J. Major Saturday, after an assize coure jury here had found him guilty of the murder last March 31 of Johnson, Winnipeg taxi driver, in suburban Tuxedo.

Defence counsel said the case would be appealed. Associate defence counsel Harry Walsh said that the appeal would be based on the grounds that Mr. Justice Major misdirected the jury.

The defence claim is that the judge instructed the jury to judge for themselves on the contridctory evidence given by the chief crown witness, Mrs. Helen Berard, alleged passenger in the death car.

This instruction to the jurymen, that they find the "germ of truth" in her statements, the defence will submit in its appeal, was not the evidence she gave in court under oath.

During her testimony in the witness box Mrs. Berard, brown-haired wife of a Hong Kong army veteran, was declared a hostile witness after her evidence failed to agree with earlier statements made to the police.

Identified Road

In the statement to police which the crown contended was the one most likely to contain the truth, Mrs. Berard told of Deacon being with her in a cab after first having attended a party at her home. She identified Keniston Boulevard—the death trail—as part of their trip, she told of Deacon raising his arm, and of the driver slumped down in the front seat.

In court testimony the 28-year-old housewife changed her story. She said she had left the cab in which Deacon and she had been riding after an argument started between them. While walking along the street she saw another car, and it was in this second car in which she saw a stricken driver, and a man standing in the back seat.

In all, Mrs. Berard made seven statements, including her court testimony. The defense claimed that when she had first been interrogated by police, they had so frightened her through threats of imprisonment that none of her remarks could be relied upon to be the truth. Without her evidence, there was nothing to tie the accused up with the crime, the defense said.

Says German Child Accidentally Hanged, Chums Playing 'Trials'

Hamburg, Germany, Nov. 2 — (AP)— The News Guardian, a British Army newspaper, said today that a German child was hanged accidentally while a group of children was playing "Nuernberg trials" in Kiel.

The game ended in the pronouncement of the death sentence and hanging for the child, who was strung up to a lamppost by his playmates. The child's mother arrived on the scene and cut him down, but his neck was broken, the paper said.

The Dominion Bank
1871 - 1946
SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF BANKING

From the days of the Little Red Schoolhouse to the present age of scientifically planned and equipped school buildings, The Dominion Bank has been promoting progress. With 75 years of such participation in community betterment behind it, this Bank looks to the future with continued faith and optimism.

Schools for TOMORROW!

Tomorrow's schools will employ new facilities for enhancing the child's health and happiness.

With windows above the roof of the corridors, the classrooms will be flooded with light from both sides, fostering good eyesight and encouraging cheerfulness.

Seating arrangement will be flexible. Moveable desks and chairs will make it easy to group the pupils, according to need, for greater convenience, comfort and interest.

Radio receivers with built-in loudspeakers will enable the teacher to make full use of educational broadcasts.

Such things, combined with new materials, modern heating and ventilation, plenty of window space, will conduce to "sound minds in sound bodies" in Canada's Schools of Tomorrow. Enterprise will produce them. This Bank will provide enterprise with the resources needed to translate plans into practise.

Seeking Tourist Trade

While Canada and the United States are seeking tourist trade the British Isles are not behind in the appeal to the people of the New World and the Old World. Scotland' Development and Industry Council recently published a report of its tourist committee recommending the fullest possible use of Scotland's national assets. Scotland has won fame abroad throughout the world for her scenery and places of historic interest and for her people.

Among the assets of that land are given, her lovely glens and mountains, Scotland's sport, its pipe music, its Highland dancing and its good food — these are thought likely to stimulate visits from tourists from all over the globe. To enable visitors to enjoy the nation's amenities in comfort the committee—representing local authorities and business interests all over Scotland—proposes the expansion of accommodation of all kinds. Country hotels will be encouraged to specialize in Scottish national dishes—not merely haggis and porridge but also salmon, venison, trout, grouse, shortbread, heather, honey, etc. The report suggests that Scotland should have at least 60 camping sites of 14 to 20 acres, while crofters should be encouraged to set up hotels alongside their own crofts. Redundant shooting lodges might also be used for accommodation.

Next year touring will occupy a great deal of attention in North America. Canada and the United States are looking for a great development in this great industry.

Romance of Salvage

Three brothers, Vincent, Rowley and Harold Elliott, bought a wreck on St. Bees Island, 15 miles off Mackay, North Queensland in March 1944. The wreck was the Dutch 4,600 tons passenger liner, Cremer, which went ashore in September, 1943, after a troop-carrying voyage to a northern battle area. Her back was broken, and, after the furniture and upper fittings had been salvaged, she was sold to the Elliots for less than $3,240.

Harold, a Sydney engineer, and Vincent, a Brisbane engineer, took their wives with them. Rowley took his son, Erroll, 20. The three families live on the upper decks. A panelled staircase leads to a large living room in which a big fuel stove is installed. The partially-submerged crew's quarters are used as a shark-proof swimming pool. Fresh water, 20,000 gallons at a time, is brought from the mainland by barge.

The Elliotts not only live on the wreck; they live off it. For underwater salvage, they used a home-made gas mask fitted with an air line operated from an upper deck. The ship's sick bay was converted to a workshop where winches were installed for lifting the heavy engine components from the submerged engineroom.

So far recovered: Two 500 h.p. diesel engines, a 30 h.p. unit, parts of the ships two 22300 h.p. engines, 30,000 ft. of teak from the decking. Yet to be salvaged: Most of 35 tons of scrap copper and brass, the remainder of the decking, large quantities of tinned butter. The salvaged machinery is preserved from corrosion by shark oil, distilled on board.

The families love the life, will be sorry when the salvage work ends in a few months' time.

Radar Eye to Help Air Safety

R.A.F. Transport Command are to try out a new United Kingdom radar development in Southeast Asia. It is a radar "eye" which enables the aircraft pilot to see obstructions ahead at night or in bad visibility. The "News Chronicle" Air Correspondent reports that the principle underlying this new device—which is still in the experimental stage—is very simple. Radar impulses are sent out ahead of the aircraft. The return "echo" appears as a signal on a glass screen which is gridded to give the approximate position, left or right. A hill shows as a blob, another plane as a large dot and a cloud mass—which can be very dangerous to aircraft—as a fuzzy blob.

Test Planes in Fire-Fighting

A small bush fire is to be started shortly in a safe country in Australia area in order to test the fire-fighting equipment of the Royal Australian Air Force. This experiment is to be carried out to ascertain the part which aircraft can play in combatting bush fires in the thickly wooded Austrian bush.

The Mustangs, which successfully dive-bombed an experimental fire in Victoria recently, will be used. They will be armed with 450-lb. anti-fire bombs. Commenting on the experimental bombing, an official of the Victorian Forest Commission said there was little doubt that such fires could be suppressed by bombing, provided the liquid could be sprayed on the fire. It was, however, a different problem in thickly wooded and irregular terrain.

Topaz for November

When is a topaz not a topaz? When it is yellow sapphire, or yellow quartz, which are often sold commercially as topaz. The true topaz is a much rarer and finer stone. But the term topaz is often loosely applied for the topaz is the most popular yellow stone in jewellery.

Many people believe that all yellow stones are topazes, and that all topazes are yellow. But they're wrong. A glance into the Royal Ontario Museum shows topazes ranging from colorless through pale yellow right up to a sherry-brown. They come in pale blue and pale green, the latter often being sold as aquamarine. Very rare are the naturally red and ping topazes, but these can be simulated by heating, in an artificial process known as "pinking."

Topaz is a very hard stone, a fluo,sicicate of aluminum. It can be cut very easily though, and takes a high polish on the buffing wheels.

The rhyme goes:

That their true gem should ever show a topaz."
"Who first comes to this world below
Under Sagittarius should know

Just why, it's hard to say. But the topaz has come to be the birthstone for November.

It is found in many a list of precious stones in ancient writings. In early times, St. Hildegarde highly recommended the use of topaz soaked in wine as a cure for dimness of sight. But oculists today wouldn't give a penny for her thoughts on the subject.

English Is Good Enough

When delegates from 30 housing authorities in Devon and Cornwall returned to a regional conference on housing and town planning at Plymouth, they were confronted by a large blackboard bearing words like:

Contrapuntal, polynucleated, micro-climatology, biotechnic economy, polarisation of social life, conurbation, ecologically, geographic-plexus, agglomeration, sophisticated urbanity, urban integration, says the London Daily Mail.

J. Paton-Watson, Plymouth city surveyor and joint compiler of the Plymouth plan for rebuilding the blitzed city, said "These are words I have come across in publications on planning. You can search the Oxford and Cambridge dictionaries and not find some of them.

"If the planning profession is talking over the heads of the people we shall not see much planning accomplished.

"It is the common man we are planning for, and the planners should speak English which he can understand."

Then a rope supporting the easel broke and the blackboard collapsed with a crash on the floor, face downward.

"That is the best place for such planners' jargon," said Mr. Paton-Watson.

Properly-conducted competitive sports are essential to development of young people, according to health officers of the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa. Pointing out that organized games will teach youngsters that they are members of society, the Department states that sports show players that others have rights, capacities, ambitions and feelings similar to their own. Health authorities advise parents to encourage children to play with other youngsters.

BANQUET SEASON

The banquet season starts once more,
The ticket taker's at the door;
The ladies furred in mink and sable;
The march of lions to the table;
The usual guests arriving late;
The cup of fruit at every plate,
The chicken, and on Friday's, fish,
The peas and carrots in a dish;
The microphone, the lecture stand;
The menu, with the program planned;
The forty men who must, somehow,
Be called upon to "take a bowl!"
The telegrams (there's always some)
From those who found they couldn't come;
The officers, both past and new;
The chairman and the speakers, too—
All, all are there—and now we can Look pleasant for the camera man.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP) — The possibility of a three-way scheme for the standardization of war weapons between Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom is believed to be the basis of unofficial discussions in Canadian military circles.

Indications in informed quarters here are that Canada, which in the past has patterned her weapons along British lines, now is anxious to strike some arrangement whereby her equipment would be interchangeable with that of the Americans.

The reason for the emphasis on British-style weapons in the past is that during the First and Second Great Wars, Canada fought either under or at the side of British armies and so needed to have equipment which was closely related to theirs.

Now, however, there is a feeling that in the event of a third great war the Dominion would be more likely to fight at the side of her American allies and therefore her weapons also should be somewhat similar to those of the United States forces.

The Canadian wish is believed to be for a standardization program involving Britain, Canada, and the United States.

Labor: There is growing opinion in Ottawa that the day is coming when action will be taken to keep the government better informed of labor trends in other countries. Most likely course is the appointment of labor attaches to Canadian embassies and high commissioners' offices.

The United States, for instance, now has a labor attache on its embassy staff in Ottawa. The United Kingdom is following the same idea on a rapidly expanding basis.

Bushmen Return To Their Jobs

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Thousands of Ontario bushmen were back at their jobs today following Saturday's decision of members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Union to accept terms reached at a recent conference of operators, union representatives and Ontario Labor Minister Daley.

However in the Timmins district some lumbering firms pointed out that the 22-day strike for a $5-a-day minimum and improved working conditions had touched only pulp operators. These firms said none of an estimated 2,500 companies not cutting pulp had signed the agreement.

An official of one firm said his organization would deal with the union when employees indicated by open vote that they want the union to represent them.

"The vast majority of our men in this area remained in the camps and most of our wages were above the $5-a-day demand of the union," he said.

Also in the Timmins and Cochrane areas, ratification meetings held Saturday decided not to continue the strike against camps which had not yet signed the agreement. Bruce Magnuson, chairman of the union's policy committee, said bushmen were being encouraged to return to work so that they might be ready to start Monday.

LARGE OWL SHOT

Corbetton, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The owl's reputation for wisdom deserted one of the species caught raiding a poultry pen in this district. Shot by the young son of the poultry owner, are Arctic Owl measured five feet from wing-tip to wing-tip and is said to be a rare species for western Ontario.

FOUND DEAD IN CEMETERY

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — A. Stiff of Toronto was found dead yesterday in a cemetery, shot through the head. Police reported a revolver was clutched in the man's hand and several notes lay nearby. Stiff had been missing from his home since Oct. 29.

Husband, Daughter Lose Their Grim Race With Death

Halifax, Nov. 4 (CP)— Mrs. Lillian Blocksidge died in hospital here early today of cancer of the liver as a Montreal-Halifax Limited, carrying her husband and daughter, raced southward through eastern New Brunswick. Albert Blocksidge of Mimico, Ont., and his daughter, Mrs. Vera Tweedle, had lost their grim race with death.

The 57-year-old woman, who had come home from a visit to relatives in England on a stretcher, died shortly after 8 a.m. Her husband and daughter were aboard a train which then was still about 80 miles north of Moncton, N.B., where an aircraft waited to fly them to Halifax.

Bad weather had turned a fateful hand in the race. Last night it had caused cancellation of a Trans-Canada Airlines flight from Montreal, which would have sped the pair to the bedside of the dying woman in a few hours. Today a bleak fog hung over Halifax and a constant drizzle fell from low-hanging clouds.

But the flight to Halifax would not now be needed. The sands had run out.

Visiting relatives in England when she suffered a stroke, Mrs. Blocksidge returned to Canada as a stretcher case on the Empire Brent, which docked Saturday. She had booked passage to Britain two months ago with money she had saved all her life for the trip.

Soon after her arrival in England she was taken ill and London doctors told her she had but six weeks to live. They urged her to go into hospital in England immediately, but she came home to die.

Thomas Gibbons To Face Re-trial On Murder Count

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP) — First re-trial of a murder case in the history of Renfrew County opens today before Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel of the Ontario High Court of Justice when Thomas Gibbons faces a fall assizes jury.

The 46-year-old Admaston Township farmer was found guilty at the spring assizes of murder in connection with the shooting of two brothers—Joseph and John Fitzmaurice—who were his neighbors. He was sentenced to be hanged last June but a re-trial was ordered.

The brothers were shot last Feb. 1 on a lonely, wind-swept road leading to a bush adjoining Gibbon's property. It was understood Gibbons, who is unmarried and lived alone with his sister on their farm 14 miles east of Renfrew, had had a long-standing dispute with the brothers over the use of the road.

Gibbons lawyer is expected to base the case, as was done previously, on an insanity plea. During the earlier trial evidence was introduced to show that some of Gibbons' relatives were in mental institutions and that he himself was subject to periods of depression.

The farmer, who admitted the shooting and gave himself up to Provincial Police a few hours after it occurred, testified in a statement read in court that he had seen a "vision" in a dream and he believed he had been chosen by God to do the killing.

Later, parked in an automobile on his snow-choked lane, he encountered the Fitzmaurice brothers, who stopped their sleigh to ask if he was in trouble. Following a brief conversation, Gibbons related, he reached in the back of his car and brought out a high-powered rifle, saying to himself, "well, here she goes boys," before shooting the brothers with two shots.

Labor Progs Want R.C.M.P. Replaced In Saskatchewan

Saskatoon, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The Saskatchewan convention of the Labor Progressive party last night passed a resolution condemning "intimidation of legal organizations" by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and urging the Saskatchewan government to stop maintaining the "capitalistic political force whose duty it is to serve monopoly capital."

The resolution, introduced by A. F. Theodore of Regina, said that the provincial government should replace the R. C. M. P., which performs Provincial police duties in Saskatchewan under an arrangement with the federal government, with a provincial force whose duty would be the "protection of the people."

The R.C.M.P., the resolution noted, did not "hound the Liberals or Conservatives and they can't seem to get Fascists until they leave the country."

At the opening session Saturday, Nelson Clarke of Regina, provincial leader who was re-elected, told the 140 delegates that measures instituted by the C.C.F. administration in the province had "nothing in common with socialism."

WATCH THAT GRAVY

Your article titled "Gravy on his Vest" was interesting but it seems to me you left your readers out on a limb. Having been through all the clinics wouldn't a medical examination be a repetition and wouldn't other sumptoms besides "gravy" have indicated previous small apoplexies? Anyway what should the "poor geek" do about it?

(C. O. S.)

In the article I said:

"When a man or woman who has always been neat in habits and passable in conduct and manners begins to be noticeably careless about these things it is time to stop bumbling about age, overwork, nervous exhaustion, indigestion..."

If that paragraph was printed, take a firm hold on the limb while you finish reading it:

"—— the patient may complain of any or all of these things but they are all symptoms or effects, not causes of the patient's trouble. I do not believe or imply that such changes in one of mature age point toward small unrecognized apoplexies (cerebral hemorrhages, strokes) in most instances, but they do warrant at least a general medical examination to determine what ails the poor geek."

That the patient has "been through the clinic" or several of them is immaterial. Too many gullible customers of "clinic" are similarly overawed by the machinery of the "clinic" and come home with the notion that everything possible has been said and done by the quacks in the clinic and ordinory doctors back home of course can only "repeat" what was done on the assembly line at the clinic.

This absurd idea, that a medical examination would be a mere repetition if the poor geek has already been through the clinic, brings to mind the story of the fellow who politely declined a book offered him as a gift, as he already had a book.

The machine or laboratory tests occasionally give a clue to the nature of the customer's trouble, but nine out of ten such routine "check-ups" are "negative" so far as a diagnosis or good treatment may be concerned, although they do impress the customer with the thoroughness of the clinic method — and back home the family doctor usually would have to talk himself black in the face to persuade the same customer to have this or that test if it costs anything.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Diseases of Dolls

I believe I was one of your patients back in Penn Yan. I have forgotten how seriously her ailments were discussed and how careful you attended her.

(Mrs. R. S. C.)

Answer—Happy, happy days, although we never knew whether the grocer and landlord would carry us another month or not.

Oats

Do you approve of rolled oats as a breakfast cereal? Our children are very fond of—oats and —oats, but we wonder whether unmilled oats would be better.

(P. L. H.)

Answer—They are all o.k. I believe—they contain all of the natural mineral matter, vitamins and other elements of unmilled oats. Rolled oats or oatmeal or the special preparations you mention are all excellent food for growing children.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did the custom of christening ships originate?

Christening a new ship by breaking a bottle of wine over its prow is believed to be a survival of the ancient custom of dedicating each vessel to the protection of a god.

Ancient ships often bore the images of the deities to which they were consecrated.

The wine probably represents the libation poured out in connection with sacrifices. This libation in turn symbolized the blood of a human or animal offering. A connection between offering sacrifices and setting out to sea may be hinted at in Psalm 107:22-30, which reads:

"And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing. They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonder in the deep. For he commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof. They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths; their soul is melted because of trouble. They reel to and from, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wits'end. Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses. He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven."

Greek and Roman priests propitated the gods by sacrificing animals and by performing incantations when a ship was launched or was about to set out on a long voyage.

During the middle ages this pagan ritual was absorbed by Christianity and became comparable to a baptism and formal blessing.

In some parts of the world it is still customary for a clergyman to bless a fishing fleet when it sets out on its annual cruise.

The chronicles of the monks of St. Denys refer to a trip that the Bishop of Bangor made to Southampton in 1418 to bless one of the King's ships that was about to be launched.

Washington Irving, in Astoria, refers to a similar practice in connection with taking possession of forts and territory. "On the 12th of November (1813)," wrote the father of American letters, "the fate of Astoria was consummated by a regular ceremonial. Capt. Black, attended by his officers, entered the fort, caused the British standard to be erected, broke a bottle of wine, and declared in a loud voice, that he took possession of the establishment and of the country, in the name of his Britannic Majesty, changing the name of Astoria to Fort George."

NO PLACE FOR REST

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—The busy Queen Elizabeth Way which runs west from here to Hamilton is no place for a Saturday night rest, William C. Gilbert, 38, of Toronto, discovered. Police said Gilbert, wearing a motorcycle crash helmet, stretched out on the pavement as automobiles which whizzed by missed him by inches. He will face a charge of being intoxicated in a public place.

DAMAGE ACTIONS AGAINST CROWN LIKELY TO GROW

British Government Takes Steps to Meet New Problem Brought About by Nationalization Program

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4 (CP) — The Labor government's nationalization program has given a new point to arguments that the crown should be put in a position where it can be sued like an ordinary individual. Government legislation to make this possible is expected within a year or two.

Advocates of the change, many of whom are found within the government, say that with nationalization of industries millions more persons will find themselves employed by the state and the number of actions against the crown will increase.

Sir Harfley Shawcross, attorney general, said in reply to a Commons question that the government was aware of the need of some legislation dealing with action for damages against the crown. In the meantime the government would seek to ensure that none of His Majesty's subjects was deprived of a remedy in respect of wrongful acts committed by crown servants.

Lord Jowitt, Lord Chancellor, said in the Lords he was anxious to have approval of a bill in this connection, but it was doubtful whether he would get early consent due to the pressure of parliamentary time in the near future. Opposition spokesman asked if the bill would have precedence over nationalization legislation and received the reply that "it might have a chance among the also rans."

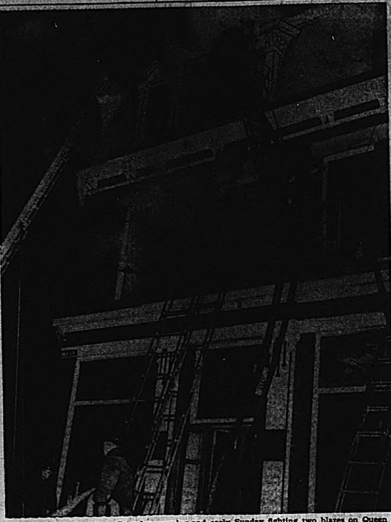
Legal Fictions

Government departments generally have not taken refuge in the rule that the King cannot be sued. They have developed a system of legal fictions by which a nominated defendant, who can be sued, is put up to answer for any alleged grievance against the department. The treasury pays the damages if the court finds against this defendant.

This arrangement might have continued indefinitely but the House of Lords judicial committee recently gave a judgment which questioned the legality of this procedure.

The decision was followed by correspondence in newspapers by distinguished lawyers who indicated their profession was almost unanimous against continuance of the rule. These correspondents, however, also posed problems arising if the crown is put in the same position as a private citizen.

One would be the plaintiff's right to the "discovery of documents" as this might lead to the making public of what in the national interest should be kept secret. But principles governing the production of secret documents already have been laid down and these might be made applicable in whatever new legislation is passed.



Firemen were kept busy Saturday morning and early Sunday fighting two blazes on Queen St. W. The first was a two-alarm fire at the Clifton Hotel, 298 Queen St. W., which injured seven persons. It was set by a pyromaniac. This picture shows firemen rescuing hotel guests during the height of the fire.

PLASTICS FROM NUTS

New Delhi, Nov. 4 (CP) — Resins obtained from cashew shell liquid are utilized in India for the production of enamels, varnishes, water-proofing compositions and moulding powders. This was made possible by the discovery of a process of converting the liquid into solid or semi-solid resins.

Ill-Fitting Teeth Bring on Headache

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 4 (CP) —Badly-fitting dentures may be the cause of many inexplicable headaches, Dr. James Bell of Perth, reported in the Australian Medical Journal.

Dr. Bell said ill-fitting false teeth can cause buzzing in the ears, dizzy spells, painful jaw movements, burning and prickling of the tongue, metallic taste and dryness of the mouth.

13,000 Maritime Miners Likely To Take Strike Vote

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Truro, N.S., Nov. 2 (CP)—A strike vote, probably to come within the next four weeks, among 13,000 Nova Scotia and New Brunswick coal miners loomed today as the 88 delegates to the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) District 26 convention headed home after 12 business-packed days.

As the union representatives adopted their scale and policy committee's proposal calling for a $2.50—a-day wage increase, an extra 15 per cent pay boost for workers at the coal face and a 40-hour week, District President Freeman Jenkins yesterday told them that a strike vote probably would be taken within the next month.

President Jenkins listed two points that would influence the calling of a strike:

Whether contract negotiations were considered possible to produce satisfactory results on the demands, and whether a strike was reasonable and feasible.

The new wages-and-hours demand included these points:

1. A blanket increase of $2.50 a day.
2. An extra 15 per cent for cutters, shooters and loaders working at the coal face on tonnage rates.
3. Royalty of 15 cents per ton for establishment of a pensions scheme.
4. A 40-hour week.
5. Time and a half for any work over 40 hours in one week or eight hours of one day.
6. Double time for statutory holidays and Sundays when worked.
7. Straight time for statutory holidays when not worked.
8. Inclusion of a union shop clause in all contracts.
9. Inclusion of check-off rights in all contracts where they now are not granted.
10. Bginning of the day shift at 8 a.m., instead of at 7 a.m.

Students Must Train In United Provinces

New Delhi, Nov. 4 (CP) — Compulsory military training for university students in the United Provinces has been ordered by Premier Pandit Govind Ballah Pant. He stressed, however, that the government was not trying to prepare young men for world domination or aggression. The object was rather to revive discipline among the youth of the country.

One year's intensive social service work will also be compulsory and no student will be allowed to enter university or any government service until he has completed this term. This training will be practical, enabling students to live in villages, and with laborers to study their conditions and try to improve them.

Alleged Accused Embezzled Sum Of $832,000

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 2 — (CP)— New York officials arrived today with warrants charging William Arthur Nickel of Freeport, L.I., with grand larceny and forgery in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $832,000 from a New York firm.

The 40-year-old one-time bookkeeper and auditor of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company will be returned to New York Monday.

Thomas I. Sheridan, lawyer for the Mergenthaler Company, said a check of company records showed that $832,000 had been allegedly embezzled by Nickel. Earlier estimates had placed the amount at between $650,000 and $1,000,000.

Police reported Nickel owned one yacht valued at $25,000 and another at $9,000, two apartment houses valued at $40,000 each and an estate at Freeport adjacent to that of Guy Lombardo, Canadian-born orchestra leader.

Mrs. Nickel told authorities her husband had taken $66,000 in cash from the basement of their home Sunday and had left it with a friend when he fled that night.

Mrs. Nickel said the friends later returned the money and she had placed it in safe deposit boxes in two banks where detectives later found it.

Want Former P.O.W. Camp Used for Farming School

Timmins, Nov. 2 — (CP)—The Association of Mining Municipalities last night rejected a proposal to convert the former prisoner-of-war camp at nearby Monteith into a home for Northern Ontario's old folk. This resulted from the report of a fact-finding board to investigate the suitability of the former POW camp.

The Association instead resolved to ask the provincial government to use the camp for an experimental farming school, a school of handicraft and a night school.

Body of Man Found at Bottom Of Outside Closet

Alexandria, Ont., Nov. 2—(CP) —A body tentatively identified as that of Alex MacDonald, 32-year-old laborer missing since Oct. 9, was found early today at the bottom of an outside privy after Mrs. Antoine Sauve told of dreaming that MacDonald would be found there.

Provincial Constable Joseph McBain, stationed in this community about 80 miles east of Ottawa, said the identification was not positive. Several hours after the body was discovered workmen still had been unable to release the body from the privy.

Police made no statement as to whether they suspected foul play in MacDonald's death.

Antoine Sauve said he found the body after his wife, Philomene, told him she dreamed last night that the missing man would be found in the privy. He discovered the body about 8:30 a.m.

Police were checking reports that residents of the district heard sounds of a struggle the night MacDonald disappeared.

Buildings Searched.

MacDonald, a general laborer and painter, lived here all his life. When he disappeared a wide search of the district revealed no clue as to his whereabouts. All abandoned buildings were searched without success.

Mrs. Sauge told reporters: "I must have been thinking about Alex before I went to bed last night. I dreamed that he was dead and that he was hidden in a small building that I seemed to recognize.

"When I woke up this morning I told mi husband about the dream. He didn't think much of it at first but after a while he decided he would just have a look at the outhouse on the Benoit property next door. And sure enough when he looked in there, he found the body."

Dover Citizens Plan Memorial

Dover, England, Nov. 4 (CP) —An appeal for £250,000 ($1,000,000) has been launched for construction of a Battle of Britain memorial hospital on the 14-acre Castlemount Plateau just below Dover Castle.

The new hospital will replace the 130-year-old war-damaged Royal Victoria Hospital and will include in its fixtures a permanent record of the name of every airman who fell in the Battle of Britai.

A light turret, flashing a regular signal to passing ships, will be known as the Beacon of Thanksgiving.

WENT ALONG FOR RIDE

Niagara Falls, Nov. 2 —(CP)— The usual routine of eating, reading and housework went on in the home of Dingman and George Grantham yesterday despite the fact that their house was moving at a steady pace along the city's main streets. When the site of their home was purchased by a bank, and the house moved to another location, the two men and their families decided to go along for the ride.

CANADIAN OVERSEAS AIR MAIL POSTAGE HALVED

The Postmaster General has announced new reduced international Air Mail rates which mean a saving of at least 50 per cent in postage on average-weight Air Mail letters destined for overseas.

Previously, any letter which weighed less than one-half ounce paid full half-ounce postage. Now, a quarter-ounce letter — two light-weight sheets in a lightweight envelope—will be carried to most parts of the world for at least half the former half-ounce postage.

HERE ARE THE NEW POSTAL CHARGES [PER QUARTER OUNCE]
NOW IN EFFECT:

TO:
THE UNITED KINGDOM, IRELAND, EUROPE	15¢
BERMUDA, WEST INDIES, LATIN AMERICA	10¢
HAWAII	15¢
AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, GUAM, PHILIPPINES, OCEANIA, ASIA AND AFRICA	25¢

USE LIGHTWEIGHT AIR MAIL STATIONERY TO TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF THESE REDUCTIONS

Canada Air Letter forms can still be sent to destinations specified in the previous service, including the United Kingdom and Empire countries, at the old rates of 10 and 15 cents. They may also be used to all other destinations where Air Mail facilities exist, providing they carry postage at the rates listed above.

WEDDINGS

WOOD—HUYCKE

A marriage of some local interest was quietly solemnized Saturday, November 2, at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. E. Farnsworth, Bleecker Avenue, when Miss Gena Merle Huycke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Huycke, of Toronto, was united with Mr. Albert Frederick Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Wood, Cannifton Road, Belleville.

The bride looked very charming in a turquoise blue wool dress, with matching hat and wearing a corsage of pink roses. Her attendant, Mrs. Cecil Pridmore, wore a dress of red wool, with black hat and a white corsage.

Mr. Pridmore performed the duties of groomsman.

LUMMIS — CALNAN

At three o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday a very pretty marriage ceremony was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church, with Rev. D. C. Amos officiating, when Miss Marion Dorothy Calnan, daughter of Mrs. A. S. Calnan and the late Mr. Calnan, became the bride of Mr. Gordon Lummis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Lummis, Belleville. The beauty of the church was enhanced by floral decorations of 'mums in the shades of white and mauve, banked against a background of potted ferns, while white satin bows marked the guest pews.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Clinton Calnan, the bride entered the church to the strains of wedding music played by Mr. Alec Gordon, making a charming picture in a portrait gown of petal white brocade, fashioned into a molded basque with a scalloped sweetheart neckline and pointed, long tightly fitted sleeves, while the full gathered skirt fell into a slight train. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of shirred net trimmed with graduated pearls to match a three strand necklace, the gift of the groom, and she carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Shirley Biggar of Port Robinson, Ont., was gowned in melody pink silk jersey with round neckline, tightly fitting bodice, long sleeves and a very full skirt. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a halo headdress in matching shade, and she carried a nosegay of white, pink and blue baby 'mums, centred with Rapture roses.

Mr. Harry Lummis attended his brother as groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Kidd and Mr. Stanley Wiggins.

Before the ceremony Miss Phyllis May sang "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register she sang "Because'.

Following the ceremony a reception was hel dat the bride's home, where the floral decorations were white and pastel shaded 'mums. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and decorated in the traditional shades of white and pink, with satin streamers and a three tier wedding cake making an attractive centre, flanked by ivory tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. A. Calnan received in a street length dress of black satin-faced crepe, with matching hat and accessories and she wore a corsage of white roses. Assisting her was the groom's mother, Mrs. S. Lummis, in a dress of heavenly blue crepe, with black accessories and wearing a corsage of yellow roses.

Four friends of the bride, i.e., Mesdames T. Ogden and L. Hall and Misses Margaret Lovering and Vera Lummis assisted with the serving.

The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold pendant; to the serviteurs, earrings; and to the soloist, a cheque. The groom's gift to the groomsman was a leather wallet; to the ushers, gold tie pins.

For travelling the bride chose a cinnamon beige gabardine suit with amber blouse, and a fur trimmed top coat to match. Her accessories were in a darker shade of brown, and she wore a corsage of yellow roses. After motoring to Toronto Mr. and Mrs. Lummiss will fly to points further west, returning later to take up residence at 54 Bridge Street West in Belleville.

Ou of town guests included—Miss Shirley Biggar, of Port Robinson; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Calnan, Norwood; Mrs. Bert Saunders, Miss Vera Lummis, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ogden all of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. James Barton, Kingston.

Marsh Hill School Scene of Concert

S. S. No. 20 Sidney, was the scene Friday evening of an enjoyable Hallowe'en party sponsored by the teacher, Miss Sine, and the pupils of Marsh Hill School. A fine concert of drama and music was presented under the able direction of Miss Pitman A.T.C.M., of Stirling, teacher of music in the schools of that district.

Rev. A. L. Shorten of Foxboro acted as chairman for the occasion, and conducted a rousing sing song, after which an address was read by Mrs. Percy Meale to Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Marisette, who have recently moved to Empey Hill, presenting them with an end table, and their sons, Leonard and Russell, with fountain pens. Mrs. Harry Coulter, president of the Women's Institute, on behalf of the members of that organization presented Mrs. J. Frederick, who is also leaving the community to spend some time in Prince Edward County, with a brooch.

At the close of the program refreshments were served by the ladies of the social committee, and an enjoyable hour spent.

Sensible notion, we call it, that of the broadcloth handbag with a shirred centre panel that is not only decorative but also holds an umbrella whose triangular gilt handle serves as an ornament as well.

Belleville Chapt. O.E.S. Installs 1947 Officers

Against a background of yellow and bronze 'mums and soft candelight, the installation of the officers of Belleville Chapter No. 55 Order of the Eastern Star for 1947, took place in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Friday evening, November 1. Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, P.W.M., was installing officer.

A large number of visitors from the surrounding district filled the large hall to overflowing. The following chapters were represented: Minerva of Belleville, Napanee, Wellington, Ameliasburg, Trenton, Brighton, Tweed, Madoc, Havelock, Lindsay and Toronto.

Mrs. Edna Morden, installed as Worthy Matron, was the recipient of many lovely gifts and congratulatory messages.

Mrs. Anna Boyd, Past Worthy Grand Matron and Mrs. Ruby Flemming of Grand Chapter Benevolent Committee were present and assisted in the ceremony.

Assisted by Past Officers

The installing officer was assisted by Mr. Clifford Baragar as installing Worthy Patron and by the Past Worthy Matrons and Past Worthy Patrons of Belleville Chapter No. 55.

Musical selections by Mrs. Ada McDonald and Mrs. Irene Brown assisted greatly in one of the most enjoyable and colorful installation ceremonies of the Chapter.

Mrs. Margaret Shaw, retiring Worthy Matron, received many lovely gifts and the Past Matron's Jewel, as a token of her popularity and upon the completion of a very successful year.

Following the installation ceremonies, refreshments and dancing completed a very enjoyable evening.

The officers for 1947 are as follows: :

W. M., Edna Morden; W. P., Fred Westover; Assoc. Matron, Mary McLean; Assoc. Patron, Bert Adams; Secretary, Mary Carmichael; Treasurer, Phyllis Clapp; Cond., Dora Elvidge; Assoc. Cond., Getra Baker; Chaplain, Freda LaRue; Marshal, Muriel Climo; Organist, Bernice Grills; Adah, Ina Adams; Ruth, Ada MacMullen, Esther, Rachael Lundy; Martha, Leah Pitt; Electa, Bessie Bush; Warder, Dorcas Westover; Sentinel, Clayton Stratton.

Auditors, W. M. Barlow, Thelma Liddle, Lilly Law.

Trustees, Everett Liddle Cyril McMullen, Kathleen Adams.

Bridge Street United Church W.M.S. Meets

The Autumn Thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held in the ladies' parlors, Friday, November 1, at 3:00 p.m., with Mrs. Davidson presiding.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Schryver, Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Sharpe, and their group. Mrs. Farnsworth gave the Thank-offering prayer, Mrs. Morrison led in the devotional.

Mrs. Davidson introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. A. A. Outram, of Leaside, as the daughter of dear friends of long-standing, and now the community-Friendship Secretary on the Dominion Board of Women's Missionary Societies. Mrs. Outram's mother was the first president of the Bay of Quinte branch at the time of Church Union.

Covering Wider Field

Mrs. Outram spoke of the work of the Community Friendship Committee, at first the work consisted of visiting the sick, shut-ins and bereaved and strangers but now the work covered a much wider field.

It is recognized that this is the vital time of readjustment; the vital urgency is greater now even than in wartime. It is now a work for the whole church, and the opportunity may never come again. This is no time to slump or be tired or let things slide. A program is now needed to be carried into the church and into the whole community.

Rehabilitation is the important act of bringing back into normal living anyone (not just the forces) who has been out of the ordinary course of living. This includes the thousands of imigrants in such places as Ajax, Nobel, etc., and all those now living away from their own homes, and in inadequate quarters.

All Should Assist

Every society in the church should help with this work, of trying to fit these new people into suitable and satisfying groups.

Mrs. Outram explained the ways in which this rehabilitation program had been worked out in her own church and community at Leaside.

Mrs. Schryver and Mrs. Gilbert expressed the thanks of the ladies for Mrs. Outram's inspiring address.

Your Curls Are in a Pattern

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHY IS it that one fingerwave will snuggle close to the head, stay put, behave in an angelic manner, while the next one, looking just as elegant when freshly laid, will writhe and straighten out and writhe again like a baby having tantrums? Almost every woman has had that experience.

The answer is easy. In even the straightest glorious crown there is an invisible wave pattern. The clever hair dresser can see it with her mind's eye. As she combs the strands, gives them a forward push, she finds out how they want to fall.

Cowlick Beginning

A cowlick is the beginning of a wave line. Every experienced hair stylist knows that fact, and that's where she begins the manipulations that put in the attractive undulations. The wave should follow the same pattern after every shampoo.

Chasing from Genevieve to Sally, from Florence to Annabelle is a mistake. Get your operator trained, stick by her, and your wave will be strong and beautiful until it is time for the next soapy head ducking.

When the wave takes on the same design after each shampoo it is possible for the same shampooer to catch it. There are times, as all of us know, when it is impossible to trot-trot to the beauty shop and the job must be managed as best one can.

Frequent Washing

The permanent that lasts the longest is the one that is most frequently shampooed. Moist heat increases the coil quality of the shafts. When the silky threads are heavy with sebaceous oil and atmospheric dust they are bound to string out, look discouraged.

If you are a home shampooer don't stop with two latherings and rinsings, make it three to be sure that every bit of soap has been removed. Use a bath spray and a strong current of water fairly hot. Friction the scalp vigorously. With longer hair, it is no easy job to get the growth really clean.

Fashion Flashes

FASHIION FLASHES —LUCY

WELCOME HOME, moleskin. It's been many years since you've been around. Moleskin used to be an "old" fur, but now it has been given a youthifying treatment and is right for all types. Beautiful colors —such as ruby-red, sapphire-blue, bronze-brown and emerald-green—are all in the line-up as is very youthful styling, such as a loose "beer jacket" coat in green moleskin.

A bright designer comes through with a lovely evening dress. Of black crepe, cut on figure-molding lines with deep neckline and shoestring shoulder straps, it is trimmed at bodice and waist with wide bands of gold sequins and beads. Dress has a draped overskirt which can be pulled up over the head and worn sari-fashion. When down it gives a harem-drape to the skirt.

Big season ahead for the well-handled after-five informal frock. Royal blue silk crepe is used for a handsome frock made with very deep front neckline that is curved and cut on draped cowl lines over wings of matching blue sequins. Side bulk to the wrap-around skirt drapery above a sequin-trimmed belt. Short, draped sleeves.

How nice it is to see beautiful fabrics again. Black faille taffeta, satin-ribbon-striped in pink, is used for a handsome afternoon frock fastened above and below the waist with tiny self-covered buttons. Short sleeves are split, showing the arm above a little cuff that ends in a self tie. Collarless, with deep V-closing and front gathers.

Another look is bestowed upon a new topcoat because of its differently-placed detail. Petal collar, double-breasted fastening, and pockets are all high up. Coat is slim; roomy sleeves are semi-raglan in cut; fabric is light gray diagonal woollen. Length is slightly below three-quarters.

TORONTO HUSKIES BEATEN

New York, Nov. 4 (AP) — Cleveland's highly touted Rebels, the pre-season favorites in the Basketball Association of America, showed real class in their first start against Toronto Huskies.

With Frankie Baumholtz, the former Ohio University and Great Lakes Navy star, dropping in 25 points, the Rebels smothered the Toronto Huskies 71-60, last night to delight a crowd of 7,594 customers.

Specializing in left-handed hook shots, Baumholtz dropped in 10 field goals and five fouls, playing the entire game. His closest competitor for scoring honors was George Nostrand who scored 17 for Toronto. Baumholtz' spree was the high mark of the infant

Masquerade Party At Tabernacle

Black cats, witches, goblins, pumpkins, corn stalks and weird lighting greeted the members of the Good Companion Club of Tabernacle Church, Friday evening as they assembled in the schoolroom for an evening of fun.

The Recreation Group under the leadership of Thelma Schlievert, Minnie Ferguson and Rachel Fox, provided an interesting program of stunts and games, including the eerie ghost walk, ducking for the elusive apple and a visit to the haunts of the witch.

The costumes were many and varied with Mrs. Randolph Nelson carrying off the prize as a "teen-ager".

Refreshments in keeping with the spirit of Hallowe'en were served. The singing of Auld Lang Syne concluded a very successful evening.

New Soapless VEL Marvelous For Dishes

by Frances Thompson
noted homemaking authority

Nobody likes doing dishes, but there is now a new product called VEL that certainly makes the inevitable job a whole lot easier and quicker.

UNLIKE SOAP

VEL is not soap—it's a soapless discovery. Its quick-forming foamy suds don't last—they're not meant to. But the CLEAR water remaining in dishpan or sink is the very thing which makes glasses and china sparkle and so quickly cleans the porridge pot and roasting pan : : : the two bugaboos of dishwashing. What is more, dishes washed in VEL and given a quick rinse will dry themselves without streaking. It's amazing how VEL cuts the grease and leaves little if any scum on the sides of your sink. If necessary a tiny sprinkling of dry VEL on the dishcloth, then a quick rub-around, will make the sink or dishpan gleam. And, incidentally, VEL is very kind to the hands.

VERY LITTLE VEL NEEDED

Frankly, at first we were skeptical of VEL for we missed the heavy dishpan suds produced by soap. In error, we added more, but now know that a very little VEL goes a long way : : : and that VEL keeps on cleaning long after the suds dissolve. A teaspoonful or two of VEL is usually plenty in a dishpanful of water. Add a little more for larger sinks or very greasy pans.

Newfoundland Frozen Fish Trade Mounts

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld, Nov. 4 (CP) — Development during war years of a frozen fish trade with the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom has brought to the Newfoundland fishing industry—the backbone of the country's economy—a diversification previously unknown.

While salted dry cod still accounts for the largest part of the fishing industry's revenue, the frozen fish trade is steadily increasing.

In 1934 about 296,000 pounds of fresh cod and frozen fillets were exported and sold for $3,000. By 1944 the volume of these exports had increased to 15,300,000 pounds and their value to $2,371,000. In 1945 the exports jumped to 22,722,000 pounds and their value to $3,855,000.

By way of comparison, salted dry cod exports in 1934 totalled 147,176,000 pounds and were valued at $6,342,000. By 1944 the volume was down to 100,016,000 and the value up to $12,218,000. Last year the volume was down to 91,188,000 and the value was up to $12,434,000. The total value of all fish exports in 1934 was $8,287,000, in 1944 it was $18,486,000 and in 1945, $21,869,000.

Almost as soon as the commission government, made up of three Newfoundlanders and three representatives of the United Kingdom, took over from the island's responsible government which lost office because of financial difficulties, changes were made in the fishing industry. The program of modernization is still continuing.

One of the first things the commission government did was to establish a Fisheries board to control inspection, grading and exports. Some Newfoundlanders claim this body has grown into a marketing agency unmatched in any other country in the world.

New Credit Policy.

While dealing with the problems of production and marketing it also made changes in the relationships between the fish producer and the merchant who sold the products. In previous years, the merchant would outfit the fishermen and provide him with his needs on credit. Under the arrangement the fisherman was obliged to sell his fish to the merchant who had outfitted him. As a result the fisherman found himself almost constantly in debt to the merchant.

Under the new system the merchant can still grant the credit, but the fisherman can sell to the highest bidder. If he fails to meet his debts to the merchant then he is liable to lawsuit.

The government then began building bait depots because the shortage of bait in some sections was seriously hampering the trade. A total of 15 depots will have been built by the end of this year and the construction of three more next year is expected to complete the chain around the coasts.

Loans for the building of depots for fresh and frozen fish were and still are being granted. These depots now have a storage capacity of more than 9,000,000 pounds.

A report on the financial and economic conditions of Newfoundland to the British Dominions Office gives this background on the fishing industry during the pre-war years:

"At the time when the commission assumed office Newfoundland's main markets were still located in the Iberian peninsula, in Mediterranean countries and in Brazil; Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece and Brazil alone accounting for over 80 per cent of the total of export of dried cod.

"The world depression seriously affected Newfoundland's permanent markets, and this fact, coupled with the rise of Norway and Iceland as highly organized—and in the case of the former subsidized—competitors, tended still further to depress the Newfoundland industry.

Further Recessions.

"Political events in Europe caused yet further setbacks to the industry. Sanctions against Italy, and civil war in Spain threatened to eliminate two of the most important European markets, and the value of exports of dried cod to European countries fell from $3,400,000 in the final year 1934-35 to under $1,520,000 in 1937-38. Owing to difficulties of exchange the Brazilish market suffered a similar setback.

"The general recession was in part counteracted by a steady expansion of trade with the British West Indies and French Caribbean possessions, and exports to these areas in 1939-40 represented over 40 per cent of the total value of exports of dried cod as compared with 22 per cent in 1934-35.

"Throughout the pre-war period and indeed up to the end of the financial year 1943-44, exports of dried, salt bulk, pickled and soft-cured codfish continued to account for over two-thirds of the value of all fish exported from Newfoundland, but the years from 1940 onwards brought about considerable changes, both in overseas markets and in the types of fish produced.

It was about 1940 that the invasion of Norway brought increased demands for Newfoundland fish from Spain and Portugal. These demands more than made up for the loss of the Greek and Italian markets. About the same time increased orders for fresh and frozen fish from the United Kingdom, United States and Canada.

The fresh and frozen fish exported besides cod included herring, salmon, lobster, halibut, breams, catfish, haddock, mackerel, trout, smelts and perch.

A good deal of the Island's fish production now is going to the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Administration, but Newfoundlanders hope that when these orders cease they will again be able to take over markets lost because of the war.

The industry now is working practically at full capacity. Many men who left to join the armed forces or to work on the construction of defence bases on the Island have since returned to their former posts.

Should exports drop off and prices fall, another depression is likely to be felt throughout the Island. The saying is that as goes the fishing industry so goes the economy of the country. Newfoundlanders have to import practically all the things they need. They use the returns from exports to pay for them.

When returns from exports drop off the purchases of imports drop until the government steps in and provides the money needed to pay for them. But the government itself suffers when the export markets fail. Its main source of revenue is from tariffs on imports.

It was such a cycle of affairs which led to the financial difficulties that brought about abandonment of responsible government during the depression years.

SLOTH'S INDISPOSITION

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 4—(AP) — The reason for Sammy the Sloth's indisposition became apparent today. And Sammy, it seems, should be called Sally. Sammy is one of the two-toed sloths familiar to crossword puzzlers. Brought here from Costa Rica, Sammy sickened and went to a veterinarian. The illness was puzzling, until a seven-inch bundle of fur arrived.

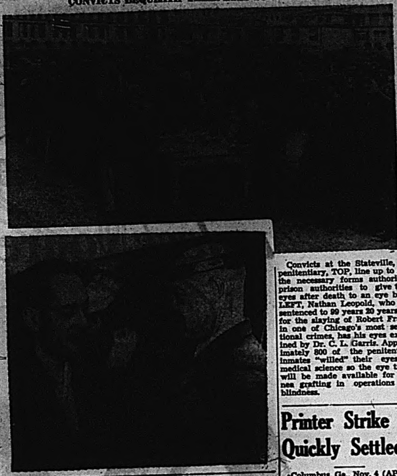
CONVICTS BEQUEATH THEIR EYES TO THE BLIND



Convicts at the Stateville, Ill., penitentiary, TOP, line up to sign the necessary forms authorizing prison authorities to give their eyes after death to an eye bank. LEFT, Nathan Leopold, who was sentenced to 99 years 20 years ago for the slaying of Robert Franks in one of Chicago's most sensational crimes, has his eyes examined by Dr. C. L. Garris. Approximately 800 of the penitentiary inmates "willed" their eyes to medical science so the eye tissue will be made available for cornea grafting in operations for blindness.

Printer Strike Quickly Settled

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 4 (AP)—A walkout of printers on the Columbus Enquirer, morning newspaper, and The Ledger, an evening paper, was settled yesterday. The papers are jointly owned.

The printers, members of the International Typographical Union (AFL) failed to report for work Thursday at the end of a 30-day grace period following expiration of the old contract. Then the pressmen and the stereotypers walked out in sympathy. Under the contract that expired Oct. 1, the printers had a 40-hour week provision, with $1.35 per hour for day work and $1.42 for night work. This was equivalent to $54 and $56.80 respectively for a 40-hour week.

The new contract, retroactive to Oct. 1 for time worked, calls for $1.67 and $1.74 respectively, for day and night shifts. This means weekly earnings of $62.23 and $65.25 on the basis of 37 1-2-hour week.

Valuable Seaweed Brings Maritimers Thriving Industry

By DAVID McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Nov. 4 (CP) — Have you ever eaten chrondus crispus? Or shined your shoes with, or shaved with it?

Chances are that you have used old chrondus crispus in a number of ways without knowing it, for only in the last two or three years has it come into wide use on this continent.

Chrondus crispus or carrageen are fancy terms for a quite ordinary, purple-colored seaweed — Irish moss. Ordinary, that is, in that it's just a seaweed which grows on rocks near shore, but unusual in that it contains from 55 to 90 per cent gelose, a substance which holds puddings together, stabilizes ice cream, chocolate milk and canned meats, clarifies beer and is used in the preparation of cosmetics, shaving soap, shoe polish, printing inks, paints and a dozen and one other things you buy at the neighborhood grocery and drugstore every day.

For years the Maritime Provinces have been literally surrounded by an unknown potential industry — the gathering and bleaching of Irish moss for commercial use. But until just recently its potentialities had never been realized. Now fishermen in the off-season are raking in about 3,000,000 pounds annually and the approximate $275,000 it brings them.

In Wedgeport, N.S., Walter Murphy, one of the pioneers in the infant industry, gathers some 25,000 pounds of Irish moss each week. Dried, it sells for about six cents a pound; bleached, it's worth about 15 cents a pound to the picker.

There's nothing new about Irish moss. It has been known for centuries in Europe and in some parts of Ireland it forms part of the regular diet. Before the war the only known beds of any size in North America were located off the rocky coast of Massachusetts but most of the Irish moss used commercially was imported, either from the British Isles or Japan. When war came those markets were cut off and commercial users began casting about for likely spots where it might be found.

A Real Discovery.

About the same time Mr. Murphy, tired of having seaweed washed over his premises by the storms and not knowing what else to do with the stuff, sent it away to be analyzed. When he learned there was purple gold six feet under the water just a stone's throw from his doorstep, he started harvesting in jig-time. In 1940 only 10,000 pounds were gathered in the Maritime Provinces. Two years later the yield was about 2,000,000 pounds.

Irish moss grows on rocks just below tide-level from a "holdfast", a small disc attached to a rock. Though Irish moss thrives in salt water, it spoils on exposure to fresh water. This means no end of difficulty in the bleaching process during which the moss turns deathly pale.

Technically, this is what happens after that: the dried and bleached white moss is ground and treated with water to dissolve the gelose; the fibrous material is filtered out and the remaining extract is dehydrated and powdered.

Now it's ready to stabilize ice cream because of its effect on ice-crystal formation, or chocolate milk because it holds the chocolate powder in perfect suspension, to be used as a thickener for colors used in textiles, to jell a blanc mange or slip into a beauty salon, shoe-shine parlor, barber shop—or a tavern.

Escaped Prisoners of War, Fearful of Vengeance In Germany, Are Recaptured

Creston, B.C., Nov. 4 (CP) — For 12 days war prisoners Lorenz Kazmierczak and George Jaeschka lived as men shorn at last of a fear of German vengeance.

But no more. That ended Saturday with their recapture in a logging camp at Destiny Bay, 30 miles west of Creston.

What happens to them now was obscure but presumably they soon will start along with their prisoners, the return trip to Germany.

For weeks Kazmierczak and Jaeschka quaked at the very thought of repatriation. Theirs was a constant dread that Nazi vengeance would catch up with them for their testimony which helped convict a fellow-prisoner of murder in the Medicine Hat prisoner-of-war camp.

They talked freely of this fear of death "when we return to Germany," so much so that to protect them they were segregated from other prisoners and for a time sent to work on farms.

As a reward for their testimony at the trial of a prisoner accused with three others of killing another prisoner who had expressed anti-Nazi sentiments, Kazmierczak and Jaeschka had hoped to be allowed to remain in Canada. The word last August that all German prisoners of war would be returned to Germany dashed these hopes, turned Kazmierczak and Jaeschka into two men even in fear of death.

Cut Through Wire

Almost immediately they escaped but were recaptured after only a few days of freedom.

In the big prisoners' camp at Lethbridge, 38-year-old Kazmierczak, former soldier of the Wermacht, and Jaeschka, 27, once a Luftwaffe private, watched departures for Germany.

As their turn appeared nearing they became more and more worried.

Twelve nights ago the two swarthy men cut through two rows of barbed wire and, once clear of the camp floodlights, melted into the Alberta night.

Both speak English. But how they travelled across the Rockies was unknown.

Surrendered Without Trouble

Finally at Destiny Bay fellow workers recognized these two "lumberjacks," new to the camp, and word went out to Constable L. A. Doree who went to the camp himself, disguised as a lumberjack.

"I recognized them from the police photographs," he said. "They surrendered without any trouble and just came along with me."

Their testimony at prisoner-of-war trials at Medicine Hat earlier this year had to do with the hanging of a fellow captive, Karl Lehmann, in the Medicine hat internment camp in September, 1944. It was brought out then that camp gossip had named Lehmann as the head of a Communist group and certain prisoners, fully indoctrinated with the Nazi ideology, had investigated him, then marked him for death. For this murder four prisoners are under sentence to be hanged at Lethbridge Dec. 18.

New Styles, No Coupons, Irk British

By BARBARA WACE

London, Nov. 4 (CP) — A sumptuously crinolined model swayed past on the raised platform of the exclusive hotel reception room, and the little woman in black moved impatiently on her narrow, gilt-backed chair.

"At last British women can see fashions designed specially for her, not only for export," said the announcements of Britain's biggest home market style show.

The clothes were lovely, but something, obviously, was worrying the woman in the well-worn, well-cut black suit, and the very, very new high hat.

"Crinolines, bustles, panniers," she muttered viciously. "Very pretty, I'm sure. But popular I'd be if I bought one, wouldn't I, living in the suburbs with mother, because we can't get a flat in town? Oh, a bustle's just the thing for the last crowded midnight train back to Slough, with a good walk home through the rain at the end of it."

The show went on. Willowy mannequins swayed past in evening clothes designed from almost every period in history. There were mediaeval dresses with sweeping skirts and high headdresses.

"Even if you live in London, who can get taxis after something smart like a first night?" the comments continued. "Think of that headdress in the underground."

"Yes, that's lovely, that Cossack coat and cap in white sheepskin, with the white kid boots and scarlet gloves," she admitted. "But what about London fogs, and London soot, and cleaners taking at least three weeks? Three weeks, that is, if you can get it to the cleaners."

Suits More Practical.

Tailored suits of tweed and fine wools received less condemnation. A little longer than last year, in beautiful, soft, earthy colors and often with a swing back effect to the coat, they seemed eminently practical.

"But the one good thing most of us have, anyway, is a good suit, because it's the best 18 coupons' worth," was all my neighbor could produce as comment. "Now our undies are in such a state after seven years, who has 18 left out of our quota for another?"

But the last dress was the last straw. Advertised as the newest thing—a kick-back to the 1920's—it showed dress, hat, coat, shoes, gloves and handbag in the same soft but original shade.

"Eleven, 22, 40, 43 — it's hopeless," said the little woman in black as she tried to add up the coupon value of the outfit. "Nobody in the world would have coupons for that. And without the gloves, or the shoes, well, the whole effect is spoiled. Stick to black, I suppose we'll have to, or greige, or beige or something equally dreary." Good morning."

Montreal, Nov. 2 — (CP) — A 40-room house owned by N. L. C. Mather burned to the ground yesterday at St. Genevieve, Montreal suburb. A three-car garage adjoining also was destroyed. Damage was placed at $200,000.

A watchman, who saw flames in the basement, called St. Genevieve voluntary fire-fighters who laid 1,000 feet of hose to the nearby Back River. Montreal fire department aided later.

The home had been under a remodeling project, and the extra wings and a garage had recently been constructed.

Start Now To Fight Cold Weather Ills.

Many people dread the cold weather season because they look forward to bronchial troubles or lingering colds.

Serious colds seldom come to persons whose blood is rich and red and general health good.

So why not begin now to fortify your system against such ills. Rich blood is the best of germicides and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does certainly help to make the blood rich and nourishing.

It does this by supplying the mineral tonics and vitamin B_1 from which nature supplies nutrition to the blood and nervous system.

Washington, Nov. 4 —(AP)— The United States today signed an extensive five-year treaty of "friendship, commerce and navigation" with the embattled Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

State department officials familiar with the negotiations said emphatically that conclusion of the pact at this time is not a move to strengthen Gen. Chiang's National Government in its virtual civil war with the Chinese Communists.

It has no political significance whatever, these officials told a reporter.

The bulky 10,000-word document will become effective when it is ratified by the United States Senate and the Chinese legislative Uyan.

It is so-called "mutuality" treaty, which guarantees Chinese individuals and business firms the same rights in the United States as American individuals and corporations have in China, and spells out those rights in detail.

American officials said the treaty was needed among other reasons to wipe out the last vestiges of so-called "extra-territoriality" under which the United States exercised certain legal privileges in China which it did not grant Chinese or any other foreigners on American soil.

Further Evidence Of Abnormally Warm Weather

Further evidence of the abnormally mild weather experienced throughout the month of October was reported by market vendors on Saturday when one told of picking wild strawberries and another displayed bouquets of pansies which would have been a credit to a flower garden two months earlier.

Mr. T. W. Bamford, market gardener, displayed the pansies, the petals of which were especially large and with exquisite coloring.

Mr. Bedford, market gardener from Prince Edward county, told of picking wild strawberries at Point Traverse during the week. No frost had yet been felt in this district, it was stated, with green tomatoes still in perfect condition appearing on the vines.

Kirk Case Baffles North Bay Police

North Bay., Nov. 4 (CP) — On October 4, 1940, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk bade their friends in Sudbury goodbye, filled their car with gas and oil and started for Winnipeg. They have not been seen since.

The case is unique in Canada's police files. Investigators learned that the couple hired a housekeeper for their four children in North Bay, intending to visit Mrs. Kirk's mother in Winnipeg and return with her. They stopped at the Sudbury home of Jack Newstead, a business associate, and made an appointment with him for October 21 at Sault Ste. Marie. The appointment was never kept.

When mail forwarded to the Kirks at Winnipeg was returned, Newstead went to the police. He informed them of the broken appointment, and said they had planned to cross by ferry at Sault Ste. Marie into the United States and cross back into Canada at some western point. The ferry was checked—the couple had not registered there.

Police checked every bridge and every guard rail between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, but there was no evidence that a car had smashed through. Rivers, streams and lakes along the roadway were dragged, but no bodies were found.

On May 7, 1941, the dismembered body of a woman was found in a Sault Ste. Marie junk yard, but examination by medico-legal experts proved it was not Mrs. Kirk.

Three months later, fishermen at Red Cedar Lake, 40 miles north of North Bay, found strands of what looked like human hair tangled on one of their hooks. When experts at Toronto proved the hair to be human, police redoubled their dragging efforts in the lake—some places 300 feet deep but later abandoned the search.

Walter Malone said townspeople complained about the setting and fraternity and sorority houses using liquor themes in their decorations would be disqualified automatically in future contests.

Leafs Fall From Unbeaten Class as Boston Bruins Take Them 5-0 on Saturday Night

Chicago Hawks Also Break Boston's Win Streak; Wings and Rangers Break Even

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Like a good handicapper, the rigorous travel demanded by the National Hockey League's lengthy schedule levelled off the race during the weekend and the last two teams tumbled from the ranks of the undefeated.

First to fall was the Maple Leafs at Toronto, beaten 5-0 by Boston Bruins Saturday night after winning three and tying three in six starts. A 1,900-mile road trip that took them to Chicago, Montreal and back home for their third game in four days left Leafs no match for the rugged Bruins.

The same Bruins, updefeated in winning two and drawing four matches, tasted a like fate when their train trip to Chicago ended in a 5-3 defeat by the Black Hawks Sunday night.

Leafs Still in Front

The Leafs remain in front, but with only a single-point lead over Boston. Next come Rangers at 1 Montreal Canadiens, each a point lower down, and Chicago and Detroit are tied for the cellar just four points behind the leaders.

The New York-Detroit series saw hometown fans made happy in each city. There were 15,880 at Madison Square Gardens Saturday night to see their Rangers win 7-4 while 13,250 Detroiters turned out as the Red Wings squared matters with two third period goals and a 3-1 triumph.

There were four two-goal scorers at New York, with Church Russell, Bryan Hextall and Tony Leswick each bagging a brace for Rangers and Adam Brown contributing a pair for the losers. Veteran Neil Colville tallied New York's other goal and Roy Conacher and Pat Lundy each added one for Detroit.

Last period Detroit counters by Billy (The Kid) Taylor and rookie defenceman Al Dewsbury nipped the Rangers in the return engagement. They came after Tony Leswick nullified Eddie Bruneteau's second-period tally for Detroit

Horeck Broke Deadlock

At Chicago 17,685 fans cheered their Black Hawks to victory after Boston knotted the count 3-3 in the final period. Pete Horeck broke the deadlock at 9:46 and Alex Kaleta added the clincher.

Ken Smith had pulled Boston even the first time after Doug Bentley's opening goal and Bobby Bauer and Johnny Gee each scored for Bruins after Bill Mosienko tallied twice to give the Hawks a 3-2 edge.

The Bruins disappointed 14,971 fans at Toronto by adding two goals each in the last two periods after Bobby Bauer's opening counter. Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart, Bill Cowley and Ken Smith were the scorers.

Cinderella Horse Of Australia Will Never Race Again

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Melbourne, Nov. 4 (CP)—Bold type on newspapers' front pages told today how time ran out on Australia's Cinderella horse.

In Sydney and Melbourne, racing writers splashed the story of mighty Bernborough, which broke down Saturday in the MacKinnon Stakes after building a $100,000 bankroll in 17 starts since last December.

Women wept openly as the former tramp horse hobbled off Flemington course here with ligament and bone injuries in a front leg. Veterinarians said the seven-year-old bay may be saved for stud duty but will never race again.

Nobody noticed that a horse named Flight won the MacKinnon. All eyes were on the horse that should have won it, the "Toowoomba Terror" which rocketed from bush tracks to become the idol of shilling and penny bettors as Australia's greatest since Phar Lap.

The Sydney Telegraph said a loose clod of turf caused the champion to stumble, but a Melbourne correspondent reported the track was "like a bowling green" where Bernborough floundered in the weight-for-age-race.

The strapping stallion was attempting his first race since his defeat last month in the Caulfield Cup, when he charged from last place in a 27-horse field to finish fifth at 1 1-2 miles under 150 pounds.

Before that he had won 15 straight, one better than Phar Lap's longest undefeated sequence and a record surpassed by only three horses—Ajax with 18 and Desert Gold and Gloaming with 19 apiece.

Bernborough suffered only one defeat since his reinstatement by the Queensland Turf Club, which barred him because of an alleged "ringer" episode as a two-year-old.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit's Billy (The Kid) Taylor picked up a goal and two assists in two weekend Red Wings games to boost his National Hockey League scoring total to 12 points and strengthened his first place hold. Clubmate Roy Conacher scored a goal and was awarded two assists to take sole possession of second place with five goals and three assists for eight points. Maurice Richard of Montreal was idle and dropped from second to third spot with his seven points, one more than five other players grouped for fourth position.

CAMPBELLFORD CHEESE BOARD IS DISBANDED FOR THE SEASON

Campbellford, Nov. 2 — When some district factories turned down a Cheese Produces' Association plan for co-operative marketing through the association, Campbellford Cheese Board Thursday disbanded for the year.

The co-operative marketing plan was suggested by S. L. Joss, of Belleville, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, and carried by a vote of 11 to 8. However, when dissenting salesmen refused to join in the move, the board dissolved and producers were told to sell their cheese wherever they chose.

OSHAWA, RANGERS AND ST. MICHAEL'S WIN OPENERS

Junior "A" O.H.A. Season Will be Faster Than Last Year as Teams Strengthen

By The Canadian Press

The hockey season got under way in earnest Saturday for teams of the O.H.A.'s Junior A. circuit and when the night was over all 10 clubs had seen action.

Oshawa Generals on home ice took a clean-cut 10-3 victory over Toronto Marlboros, Galt Red Wings pleased a hometown crowd by overwhelming Hamilton 13-0, Toronto Young Rangers shaded St. Catharines Falcons 8-7 on the Flock's home ice, and Toronto St. Michael's Majors whitewashed Windsor Spitfires 15-0

Don Bauer, Oshawa's holdover pivot ice from last season, ran in three goals in a row in the third period, Chuck Blair also got a trio, and Phil Samis, Eric Pogue, Johnny Millard and Whitey Cameron scored one apiece. Defencemen Raglan and Hosking and Mac McLaughlin each tallied once for Marlboroughs.

With both teams shorthanded in the 12th minute of the first period, Blair broke away to score the first goal and team-mates added two more before the frame ended. After that, Oshawa was never headed.

Majors Handed Out

Eight Red Wings shared Galt's scoring honors. Anderson, Scott, Tkachuk, Bert Giesebrecht and Uniac each drove in two and Bruce Giesebrecht, Glover and Mineault got one goal each.

Wally Samanski scored twice for Toronto in the hard-fought Young Rangers-Falcons encounter, and team-mates Gord Cruickshank, Pete Crawford, Don Ashbee, Billy Ringer and Jack Anderson each added a tally. Falcon's fast-skating Eric Unger slammed in three goals, Bob Twaddle two and Bob Wood and Billy Frick each a single.

The middle period was spiced by four hot scraps and Bob Moy, George Drysdale, Harry Pidherny, and Bill McLernon drew a major each. Bob Wood got two majors. Minors were imposed on Unger, Anderson and Bolton in the same frame.

Worked Overtime

Goalie Monty Roberts worked overtime for Windsor but could not turn aside Toronto sharpshooting as Spitfires, making their debut in the Junior A circuit, went down before the smart, fast-skating St. Mike's crew.

Centreman Rudy Migay tallied three times to lead the scoring parade and Ray Hannigan, Bob Paul, John McLellan, Ed Sandford, Fleming Mackell got two each. Bill Ford and Warren Winslow scored the others.

Also at the weekend, President C. E. Campbell of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association announced in Sydney, N.S., approval of the transfer of Richard Gamble, star of last year's Moncton Wheelers, to Oshawa Generals of the O.H.A. He played for Oshawa Saturday.

O.H.A. Senior A teams play tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens with Owen Sound meeting Toronto Staffords. At the same time St. Mike's go up against Stratford in Stratford and Barrie takes on Hamilton in the Ambitious City.

Full Probe Is Ordered

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 2—(AP)—United States army headquarters announced Friday night that "in view of recent press accounts which have brought the name of Maj.-Gen. James M. Bevins into the Kronberg jewel case as an alleged recipient of certain items, the Inspector General of U.S.F.E.T. has been directed to make a complete investigation of this matter."

U.S.F.E.T. means United States Forces, European Theatre.

Col. Jack W. Durant testified Wednesday that Gen. Bevans had "accepted" a silver pitcher from Kronberg Castle, similar to one received by Maj. David F. Watson of Burlingame, Calif., who was convicted yesterday of conspiracy and receiving stolen property and sentenced to three years in prison.

Durant now is awaiting trial for complicity in the theft of the $1,500,000 Hesse family jewels. Durant's wife, W.A.C. Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant, was convicted at an earlier trial and sentenced to five years in prison.

MILLS GIVEN ONLY OUTSIDE CHANCE TO BEAT BAKSI

Non-Title Match Will be Fought in Harringay Arena Tuesday Night

By ED CREACH

London, Nov. 4 — (AP)—British sports writers took an astonished look at Joe Baksi's shoulders today, cocked an admiring ear at his grammar and concluded that the former Pennsylvania coal miner was a Gene Tunney-in-the-making.

They gave Freddy Mills, British welterweight champion, only an outside chance of beating Baksi when they meet in a scheduled 15-round non-title match tomorrow night — Guy Fawkes night — in Harringay Arena.

"Baksi has more dynamite in his right hand than Guy Fawkes stored under the Houses of Parliament," said one scribe after watching the 24-year-old Kulpmont, Pa., lad bat five sparring partners around.

Whitey Mimstein's Madison Square Garden English delights Britons. Baksi's trainer wowed the press by remarking that there was plenty of lettuce in the fight business — and when I say lettuce I don't mean peanuts, I mean cake — you know, pork chops."

But Baksi, who didn't get around to school until he was 10, speaks the King's English "remarkably well for an American," one writer said handsomely. "He does not use wisecracks or the idioms characteristic of American boxers who visit this country," reported another.

John Macadam wrote in the News-Chronicle a sentence that the boys in the hard coal belt will find hard to believe: "Baksi sprinkled his after-bath conversation with 'My deah good fellow,' 'I shawn't,' 'I beg your pawdoh,' and 'Cheehs.' "

Along with his Tunney - like qualities, Joe Weighs 212 pounds — at least 28 more than Mills — and a lot of it is in his shoulders and forearms.

"Freddy likes them big," said Mills' manager, Ted Broadribb, not too loudly.

Baksi has a half-promise of a fight with Bruce Woodcock if he disposes of Mills, who has been beaten by Woodcock.

Nate Wolfson, Joe's manager, saw Tami Mauriello knock Woodcock out, and he figures Baksi could do it in about two rounds.

"TONY" ACERRA TO MEET PROSSER IN OPTIMIST SHOW

Heavyweight Bout Will Highlight Card Packed With Stars

The fight card slated for Hume Arena next Wednesday night shapes up as one of the best of the season. There will be eight action packed bouts and, to all appearances, they are all very evenly matched. The bouts are being staged by the Optimist Club of Belleville and all profits will be used in the furtherance of boys' work in the city.

Headlining the show will be Belleville's popular heavyweight, "Tony" Acerra who will tangle with Keith Prosser of London, Ontario. Prosser is no setup for the local boy. In their last meeting, which was in Toronto not too long ago, Prosser gained the verdict but only after both men had been on the canvas. Acerra claims he can lick Prosser and he will be given the chance Wednesday night. It should be a real knock 'em down and drag 'em out affair by the looks of it. Actually, it's a real test for Acerra and will serve as a yardstick as to just what success he will meet with when he tangles with the better boys in the business.

The semi-final too, should be a dandy. It brings together Trenton's Glen Dafoe and "Joey" Cardinal of Oshawa. Dafoe is well known to local fight fans. His willingness to mix it with anyone has made him a favorite with lovers of the swat pastime. In Cardinal, Dafoe will be meeting a fighter with not too much experience but what he lacks in experience, he makes up in ability. He's a clever boy with his "dukes" and should make things very interesting for the boy from Trenton.

Several local fighters will appear on the card as well as others from Toronto and Oshawa. Referees will include Harry Myles, British Columbia lightweight champion of last year, Don Mogard, the current amateur heavyweight sensation from Toronto and Mark Storms.

ARMY AND NOTRE DAME READY FOR CLASH SATURDAY

Teams Untied and Unbeaten This Year Meet for Collegiate Title

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—The decks have been cleared and it's Army against Notre Dame in the game of games for the United States collegiate football championship next Saturday in New York.

Both of these all-conquering elevens—along with Georgia and U.C.L.A., the only remaining unbeaten and united major teams left in the country—fired their final shots last Saturday for the battle of the century by blasting down willing but unable foes.

Army rolled to its seventh victory of the year and its 25th over three seasons by whipping West Virginia's Mountaineers 19-0 at West Point while the Irish humbled hapless Navy 28-0 before 65,000 fans in Baltimore.

Notre Dame's Subway Alumni will be out in full force in the hopes of seeing the Irish avenge their two humiliating defeats of 1944 and '45. The cadets, smarting under a long series of defeats to Notre Dame, snowed under the Irish 59-0 in '44 and 38-0 last season.

Buried under the attention paid to those two ancient rivals, were the smashing performances of U.C.L.A. and Georgia and the first defeats of Pennsylvania, Harvard, North Carolina, Oregon and Northwestern. The Uclans maintained their perfect record last Friday night by massacring the Gaels of St. Mary's 46-20 while Georgia smashed Alabama's Rose Bowl champions 14-0.

READY TO PAY DEBT TO SOCIETY GIVEN TWO-YEAR TERM

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 2 (AP)—A plea of guilty of embezzling about $64,000 brought a two-year prison sentence to Richard E. Ward, Jr., who said—"I made a grave mistake and I am ready to pay my debt to society." Police said Ward had taken the money from the Liberty National Bank and Trust Company, for about three or four years and had used it for "high living and poker playing."

Toronto Argos Win Big Four Title by Defeating Allouettes When McCance Misses Convert

Squad Will Meet Either Montreal or Ottawa in Grey Cup Playdowns

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There still remained one hazy spot today in the Canadian football play-off picture — whether Montreal Alouettes or Ottawa Rough Riders will garner the second post-season-play spot in the Big Four.

A seven-game grid weekend determined two league champions and the four play-off entrants in a third loop, but left to conjecture — and next Saturday's schedule —naming of Toronto Argonauts' opponents for the Big Four title. The wind-up schedule calls for the Montrealers to visit Argos while Riders, hot on payoff path, are at home to the luckless Hamilton Tigers.

Meanwhile in the west, Winnipeg Blue Bombers made ready to bid once more for the Grey Cup and Canadian grid supremacy. The Bombers, still smarting from the sting of a 35-0 lacing in last year's cup final against Toronto Argos, made a back-to-the-wall surge in the final minutes of their battle against Calgary Stampeders. Ringing up a 12-0 victory, they took the two-game, total-point series 30-21 at Winnipeg.

And in the east, Windsor Rockets' bid for the O.R.F.U. play-offs was doubly crushed. The Rockets dropped a 17-5 decision to Toronto Balmy Beach at home Saturday and then had a protest against Beaches thrown out of a league executive meeting at Hamilton Sunday.

Playoff Berths Decided

That left Toronto Indians, Toronto Beaches, Hamilton Wildcats and Sarnia Imperials to battle for O.R.F.U. honors with the first sudden-death semi-final at Toronto Friday night when both Toronto entries meet. Sarnia travels to Hamilton next Saturday for the other semi-final.

In the Intercollegiate Football Union, University of Western Ontario Mustangs snaffled their 3rd consecutive crown by keeping the strong University of Toronto Blues at bay to the tune of 15-6 while running their victory string to 14 straight.

At Montreal, the Alouettes missed making a Big Four playoff spot by a whisker when big Ches McCance, whose smart booting has accounted for 19 points on touchdown converts, missed a last-second conversion try which would have tied the game and made it a mathematical impossibility for the Rough Riders to overtake them.

Toronto Indians had little difficulty with Sarnia Imperials in the season's finals at Sarnia. The Redshirts made it 27-16 on touchdowns by Ross McKelvey, Jack Gray, Fred Kijek and Murray Bulger, three of them converted by Annis Stukus and the other by Doug Pyzer, as well as a field goal by Stukus. Ike Norris was the Imps' big man with two majors. Joe Woodcock scored the other with Galloway converting.

Protest Tossed Out

A Windsor protest against Beaches' use of Bill Vogt earlier in the season was tossed out by a league meeting Sunday and Rockets packed their togs for the year.

Western's gridders left nothing to be desired as they pasted the Toronto University line. Bob McFarlane smashed across for a major and kicked three singles. George Turnbull also went for a try with Herb Ballantyne and Curtis adding singles. For U. of T., tallies with a major by Colin Cranham converted by Don Bark.

McGill joined Queen's in the collegiate cellar when they dropped a 14-5 decision to the Tricolor. Doug Heron booted all the Red and White points with a placement and two singles, while Don Milliken and Jim Crothers crossed for majors and kicked singles to account for half-dozen points each. Ted Porter added the other two singles.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George E. Carver, Sports Editor

"Red" Townsend's BCI senior gridders had their first "underlights" experience the other day down Kingston way when they met Regiopolis College in an exhibition tilt. It was a bit of a novelty for the local kids and while they had no alibi for a 15-6 defeat, the brilliancy of the Kliegs set them to some disadvantage. The teams battled to a six-all tie in the first half, then Regi unleashed a bit of power and shoved across nine points to cinch the pastime.

• • •

The field was a sea of mud and was conducive to anything but good football. However the game was a good workout for the Townsend crew in preparation for that important third tussle against Albert College seniors here on Wednesday afternoon.

• • •

According to Phineas Phan and a number of "Mr. Hockeys" we have contacted on the street, this idea of having hockey squads of the city under one administrative head, is meeting with general approval. A consensus of several fans of the city is that it will make for better hockey, more satisfied players and a spirit of co-operation among all players and executives that should augur well for the success of the test.

• • •

And so tomorrow night at the Hume Arena where an open meeting has been called by President Bill Dennis of the new Belleville Hockey Association, there should be an exceptionally fine turnout of players of both intermediate and junior squads as well as fans and others interested in the winter pastime.

• • •

Much may come of the meeting and members of the executive urge that all who can possibly do so, attend the conclave. Much important business is on the agenda and it is desirous that a representative gathering be there. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock sharp. Be there, if you can.

• • •

Milt Schmidt, starry Boston Bruin forward gave ample demonstration on Saturday night, along with pal Porky Dumart that the hockey veteran can come back from the war and show a thing or two to the new crop. The members of the former "Kraut" line flashed a scintillating brand of hockey against the Toronto Maple Leafs and spearheaded their 5-0 shutout to keep the Bruins undefeated and tack the first licking of the season against the fast-travelling Smythemen.

• • •

In all fairness to the Leafs, they appeared to be tired. They lacked the snap and fire of their former battles and it was quite evident that 3 games in four nights and plenty of railroad travel had taken its toll. Add to this injuries, and you have part of the reason for the Saturday duck-egg.

• • •

But there was another factor, too. A gent by the name of Brimsek who had a magnet in his stick and pads. Time after time the young Leafs swarmed around his bailiwick but "Ole Mr. Zero" was impregnable. The Boston goalie played one of the many good games of his career, and he thoroughly deserved the shutout.

• • •

The Optimist Club, one of the city's newest service organizations whose social service work is connected with the boys of the city, are entering the sports realm with a neat boxing card being staged at the Hume Arena Wed. night. The Optimists are a group of live-wire young men of the city, serious about their service work, and thoroughly deserving of all the support that can be given them. Boxing if properly managed and organized will fill a long-felt want in this city, and the Optimist Club as sponsors should go places with their new sports baby. The card is an attractive one and should be productive of some neat leather-pushing.

• • •

Fourteen thousand rain-drenched fans stood up in the dying seconds of play in the Toronto Argos-Montreal Alouettes football classic in Montreal Saturday afternoon and emitted a groan of bitter disappointment that could be heard up here in the wilds of Ontario. Virgil Wagner, Montreal ace had smashed through for a touchdown that brought the score to 9-8. The convert would tie up the pastime. But Les McCance, who had successfully booted twelve placement kicks previously, missed the posts by inches and Argos trotted off the sea of mud victors by that slim one-point margin.

• • •

Saturday's show-down battle between the league's two tied teams, created an all-time box-office record in Canadian football history. More than $20,000 was paid out by the crowd who saw a tremendous battle in a steady downpour that turned the grounds into a near lake. Climaxing the last few Alouette plays was a free-for-all, that broke out among thirty or more fans. It took the gendarmes and ushers fifteen minutes to call a truce.

• • •

Andy O'Brien, Montreal sports writer tells the following story of the Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey on the occasion of his recent visit to Eastern Canada to referee grunt-and-groan sessions.

• • •

"Dempsey," relates O'Brien had completed a referee engagement in Halifax and boarded a train for another grab-and-grunt chore at Moncton. A Montrealer who had known the old Mauler before the war re-introduced himself as they got chatting. An hour or so later, the Montrealer mentioned that a couple of cars loaded with Canadian troops from overseas had been hooked on the rear of the train. They had just gangplanked from the Aquitania and it was suggested that they'd get a big kick out of a visit from Dempsey.

"But, protested Dempsey, "they wouldn't be interested in me—I'm an American."

• • •

"No you're not," said the Montrealer, "Jack Dempsey is an international guy. "Let's go!"

Needless to say, the troops gave Dempsey a hearty and noisy greeting. They also invited him to join them in a little crap game—as if there is such a thing as a "little" crap game.

To cut the story short, Dempsey tried his best to toss losing dice but unhappily broke into rashes of sevens and elevens. He tried to return the money but the lads in khaki would have no part of it.

• • •

"Distribute this among them after I go, please," he whispered, and turned quickly away. The colonel looked at the roll of bills in his hand —Dempsey had left $500... an amount generously greater than he had won!

Such gestures are part-and-parcel of ringdom's all-time Glamor Boy. He's still the same lovable character who rose from the Colorado copper pits to fistic immortality and a multi-millionaire's bankroll.

Of course, he didn't need the $500 any more than H. Goering needs a new hat, but there are plenty with plenty who wouldn't have handed it back—and in such a nice way.

• • •

Johnny Metras' Western U. Mustangs held off the threat of the Toronto Varsity's Blue and White under rain-sodden skies on Saturday and copped the Intercollegiate title by a 15-6 score before 19,000 fans. The Blues held the Wild Horses to a 7-6 score up to half time but the bangtails from London in the smoke raced away with 7 third quarter points to grab the game and the title.

• • •

The Golden Gaels of Queen's University pulled a surprise win over the Big Red Team from McGill on Saturday defeating them 14-5 for their only victory of the season. Jim Crothers sparked the Tricolor attack.

Montreal, Nov. 4 (CP) — Tho' you can't prove it by the weather, the skiing season is just around the corner. It must be, because that friendly squabbling has started again between the devotees of the old, reliable and regular form of instruction and the new parallel technique.

Luggi Foeger, one of the instructors in the Laurentian region of Quebec, came up last week with an appeal for a uniform method of instruction throughout Canada.

His point is that the newer, short-cut method may be all right in the east where things aren't quite so rugged, but when the skiier steps into the Alpine-like altitudes and the breath-taking swoops of the ski runs in the Rockies, he needs to know all the tricks in the books.

"We musn't let our students get lost when they get out there," he offered, somewhat ominously.

Whether Barnum was right or not depends on what you personally think of the "rasslin" game. But Matchmaker Eddie Quinn has made quite a success of the thumping thespian business here and has made Montreal about the last major stronghold of the grunt and grimace for gain gamins. Now New York is staging a revival of sorts and the word is Quinn has an offer to transfer his allegiance to Manhattan matdom.

Gerard Cote, Canada's top marathon runner and one of North America's best, says he has turned down an offer to turn professional. He wants a crack at the next Olympics in Canada's colors. .. Looks as though professional basketball will get quite a toehold in Canada. Now a loop is being formed on the Pacific Coast, with Vancouver as the Dominion entry.

BACK OF HOCKEY VICTORIES

HOCKEY equipment really "takes a beating" in the "hot" incidents of every game of big time hockey. Fast skating, instant turns, collisions, spills and immediate stops impose terrific strains on skates and shoes.

The failure of a skate or shoe may cost the game, or the trophy, so championship players use C.C.M. Matched Sets and take no chances.

The Montreal Canadiens won the world's Professional Championship, the "Stanley Cup," with C.C.M. Matched Skating Sets on every player.

The Calgary Stampeders won the Canadian Senior Amateur Championship, the "Allan Cup," with C.C.M. Matched Skating Sets on every player, but one, and all players used C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks.

The Winnipeg Monarchs won the Canadian Junior Amateur Championship, the "Memorial Cup," with C.C.M. Matched Skating Sets on every player, but one, and C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks in the hands of every player.

And so goes the story of amateur and professional hockey in Canada and the United States — actual check shows over 95% of the players used C.C.M.'s.

In selecting hockey equipment for yourself or others be guided by the preference of the champions and choose C.C.M. Matched Skating Sets and C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When hands get sunk for Kin E. Klunk, he thinks the rules are kidding. He never blames it on his plays. He blames it on the bidding.

Comes a letter containing the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠9 8 5 3
♥Q 7
♦8 5 3
♣A 7 4 2

WEST
♠A K
♥9 8 4 2
♦Q 10 6
♣K J 10

♠4
♥J 10 5 3
♦K 9 7 4 2
♣9 5 3

SOUTH
♠Q J 10 7 6 2
♥A K 6
♣Q 8 6

South became the declarer at a contract of four spades. He got a diamond lead from west and was defeated one trick. It seems that opponents took two club tricks and two top trumps.

Now south wants to know if there was something wrong with the bidding. He thinks a hand like that should stop at three spades. Especially with two missing tops in trumps.

My answer is that this deal should end at a game contract of four spades. It belongs there. There is enough count there. This is how the bidding should go:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Dbl.	2 S	Pass
4 S	Pass	Pass	Pass

South has seven tricks (high cards and shorts), five high cards (aces, kings, queens), three sure tricks (diamond ace and heart A K). For his opening of one he needs only five-four-two.

The double by west is simply a signal to show a hand that could have opened. Some day I will tell you more about defensive bids.

To respond with an assist to two spades, north needs three items. They are adequate support for that suit, three tricks, among which are two high cards. He has exactly that.

South thus learns of three tricks in north. With seven tricks in his own hand, south sees ten. These are enough to go to four spades. Sure they are. No doubt about it.

Declarer can take ten tricks no matter what lead he gets from west. All he has to do is see how. Can you?

172,773 FANS WATCH 5 GAMES IN PRO. LEAGUE

Three Teams Tied for Eastern Lead and Chicago Ahead in West

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)— National Football League records toppled yesterday as a total of 172,773 fans watched five games that left Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York tied for the eastern lead and Chicago Bears retaining a one-game advantage in the western half.

Steve Van Buren of Philadelphia played less than five minutes against the Giants, the erstwhile leaders, but succeeded in scoring two touchdowns that fired the eagles to a 24-14 triumph.

The Bears, who had been upset in New York a week ago, capitalized on a Breen Gay fumble to whip the Packers 10-7, a loss that probably doomed Curly Lambeau's title hopes.

Pittsburgh actually was tied with New York and Philadelphia in games won and lost after its 14-7 victory over Washington. However the Steeles had a tie in their record, having played one more game than either the Eagles or Giants. The circuit disregards ties and figures standings only on win-loss percentages.

Bob Waterfield enjoyed a field day at the expense of the hapless Detroit Lions, figuring in all but six of the Los Angeles' points in the Rams' 41-20 romp.

Meanwhile Cleveland's "unbeatable" Browns took another one on the chin, suffering their second straight all-America conference defeat 17-16, on a field goal by Los Angeles' Joe Aguirre in the final 20 seconds of play.

The result, coming on top of Saturday's 27-14 victory by San Francisco over Buffalo, reduced the Brown's advantage in the western division to a single game over the 49ers.

Ray Flaherty's New York Yankees downed Miami Seahawks 24-21.

Brooklyn disposed of Chicago's Rockets Saturday night 21-14, but the Dodgers have only a forlorn chance of catching the Yanks.

United States Hockey League

(By The Canadian Press)

The second-place Kansas City Pla-Mors defeated Fort Worth Rangers 6-5 Sunday night in the United States Hockey League, and Frank Porteous of Omaha Knights led his team to a 5-3 victory over St. Paul Saints.

Kopak with two markers led the Rangers in a first-period goal spree with Frank Eisenzoph, Ritson and Hal Brown marking up the remainder of the Fort Worth tallies.

The second frame was all Kansas, however, with Fowler counting twice and Silvestri, Olmstead, Butler and Platz knocking home markers for the victory.

Porteous scored three goals and made an assist for Omaha. Bernie Strongman and Forbes counted the other two Knights tallies. For St. Paul Pecket, Dill and Nordin were credited with goals.

THE SHEIK BADUI MEETS RUSSIAN HERE FRI. NIGHT

The main bout at the Hume Arena next Friday night will have a distinctly international flavor, according to Manager Walt Gerow. He has engaged no others than the Sheik Emir Badui the clever Arabian to match his speed and agility against the Russian steam roller Kola Kwarianni.

The Sheik, although he was defeated in his initial effort for the British Empire title is not the least bit disgraced and he is out to show that he can still be considered as a contender by consenting to take on the burly Don Cossack from the land of tomaviches, samovars, vodka and caviar.

It will be a test of speed and agility against brute strength and the outcome should be well worth seeing.

Big Sandy O'Donnell who roughed up Natie Brown only to see the foe disqualified last Friday night will match his tactics against those of Henry Piers, Dutch Giant, who was some shakes in the land of dykes and tulips before crossing the big creek. Piers is big and strong and knows a lot of wrestling answers. But O'Donnell can also throw on the rough stuff and this semi-go should prove almost as interesting an attraction as the main bout.

In the preliminary popular Pat Flanagan meets the formidable Natie Brown, whose pugilistic antics cost him the match last week and that little get-together rounds out one of the most promising cards ringed here in some time.

EARTHQUAKE FELT

Weston, Mass., Nov. 4 — (AP) — A moderately strong earthquake about 4,380 miles south of Boston, probably in northern Chile, was recorded at 2:43:12 p.m. E.S.T. yesterday on the Weston College seismograph, Rev. Daniel Linehan, S. J., reported today. The disturbance lasted for three hours, Father Linehan said.

AT THE McCARTHY — Humphrey Bogart and Ann Sheridan are starred in Warner Bros.' "It All Came True," which starts tomorrow at the McCarthy Theatre, along with "Pride of the Bluegrass," with Gantry, famous blind horse.

Sub-Freezing Cold And Gale Hit Citrus Areas in S. California

Los Angeles, Nov. 4 — (AP)— Sub-freezing temperatures came to Southern California citrus areas today, on the heels of a 65-mile-an-hour gale which raked the sometimes sunny southland during the weekend, causing damage running into thousands of dollars. Ranchers said the winds blew some fruit to the ground, scarred others. Planes were damaged at several airports; a dozen cabin cruisers were sunk at their moorings or tossed ashore at beaches; the main tent of the San Fernando Valley Fair was blown down, injuring one woman.

Won't Have to Sell Ranch

Los Angeles, Nov. 2 — (AP)— Sonny Tufts and his wife, Barbara, won't have to sell their ranch after all. A Superior judge has ruled that the farm is community property, and cannot be ordered disposed of to satisfy a $30,000 judgment obtained against the actor's wife by a New York schoolteacher, Jean McClain, following a traffic accident.

General Duty Nurse

By Lucy Agnes Hancock

lly had been transferred to K. She never quite knew how it had happened. She had been hoping for a change from night work and welcomed the idea of ward duty, especially K which was one of the women's wards and extremely easy. K was given over mostly to minor and convalescent cases. She had forgotten about Prunella Brown until upon walking the length of the long ward she felt the unhappy gaze of a pair of black eyes watching her. There was pleading and a touch of misery in their velvet depths that went straight to Sally's heart. She paused beside the bed and said:

"I remember you, Prunella. You're Mrs. Hutchinson's cook. I was in Receiving a week ago when she brought you here. How are you feeling this morning?"

"Not so good, Miss — not so good," the woman muttered, her voice a singsong moan. "Is Mis' Angela come to see me or is she phome to know is I worse or is I dead?"

Sally smiled, "I wouldn't know that, Prunella. But you're not worse and you certainly are far from dead. You wouldn't be in this ward if you were either one or the other. You're going to be all right. But tell me just what troubles you? Where do you feel bad?"

The woman closed her eyes for a moment and her face puckered as if she were about to cry. She clasped both hands over her heart and moaned: "Here — right here. I hurt, an' they's a big lump in my throat."

"Would it help to tell me about it, Prunella?" Sally asked gently. "Perhaps I can help you. You're unhappy, aren't you?"

The woman nodded and dug a black fist into each eye. "It's my own fault, Miss — I spoil' that young'un an' now she's got outta han'—wreckin' her own life an' Massa Johnny's too. Tole 'im t'ggit out, she did, an' meant it. I love that man, Miss—he's good an' he worships th' groun' that gal walks on. I tole her so an' she turn' on me—tole me t' git out, too, an' I ain' never live' no place 'cept with Mis' Angela. I bettah die, I guess—ain' no place for me in this worl'."

It was John Hutchinson who came to see Prunella, bringing with him flowers, fruit and, best of all, a feeling of being wanted—a proof of affection for which the old woman was yearning. Sally left them together although she wished she could have heard the conversation that went on between them. He sought her out before he left.

"I've been out of town for a few days and only just now heard of Prunella's hospitalization. Take good care of her, Nurse," he told her. "She's very dear to both my wife and me and I mean to put a stop to all this nonsense at once."

"Good for you!" Sally cried, before she thought and blushed and apologized. The young man laughed.

"That's all right," he said boyishly. "Prunella told me she had confided in you. My wife and I haven't been married very long—less than a year. We have a lot of adjusting to do."

"She's very beautiful," Sally told him.

"And very spoiled," he replied. "Let me know when Prunella can be moved and I'll come for her myself."

"It's better that she remain right here at present, Mr. Hutchinson," Sally told him. "Her blood pressure is still much too high and we are keeping her on a diet—"

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed in horror. "That's punishment! Why, Prunella eats all the time—".

"I can believe that," Sally said.

• •

Sally went back to Prunella and was surprised to see the change in her appearance. She was humming softly to herself, her hands moving in time to the music. She grinned broadly when she saw the nurse.

"Ain' Massa Johnny th' nices' man you ever see, Miss? I jes' love that man. He goin' make ever'thin' all right. Mis' Angela goin' come roun' an' they'll be jes' like a pair o turtle doves."

Later the resident stopped her as she was busy in the other end of the ward. "What happened to our fat lady in the last bed?" he asked. "She has certainly recovered rapidly. Do you use magic in your nursing, Maynard? Her pressure is nearly normal this morning and P.T.R. entirely so.

"She had a caller, Doctor," Sally told him. "The poor soul was lonesome and unhappy. She felt everyone had deserted her. After 'Massa Johnny' came she perked right up. All's right with her world. It's certainly wonderful what a little love and attention can do for some people, isn't it?"

"Love therapy is very potent, Maynard," the resident agreed. "It very often works where every thing else fails. It certainly has in her case. As far as I can see there is no reason for her remaining here much longer. Why not get in touch with her people and have them take her home?"

"Fine!" Sally said. "Mr. Hutchinson promised to come for her any time she could leave. I'll get in touch with him at once. Prunella will be happy to go. She doesn't like dieting."

The doctor smiled. "So she said. Well, we can use the space she has so amply filled."

The bed Prunella had occupied for so short a time was made ready for its new occupant. She arrived during the night so that when Sally went on duty next morning she found Miss Bowden—a thyroid case—an ex-schoolteacher, crocheting like mad while she read her daily portion of Scripture. Sally stood and watched her for a moment until the patient closed the Bible and placed it on the stand beside the bed. Then the nurse spoke.

"Don't you have to count and watch while you're doing that?"

"Not this pattern," the patient answered. "I could do it with my eyes shut. Are you the nurse here?"

"Yes," Sally told her. "I'm Sally Maynard, Miss Bowden. How are you feeling this morning?"

"Nervous, of course. I shall be greatly relieved when it is all over and I can breathe freely. Have you any idea how miserable a goitre can make one feel, Miss Maynard? I wish I had listened to the family doctor years ago and had it removed when I was young. At my age there is considerable risk, but I can't go on as I have been doing — strangling, choking, panting and fighting for every breath I draw. I was disappointed not to get the semi-private room I wanted; but after seeing you, I am rather glad they were all taken. You look kind and efficient, Miss Maynard, and I am sure Doctor Richards is also."

"Nine, this morning is the crucial hour, they tell me," the woman went on, her fingers holding the shining hook moving in and out of the cotton with amazing speed so that the work grew before the nurse's eyes. "Well, I am prepared for any eventuality." She said it stoically and Sally felt sure she was scared and did what she could to ease the tension.

• •

Dora Bronson came in with a hypo and the patient laid down her work and relaxed. "This is it," her manner said plainly, as she bared her arm for the needle. In a moment the stretcher arrived and she was wheeled out and Sally saw her lips move and then clench as if willing herself to relax yet by the very act increasing the tension. Dora went with her to the O.R. and stood by while Doctor Richards performed the operation that was to bring freedom and happiness to a woman who had suffered long.

It was more than an hour before she was returned to the ward and Sally had begun to wonder if anything untoward had developed. A white, haggard-faced woman was put to bed and Sally thoughtfully placed a screen around her to insure a measure of privacy. That she was suffering was evident and there was little anyone could do to ease the discomfort for the next three or four days. The resident came in and assured them the operation had been a complete success and everything would be all right in a few days. Sally saw Miss Bowden try to smile; but the effort was almost too much and she patted her hand.

"We know it is very painful," she told her. "And now all you have to do is to rest and bear the pain as best you can. Soon you will have forgotten all about it in the joy of recovery. We're going to help you all we can, my dear."

There were tears in the woman's eyes as she returned the pressure of the nurse's fingers.

• •

Doctor Willoughby moved on down the ward. He wished he could have Sally in Pediatrics for a while. Three polio case — past the first stages to be sure; but still needing care and attention. However, the girl had earned a break. She had been in Receiving for two hard weeks and was now on K which had the reputation of being easy; but a lot of women eager to get out and most of them too damned talkative for their own and everyone else's good certainly could be no cinch, to his way of thinking. No doubt she would be shifted to male surgery next although he had a hunch the chief could use her on one of his private cases. Heaven knew some of them were tartars. He sighed and went on, greeting each patient with a word—listening to their troubles with one ear while he examined their charts and checked off those who should be discharged within the next few days. He returned to Sally who still stood beside Miss Bowden.

"Aveduti, Costello and Bardi can get up this afternoon, Maynard," he told her. "Have someone take 'em to the solarium for a while. The two at the end and Mrs. Blake are about ready to go home. You might notify their people. Heavens! Three vacant beds, Maynard! We're in luck."

"Miss Bowden is the only really seriously ill patient we have in K, Doctor Willoughby," Sally reminded him. "B is overcrowded. Why can't some of those patients be transferred over here? Those three beds are all at one end and could easily be screened if necessary. What I'm trying to say, Doctor, is that I haven't enough to do—"

"Wh-at? Will you say that again? Are you quite all right, Sally?" The resident stared at her in amazement. "Well, my dear, now I have heard everything. Yes, I feel sure we can arrange for that transfer and —Well, well, well—" and he turned and hurried away.

Sally thought no more about her talk with Dr. Willoughby and when the three patients from B ward were brought into the ward she was quite ready for them. It was strange or, perhaps not so strange that all three were glad of the change. K had the reputation of being a convalescent ward—no one ever died in that ward.

"Why it was actually like a shot in the arm to me," one newcomer said as she submitted to the nurse's ministrations. "I had grown discouraged. Two months I had lain in that bed with slim prospects of getting out very soon and then this—I feel better already. Now, I am absolutely confident of getting my health back again."

The other voiced much the same sentiment. Margaret Adams met Sally when she left the ward at eight that night and told her that she had certainly started something.

"Sunderlin doesn't seem to be too pleased; but Willoughby and the chief are jubilant. K has always been Sunderlin's pet ward. She started it—interested the Board in it and so on. This sort of knocks her ideas into a cocked hat. The other doctors are crowing as if the idea was their own—they've been complaining of the crowded conditions in some of the other wards and hinted of poor management. Personally, I never could see the reason for that ward in the face of our crowded conditions here. And another thing—many of the women in that ward are here because their friends or sponsors have finagled them a bed there. Some of them would be just as well or better off at home. Doesn't it strike you that way? It must have to make you offer to take on three from B. Gosh, Sally, I doubt if another nurse here would have a registered a kick because they didn't have enough to do."

"I'm sorry if Sunderlin is displeased, Margaret," Sally said somewhat troubled. "I had no intention of being officious—"

"Oh, of course not," a voice broke in and Norma Holden joined them. "You certainly are a swell politician, Maynard," she sneered, her voice trembling with passion. "And just what does it do to the rest of us? Not enough to do indeed! You make me sick! Some of the rest of us are ready to drop from overwork and long hours and you beg for more—not enough to keep you busy. Bah! I hope you get stuck in that ward for a year. Serve you right."

"Shut up, Holden!" Margaret said sharply. "No one asked you to join this conversation. And if Maynard wanted more work that's her affair not anyone else's."

"It is only the work in that particular ward that is light," Sally said quietly beating hard with anger. "I felt that by taking on a few patients from B it would relieve the girls in that ward and wouldn't hurt me. I'm sorry you feel as you do—"

"What is this? A hen convention?" Doctor Hallock joined the trio there at the foot of the stairs leading to the annex and looked from one to the other with interest.

"No," Norma explained quickly "It's a protest. Maynard here, by her artful ways, has succeeded in getting the entire nursing staff in wrong."

Sally turned away and mounted a step but Margaret pulled her back. "That isn't true, Sally. You tell them it isn't."

But Sally shook her head. "It isn't worth it," she said. "I doubt if I could convince Holden and, anyway, it really doesn't matter what anyone thinks."

"There!" Norma cried triumphantly.

"What particular axe have you got to grind?" the young interne asked Norma curiouly.

"No axe," the girl answered. "I'm thinking of the rest of us nurses who are putting in overtime and wearing ourselves out only to have Maynard here complain that she hasn't enough to do and will they please combine B and K so that she can take care of them all."

Doctor Hallock laughed. "Gosh! Did you do that Maynard? Have you asked for more work?"

Sall didn't answer and Margaret explained that what had happened. The young man gazed at Norma in a way that brought a blush to her cheeks. "Just the same," she cried in defence, "she's made it harder for all the rest of us by her cleverness. Only this time Sunderlin isn't too pleased about it. Maybe now some of the rest of us will get a break occasionally." She ran up the stairs and Sally gazed after her with something like wonder in her gray eyes.

"There's a dame to watch, girls," the young man said warningly. "She's poison, I'd hate to have her nurse me when she had a mad on. Don't worry about Sunderlin, Maynard. She's like putty in the chief's hands. After all, what he says goes in this neck of the woods. Right, Maggie?"

"Right—I hope," Margaret agreed and slipped a comforting arm around Sally's slim waist.

"Here wait a minute," he called as the two girls started up the stairs. "You aren't really worried, are you, Sally?"

Sally shook her head. She was too upset to speak and Margaret frowned and waved him on. He turned away, a puzzled look on his pleasant face.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

ASSEMBLY

An atmosphere of excitement reigned i nassembly this morning, and as we passed through the portals we were greeted with many bright posters announcing the teen-agers' Hard Time dance to be held in the gym on November first. There will be a prize for the person who looks as though he has had the hardest time. Josseffeenne (with two f's, four e's, and two n's) will be able to go because the cost is only 25c.

Speaking of money, a total of thirty-three dollars was presented by Stan Hagerman to the students who won Elevator awards last year.

Nora Ellis was in the midst of explaining to the grade niners the wonders and possibilities of the Sadie Hawkins Day tea dance, when a blood-curdling scream was heard and the stage became alive with a teaming mass of frantic males all dressed in the best of Dogpatch tradition. The reason for the excitement, we soon perceived, was due to the fact that several amorous Lower Slobovians of the opposite sex, namely females, were pursuing the handsome Dogpatchers. After being subjected to the use of such subtle methods of persuasion as ropes, shotguns, and ju-Jitsu holds, the gentlemen finally consented to be escorted by the ladies to the ball. Just as Nora was about to face the prospect of attending the dance without a man, a reasonable facsimile in the form of Doug Legate bounded from the audience up on to the stage and flung himself into Nora's arms. Such energy! Mr. Legate must have had a double portion of po'k chops for breakfast.

See you at the dances!

Editor's Note.

In co-operation with the Elevator we have been asked to print the names of the following five ex-service personnel whose addresses are unknown to the Elevator Staff. If anyone has any information regarding these addresses he is asked to contact Boyd Upper as soon as possible.

The names of these men are: Arthur Martin, Wallace Anderson, Jack Fulton, Robert White, C. Clifford.

GIRLS' SPORTS

(By L. R. M.)

Our volleyball tournaments are now drawing to a close with mixed feeling of regrets and rejoicing.

The schedule for the past week was as follows:—

Oct. 18—10B vs 10A—Score 53-29 for 10B, refereed by Jean Scott.

Oct. 29—IXE vs IXF—Score 45-24 for IXE. Referee, Lois Greenleaf.

Oct. 29—IXA vs IXB—Score 45-15 for IXB. Referee, Victoria Ketcheson.

XF really fought hard this year but finally came out as top ones on the volleyball tournaments for grade 10. Nice work there kirls.

As I sit here and gaze through a bleary haze at my fellow students I notice that some were evidently out last night. However, it must have been a special night. Say, did I miss something? How was the game Jean F.?

Well folks there isn't much to write about this week. Oh yes, the Girls' Athletics Club had their first meeting on Thursday. We'll have to wait to find out how that worked out.

BOYS' SPORTS

(By George Ward)

A week ago last Friday, our seniors and St. Mikes' clashed in the second game of the series between the two. The game was played on a wet field (it's a good excuse) on the O. S. D. campus. St. Mikes took the honors with a score of 11 to our 1 point.

On Oct. 28, Monday, the juniors, in their flashy black and red sweaters again scored over the Albert players. Keeping the appearance of a shove and push game, our juniors pushed over 11 points to Albert's 1.

The third game this week was played on the Albert campus between our seniors and the Albert seniors. To everyone's surprise our seniors scored a touchdown and kicked for a couple of points to Albert's lone touchdown totaling a score of 7 to 5. That's the way it should be.

House League—

The first teams to play were Miller's and Watkins' teams. The Watkin players piled up a score of 22 to Miller's team's 8 points.

On October 28, Spafford's team won over Vaughn's team, having the score of 32 to 8.

The last game last week was played by Vaughn's and Watkins' teams. This game seemed to be a pushover for the final score was 42 to 9 for Watkins' boys.

CUFF NOTES

This is November. How quickly the glory of October has faded. The pageantry of another autumn, no lounger flaunts the sky but lies unnoticed beneath the feet of travellers bent against the chilly blasts. October is in the past.

But should we forget October?

October was a golden month, full of joy and the zest of living. It was the month of the harvest moon, the square dance, the hayride. It brought us Thanksgiving Day pumpkin pies, fall fairs, harness races and football games. It filled the woods with its dazzling colors. It purpled the distant hills, put the tang of smoke in the air, and piled the golden stooks of grain in the fields. It brought the sedges of ducks from the north, and, on chilly nights, it silvered the ponds with the first ice.

But of all October's generous gifts, the greatest is Hallowe'en—for Hallowe'en is a magic night, filled with the witches and spirits of childhood. Hallowe'en sets the pulses of little children racing with excitement and anticipation. In the best traditions of make believe, it transforms cherub-faced little boys into scowling monsters, and disguises rosy-cheeked little girls to look like withered old witches. Children who fear the dark surmount their fears, and become nocturnal prowlers, in in October's last night. They venture forth into a world that awaits them with open arms—for Hallowe'en belongs to children.

Subtley and silently time runs out on October. The children shift from their happy choruses and noislessly slip home. The streets slowly become deserted. Midnight tolls the death of October. The wind springs up and stirs the leaves. The trees sway in sorrowful rhythm the requiem of October. Hallowe'en is gone. October is gone. This is November.

S. B. P. J.

Dropping in on rehearsal this week we find another young gentleman in the throes of a proposal. The damsel in question appears to be the same party with whom Broose Blatherwick unsuccessfully tried to tie the knot in the last scene. Apparently Broose spent another session on his knees, however, for he seems to have procured a wife in this scene in the person of Carol Wishart. Also adding to general confusion are Boyd Upper, who and Roothe Blatherwick who portrays Lady Catherine de Bourgh, a thoroughly despicable old battle-axe. To get back to the proposal though, Windy Ragsdale becomes aggravated, frustrated, and twitter-pated by turns, but fails to win the fair Marylo. Does he try again? Will she again reject his offer?

Be sure to read your column next week and see if Act III will spell success for Windy!

By Kilroy. (R. B.).

CAPS CONTINUE TO SET RAPID PACE IN LOOP

Head Division by Wide Margin While New Haven, Hershey Are Tied in East

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals continue to set a rapid pace in the Western Division of the American Hockey League, while in the eastern section New Haven and Hershey are tied for the lead at 15 points apiece.

The Caps stretched their unbeaten streak to eight games during the weekend.

Following their 8-1 trouncing of the Rockets Saturday, the Caps out-skated the Hornets 3-1 last night. Indianapolis piled up a 3-0 advantage before Tod Sloan of the Hornets garnered their lone marker in the third period. Steve Wochy, Lloyd Doran and Tony Licari sparked the Caps' victory with tallies.

Hershey blanked Providence Reds Saturday and battled St. Louis Flyers to a 3-3 deadlock while New Haven beat both the Springfield Indians and Philadelphia.

After the Bears had been trailing 3-1 on Flyer goals by Liscombe and Hec Pozzo with two, Paul Ronty and Mark Marquess whipped two scores into the Flyer cage in the third stanza yesterday to tie the game. Mario scored the first Hershey goal.

The Ramblers handed the Rockets their ninth loss in 10 games last night by scoring a 5-3 triumph. Norm Tustin, Joe Bell, Jack Church, Juzda and Brown scored for New Haven while Prokop, Richard and Shewchuk counted for Philly.

In the remaining games last night, Cleveland Barons fought Buffalo Bisons to a 2-2 standstill and Providence nosed out Springfield 2-1.

Vic Grigg's opening period goal and Johnny Chad's third session marker enabled Reds to down Indians. Chad counted at 13:26, and a little more than two minutes later Roy Sawyer netted for Indians, but Reds held the Indians in check the rest of the way.

Sports Roundup

Hex the Hex

The press box gang at the Garden was rather sad about Bryan Hextall Saturday night . . . the formerly outstanding right wing of New York Rangers—out of hockey last year with a serious liver ailment—just didn't seem to have it anymore against Detroit Red Wings...Then Hex went out and scored two goals in a row... He's still a "Hex" in close to rival goalies

The Worthy Challengers

Elmer Ray and Jersey Joe Walcott meet at Madison Square Garden Nov 15 and the result should determine whether either of the big negro heavyweights is suitable challenger for Joe Louis...Ray beat Lee Savold at Ebbett's Field in his last local outing...Walcott recently was beaten in Jersey by Joe Maxim of Chicago...Smart money figures the Ray-Walcott shindig at even money.

Sports Fever

Bill (N.Y. Journal-American) Corum says that the Army-Notre Dame game would draw 250,000 if there was a big enough stadium around...Bill adds: "or, putting it another way, that the combined seating capacities of the Yankee Stadium, Polo Grounds, Ebbetts Field, Randal's Island Stadium (Polo), the local rave tracks and small neighborhood parks would not be enough to keep fans from being turned away."...Sounds like Derby Day crowds at Epsom.

It Used to be

Which reminds us that the last stadium that size probably was the Circus Maximus in ancient Rome...It held 300,000 and featured racing (chariot), circuses, gladiators and boxing...They say they even had bookies.

PROVINCIAL HOCKEY LOOP

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 4—(CP)—Sherbrooke St. Francois squeezed out a 4-3 win over Conwall Cougars in a Provincial Hockey League game yesterday.

Herbie Carnegie led the Sherbrooke squad with three markers while the other Sherbrooke score was tallied by Cote. Planche, Gardner and Dennison scored for the Cougars.

The first frame was about even with both clubs testing the goalies with hard shots. Herbie Carnegie opened the scoring when he fooled Cornwall's Connie Dion to put the Sherbrooke team one up.

Play was livelier in the middle session with Herbie Carnegie nicking two goals to register first hat trick of the season. Cornwall snipers came to the fore when Planche and Gardner tallied to put the Cougars in the running.

Early in the last period Dennisson scored for the Cougars to tie the game, but Cote sank the winning goal late in the period on passes from Moorehouse and McDougall to give the eastern townships team the game.

Eagles Claw Tigers

Montreal, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Verdun Eagles clawed Victoriaville Tigers 6-2 yesterday in their first home game of the Provincial Hockey League season.

Gerard Gagnon was the big gun of the game with four goals while teammate Jean Pusie nicked a pair. Kenny Hayden and Marcotte tallied the Tiger goals.

The Verdun team got off to a roaring start in the first period on three goals by Gagnon and another by Pusie and the Victoriaville squad seemed able to do little to stem the Verdun rushes.

The second frame was not so one sided, however, the Verduners tallied another goal while the Tigers replied with a tally at 14:27 when Kenny Hayden rifled a hot one past Lessard after Burnett and Bessett had set up the play for him.

Victoriaville tried to whittle down the Verdun lead in the last stanza and after three minutes of play Marcotte barged through the Eagles' defence and whizzed a shot past Lessard.

Gagnon registered his fourth goal of the afternoon as the 15 minute mark for the sixth Verdun goal as the Eagles continued their offensive attacks.

Lachine Wins Easily

Lachine, Que., Nov. 4 —(CP)—Lachine Rapides defeated St. Hycinthe 9-6 yesterday in their first home game of the Provincial Hockey League season.

Swede Paulson, Maher and Perron sniped two goals each for the Rapides while Hebert and B. Lauzon tallied a pair each for the Saints. The Lachine squad took the offensive in the first frame and nicked four goals while the Saints were able to reply with only one marker.

St. Hyacinthe started to catch up with the Lachiners in the middle stanza when Prefointaine and Despleteau scored while the Rapides were able to register only one goal.

The last period proved to be a wide open scoring spree with both clubs blinking the red light frequently. When the final whistle blew the Lachine squad ended up winners with a three goal edge over the Saints.

By The Canadian Press

Fines of $100 to goalkeeper Hec Highton of St. Louis and $50 to Coach Ralph (Bouncer) Taylor of the same club were handed out by President Maurice Podoloff of the American Hockey League—aftermath of a third period free-for-all in the St. Louis-Indianapolis game Oct. 31. Practically all players on both teams had joined in the scramble and it was several minutes before order was restored.

Taylor had permitted goalkeeper Tommy Wilson to take Highton's place in the nets, in violation of the rules, after Highton had been given a match misconduct penalty.

In the United States, National Football League records toppled Saturday as a total of 172,773 fans watched five professional games.

At Alfred, N.Y., University of Toronto opened its cross-country season Saturday by defeating Alfred University Harriers 20-25 over the hilly 4.6-mile Alfred course.

With United States and Australia scheduled to meet at Melbourne Dec. 26-28 in the Davis Cup tennis challenge round, Sydney newspapers have come out with the comment "Australia's prospects for a Davis Cup win are not rosy." Showing of Australian players in practice matches drew the pessimistic comment.

The name of the New York Yankees manager will be announced Tuesday but friends of Yankee boss Larry McPhail say he has confided to pals in Baltimore that Stanley (Bucky) Harris will be the man.

Ken Black of Vancouver was eliminated Saturday by Bobby Riegel of Houston, Tex., 2 and 1 in the quarter finals of the Mexican National Open Amateur Golf championship at Mexico City. Winner was Frank R. Stranahan of Toledo, O.

WINS CLAIM FOR LIBEL

London, Ont., Nov. 4 —(CP)—Football players Benson Andrus Wilson of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, was awarded 63 cents Saturday on his claim for libel against the University's weekly newspaper, the Gazette and sports editor R. J. (Bob) Frewin. The charge was heard by the University's students court.

Wilson brought suit for $4.63 as a result of an article in the college paper which he claimed subjected him to personal embarrassment and ridicule. The article in question referred to the gridder as being "chubby and unable to bend over."

Auctioneer Interrupts Sale to be Married

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 4—(AP)—The daily livestock sale at the Collett Auction House was interrupted while the auctioneer took care of some private business. While 200 friends and buyers looked on, auctioneer Harry Collett was married on the barker's platform to Ruth McKinney. After the ceremony, Collett served refreshments, then continued the auction.

Artist is Adviser To Nigerian King

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 4. (CP)—Donald Friend, 32 year old Australian artist, will return early next year to Ikerra Kingdom, in Nigeria, West Africa, to resume his pre-war job of adviser to King Alowolodu II.

Friend, a promising painter and an official war artist in New Guinea and Borneo, spent two years with Ikerre's young king before the war.

He will return with Edgar Kaufman, Director of Design at the New York Museum of Modern Art, who is interested in native art. Friend will stay on with King Alowolodu about a year after Kaufman finishes his work in a few months .

The Australian artist visited Ikerre in 1938 and was a guest of Alowolodu. He extended a proposed short visit at the native king's request, gave him advice on relations with Britain and helped direct the financial affairs of the 400 square-mile kingdom with its 14,000 inhabitants.

Friend required the service of interpreters at first because neither Alowolodu nor any in his entourage spoke English but he eventually mastered the native dialect.

When war broke out, Friend returned to Australia, joined the army in which he served three years before becoming a war artist.

New Zealand Favors Practical Memorials

Aukland, N.Z., Nov. —New Zealand's government favors the erection of "living" war memorials for the Second Great War—memorials for some practical use to the community, rather than the statues and other monuments which have been favored in the past.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser, has announced that the government intends to subsidize memorials of this type erected by local authorities, although it will not prevent other memorials from being erected if residents prefer them.

Giving an example of what he meant by a "living" memorial, Mr. Fraser cited community centres where people could gather for social, educational, cultural and recreational purposes. The government would subsidize any similar memorials by local communities which gave service to the living and simultaneously were a reminder of the debt owed to the dead. Memorials established by special sections of the community would not be subsidized.

The Prime Minister said that where memorials required materials and labor which at present were pre-empted for the national need for housing construction, work on them could not begin for at least two or three years. This would give time to raise funds and plan carefully.

CANADIANS DONATE 1,400,000 COUPONS

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—Meat ration coupons voluntarily donated by Canadians in the first two weeks of October have made approximately 250,000 pounds of meat available for export to Britain and Europe, the food information committee reported.

On a population basis, Saskatoon and Kitchener led the rest of Canada during the period. The Saskatoon branch of the ration administration reported 15,941 coupons turned in, the Kitchener branch 10,990.

Reports received from 21 out of 31 ration branch offices show a total of 108,574 meat coupons received between Oct. 1 and 15, bringing the cumulative total to more than 1,400,000 coupons donated in the last six months.

Weekend Mishaps Cost Dozen Lives In East Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Weekend accidents took 11 lives in Eastern Canada, reports compiled by The Canadian Press revealed. Five persons died in highway mishaps, bolting horses fatally injured two, one was killed by a train, another was burned to death and one man fell down some stairs.

Two Hamilton area residents were knocked down by automobiles, Catherine M. Marshall, 78, in Hamilton and Frances Henrietta English, 80, near her home at neighboring Ancaster. A car hit John E. Salisbury, 69, of Toronto as he sat on a curb. Seven-year-old Rodrigue Pilon ran into the path of a motorcar near his Rockland, Ont., home. Struck by a car near his home, James N. Messecar, 39, of Waterdown, Ont., died in Hamilton hospital.

Charles Thrasher, middle-aged farmer, died in hospital Saturday from injuries suffered Thursday when a team of horses bolted on his farm near Orillia, and threw him to the ground. Near Bathurst, N.B., Douglas Watson, 37, was trampled to death when a horse he was hitching to a wagon bolted.

Struck down while talking to his wife on the way home from shopping, George Edward Benjamin, 32, of Arnprior, was killed by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at a town crossing Saturday night. Witnesses said warning bells were ringing and the whistle blowing.

At Truro, N. S., 19-months-old Clara Elizabeth Jackson was burned to death Saturday night when fire, blamed on an overturned lamp, destroyed the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson, Truro Negro couple.

John Graham of Toronto died in hospital Sunday of injuries suffered when he fell down a flight of stairs in his home Saturday. Police said he missed a step and fell backward.

Foreign Ministers Head into Fight On Trieste Issue

Molotov Seeking Special Advantages for This Port

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)— The Big-Four Foreign Ministers moved into their second day's work on the eastern European peace treaties amid mounting evidence that Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia will stage a last-ditch fight to gain special advantages for Yugoslavia at the Adriatic port of Trieste.

The U. N. Assembly appeared to be headed for a wide open fight over selection of a permanent home. One report was that the Russians might reverse their former stand against a site in western Europe to favor Geneva, old League of Nations headquarters, as a home.

Persons familiar with the views of many delegations to the United Nations Assembly and the council of Foreign Ministers reported a general belief that present U. S. foreign policies are sufficiently bipartisan to rule out any major changes. But there has been enough political controversy over the present American attitude toward Russia in particular to raise speculation about post-election trends in the conduct of American diplomacy.

A formal 51-country debate was assured on proposals to take United Nations action against the Franco regime in Spain when the Security Council yesterday dropped the Spanish issue from its agenda so the Assembly might act.

The Big Four decided to take up the Italian peace treaty first and then, in order, treaties with Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Emphasizes Split

Discussion hardly had begun on the Italian treaty yesterday when the Trieste issue was raised, emphasizing the split between Russia and the western powers.

The foreign ministers agreed to hear arguments from Yugoslavia and Italy over the kind of United Nations government that should be set up over the strategic port city. Mr. Molotov proposed that Yugoslavia be permitted to discuss also the question of frontiers for the Trieste area.

Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Bevin objected on the ground that the big Four previously had agreed on the frontiers. It was finally decided that if Yugoslavia touched on the boundary issue, her spokesman would not be ruled out of order but neither would the issue be considered reopened.

Three other Italian treaty questions came up for considerable discussion by the Foreign Ministers Council.

Calls Vessel 'Death Trap', Refuses to Sail

Halifax, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Described by her skipper as a 'death trap', the Boston fishing vessel Frances C. Denehey remained tied to her Halifax berth today as her captain and crew refused to clear port unless the owners authorized repairs.

"I absolutely refuse to sail this vessel out of Halifax harbor," said Captain Gerald F. Goodwin, Canso-born master. "She is unseaworthy and I will not risk the lives of my crew by taking her out to sea."

The Denehey limped into port last week after her crippled engines had carried her through heavy seas from fishing grounds with a cargo of 50,000 pounds of deep-sea perch. Persistent pounding by seas had smashed an opening in the whale-backed bow and her engine-room became flooded.

Failure of the motor - driven pumps had driven the crew on deck to man the hand pumps which were able to keep the power room sufficiently clear of water to operate one engine.

"It was a nightmare voyage," the skipper declared. "We refuse to run the risk of another one."

Capt. Goodwin said the owner had arrived from Boston but had declined to do anything except install a new motor pump.

WARMER IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 —(AP)— Warmer weather cheered Southern California agriculturists today. Citrus escaped damage when temperatures generally remained above 30 degrees, but considerable damage was reported to corn, tomatoes and beans.

100 Ships Ready For Unauthorized Refugee Traffic

By CARTER DAVIDSON

Haifa, Nov. 5 (AP)— British naval intelligence officers asserted today that at least 100 ships, many paid for with money raised in North America, have been purchased by Jewish underground organizations to carry refugee immigrants from Europe to Palestine.

Officers said they had a list of 100 ships, "most of them unseaworthy," which had been bought for the refugee traffic and which now are lying in southern European ports.

Methods of halting the unauthorized immigration of Jewish refugees to Palestine will be discussed this week at Malta at a conference of naval authorities under Admiral Sir Algernon Willis, Commander-in-Chief of the British Mediterranean fleet.

Five officers of the Palestine police force's criminal investigation division yesterday flew to Rome to help investigate the recent blasting of the British Embassy in the Italian capital, which a "communique" purportedly distributed by Irgun Zvai Leumi, said had been perpetrated by that Jewish underground organization.

After completing their work in Rome, the Palestine police officers are expected to join the Malta conference.

Naval intelligence officers said that the main ports in which refugee ships now are lying are Marseille, Genoa, Trieste and Piraeus.

"Some of these ships are death trap caiques and schooners bought from junk yards, but there are a few converted corvettes, sloops and Hungarian river gunboats," the officers added.

One of the greatest fears, one source said, is that "one of these ships, coming criminally overloaded and with grossly improper safety measures will go down at sea and hundreds of lives will be lost. When it does you can bet the British will get the blame for it."

He implied that this fear arose from the condition of the San Dimitrio, which was intercepted in Palestine waters by the British navy last week. Naval officers said the San Dimitrio, which was listing so badly that the red paint of her keel could be seen above the water line, had only four 24-seater lifeboats for the 1,279 passengers.

"We've also found," this source continued, "that the Spanish master of the ship was in radio communication throughout the voyage with a Clendestine station in Palestine, apparently waiting for instructions where to beach his craft."

POPOWICH, WIFE REPRIEVED TILL DECEMBER 5TH

Ontario Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal Against Conviction On Murder Charge

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP)—The Ontario Supreme Court today dismissed an appeal by George Popovich and his wife of Welland, Ont., against a Sept. 12 conviction of murdering Louis Nato, South Thorold merchant. Chief Justice Robert S. Robertson, at the same time, reprieved the condemned couple, originally sentenced to be hanged Nov. 12, to Dec. 5.

A defence plea to introduce new evidence was quashed yesterday when the court refused permission to counsel A. T. Whitehead to introduce an affidavit which he said would contradict death-bed statements of Nato and exonerate Mrs. Popovich.

Mr. Whitehead said the affadavit, signed by Rev. Harvey Forester, United Church minister at Welland, related that Dennis Harold, Thorold police chief, had told Dr. Forester after the Popovich trial that Nato made statements to Harold contradictory to statements admitted as evidence in the trial.

At the trial Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder had told the jury in his summing-up that Nato's accepted dying declarations incriminating the Popowichs were the only positive evidence linking the accused with the crime.

Nato died June 21 of a beating allegedly inflicted by the Popovichs as he was driving on a Niagara Falls road near South Thorold. A sum of money had been taken, police said.

American Readers Told it's Easy To Get Rich in the Dominion

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)— Canada, the land with everything but enough people to take advantage of her myriad opportunities, was presented to American readers today under the flattering title: "Why It's Easy to Get Rich in Canada."

The heart-warming article on the 20th century's land of opportunity is featured in the December issue of the American Magazine, published today. Its author, Hawthorne Daniel, 56-year-old natural history expert and writer, says "more opportunities of various kinds are to be found there (in Canada) now than in any other land on earth."

The article records statistics already familiar to most Canadians on the country's vast size, agricultural resources, industrial output and potential and lays special emphasis on her pulp and paper and her billion-dollar mining industry.

"The war did so many things to the country that even yet a good many Canadians don't quite know what has happened," says Mr. Danield . . .

"To the astonishment even of many Canadians, this lightly populated land which has fewer people than the State of New York, became during the war the second-largest exporting nation in the world. She has expanded her industries until they are exceeded today only by those of the United States, Great Britain, and perhaps the U.S.S.R. . . .

Mr. Daniel, a native of Norfolk, Neb., who now lives in Huckahoe, N.Y., commenting on Canadian mining and especially the future of nickel and silver, says:

"Ontario is the great Canadian producer now, but that may not always be the case. The Northwest Territories are three times the size of Ontario and as yet they are hardly developed at all . . . The more recently discovered deposits (of iron ore) of Ungava, and of Labrador may prove more important to Canada than any other single source of mineral wealth . . . They were shown to consist of ore that runs as high as 64 per cent iron."

The author quotes Roy H. Thomson, of Toronto, newspaper and radio station owner: "Every man in Canada has a chance to make a fortune."

"All she needs is people," sums up Mr. Daniel.

Reports of Fixed Discount On Canadian Dollar Doubted By Responsible 'Officials

Ottawa, Nov. 5. (CP)—A check of responsible government officials, none of whom would be quoted on the situation, indicated today that little credence is placed on reports recurring in New York and Toronto that the Canadian dollar will be placed at a fixed discount of five per cent to the U.S. dollar.

It was stressed here that the government could neither confirm nor deny the reports, which have stimulated buying of gold shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange, without affecting the market. This is something the government wants to avoid. Any devaluation of the Canadian dollar raises the price of gold in Canadian funds. The fixed price of gold in U.S. money is $35.

There appears to be a feeling in official circles here that the dollar reports have been circulated with the aim of forcing the government into making a statement on its position.

The hard fact of the matter is that if the government put the Canadian dollar at a discount it would mean the administration was back-tracking on the anti-inflation program instituted when the Canadian dollar was brought to par with the U.S. dollar five months ago.

Finance Minister Ilsley, in announcing the change, said at the time that one of the main reasons for it was a need to protect the Canadian economy against rising prices in the United States, where Canada has to buy many manufactured goods and raw materials. The placing of the dollar at par placed the Dominion in a better position to continue buying without having to pay the abnormal prices then making their appearance across the border.

The official feeling here is that if a stronger Canadian dollar was necessary at that time it is even more essential now that American prices have advanced far beyond their June levels. A downward adjustment of the Canadian dollar at this time would weaken the Canadian economic position rather than strengthen it.

Revaluation of the dollar is a matter of high government policy and is decided by the Cabinet rather than by the Exchange Control Board, which merely administers the policy.

SNOWSTORM HITS COLORADO, WORST IN THIRTY YEARS

Eight Deaths Attributed to Storm, Streets of Denver Deep in Snow

Denver, Nov. 5 — (AP) — A snowstorm which swept into the Rocky Mountain region Saturday and gave Denver and Colorado its worst winter lashing in more than three decades, was moving southward today, gradually lessening in intensity.

Weather bureau forecasters said snow had spread north tonight to Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyoming, but that it was spending itself as it moved southward across the New Mexican border.

Eight deaths were attributed directly or indirectly to the storm.

In Denver streets were packed with deep snow and transportation facilities strained to the utmost. Elsewhere in the state highway travel was all but suspended, eastbound trains were delayed and truck travel halted. Of the eight deaths recorded, four occurred in Denver when persons attempted to start cars stalled in deep drifts.

In the midst of the storm twin boys were born to a Denver woman whose physician could not arrive because of the weather. Her husband assisted at the birth.

There were bright spots in the storm, since watersheds received a heavy fall of water-storing snow.

Officials of the Great Western Sugar Company said about 75 per cent of the beet crop has been harvested in Northern Colorado, and that in areas where the crop still is in the ground beets were safe unless a prolonged cold snap set in.

Cattle on the open range, where the storm swept in on light winds Saturday, probably will suffer some shrinkage, stockmen said.

Lewis Reported Angling for 25 CentsHourlyBoost

Washington, Nov. 5 —(AP)— The way John L. Lewis sees his wage dispute with the government his 400,000 soft coal miners could get a 25-cent-an-hour pay boost and a shorter work week without adding to coal costs.

Economists for Lewis' United Mine Workers told reporters Lewis is "convinced" the operator would not suffer under the higher-pay, shorter-hour arrangement.

They emphasized, however, that the U.M.W. chief will specify his own demands in a showdown with Interior Secretary J. A. Krug late this week.

The miners now get $1.18½ cents an hour for the first 35 hours of work in any week.

Negotiations are scheduled to resume tomorrow.

Wildcat shutdowns of mines in southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and Tennessee spread yesterday.

Lewis wants to open the contract he made with Krug last May when the government seized the soft coal mines.

PRICES WILL RISE IF CONTROLS GO OFF SAYS GORDON

Prices Board Chief Reviews Operation and Control of Subsidies in Address

Ottawa, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Continuing his series of nation-wide broadcasts on price control, Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, last night warned Canadians that food costs would rise sharply if controls were immediately removed.

Mr. Gordon stressed that "stable prices," or controlled price adjustments" were more in the interests of producers and consumers alike than the "disorderly conditions . . . uncertainties and speculation" which would follow if a policy of immediate de-control were followed.

He reviewed the operation and control of subsidies, which he said were necessary to keep down the prices of domestic foods and a number of imported foods. The subsidy program had cost the government $130,000,000 at its peak in 1945 and still was costing about $90,000,000 annually.

The board's policy had been to cut out subsidies where the temporary dislocations of war seemed at an end. This, however, meant some rises in prices.

Will Have to Continue

Dealing with specific foods, the Prices Board chief said government purchases of sugar will have to continue "for perhaps some years" and that government buying of sugar, tea, coffee, cocoa, spices, citrus fruits, bananas, and rice from countries where wartime conditions still prevailed were necessary since ordinary importers were unable to get supplies.

"Fairly serious price rises" would follow removal of subsidies. For example, there was an 8½ cents a pound subsidy on butter while wheat going into domestic bread and other bakery products was being subsidized on a basis equivalent to about 15 to 25 per cent on bread prices.

"If you want all controls, including price control, to go, right now, you must think first of a very definite increase in your food bill.

"Or, if you dislike rationing, you must think first of some areas in Canada abounding in supplies of meat and butter and sugar while other parts go short. And then you may wonder if you will be one of the lucky ones or not."

Two Boys Risk Lives To Rescue Horses

Peterboro, Nov. 5—(CP)—Two saddle horses belonging to John DeNure, 13, and his sister, Jean, 15, are unharmed today because two teen-aged boys risked their lives to rescue the animals from a flaming stable on McFarlane Avenue here.

Young DeNure and a friend, Clinton Stockdale, 15, were walking toward the stable when they saw flames coming from it. They rushed inside and led the horses out amid a shower of sparks and burning hay from the loft upstairs. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

AMERICANS GO TO POLLS IN 'OFF YEAR' ELECTION

First Time Since 1938 Voters Free to Express Opinion on Purely Domestic Problems

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 5. (CP)—Americans went to the polls today in a national election, free for the first time since 1938 to vote as they wish without thought of its effect on the country's safety in a world at war.

In this "off-year" election the main question to be answered is whether the Democrats will hold their slender majorities in the Senate and House of Representatives, or the Republicans gain control of Congress for the first time since 1930.

The margin of control is so slight in the House that the Republicans well might gain the necessary 26 seats to give them control in a 435-seat chamber.

In the Senate the Republicans would need a virtual landslide to win the maority. They must gain 10 seats from the Democrats for a rare majority and only 24 Democrat seats are in jeopardy, eight of them considered certain to remain Democratic.

The 96 Senators are elected to six-year terms, one third of them elected every two yearh, whereas all the House members serve only two-year terms.

Thus, in the Senate elections, only 32 seats normally are at stake, with the addition this year of four seats held by temporary incumbents appointed by State Governors to finish uncompleted terms.

Standing in the House at polling time was: Democrats 235, Republicans 192, others 2, vacant 6, total 435. In the Senate, Democrats 56 Republicans 39, others 1, total 96.

Eligible voters number nearly 60,000,000 which is 6,600,000 more than in the Presidential elections of 1944. Women eligible to vote exceed men by more than 1,000,000 but there were fewer women candidates than in 1944.

Can Speak Their Minds

Today's election gives the people on untrammelled opportunity to speak their minds about the government's prosecution of the war, its demobilization program, its difficulties with price controls, shortages and labor disputes, and everything that the people hold the government responsible for.

The elections will have no particular, immediate effect on foreign policy and the tense international situation.

Republican and Democratic parties present a fairly solid front on international affairs and they are the parties which will decide the issue in almost every voting district although there are candidates of numerous "other party" groups ,some never before heard of.

Verona, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP) — Jupiter is a mean enough menace when he's sober but when he gets a quart of moonshine liquor in his evening meal of bran and oats, he's a hell-raiser of horrendous proportions.

Some joker slipped the fire-water in the feedtrough of Bill Rudsdale's problem goat and Jupiter smacked his lips and set off to whip his weight in atom bombs. Before he was through he'd created enough chaos to tie up service on the Canadian Pacific Railway line that runs through this village about 20 miles northwest of Kingston and to give section men and bystanders a thoroughly obnoxious 15 minutes.

The section men were just returning from their day's work when Jupiter came weaving up the right-of-way and charged their jigger car, head down. They leaped, just before the crash, and took to a nearby tree. The jigger rolled into a ditch.

Proceeding on his erratic, aromatic course, Jupiter reached the spot shortly after the Kingston train pulled in. The baggage man was unloading parcels as Jupiter hove in view and charged.

The man lit out for the door, Jupiter timed his lunge prettily, and the victim took off on what observers termed the finest non-competitive high jump ever seen in these parts.

The conductor felt his turn coming and started for the coach steps. But the conductor is a portly fellow, according a target a goat of Jupiter's skill could not miss. Up the steps, across the platform and out the other side of the tracks went the conductor, off schedule.

Jupiter next went for the engineer but that resourceful worthy drove him back with a jet of steam and while Jupiter was mulling over such an unsportsmanlike trick the station-master managed to slip a hook, on a long pole, under the goat's collar.

The scene—which included passengers dashing about, spilled baggage and hoarse shouts from helpful citizens standing at safe distances—subsided and half-a-dozne men had hardly any trouble at all in leading Jupiter home.

No rose at any time, Jupiter reeked worse than ever—of liquor—on his arrival and retired for the night.

Train service was resumed a quarter of an hour late.

Detained Jewish Leaders To Be Freed in Palestine

British Govt. Hopes For Improvement in Security

London, Nov. 5 (Reuters)—The British government has decided to authorized Palestine authorities to release detained Jewish leaders in the Holy Land, Colonial Secretary Jones announced in the House of Commons today.

Release of certain detained Arabs also has been approved, he added.

Mr. Jones hoped that the releases would lead to an improvement of security in Palestine and would restore conditions in which progress could be made towards a "general settlement."

Mr. Jones told Oliver Stanley, former Conservative Colonial Secretary, that he could give him complete assurance that no one was included among the leaders to be released against whom "active complicity in any terrorist outrage" could be proved in a court of law.

Mr. Stanley also asked whether the Colonial Secretary would make it plain that these releases were not the result of any "bargain," but were decided on by the government because they thought it was the best course for security in Palestine.

Mr. Jones replied that law and order were not matters to be bargained about, and that the releases had been authorized in the hope of gaining closer co-operation between the Jewish agency and the Palestine administration.

Agency Leaders Released

Jerusalem, Nov. 5 (Reuters) — Jewish agency leaders who had been detained in Latrun camp, Palestine, since June 29 have been released, it was officially announced here tonight.

$40,000 Stolen But No Charge Can be Laid

San Francisco, Nov. 5—(AP)—A 46-year-old former post-office clerk has confessed in full, postal inspectors said today, that he stole $40,000 in cash from a mail sack back in 1937, but he cannot be prosecuted for the theft because no indictment was returned within the three-year period specified by the statute of limitations.

However, U. S. treasury officials were interested in the case — because the man failed to pay income tax on the $40,000.

The man later went into business for himself and eventually lost every cent of the money. Fearful of being caught, he moved from town to town with his wife and two children.

FIANCE WOUNDED BY BROTHER OF BRIDE-TO-BE

John Sutherland of St. Catharines Charged With Attempted Murder

St. Catharines, Nov. 5—(CP)— Her wedding gown packed away, 18-year-old Viola Sutherland temporarily forgot the marriage vows she was to have taken at 7 o'clock last night. Instead of getting married, the young bride-to-be spent the evening sitting on a bench in a hospital corridor.

In a room nearby lay her fiance, his left arm shattered by shotgun pellets three hours before the ceremony. As she waited for news of his condition she expressed hope that the wedding might be performed at the hospital, "if he will still have me," for, police said, it was Miss Sutherland's brother John who fired the shotgun at the prospective groom.

Hospital authorities today said that William Kenneth Good's condition "was satisfactory." At first it was thought they would have to amputate his arm.

Meanwhile the 30-year-old Sutherland was arraigned in police court this morning on an attempted murder charge. He was remanded until next Tuesday at the request of Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, K.C.

The young jilted bride hinted that if Good is confined to hospital for some time she would endeavor to have the marriage ceremony performed in his room.

May Save Arm

Hospital authorities who at first thought they would have to amputate William Kenneth Good's arm, later expressed hope they might save the arm. Meanwhile police charged the 32-year-old Sutherland with attempted murder and ordered him to appear in court this morning.

Police account said the shooting took place in the kitchen of the Sutherland home where the 20-year-old Good was a boarder. Good was pressing his trousers when Sutherland walked in, disregarding his sister who was talking to her fiance and asked him if he was able to "get anything," referring to a hunting trip earlier in the day.

Thought Order a Prank

Good replied that he had had no luck and Sutherland walked away. Then he suddenly wheeled, raised his shotgun and ordered Good to "stick 'em up." The young man failed to comply, thinking it was a prank. Police said Sutherland then fired, ejected the spent shell, reloaded the weapon and walked out of the house.

"My brother John apparently thought he was my boss and all my life he has been telling me what to do," Miss Sutherland said last night. "But this time he isn't going to have his way because I'm going to marry Bill — if he still wants me — no matter what happens."

She said her brother had objected not only to her having boy friends but also had tried to segregate her from other girls as well. Other members of the Sutherland family told police that John had been "interfering with Vi's life" and tried to stop her wedding.

Sutherland was arrested later as he was returning home. He was carrying the shotgun with him.

Foreign Ministers Head into Fight On Trieste Issue

Molotov Seeking Special Advantages for This Port

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)— The Big-Four Foreign Ministers moved into their second day's work on the eastern European peace treaties amid mounting evidence that Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia will stage a last-ditch fight to gain special advantages for Yugoslavia at the Adriatic port of Trieste.

The U. N. Assembly appeared to be headed for a wide open fight over selection of a permanent home. One report was that the Russians might reverse their former stand against a site in western Europe to favor Geneva, old League of Nations headquarters, as a home.

Persons familiar with the views of many delegations to the United Nations Assembly and the council of Foreign Ministers reported a general belief that present U. S. foreign policies are sufficiently bipartisan to rule out any major changes. But there has been enough political controversy over the present American attitude toward Russia in particular to raise speculation about post-election trends in the conduct of American diplomacy.

A formal 51-country debate was assured on proposals to take United Nations action against the Franco regime in Spain when the Security Council yesterday dropped the Spanish issue from its agenda so the Assembly might act.

The Big Four decided to take up the Italian peace treaty first and then, in order, treaties with Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Emphasizes Split

Discussion hardly had begun on the Italian treaty yesterday when the Trieste issue was raised, emphasizing the split between Russia and the western powers.

The foreign ministers agreed to hear arguments from Yugoslavia and Italy over the kind of United Nations government that should be set up over the strategic port city. Mr. Molotov proposed that Yugoslavia be permitted to discuss also the question of frontiers for the Trieste area.

Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Bevin objected on the ground that the big Four previously had agreed on the frontiers. It was finally decided that if Yugoslavia touched on the boundary issue, her spokesman would not be ruled out of order but neither would the issue be considered reopened.

Three other Italian treaty questions came up for considerable discussion by the Foreign Ministers Council.

Calls Vessel 'Death Trap', Refuses to Sail

Halifax, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Described by her skipper as a 'death trap', the Boston fishing vessel Frances C. Denehey remained tied to her Halifax berth today as her captain and crew refused to clear port unless the owners authorized repairs.

"I absolutely refuse to sail this vessel out of Halifax harbor," said Captain Gerald F. Goodwin, Canso-born master. "She is unseaworthy and I will not risk the lives of my crew by taking her out to sea."

The Denehey limped into port last week after her crippled engines had carried her through heavy seas from fishing grounds with a cargo of 50,000 pounds of deep-sea perch. Persistent pounding by seas had smashed an opening in the whale-backed bow and her engine-room became flooded.

Failure of the motor - driven pumps had driven the crew on deck to man the hand pumps which were able to keep the power room sufficiently clear of water to operate one engine.

"It was a nightmare voyage," the skipper declared. "We refuse to run the risk of another one."

Capt. Goodwin said the owner had arrived from Boston but had declined to do anything except install a new motor pump.

100 Ships Ready For Unauthorized Refugee Traffic

By CARTER DAVIDSON

Haifa, Nov. 5 (AP)— British naval intelligence officers asserted today that at least 100 ships, many paid for with money raised in North America, have been purchased by Jewish underground organizations to carry refugee immigrants from Europe to Palestine.

Officers said they had a list of 100 ships, "most of them unseaworthy," which had been bought for the refugee traffic and which now are lying in southern European ports.

Methods of halting the unauthorized immigration of Jewish refugees to Palestine will be discussed this week at Malta at a conference of naval authorities under Admiral Sir Algernon Willis, Commander-in-Chief of the British Mediterranean fleet.

Five officers of the Palestine police force's criminal investigation division yesterday flew to Rome to help investigate the recent blasting of the British Embassy in the Italian capital, which a "communique" purportedly distributed by — Irgun Zvai Leumi, said had been perpetrated by that Jewish underground organization.

After completing their work in Rome, the Palestine police officers are expected to join the Malta conference.

Naval intelligence officers said that the main ports in which refugee ships now are lying are Marseille, Genoa, Trieste and Piraeus.

"Some of these ships are death trap caiques and schooners bought from junk yards, but there are a few converted corvettes, sloops and Hungarian river gunboats," the officers added.

POPOWICH, WIFE REPRIEVED TILL DECEMBER 5TH

Ontario Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal Against Conviction On Murder Charge

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP)—The Ontario Supreme Court today dismissed an appeal by George Popovich and his wife of Welland, Ont., against a Sept. 12 conviction of murdering Louis Nato, South Thorold merchant. Chief Justice Robert S. Robertson, at the same time, reprieved the condemned couple, originally sentenced to be hanged Nov. 12, to Dec. 5.

A defence plea to introduce new evidence was quashed yesterday when the court refused permission to counsel A. T. Whitehead to introduce an affidavit which he said would contradict death-bed statements of Nato and exonerate Mrs. Popovich.

Mr. Whitehead said the affadavit, signed by Rev. Harvey Forester, United Church minister at Welland, related that Dennis Harold, Thorold police chief, had told Dr. Forester after the Popovich trial that Nato made statements to Harold contradictory to statements admitted as evidence in the trial.

At the trial Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder had told the jury in his summing-up that Nato's accepted dying declarations incriminating the Popowichs were the only positive evidence linking the accused with the crime.

Nato died June 21 of a beating allegedly inflicted by the Popovichs as he was driving on a Niagara Falls road near South Thorold. A sum of money had been taken, police said.

Maine elected a Governor, Senator, and three House members—all Republicans—last Sept. 9. These must be added to today's results to determine which party controls Congress and gets the edge in State administrators.

Reports of Fixed Discount On Canadian Dollar Doubted By Responsible 'Officials

Ottawa, Nov. 5. (CP)—A check of responsible government officials, none of whom would be quoted on the situation, indicated today that little credence is placed on reports recurring in New York and Toronto that the Canadian dollar will be placed at a fixed discount of five per cent to the U.S. dollar.

It was stressed here that the government could neither confirm nor deny the reports, which have stimulated buying of gold shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange, without affecting the market. This is something the government wants to avoid. Any devaluation of the Canadian dollar raises the price of gold in Canadian funds. The fixed price of gold in U.S. money is $35.

There appears to be a feeling in official circles here that the dollar reports have been circulated with the aim of forcing the government into making a statement on its position.

The hard fact of the matter is that if the government put the Canadian dollar at a discount it would mean the administration was back-tracking on the anti-inflation program instituted when the Canadian dollar was brought to par with the U.S. dollar five months ago.

Finance Minister Ilsley, in announcing the change, said at the time that one of the main reasons for it was a need to protect the Canadian economy against rising prices in the United States, where Canada has to buy many manufactured goods and raw materials. The placing of the dollar at par placed the Dominion in a better position to continue buying without having to pay the abnormal prices then making their appearance across the border.

The official feeling here is that if a stronger Canadian dollar was necessary at that time it is even more essential now that American prices have advanced far beyond their June levels. A downward adjustment of the Canadian dollar at this time would weaken the Canadian economic position rather than strengthen it.

Revaluation of the dollar is a matter of high government policy and is decided by the Cabinet rather than by the Exchange Control Board, which merely administers the policy.

SNOWSTORM HITS COLORADO, WORST IN THIRTY YEARS

Eight Deaths Attributed to Storm, Streets of Denver Deep in Snow

Denver, Nov. 5 — (AP) — A snowstorm which swept into the Rocky Mountain region Saturday and gave Denver and Colorado its worst winter lashing in more than three decades, was moving southward today, gradually lessening in intensity.

Weather bureau forecasters said snow had spread north tonight to Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyoming, but that it was spending itself as it moved southward across the New Mexican border.

Eight deaths were attributed directly or indirectly to the storm.

In Denver streets were packed with deep snow and transportation facilities strained to the utmost. Elsewhere in the state highway travel was all but suspended, eastbound trains were delayed and truck travel halted. Of the eight deaths recorded, four occurred in Denver when persons attempted to start cars stalled in deep drifts.

In the midst of the storm twin boys were born to a Denver woman whose physician could not arrive because of the weather. Her husband assisted at the birth.

There were bright spots in the storm, since watersheds received a heavy fall of water-storing snow.

Officials of the Great Western Sugar Company said about 75 per cent of the beet crop has been harvested in Northern Colorado, and that in areas where the crop still is in the ground beets were safe unless a prolonged cold snap set in.

Cattle on the open range, where the storm swept in on light winds Saturday, probably will suffer some shrinkage, stockmen said.

Ottawa, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Continuing his series of nation-wide broadcasts on price control, Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, last night warned Canadians that food costs would rise sharply if controls were immediately removed.

Mr. Gordon stressed that "stable prices," or controlled price adjustments" were more in the interests of producers and consumers alike than the "disorderly conditions . . . uncertainties and speculation" which would follow if a policy of immediate de-control were followed.

He reviewed the operation and control of subsidies, which he said were necessary to keep down the prices of domestic foods and a number of imported foods. The subsidy program had cost the government $130,000,000 at its peak in 1945 and still was costing about $90,000,000 annually.

The board's policy had been to cut out subsidies where the temporary dislocations of war seemed at an end. This, however, meant some rises in prices.

Will Have to Continue

Dealing with specific foods, the Prices Board chief said government purchases of sugar will have to continue "for perhaps some years" and that government buying of sugar, tea, coffee, cocoa, spices, citrus fruits, bananas, and rice from countries where wartime conditions still prevailed were necessary since ordinary importers were unable to get supplies.

"Fairly serious price rises" would follow removal of subsidies. For example, there was an 8½ cents a pound subsidy on butter while wheat going into domestic bread and other bakery products was being subsidized on a basis equivalent to about 15 to 25 per cent on bread prices.

"If you want all controls, including price control, to go, right now, you must think first of a very definite increase in your food bill.

"Or, if you dislike rationing, you must think first of some areas in Canada abounding in supplies of meat and butter and sugar while other parts go short. And then you may wonder if you will be one of the lucky ones or not."

AMERICANS GO TO POLLS IN 'OFF YEAR' ELECTION

First Time Since 1938 Voters Free to Express Opinion on Purely Domestic Problems

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 5. (CP)—Americans went to the polls today in a national election, free for the first time since 1938 to vote as they wish without thought of its effect on the country's safety in a world at war.

In this "off-year" election the main question to be answered is whether the Democrats will hold their slender majorities in the Senate and House of Representatives, or the Republicans gain control of Congress for the first time since 1930.

The margin of control is so slight in the House that the Republicans well might gain the necessary 26 seats to give them control in a 435-seat chamber.

In the Senate the Republicans would need a virtual landslide to win the maority. They must gain 10 seats from the Democrats for a rare majority and only 24 Democrat seats are in jeopardy, eight of them considered certain to remain Democratic.

The 96 Senators are elected to six-year terms, one third of them elected every two yearh, whereas all the House members serve only two-year terms.

Thus, in the Senate elections, only 32 seats normally are at stake, with the addition this year of four seats held by temporary incumbents appointed by State Governors to finish uncompleted terms.

Standing in the House at polling time was: Democrats 235, Republicans 192, others 2, vacant 6, total 435. In the Senate, Democrats 56 Republicans 39, others 1, total 96.

Eligible voters number nearly 60,000,000 which is 6,600,000 more than in the Presidential elections of 1944. Women eligible to vote exceed men by more than 1,000,000 but there were fewer women candidates than in 1944.

Can Speak Their Minds

Today's election gives the people on untrammelled opportunity to speak their minds about the government's prosecution of the war, its demobilization program, its difficulties with price controls, shortages and labor disputes, and everything that the people hold the government responsible for.

The elections will have no particular, immediate effect on foreign policy and the tense international situation.

Republican and Democratic parties present a fairly solid front on international affairs and they are the parties which will decide the issue in almost every voting district although there are candidates of numerous "other party" groups ,some never before heard of.

Detained Jewish Leaders To Be Freed in Palestine

British Govt. Hopes For Improvement in Security

London, Nov. 5 (Reuters)—The British government has decided to authorized Palestine authorities to release detained Jewish leaders in the Holy Land, Colonial Secretary Jones announced in the House of Commons today.

Release of certain detained Arabs also has been approved, he added.

Mr. Jones hoped that the releases would lead to an improvement of security in Palestine and would restore conditions in which progress could be made towards a "general settlement."

Mr. Jones told Oliver Stanley, former Conservative Colonial Secretary, that he could give him complete assurance that no one was included among the leaders to be released against whom "active complicity in any terrorist outrage" could be proved in a court of law.

Mr. Stanley also asked whether the Colonial Secretary would make it plain that these releases were not the result of any "bargain," but were decided on by the government because they thought it was the best course for security in Palestine.

Mr. Jones replied that law and order were not matters to be bargained about, and that the releases had been authorized in the hope of gaining closer co-operation between the Jewish agency and the Palestine administration.

Agency Leaders Released

Jerusalem, Nov. 5 (Reuters) — Jewish agency leaders who had been detained in Latrun camp, Palestine, since June 29 have been released, it was officially announced here tonight.

$40,000 Stolen But No Charge Can be Laid

San Francisco, Nov. 5—(AP) —A 46-year-old former post-office clerk has confessed in full, postal inspectors said today, that he stole $40,000 in cash from a mail sack back in 1937, but he cannot be prosecuted for the theft because no indictment was returned within the three-year period specified by the statute of limitations.

However, U. S. treasury officials were interested in the case — because the man failed to pay income tax on the $40,-000.

The man later went into business for himself and eventually lost every cent of the money. Fearful of being caught, he moved from town to town with his wife and two children.

CORNERSTONE STOLEN

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 5 — (AP) — There was one hitch in the plans by the veterans of foreign wars post for the cornerstone - laying ceremonies for its new building here. Thieves stole the 350-lb. cornerstone.

St. Catharines, Nov. 5—(CP)— Her wedding gown packed away, 18-year-old Viola Sutherland temporarily forgot the marriage vows she was to have taken at 7 o'clock last night. Instead of getting married, the young bride-to-be spent the evening sitting on a bench in a hospital corridor.

In a room nearby lay her fiance, his left arm shattered by shotgun pellets three hours before the ceremony. As she waited for news of his condition she expressed hope that the wedding might be performed at the hospital, "if he will still have me," for, police said, it was Miss Sutherland's brother John who fired the shotgun at the prospective groom.

Hospital authorities today said that William Kenneth Good's condition "was satisfactory." At first it was thought they would have to amputate his arm.

Meanwhile the 30-year-old Sutherland was arraigned in police court this morning on an attempted murder charge. He was remanded until next Tuesday at the request of Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, K.C.

The young jilted bride hinted that if Good is confined to hospital for some time she would endeavor to have the marriage ceremony performed in his room.

May Save Arm

Hospital authorities who at first thought they would have to amputate William Kenneth Good's arm, later expressed hope they might save the arm. Meanwhile police charged the 32-year-old Sutherland with attempted murder and ordered him to appear in court this morning.

Police account said the shooting took place in the kitchen of the Sutherland home where the 20-year-old Good was a boarder. Good was pressing his trousers when Sutherland walked in, disregarding his sister who was talking to her fiance and asked him if he was able to "get anything," referring to a hunting trip earlier in the day.

Thought Order a Prank

Good replied that he had had no luck and Sutherland walked away. Then he suddenly wheeled, raised his shotgun and ordered Good to "stick 'em up." The young man failed to comply, thinking it was a prank. Police said Sutherland then fired, ejected the spent shell, reloaded the weapon and walked out of the house.

"My brother John apparently thought he was my boss and all my life he has been telling me what to do," Miss Sutherland said last night. "But this time he isn't going to have his way because I'm going to marry Bill — if he still wants me — no matter what happens."

She said her brother had objected not only to her having boy friends but also had tried to segregate her from other girls as well. Other members of the Sutherland family told police that John had been "interfering with Vi's life" and tried to stop her wedding.

Sutherland was arrested later as he was returning home. He was carrying the shotgun with him.

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)— Canada, the land with everything but enough people to take advantage of her myriad opportunities, was presented to American readers today under the flattering title: "Why It's Easy to Get Rich in Canada."

The heart-warming article on the 20th century's land of opportunity is featured in the December issue of the American Magazine, published today. Its author, Hawthorne Daniel, 56-year-old natural history expert and writer, says "more opportunities of various kinds are to be found there (in Canada) now than in any other land on earth."

The article records statistics already familiar to most Canadians on the country's vast size, agricultural resources, industrial output and potential and lays special emphasis on her pulp and paper and her billion-dollar mining industry.

"The war did so many things to the country that even yet a good many Canadians don't quite know what has happened," says Mr. Danield . . .

"To the astonishment even of many Canadians, this lightly populated land which has fewer people than the State of New York, became during the war the second-largest exporting nation in the world. She has expanded her industries until they are exceeded today only by those of the United States, Great Britain, and perhaps the U.S.S.R. . . .

Mr. Daniel, a native of Norfolk, Neb., who now lives in Huckahoe, N.Y., commenting on Canadian mining and especially the future of nickel and silver, says:

"Ontario is the great Canadian producer now, but that may not always be the case. The Northwest Territories are three times the size of Ontario and as yet they are hardly developed at all . . . The more recently discovered deposits (of iron ore) of Ungava, and of Labrador may prove more important to Canada than any other single source of mineral wealth . . . They were shown to consist of ore that runs as high as 64 per cent iron."

The author quotes Roy H. Thomson, of Toronto, newspaper and radio station owner: "Every man in Canada has a chance to make a fortune."

"All she needs is people," sums up Mr. Daniel.

Lewis Reported Angling for 25 Cents Hourly Boost

Washington, Nov. 5 —(AP)— The way John L. Lewis sees his wage dispute with the government his 400,000 soft coal miners could get a 25-cent-an-hour pay boost and a shorter work week without adding to coal costs.

Economists for Lewis' United Mine Workers told reporters Lewis is "convinced" the operator would not suffer under the higher-pay, shorter-hour arrangement.

They emphasized, however, that the U.M.W. chief will specify his own demands in a showdown with Interior Secretary J. A. Krug late this week.

The miners now get $1.18½ cents an hour for the first 35 hours of work in any week.

Negotiations are scheduled to resume tomorrow.

Wildcat shutdowns of mines in southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and Tennessee spread yesterday.

Lewis wants to open the contract he made with Krug last May when the government seized the soft coal mines.

Two Boys Risk Lives To Rescue Horses

Peterboro, Nov. 5—(CP)—Two saddle horses belonging to John DeNure, 13, and his sister, Jean, 15, are unharmed today because two teen-aged boys risked their lives to rescue the animals from a flaming stable on McFarlane Avenue here.

Young DeNure and a friend, Clinton Stockdale, 15, were walking toward the stable when they saw flames coming from it. They rushed inside and led the horses out amid a shower of sparks and burning hay from the loft upstairs. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

Verona, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP) — Jupiter is a mean enough menace when he's sober but when he gets a quart of moonshine liquor in his evening meal of bran and oats, he's a hell-raiser of horrendous proportions.

Some joker slipped the firewater in the feedtrough of Bill Rudsdale's problem goat and Jupiter smacked his lips and set off to whip his weight in atom bombs. Before he was through he'd created enough chaos to tie up service on the Canadian Pacific Railway line that runs through this village about 20 miles northwest of Kingston and to give section men and bystanders a thoroughly obnoxious 15 minutes.

The section men were just returning from their day's work when Jupiter came weaving up the right-of-way and charged their jigger car, head down. They leaped, just before the crash, and took to a nearby tree. The jigger rolled into a ditch.

Proceeding on his erratic, aromatic course, Jupiter reached the spot shortly after the Kingston train pulled in. The baggage man was unloading parcels as Jupiter hove in view and charged. The man lit out for the door, Jupiter timed his lunge prettily, and the victim took off on what observers termed the finest non-competitive high jump ever seen in these parts.

The conductor felt his turn coming and started for the coach steps. But the conductor is a portly fellow, according a target a goat of Jupiter's skill could not miss. Up the steps, across the platform and out the other side of the tracks went the conductor, off schedule.

Jupiter next went for the engineer but that resourceful worthy drove him back with a jet of steam and while Jupiter was mulling over such an unsportsmanlike trick the station-master managed to slip a hook, on a long pole, under the goat's collar.

The scene—which included passengers dashing about, spilled baggage and hoarse shouts from helpful citizens standing at safe distances—subsided and half-a-dozne men had hardly any trouble at all in leading Jupiter home.

No rose at any time, Jupiter reeked worse than ever—of liquor—on his arrival and retired for the night.

PRESENTATION OF SHIP'S BELL EXPECTED SOON

While nothing of a definite nature has been arrived at regarding the presentation of the ship's bell of the former corvette HMCS "Belleville," city officials today expressed the opinion that the official ceremonies will be held on a Sunday in the immediate future.

TWO DEER HAVE BEEN KILLED ON R. R. TRACKS

Substantiation of reports that deer are plentiful in the north country this year, is the press despatch that this year two bucks have been killed by locomotives on railway tracks in sections of the district. This is the first time in 29 years that deer have been killed by trains.

SUPERINTENDENT RETIRES FROM SERVICE

H. J. Palmateer, Toronto, superintendent of the Eastern Division of the Canadian Pacific Express, retired last Thursday after 44 years of service. Born and raised in Tweed, Ont., Mr. Palmateer was well known in Peterborough and Belleville through many visits to those cities. He is succeeded by F. A. Doyle, Toronto.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARIES ASSISTED IN DRIVE

The Women's Auxiliaries of the Belleville branches of the Canadian Legion and the Army, Navy and Air Force, who did such an excellent job in assisting to raise the $10,000 objective of the Belleville Hotel Proprietors' Association in the recent War Amps Health Centre campaign, were inadvertently omitted in the published report of the presentation ceremonies held in the New Queens Hotel recently.

"Women's organizations of the city did a fine job during the entire campaign," chairman Walter Allore said today, "and we would like to express our sincere appreciation to all who in any way helped make the campaign the success it was."

HASTINGS COUNTY WILL BE REPRESENTED AT WINTER FAIR

Hastings county will be well represented at the Royal Winter Fair inter-county livestock judging competition, according to H. W. Burns, Stirling, assistant agricultural representative. John Huffman, Corbyville; Ray Hall, Trenton and Wesley Finch, Campbellford, will judge at the fair, while on November 11 the provincial potato judging champion team composed of Carl Bateman and Stewart Elliott of Tweed, will take part in the national contest for boys' and girls' club work to be held at Toronto.

PAIR SECURE DEER IN RECORD TIME

Jack Buchanan and his son Elton of Peterborough established an early season record in deer-hunting on Monday, the opening day of the season in Peterborough and Haliburton counties.

Within six hours the hunters had travelled the hunting grounds about 39 miles north of Peterborough near Apsley, shot two deer and were back in the city with the bag.

The pair left their home at 4.10 in the morning. At 7.10 the son had toppled a 175-pound buck and the father had downed a doe. At 10 a.m. they were back in the city and the son went to work in the afternoon.

FishermenBemoan Noticeable Lack Of Bass in Bay

Local yachtsmen, some of whom are belatedly laying up their boats for the season and giving them their winter garb before the long season arrives, bemoaned today the noticeable lack of bass in the regular haunts of that elusive fish during the past season.

Some attributed it to the increased amount of shad in the early part of the year which afforded excellent meals for the fish, causing them to disdain man-made meals, while others claimed it was the abnormal number of large pike which frequented the bass grounds.

The reason for the appearance of numbers of these pike is that the government placed them on the game fish list a year ago, and, in lighter vein, one fisherman laughed "the d.... things probably saw it in the paper."

In any event, the consensus of a number of fishing enthusiasts is that the 1946 bass fishing season was the poorest in years.

Obituary

LATE A. W. CUNNINGHAM

The funeral of Alexander Whitecross Cunningham, late residence 54 Alexander Street, was held Monday afternoon from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street at Victoria Avenue. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bearers were Edgar Rutherford, Frank Douglas, David Keith, Robert MacDougall, Kenneth Smith and John Mitchell.

The late Mr. Cunningham was a Great War Veteran and members of the Canadian Legion attended in a body.

Famous First Sods Make Up His Lawn

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP)— The question of what happens to the inevitable first sod cut at first sod-cutting ceremonies has been answered. Alderman John Innes, of Toronto has them. Collecting famous first sods is his hobby, and he is probably the only man in Canada who has a piece of the ground on which the new Sunnybrook Veterans' Hospital now stands. The only snag lies in the fact that he transplants them to his lawn and he doesn't remember which is which.

Japs Quit Because of Military Exhaustion and Not Because Her Armies Were Defeated

Padre J. A. Koffend at 6 R.D. Speaks to Kinsmen Club on China

Japanese war leaders quit because of military exhaustion and not because her armies were defeated, members of the local Kinsmen club were told Monday vening at their regular luncheon by Rev. J. A. Koffend, padre at No. 6 R.D. at Trenton.

Expressing what he termed as his own personal opinion on the Japanese military ambitions, the R.C.A.F. padre declared that unless the former Allied nations refuse to forget too easily another war is not far in the future. "The Japanese will rise again if they are not carefully watched," he warned. "This can be foreseen through knowledge of the Japanese characteristic."

Former Presbyterian missionary in China and showing a wide knowledge of conditions in that country which led up to the Japanese occupation of that country, Padre Koffend chose as the topic of his address "China, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" and told of first impressions of a visitor to that country.

Country Changes

He stated that the country was slowly changing as result of the advances of modern civilization but that old customs and mannerisms were still very much prevalent. The entire land was filled with disease and sanitation problems were acute. China was stated to be a land of great friendliness and of tremendous hates. The Chinese hate with a vengeance, he stated.

In reference to the background which led to the Japanese occupation of China, Mr. Koffend declared that it was no secret in the Canada, but we cannot afford to planned to control Canada. "We Canadians can well be proud of Canad, but we cannot afford to sit back and say we will think no more of war. Too much 'hush hush' is merely the breeding ground of another war," he said.

Tells of Incident

Bearing out his statement that it had once been on the Japanese program to control all of the Orient and also Canada, the speaker told of the Manchuria incident and of the gradual Japanese infiltration into that country until is 1931 an "incident" occurred which brought in the Japanese troops "for the protection of her people."

The Japanese withdrawal from the League of Nations in 1931 was declared to be the actual starting point of the last great war which was made the most terrible of all wars through science developed by modern civilization.

Need Fellowship

"But we need more than civilization to assure the world of peace in the future," continued Mr. Koffend. "We need the essence of religious principle. We need genuine fellowship and real brotherhood. The Sermon on the Mount has been preached for two thousand years but never has been really tried."

Speaking of the future, Mr. Koffend questioned if China as one of the four nation powers, with her unfinished wars, was "old enough" to assume the responsibilities of the future atomic world. Many of the serious problems of the world to be would arise in China, he concluded.

In the absence of President Newton Wilbur who is confined to his home through illness, Past President Harry Rollins presided over the meeting.

Sunday School Convention At Union Church, Eldorado

Eldorado — Madoc and Elziver Township Sunday School Convention was held on Wednesday at Union United Church, with a record attendance at both afternoon and evening sessions. The President, Mr. H. Rollins presided during the afternoon session. The opening exercises were in charge of Rev. Dolan, of Madoc Standard Church, using a hymn, prayer and a short address.

Guests Welcomed

Guests were welcomed by Earl Blakely of Union Sunday School. The roll call was answered by 11 out of twelve schools. The secretarial reports of previous conventions, executive meetings and a financial statement were read by Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Moore. The reports of the schools showed a total of 697 members, with 174 teachers, officers and cradle roll children. The givings for Rally Sunday, Mother's Day and Missions totalled $246.58.

A sing-song of familiar hymns was conducted by Miss Forrester of Bannockburn Pentecostal Sunday School. Mrs. Patten gave a paper on Temperance, emphasizing social drinking as Public Enemy No. 1, and the responsibility of parents and all older people for the example set before the younger group. She appealed to all to use the Temperance Course in the Sunday Schools.

Discussion Groups

Miss Forrester led in Sunday School Choruses, and discussion groups were led by Mr. Arthur Wilson of West Huntingdon, and by Rev. A. Poulter of Madoc on "Ways and Means of a Successful Sunday School". The findings of the groups were explained by the leaders, assisted by Rev. G. Crabb, Rev. Manson Doyle, and Mr. Stewart, stressing the need for live Christian teachers, and that anyone should consider it an honor to help in Sunday School work. They spoke of the need of co-operation by parents in sending their children to Sunday School, or better to go with them and assisting in every possible way to forward the interests of the schools. Leaders need not necessarily be trained Bible students. A duet by Mrs. J. Donly and Miss Forrested was much enjoyed.

Visual Aids

The guest speaker, Rev. Manson Doyle spoke on "Visual Aids" for Sunday School workers, using the flannelgraph as an example, also blackboard and pictures, with graded lessons for each class. He explained that the Mother's Day fund, on the basis of five cents per member, should be sent to the Sec.-Treas. at an early date. This money goes to the Ontario Religious Education Council, and is used for the advancement of Sunday School work.

Bountiful Supper Served

The afternoon session adjourned and a bountiful supper was served in the Sunday School rooms.

The evening session opened with "Songs We Love to Sing", led by Miss Griffen of Bannockburn, and the opening exercises were conducted by Rev. J. G. Murdock of St. Peter's Church, Madoc. The report of the nominating committee was accepted and the following officers installed by Rev. Crabbe:— President, Mr. H. Rollins; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. E. Moore; Adult Supt., Mr. D. Blue; Boys' Work, Allan Ketchison; Girls' Work, Mrs. J. Donly; For children, Mrs. Roy Wannamaker; Nursery, Mrs. Allan Franks; Temperance, Mrs. G. Patten; Missionary Training, Rev. J. G. Murdock.

The roll call was responded to with Highlights of the year's work, and was answered by 12 schools, every one in this district being represented. A quartette by Douglas Blue, Stanley Hawthorne, Rev. J. G. Murdock and T. Hawthorne, with Miss Marion Robertson as accompanist, was much appreciated.

Rev. Manson Doyle addressed the congregation on "New Methods for An Old Message".

The report of the Resolutions Committee was accepted and the meeting dismissed by Rev. J. L. Hutchison.

Community Service Chest Drive Far Behind $12,000 Objective

With three quarters of the campaign time already elapsed, the Community Service Chest drive for $12,000 in Belleville and district is still far from its objective, it was announced by one of the campaign officials today as an appeal was made for funds that the designated goal be reached.

"It is imperative that the Community Service Chest realize the full amount of their objective in order that their services may not be curtailed during the coming year," pointed out the official. Organizations included in the campaign include the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Children's Aid and the Young Men's Christian Association.

However, it was pointed out that there are several unfinished districts in the city where the campaign has been completed but the volunteer canvassers have still to turn in their report, while calls to the central office at the Y.M.C.A. indicate that a number of persons willing to contribute toward the campaign, were not seen by the canvasser in the course of their general calls.

Campaign officials stated they would be very appreciative if persons missed by the regular canvassers would call the campaign office, telephone 3320, or the Y.M.C.A. at 413, and a campaign representative would visit their home to take their subscription.

Subscriptions to the Community Service Chest campaign can be left at the Y.M.C.A. or with Mr. I. Hefkey, campaign treasurer, at the Royal Bank.

Gordon Friesen Guest Speaker At Men's Club

The men's club of Tabernacle United Chuch held its first meeting of the fall and winter season in the Sunday School room Monday evening. The attendance was very encouraging, and the members listened with great interest to the guest speaker Mr. G. A. Friesen administrator of the Belleville hospital, who was introduced by Rev. J. W. Houston.

Mr. Friesen spoke of his work in Germany after the Allied forces had broken down the Nazi war machine, of being sent with a detachment of Canadian and British army officers, to set up a military government in Hanover, this being no easy task trying to control and govern thousands of displaced persons of all European nationalites. Mr. Friesen's duty as military governor was to set up laws to maintain order, for religious education and health, and for the setting up of local governing bodies.

Set Apart

Each nationality was set apart by themselves, Russians, Germans, French, Dutch and so on. Communication with higher authority outside the zone was broken down, so that in all matters pertaining to the government, of such a disorganized mob (if one can imagine how control could be maintained) was entirely in the hands of the military government of which Mr. Friesen was governor. From Hanover Mr. Friesen was sent with a staff of three British and one Canadian officer as military governor of Westphalia, to govern a population of 90,000 refugees and misplaced persons.

The mission had to requisition buildings for its staff, and everything necessary to carry on the work of government. Schools were opened up, hospitals and a sanatorium. A military court was also set up to start the big task of denazification, a task which will take years (if ever).

Interesting Stories

Mr. Friesen told a good many interesting stories in connection with his work, and those members who were unable to be present, missed a very enlightening speech of conditions in Europe.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the speaker by Mr. Ashley.

The ladies of the Comrade Club provided the splendid dinner. Community singing was led by Mr. Houston with Mrs. Houston at the piano. President Lloyd Hicks presided and announced that the next meeting will be the first Monday in December.

Compositions By Local Composer TobeHeardonAir

Original compositions by a local composer of religious music, Mr. Eric Nayler, Baldwin Street, will be featured this evening on the regular Tuesday evening broadcast of the Belleville Junior Board of Trade with three recent compositions of Mr. Nayler's to be sung by Miss Muriel Jobson, local soprano soloist. Mr. Dorland Houston will act as accompanist.

One of the numbers "Crusaders For Christ," to be sung this evening by Miss Jobson, was written by Mr. Nayler, as a theme number in connection with the Crusade for Christ movement in the United Church and in its published form has gained considerable popularity across Canada. Other numbers composed by Mr. Nayler and which will be heard over the air are "Jesus is Mine" and "Memories of Calvary."

Too Early to Decide If Butter Cut Needed

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Creamery butter stocks in nine principal Canadian cities at Nov. 1 totalled 41,879,858 pounds, compared with 43,967,296 pounds at Oct. and 43,387,014 at Nov. 1, 1945, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Commenting on these figures, sources close to the ration administration said it still was too early to determine whether Canada could get through the winter without a cut in her current butter ration of six ounces per person per week.

They agreed the supply situation was "touch and go," but said that if there was a reduction it would be small.

They noted also that while stocks were lower this year than a year ago the current ration—at six ounces—was two ounces lower than the allotment of eight ounces a year ago.

The bureau also reported that stocks of cheese totalled 19,953,551 pounds at Nov. 1, against 23,083,443 pounds at Oct. 1 and and 39,905,004 at Nov. 1, 1945.

Stocks of cold storage eggs totalled 1,477,890 dozen, compared with 4,534,786 dozen at Oct. 1 and 3,736,170 dozen a year ago while fresh eggs on hand amounted to 673,555 dozen, against 1,128,609 dozen at Oct. 1.

Holdings of frozen egg meats stood at 7,128,966 pounds, compared with 7,661,058 and 15,278,101.

Douglas Lapp, Ottawa, Heads Boys' Parliament

The 26th session of the Older Boys' Parliament will be held at Western University in London, on December 26-31 it has been announced by Rev. Wilbur Howard, secretary of the Ontario Boys' Work Board and chief returning officer for the Parliament elections. Rev. J. W. Houston, minister of Tabernacle Church, has been appointed as district returning officer for Belleville.

Douglas Lapp of Ottawa, student at University of Toronto is the premier-elect for the 26th Boys' Parliament with leader of the Opposition being Gordon Dollare of St. Thomas, a student of Western University. Already three nominations are promised for the Belleville constituency, these being Elgin Moynes, Harry Croll and Donald Charlton.

Boys in Tuxis or Trail Ranger groups and Sunday School classes may vote with qualifications as to age and attendance being rigidly enforced. Boys who have passed their 12th birthday, but not their 21st birthday and who have attended fifty percent of their classes and mid-week meetings will qualify to vote. Voters lists must be completed by November 25th, with the election to take place on November 30th.

710-Pound Youth Gets Free Trousers

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP)—Robert Hughes, 20-year-old Baylis, Ill., youth who weighs 710 pounds, is going to get a new pair of trousers free. Henry Reiher, clothing company official, said the trousers were made by his company after he saw a picture of Hughes and noted his trousers were too small. Hughes specified the dimensions—110 inch waist, 128 inch seat; 62-inch thigh and 46-inch knee. Reiher said 4 1-2 yards of 60-inch material were used in the trousers.

British Officer And German Girl Slain

Berlin, Nov. 5—(AP)—A British officer and an attractive German girl were found shot to death Sunday in the Grunewald section of Berlin, an official announcement said today.

Two English women, riding horseback through the wood, came upon the bodies lying about 600 yards from a British rest club for soldiers.

The officer had been shot twice in the back and the girl in the abdomen and mouth.

British public safety investigators said the girl's handbag was missing but her jewelry was intact, indicating that robbery was not the motive.

Athletics have an important place in the lives of students at U. of T. and range all the way from fencing to the most popular of fall pastimes, rugby. There's keen rivalry between the various faculties and the four colleges which form the University. Here's a tense moment in a game between St. Michael's College and Victoria College. Left to right in the play are Bob Bundy, Toronto; Lorne McIntyre, Ottawa; Tony Celutti, Sudbury; Jerry Fullerton, Hamilton; and Jerry Hennessy, Hamilton.

BANCROFT

Order Eastern Star Installs Year's Officers

Bancroft (Special)—The installation of the officers of Bancroft Chapter O.E.S. Pouring Into North

The northland has once more resounded to the old familiar sounds, that of the baying of hounds, for the hunters and their equipment are pouring into Bancroft and surrounding district in great numbers in preparation for a successful hunt. This hunting season promises to be the best in years, both from the point of game and the fact that for many of the boys and men back from overseas it will be their first hunt since 1937. The biggest drawback in the hunt this year is the shortage of rifles and ammunition but in many cases this is being overcome by hunters exchanging with one another.

Most of the summer lodges throughout the district are remaining open or are opening up for the hunting season and most of them have full bookings. Mrs. Lillian Green who operates Six Point Lodge on Highway 28 is back from New York ready with her guests for the big hunt.

Owing to the dull weather and low hanging ceiling, the planes scheduled to be here at the Kelusky field from Peterborough for the purpose of taking up passengers, were cancelled to some future date.

Everyone has a Stake in the TEXTILE INDUSTRY

IT'S NOT only that everyone uses cotton goods for clothing and in dozens of articles which they may never think of as containing cotton—such things as garden hose, electric wiring, oilcloth, window shades...

Everyone has a stake in the textile industry because whole Canadian towns depend for employment on textile mills... The millions of dollars paid out every year in wages find their way into the pockets of farmers, fishermen and miners as well as into the hands of grocers, butchers, bakers, railwaymen... in fact everybody benefits.

It is important to every Canadian that these cotton goods are made in Canada by Canadians, and that their wages are spent in Canada.

Savings Bond Sale

Finance Minister Ilsley has announced that the sale of Canada Savings Bonds will be kept on the market indefinitely as long as people show interest in their purchase.

This step will be appreciated by the people who wish to buy this security and it is felt that as long as they continue to express a desire to lend their money to the Government Canada should be ready to borrow, guaranteeing security and reasonable interest. "She has plenty of uses for the cash." That is the view of the Montreal Herald which adds, "Indeed, Mr. Ilsley might well consider putting Savings Certificates and stamps on sale again. Such small-scale investments once provided a sound foundation for France's economy."

The response of the people to the Savings Bonds has been such as to please the nation, showing as it does the importance of not only investing in government securities but also of putting money in solid investments and in saving what can be saved.

It is safe to say that a great share of those who bought War and Victory Bonds and Savings Certificates will not forget the lesson in saving and in buying government bonds they learned in the years of war.

Leader Celebrates

President Chiang Kai-Shek of China has in the latter portion of his 59 years (he had his birthday last week) seen himself become one of the great figures in the world by the act of leading China into the forefront of nations. He has seen his country pass through two revolutions which have hastened the break with her long and dormant past and the bringing of that great people before the world's attention. The rise of China in this age has been one of the events of history and is part of the great change which has come over the globe.

His history is as romantic as any leader or any reader of history could desire. Studying as a youth military science in Japan he met Dr. Sun Yet Sen who influenced him. He took an outstanding part from 1911 onward, when he headed a "dare-or-die corps," which captured Hanchow. He fought for years to free China from the war lords and bring unity to his country. He became president of the national government in 1928. Even before the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese War the national government had made plans for calling a National Assembly but the war and the Communist rebellion caused postponements time and again. Now the government has decided in spite of Red objections to convene the Assembly this month. Chiang seeks a united China to find a solution to all her problems so that she can emerge from the present chaos into nationhood.

Compulsory Savings Returns

Many thousands of Canadian taxpayers have a tidy sum of money collected by the government in the two years in which compulsory savings formed part of the federal tax set-up. In 1942 the plan was put into force and continued for two years, that is until the middle of 1944. Last week a report stated that the government held about 260 millions of such money and that the first assessment, that for half of the year 1942 was about fifty millions.

Those who have this forced collection to their credit will get their first assessment of $50 millions, that of 1942, back by March 31., 1948, with interest at two per cent. The $115 million of the assessment for 1943 will be repayable the next year, that is in 1949, and the final assessment of $95 millions, that of the first half of 1944, by the year 1950.

Compulsory savings was adopted as a means of saving and of draining off excess income from any tendency it might have during war years towards inflation.

Return of this money is something to which Canadians will look forward and many will make the best use they can of it, to the extent of re-investing it in securities such as government bonds. As part of a savings plan it served its purpose well in inculcating thrift during wartime besides the other advantages it created or offered.

Invention Upon Invention

Inventions come swiftly as man more and more finds them fitting into the scheme of living. A startling forecast for most people was that made the other day by Admiral Viscount Mountbatten of an electronic brain that will exercise some choice and judgment, a memory machine that will lighten the work of the human brain by storing up information that could be released at will to men wishing to put it to use.

So far man has been master of invention. The greatest scientific sensation of this age was the announcement of the A-bomb in the summer of 1945. The train of possibilities in this discovery of the use of atomic power has been causing natural anxiety until the world shall achieve an effective set-up of atomic control. With that energy turned to peacetime use many changes of society would no doubt result because of the expected lightening of the burden of mankind. Civil and peacetime use of atomic energy has been intriguing men's minds ever since the discovery.

Man has seen what invention has achieved so far. So he can have bright hopes of continuation of such progress but of course he must be the master of these inventions and use them for his and humanity's welfare. Man has not allowed any invention to master him so far and that is a sign that he will remain master of the gadbets and devices and discoveries.

Man's mind and spirit must be dominant. The inventions will be developed as man will need them.

Peanut, Favorite Nut of Canadians

The lowly nut now enjoys a prominent position among the 20 leading Canadian imports. During the first seven months of 1946, Canada purchased nuts from many countries to a value of $12,865,000, a figure which exceeded by $813,000 the total imports of over 81,000,000 pounds of nuts at a value of $12 million during 1945, and four times the figure for 1938. The peanut takes precedence among all the nuts imported into the Dominion, followed by almonds, walnuts, pecans, filberts and coconuts. In 1945, more than 66 million pounds of peanuts were brought to Canada at a value of $6.2 millions.

Changes have occurred in the sources of supply. In 1938, China exported to Canada 29,622,664 pounds of peanuts, with India as next biggest exporter. In 1946, Nigeria has taken the lead, followed by the United States, India, and Brazil. Almonds which used to come from Italy, the United States, France, Portugal and China are now obtained from Spain and Portugal. As regards walnuts, the war eliminated Romania and China as suppliers. They now come from the United States and India. The United States has always supplied Canada with pecans. Filberts which used to come from Italy now come from Spain, and Turkey is back with sweet hazelnuts, pistachios, and pin nuts. Brazil sends Brazil nuts and the West Indies are the source of coconuts.

For 25 years the A. Schrader family, farming 10 miles southwest of Yorkton, Sask., had hauled water from a distance for all their needs. They never realized they were sitting on top of a regular bonanza of the stuff. Late this summer a well-driller struck a 1,000-gallon-per-hour flow within a stone's throw of the Schrader house. So much water gushes out that it was necessary to ditch the flow into a nearby slough, thus providing an abundant supply for the Schrader livestock, says Montreal Family Herald and Star.

Oranges and grapefruit will be in bountiful supply this winter. The winter crop of the two major citrus fruits is expected to total nearly a box apiece for each man, woman and child in the United States. Growers expect to pick 57.4 million boxes of oranges, 10.5 million more than last year and 7.6 million above the previous record crop of three years ago. The grapefruit harvest, also a record, should amount to 64.7 million boxes, according to Wall Street Journal.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What was Greek fire?

Few elements of ancient warfare have given rise to more fruitless speculation than a highly inflammable substance used during the Middle Ages by the Greeks of the Byzantine Empire.

The Byzantines themselves called it "liquid fire" and it was first called "Greek fire" by the Crusaders. Its chemical composition is variously supposed to have been a mixture of naphtha, resin, bitumen, petroleum, asphalt, sulphur, saltpeter, niter and quicklime. The United States War Department says there appears to be no doubt that naphtha was the chief ingredient and that it may have contained sulphur and pitch.

According to tradition, the peculiar liquid known as Greek fire was invented late in the seventh century by a Greek architect named Callinicus and was first used on a large scale to repel a Saracen attack upon Cyzicus in Asia Minor. The city was invested by a powerful force of Saracens from whom it was delivered by the destruction of their fleet and 30,000 men by means of liquid fire. For centuries thereafter the secret of this deadly combustible was jealously guarded at Constantinople, but during the Crusades the secret leaked out and became common knowledge.

The early accounts of the use and effect of Greek fire are so mingled with obvious fable that it is impossible to determine its real power as an agency of destruction. Greek fire is supposed to have been thrown over walls with ladles, projected with tow tied to arrows and javelins, and discharged from metal tubes resembling cannon.

It has been stated that ignition may have been accomplished by mixing the liquid with quicklime, it being supposed that the slaking of the quicklime by sea water raised the temperature to the ignition point of sulphur; but attempts to ignite sulphur and naphtha in this manner have not been successful.

The War Department thinks it more probable that the naphtha was simply dispersed from a squirt of fire engine and that it was ignited by means of a flame in front of the orifice. If that be so, Greek fire did not differ materially from the modern flamethrower, which originated in the U. S. Army during the First World War and was first used by the Germans during the last year of that conflict. In fact, incendiary bombs are merely modern version of the ancient burning arrows, torches and firebrands tossed into fortresses and onto ships by assailants.

Some authorities suppose that flame-projectors may have been developed in the Orient independently of the West. Early in the 13th century the Mongols under Genghis Khan employed Chinese artillerists who appear to have devised flame projectors of various kinds. Tamerlane, who conquered a large part of Asia in the 14th century, made considerable use of "fire pots," vessels of flaming liquid catapulted at the enemy by means of machines similar to those used in casting stones.

Greek fire, according to some accounts, was practically inextinguishable, even under water.

SAFE MILK FOR EVERYBODY

Some agents in the fringes of the medical profession and public health administration are requesting, demanding or in exceptional instances just asking for some further explanation of the reason or reasons why I classify the grades of milk thus:

First choice—Certified Milk.

Third choice—Any fresh milk available, scalded or boiled one minute.

Only when none of these is available, would I accept pasteurized milk.

Remember, this is merely my personal judgment.

The main reason why I do not go for pasteurized milk is the fact that the last great epidemic of typhoid fever (Montreal) was traced to milk distributed to the too trusting public under the label "Pasteurized."

There are still a lot of people who do not know what pasteurized means. It means par-boiled and that is all. Any old milk, no matter what it's quality or purity or source, is heated up to 140 degrees F. (Dorland) or 145 degrees F. (Webster) or 154 degrees F (Stedman) for 20 to 30 minutes and then cooled again. Par-boiling, I call it, in the Websterian sense. Such treatment kills any disease germs likely to be in the milk, from whatever source. Therefore, any old milk, regardless of its source, quality or purity, is made safe for infant, child, invalid or adult by such par-boiling.

Any old milk, regardless of its source, quality or purity, is made safe for infant, child, invalid or adult by scalding, that is, by bringing to a boil and boiling for one minute.

Some of the agents who demanded this explanation of my preference for raw milk (provided it is from tuberculin tested cows or certified, dwell with peculiar insistence upon the alleged danger of getting undulant fever from drinking any other than pasteurized milk. Undulant feve may be conveyed in the milk from cows infected with Brucella abortus (contagious abortion), but this mode of infection is certainly rare, for infants and young children, the main groups of milk drinkers, are only occasionally infected; most cases occur in adults, particularly adults who handle cattle and hogs. Anyway scalding (boiling one minute will make any milk perfectly safe for any one.

Another reason why I prefer Grade A Raw milk from tuberculin tested herd or Certified Milk is because raw milk tastes better than par-boiled or scalded milk. In some communities, however, the big dairy interests have contrived to get health board regulations or ordinances requiring pasteurization of even Certified Milk—and when producers concede the milk has to be par-boiled to make it safe, why pay a premium for it? Any milk at all is as safe and as good food for infant child, invalid or adult when it is par-boiled, scalded or pasteurized.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Raw Food

Can an infant be brought up in good health on a diet of raw food exclusively? Can an adult live on raw food exclusively? (Miss R. S.)

Answe—Although I know of no instance, I can conceive of no reason why not. All well nourished infants live and thrive on raw food exclusively for the first eight to ten months of life. Mother's milk.

Child's Second Teeth

Answer—The permanent biscuspid (behind the canine or eye tooth) is cut usually at about the age of nine or 10 years. Darn it—that reminds me I should have included the schedules for the cutting of the temporary and the permanent teeth in the booklet "Save Your Teeth."

A Trace

What is meant by a marked trace of albumin in the urine? Is there any cure for this. (V. F. A.)

Answer—Nomally there is no albumin present, by the heat and nitric acid test. In various conditions a wee bit is found present—called a "trace." It is up to the physician to determine whether it has any significance.

AMERICANS GO

Presidential candidates usually come from State Governors and the result of gubernatorial elections in the 33 States voting today may decide at least the Republican presidential choice for 1948.

Dewey Certain Of Re-election

Gov. Thomas Dewey, most likely choice if he wins re-election as Governor of New York today, seemed certain of a landslide vote in his favor.

There was never an official indication of how many bona fide veterans of the First and Second Great Wars are in the field but the number is believed to exceed 300 of the 1,065 candidates for the 500 congressional and gubernatorial vacancies.

The Republicans finished the campaign riding the crest of a wave of optimism created by encouraging polls of public opinion and forecasts by leading commentators and observers.

But the Democrats saw in the record off-year vote estimated—35,500,000—a promise of a heavy "protest" vote which they believe will go mostly to the party in power.

There are no great issues between the parties but the Republicans are promising a deep cut in taxation and drastic curtailment in expenditures for the public service.

No Votes in Columbia

In the District of Columbia, Washington, residents of the National capital have no vote in Congressional elections and their city is run by Congressional committees. They are completely disfranchised.

But they are voting today — about 700,000 are eligible — in a referendum asking them if they would like to enjoy the franchise held by their fellow citizens outside the district. It is expected the answer will be an unmistakeable "yes" and the franchise advocates will have their hands strengthened if nothing else happens.

Unlike Canadian national elections and presidential elections here, these off-year affairs lack the concentrated interest provided by the campaigning of national party leaders.

They are 48 little general elections, confined to their respective states, with a few major figures whose political lives are not at stake this time, travelling about the hustings.

Wallace Outstanding

Outstanding among these figures was Henry Wallace, ousted from the commerce secretaryship a few weeks ago because he criticised the administration's foreign policy.

In spite of that episode he carried out previous commitments to campaign across the country for democratic candidates of his choice, winding up in New York last night.

He warned that a Republican victory would bring reactionary policies bad for the people at home and for success of international relations.

He also hinted that now he had finished his commitment to help his Democratic friends he would be a "free man," but he discounted reports that he would form a new party.

Truman to Vote at Home

President Truman and his family arranged to vote in their home town of Independence, Mo., after which Mr. Truman planned to board his train to return to Washington.

Because of his residence in Independence, Mr. Truman votes in the fourth congressional district. Hence he could not participate in the fifth (Kansas City) district race which he lifted to top billing among the congressional fights by personally endorsing Enos A. Axtell in the primary over Rep. Roger C. Slaughter, the Democratic incumbent.

Axtell, who received the nomination, is opposed by Republican Albert L. Reeves, Jr., in what is regarded as a neck and neck race.

Keeps Out of Fight

Otherwise Mr. Truman has kept personally aloof from the general congressional battle, even though the outcome may have much to do with whether he is a candidate for re-election in 1948 and whether he can win if he is. Almost traditionally, the party which wins an off-year election takes, or keeps the White House two years later.

In Ohio, former Governor John W. Bricker, who held second place on the 1944 Republican National ticket, strove for a wide majority over Democratic Senator James Huffman. In Michigan, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, mentioned as a possible presidential candidate, seemed to have only nominal opposition in Democrat James H. Lee.

Gov. Earl Warren of California, talked as a possible dark horse for the 1948 GOP nomination, gave last-minute aid to Republican Senator William F. Knowland, who was locked in a close tussle with Democrat Will Rogers, Jr., in the Senate race. Gov. Warren was sure of re-election, with both major party nominations.

FOREIGN MINISTER

Agrees in Principle

Mr. Molotov agreed in principle to a provision guaranteeing basic human freedoms to the population of territories transferred from Italy to other countries, notably Yugoslavia. But he said he wanted the wording modified somewhat and it was agreed this should be undertaken.

A Paris peace conference decision that Yugoslavia and Greece should receive equal reparations of $100,000,000 from Italy drew a protest from Mr. Molotov. He asserted Yugoslavia should receive twice as much as Greece. Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Bevin strenuously disagreed and this issue was left for future settlement.

Also left for future settlement was a proposal to include in the treaty an Italian-Austrian agreement protecting language and other German minority rights in Bolzano and Trentoo provinces. Mr. Molotov argued this was not proper.

The difficulties facing the foreign ministers were underscored late yesterday when the Italian government handed the council a general denunciation of the Italian peace treaty draft, declaring that it is "not in keeping with the principles of the Atlantic Charter."

Opposing Sides In Pilots' Strike Agree to Plan

Washington, Nov. 5 — (AP)—Mediator Frank P. Douglass said Monday that opposing sides in the 15-day-old strike of Trans World Airlines pilots have accepted in principle his proposal for arbitration.

Mr. Douglass told reporters he expects the walkout to end as soon as representatives of the company and the pilots union clarify a few points.

This proposed agreement would provide that the 1,400 pilots go back to flying while demands for higher pay for four-engine plane fliers and for revised working rules are submitted to a panel whose decision would be binding.

David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, American Federation of Labor accepted the arbitration offer by telegram and also sent a letter, Mr. Douglass said, giving his interpretation of some of the points covered.

Jack Frye, T. W. A. president, also offered his interpretation of some points, the mediator said, and the two views will be reconciled in conference.

Mare's Milk For Babies?

Amherst, Mass. (CP)—Studies at the Massachusetts State College agricultural and experimental station, published in the Journal of Dairy Science, indicate that mare's milk may be a good substitute for human milk for feeding babies.

"Mare's milk," scientists report, "is commonly used as a food in some sections of Western Asia."

It's composition resembles that of human milk more nearly than cow's or goat's milk, the report said.

Unborn Babe Wounded When Mother is Shot

Winthrop, Me., Nov. 5 (AP)—A 22-year-old woman, shot in the abdomen in a hunting accident Saturday, gave premature birth soon afterward, to daughter, who Dr. Leon Herring said had a bullet wound in the left thigh.

Mrs. Arthur Laughton and the baby were reported in fair condition at Augusta General Hospital.

Dr. Herring, a Kernebec County medical examiner, termed the shooting "entirely accidental."

Dr. Herring said he understood Mr. and Mrs. Laughton were hunting deer outside Winthrop Village when Laughton's gun accidentally discharged.

The doctor said the seven-months baby was born at the hospital after an ambulance trip from the woodland where the accident occurred.

Mrs. Laughton is the mother of one other small child.

Huge Amount Of Relief Supplied By Red Cross Soc.

Ottawa, Nov. 5—Through the organization of the Canadian Red Cross Society, supplies amounting to 297,649,180 lbs., valued at $86,113,212, travelled by 1,511 steamers to bring relief abroad during five war years ane one year of peace.

These figures were presented by C. LaFerle, chairman of the National Transportation Committee, in his report to Central Council, Canadian Red Cross Society, which opened a two-day session here yesterday.

In the past nine months, Mr. LaFerle told the council, the Transportation Committee handled goods worth $8,074,610, or 14,921,861 lbs., on behalf of 250 voluntary and 100 auxiliary organizations. Under the auspices of the Canadian United Allied Relief Fund, 8,601,044 lbs., were despatched to devastated countries of Europe. The United Kingdom received 1,906,680 lbs., with other countries receiving 2,742,721 lbs., from Red Cross and voluntary organizations.

Presentation Made To Anglican Rector At St. Jude's Church

Sharp Corners — On the evening of October 29th, the congregation of St. Jude's Church, Kingsford, gathered at the Rectory at Shannonville, for a social evening with the Reverend and Mrs. Heaven, before Kingsford was transferred from the Parish of Shannonville, to Deseronto. Owing to the foggy night a number were unable to be present. On behalf of the congregation Mr. Walter Scott presented Mr. and Mrs. Heaven with a white chenille bedspread.

An address of tribute to Rev. and Mrs. Heaven was read by Mrs. Garry Provins. It was signed on behalf of St. Jude's congregation by Ruby Tucker, president Women's Guild; Will McRae, Rector's warden, and Walter Scott, People's warden.

Scheme to Lessen Isolation of Aged

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England—(CP)—A block of flats reserved exclusively for retired, elderly woman is nearing completion in Newcastle.

Believed to be the first of its kind, it is sponsored by the National Council of Women, which has received an interest-free loan to finance the project.

The council said "proper rents will be charged, but the life of residents will strike a balance between communal institutions and the severe isolation in which many old people live.

Reports Denied By Foreign Office

Madrid, Nov. 4 (AP)—A foreign office spokesman today denied reports abroad to the effect that Spanish police had arrested 100 persons last night in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow the Franco government.

The spokesman said he had been assured by the national police that the reports were entirely unfounded.

The BBC said last night that the alleged revolt had been engineered by "a Communist element" and timed to coincide with the discussion of Franco Spain by the United Nations assembly in New York.

The rumors were believed to have stemmed from the fact that about Oct. 20 Franco police raided the headquarters of the Superior Council of Spanish Republican army forces in Barcelona, arrested five prominent members of the group and seized records which led to the arrest of about 200 persons in the next few days.

Paralysis Blamed On Blitz, Bride Returns to U. K.

Halifax, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Mrs. Nellie Clark, young British war bride who became completely paralyzed during her stay in Canada, will be taken from hospital here today and will board the liner Scythia on her return trip home.

Red Cross officials brought the mother and her five-year-old son here from Regina Saturday and have arranged for the ship's doctor to care for her on the ocean crossing.

Her child was born during an air raid in Britain and after she came to Canada a few years ago paralysis gradually developed until she was unable to speak. The illness was attributed to her experience at the time of the blitz.

Shortage of Feed Grain in East To Improve Soon

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP)—Government sources said today they expected the shortage of western feed grains in Eastern Canada, induced by the heavy movement of wheat to the eastern seaboard, would improve shortly as more transportation becomes available.

They said a definite improvement would result when cold weather closed the St. Lawrence River ports and cut down the wheat shipments from Western Canada. However, it was expected reserves would begin increasing before that time.

A shortage of transport facilities hanging over from the war years has prompted transport control authorities to enforce measures to speed up the loading and unloading of box cars in an effort to provide more space for the movement of foodstuffs.

The second of the Winter series of teas tendered by the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross to war brides and their families is scheduled for the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday of this week from 3 to 6 p.m All war brides of the city and district are welcome, and as Red Cross officials stated, if they are a bit shy about coming, they may bring a friend. The children are especially welcome. Plans for a big Christmas party for the brides and their children, to be held in December are under way, Red Cross people said. There will be a Christmas Tree and all the Yuletide "trimmin's" for the kiddies and presents for the grown-ups.

New Soapless VEL Marvelous For Dishes

by Frances Thompson
noted homemaking authority

Nobody likes doing dishes, but there is now a new product called VEL that certainly makes the inevitable job a whole lot easier and quicker.

UNLIKE SOAP

VEL is not soap—it's a soapless discovery. Its quick-forming foamy suds don't last—they're not meant to. But the clear water remaining in dishpan or sink is the very thing which makes glasses and china sparkle and so quickly cleans the porridge pot and roasting pan . . . the two bugaboos of dishwashing. What is more, dishes washed in VEL and given a quick rinse will dry themselves without streaking.

VEL CUTS GREASE FAST

It's amazing how VEL cuts the grease and leaves little if any scum on the sides of your sink. If necessary a tiny sprinkling of dry VEL on the dishcloth, then a quick rub-around, will make the sink or dishpan gleam. And, incidentally, VEL is very kind to the hands.

VERY LITTLE VEL NEEDED

Frankly, at first we were skeptical of VEL for we missed the heavy dishpan suds produced by soap. In error, we added more, but now know that a very little VEL goes a long way . . . and that VEL keeps on cleaning long after the suds dissolve. A teaspoonful of two of VEL is usually plenty in a dishpanful of water. Add a little more for larger sinks or very greasy pans.

WEDDINGS

RAND—MARISETT

Picton, Nov. 5.—An interesting wedding was solemnized at Picton United Church on Sunday, when Elrena Gladys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asel Marisett, became the bride of Douglas Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rand, all of Picton. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon officiated.

The bride wore a tailored grey chalk-striped suit, matching hat and black accessories with corsage of red roses. She was attended by Miss Margaret Cahoon, wearing a poudre blue suit, with black hat and corsage of white roses.

Mr. Donald Rand attended his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Rand left for a trip to Cobourg, Niagara Falls and other western points. They will later reside in Picton.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa, Ont.

Q. The other day I purchased a tin of beef stew and the grocer took two meat tokens. Was he correct?

A. Yes . . . for the size of tin you mentioned in your letter the grocer was quite right in taking two tokens.

Q. When I was at my local grocer's not long ago I asked for some green tea and he said he was out of it and didn't know when he would be getting some in. Could you tell me when this tea will be back on the market again?

A. Due to the war and the various other setbacks experienced by the tea industry during the war, production of green tea has been seriously curtailed, and the latest information available is that it will be at least six months before green tea is again in the shops.

Q. I am going to sell a new car which was only purchased a few weeks ago. It has a very low mileage and I thought I could charge the price I paid for it. However, I have been told it must be sold as a used car and the price cannot be as high as the price I paid. Is this true?

A. The mileage on a car does not determine the proper ceiling price. Your car would be classified as a used car and not as a new car, therefore you must not charge the price you paid.

Q. My husband works in a large plant and each day a milkman delivers cartons of milk for lunch. They formely paid 8c a pint, then it was raised to 9c. Recently it was increased to 10c and this week to 11c per pint carton. Is this allowed?

A. The price of milk comes under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Milk Control Board and we have forwarded your letter to them.

Nursing Service Advocated For B.C.I. Students at Meeting Of School and Home Assoc.

On Monday evening, the Collegiate Home and School Association met in the auditorium with a splendid attendance of members and friends. With Mrs. G. G. Wright, president of the Association in charge, the meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada". Mrs. H. Rollins led in community singing. Accompanied by Mr. Fletcher at the piano a group of students sang, "When It's Twilight on the Prairies" for members' enjoyment.

An important feature of the program was a constructive discussion of topics interesting to parents, teachers and pupils. Should a school uniform be adopted for the girls? Should the school hold formal dances? From these questions arose considerable comment pro and con.

Nursing Service Advocated

It was strongly advocated that a nursing service for Collegiate students be continued as soon as possible; that a systematic yearly check-up be resumed was recommended. In this way a pupil may be saved from serious illness later.

The subject of school insurance for those participating in sport was widely discussed and it was decided that a plan be investigated whereby pupils could be insured against any possible injuries sustained during school hours.

The film "Lessons in Living" was shown by consent of the film board. Schools of yesterday, with their drab interiors and inadequate facilities for teaching children how to work and play together, are unable to give the education needed in a world of changing ideas and modes of living. In this film a school of the old-fashioned type was completely transformed into an attractive modern educational centre. Pupils and parents worked together to build and create a school planned to teach citizenship as well as the three R's. Rows of desks were discarded for movable work benches. A radio, better lighting, space and equipment for games were necessities. This school was then equipped to make a better contribution to its community.

At the conclusion of the program, members had the opportunity of meeting the teaching staff and Board of Education. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the hostess committee.

TWEED

W.M.S. of District Holds Rally In United Church

Tweed.—On Wednesday last the Madoc District W.M.S., held their annual rally in St. John's United Church, Tweed, when 80 delegates were present from all over the district.

The chairman for the sessions Mrs. F. J. Nickle, Madoc, president of Madoc Presbytery, with Rev. A. L. Siscoe, Tweed, welcoming the representatives present.

The theme of the rally was "Our all for the Kingdom". At the morning session, Eldorado was in charge of the worship service, followed by greetings from Tweed and Ivanhoe and the dedication of the offering by Bethel W.M.S. Miss Coultes and Miss Willows, who are in charge of Maynooth Missions, gave a resume of their work, mentioning the new parsonage now under construction for them.

Mrs. A. Empey, president of Belleville Presbytery, conducted a forum on "Next year What Will We Do?" and Mrs. A. McCreary, Queensboro, spoke of the Missionary Literature. A memorial service was conducted by the Marmora Branch to end the morning session, following which a dinner was served by the Tweed ladies.

Mrs. (Rev.) Patton, Queensboro, opened the afternoon session with a Temperance talk followed by a brief address "Echoes of School Leaders" by Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, Tweed.

Mrs. Baugh, Tamworth, gave a report on Mission Bands.

The guest speaker of the day was Dr. Florence Murray, of Halifax, medical missionary in Korea, for 20 years.

Dr. Murray detailed her work in the Mission field in Korea, where she started a small hospital with no medical assistance until a few years later. It now accommodates 100 beds, has seven doctors on the staff and forty student nurses, who are mostly native Koreans. Dr. Murray was interned for a short time, but had no complaints of her treatment, she has been practising medicine in Halifax for the past few years and is now awaiting transportation along with two Canadian nurses, back to her work in Korea.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

MELROSE W.I.

The October meeting of the Melrose W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. Thos. Leslie, October 31, with an attendance of 31 and four visitors. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

Correspondence was read and discussed. It was moved and seconded the W.I. apply for government grant and also send $25 toward Scholarship Fund for Girls at McDonald College.

Mrs. Thos. Leslie read a letter of appreciation from the Red Cross for food parcels sent overseas.

Dr. McVickers, guest speaker, was introduced by Health Convener, Mrs. A. English. His address proved very instructive and enlightening.

Reports from the recent convention were given by the delegates. A solo by Mrs. A. Reilly was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. A. English moved that the W.I. donate blankets to the Murphy family recently made homeless by fire. An extra collection was taken to promote this gesture.

The members were asked to please bring some useful object to the next meeting to help restore housekeeping in this family.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. A social half hour and refreshments followed. Collection amounted to $2.83.

Evening Branch Of Christ Church W.A. Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Evening Branch of Christ Church W.A., was held in the parish hall, Monday evening, with an attendance of 20, and the President, Miss Eliza Bell, conducting.

During a business period reports were give nby the Secretary Miss Frances Reid, by the Treasurer, Mrs. H. Ingram, and by Mrs. E. Smith, for the Flower Fund. Miss Bell led in Litany and prayers for the devotional service, after which she introduced the speaker for the evening, Mrs. Winter of the Senior W.A., who chose as her subject "The Psalms". She spoke of King David, and that it has become an accepted fact that he did not write or compose all of the Psalms, and linking them with present day usage she gave our National Anthem as an example, explaining that the sentiments therein expressed were originally parts of the Book of Psalms.

Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Winter for her interesting and instructive address; after which games and contests were enjoyed. The winners were, Mrs. J. Cooke with Mrs. J. Stevens; Mrs. J. McCullough, and Mrs. Musclow.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

It's Tough to be a Customer!

Today's shortages and line-ups sometimes make shopping rather hard to take.

It's definitely disappointing to be told, "Sorry, none today," when you ask for favorite products like Chateau Cheese. So we'd like to tell you why you often have to do without Chateau.

Here's the Reason

You see, the production of Canadian cheese (cheddar) has been dropping. And cheddar cheese is needed to make Chateau.

This drop is partly due to the scarcity of dairy cattle and partly because there are not enough workers on the farms. In addition, Canada is shipping millions of pounds of cheddar to relieve the critical shortage of food overseas.

On top of everything else, more people are asking for Chateau Cheese than ever before. That rich, tangy Chateau flavor keeps right on making new friends.

We Hope You Understand

All this may give you some idea how difficult things are. And perhaps it will help you understand why your grocer can't always make his Chateau Cheese go 'round.

Meanwhile, we're doing the very best we can. And no matter what happens we make you this promise:—the fine quality which keeps Chateau Cheese your special favorite, will always be the same.

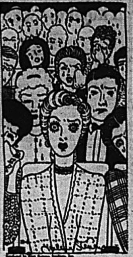
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Play Up Good Points? All Girls Do

It isn't always because a girl is coy that she keeps her eyelids lowered. She may have ravishingly lovely eyelashes—long, dark and curly. She doesn't try to make her eyes behave, nor should she. Those lashes are beauty wealth; she wants everybody to see them. She cashes in on all occasions, the cute little trick.

When a girl has dimples in her cheekes, she just can't keep from laughing. Dimples are a rare charm asset. Must be they were put there when the fairy godmother kissed the baby in her cradle. This girl would laugh if the plaster fell down on her head or she caught the measles. Nobody can blame her Besides, laughter is a wonderful cosmetic. It keeps the muscles of the face firm and resilient, just as dolefulness weakens tissues, and creates premature wrinkles.



..The Girl With Mascara on Her Lashes Dare Not Break into Tears

Did a girl with mascara on her dashes ever burst into tears? Maybe, but there's no record of such a happening. Though her heart might be breaking she wouldn't take a chance of having muddy rivulets running down her cheeks. All the pretty sisters are beauty-conscious. A good thing, too. It makes the spectacle that is woman a pleasing picture.

Women with pretty feet have their minds on them. They'll spend money on smart shoes while they skimp and save on the beauty overhead. That's natural enough. They're playing up their good points, which certainly makes sense. You don't catch them tucking their little mouses away under the charis. No, sir! Their tootsies are on parade, if not poked into the public eye.

If hands are pretty, a girl is aware of them. This state of affairs may get her into the habit of tearing out to the movies when there are dishes to be washed. She tends those mitts of hers as one tends a baby. That's one reason whey they are pretty. Takes no chance of having them get rough and red. Sometimes she may be a bit too enthusiastic, waving them around like a traffic officer. Who can blame her?

We come now to the girl who has heard all her life long that she has a beautiful profile. She doesn't want to face you; she wants you to get a sidewise glance.

Girls with beautiful arms—a rare quality of loveliness!—would wear short sleeves the whole year round. A dimpled elbow is something to rave about. Why cover it?

Neatly shaped legs and ankles lead even middle-aged women to cut their skirts too high.

It's a Big Moment. A moment to make a proud parent stop and think about the course those little feet will take . . . after that first step. It's a good time to think about getting those feet going in the right direction. For example, if you call in your North American Life representative he can show you how to make sure of important things like education and proper care for that young high-stepper . . . no matter what happens to you. He can show you a Life Assurance programme that guarantees funds to point those feet toward a college education or a business opportunity when the time comes.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's Supporting His Mother—Should He Marry

I have a letter from a young man who is faced with a type of problem that always bewilders, and all too often ruins, a conscientious son or daughter. It is a situation in which the best and most unselfish of motives can lead to a wrong decision.

Here is the problem as he states it:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 23 years old and have never been married or even engaged. I have my mother to support and take care of.

"Well, at long last, I found some one I am crazy about. I really love her and want to get married.

"Would you advise it, since I have my mother to look out for? Both this girl and I work and make good money.

"E."

Now it is a very good sign, indeed, when this boy, or any other son or daughter in the same situation, stops to consider what will become of the parent who depends on them for support, if they marry. It shows that they possess a sound sense of responsibility that will make them loyal and dependable married partners.

But such young men and women must, on the other hand, be careful that they don't let this same sense of responsibility carry them to extremes. They must remember that they also have a responsibility toward themselves, which must be fairly balanced against their responsibility for the parent they must support. And when it has come to the point where they have actually fallen in love, they have still another responsibility to consider—that of the person who returns their love and has a right to expect that, when a man and a girl love each other, they will be married and be together.

In addition to all of this, moreover, it is never wise for any son or daughter to set aside wholly his or her own natural wishes and desires in order to live with and for an older relative. Heretical as it no doubt may sound to many mothers and fathers, I firmly believe that a child's duty to his parents is often grossly and cruelly exaggerated. The very same parents who expect a son or daughter to put their needs and wishes above everything else, even when it means foregoing marriage, are living witnesses to the fact that they, themselves, left thir parents to marry. So why should they deny the same freedom and happiness to their children?

If this young man and his girl both work and make good money, there seems no reason why their problem should not be particularly easy to solve. Between them, they can certainly support this mother. And I hope the mother on her side, will have the character and the wisdom to be ready to live by herself, if it is financially possible to have two homes so that the young people can be alone in a home of their own. Moreover, unless she is physically unable to do so, why should she not find some work that would help support herself? It would not only be a kind and thoughtful thing to do, but would give her a new interest in life, so that she wouldn't be so lonely when her son leaves her.

Yes, "E", I certainly think you should get married.

If you have the right kind of mother, she will be glad to help you and your fiancee plan a good life for all three of you. And even if your mother is, unfortunately, not this kind, but one who selfishly puts herself ahead of your happiness and tries to oppose your marriage, I think you should go ahead, anyhow.

Keep on supporting your mother, of course. Visit her at reasonably frequent intervals and do what you can to make her happy.

But don't sacrifice yourself and the girl you love, out of a mistaken ideas of your duty toward your mother. She had her marriage and her own home. You have an indisputable right to yours.

Asking Friends to Write Her Husband In Army Hospital

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband, a serviceman, is now in the hospital, and will most likely be there for several months. Having been in the service for three years, he has lost contact with many of his old friends and even with some of his relatives. Lately I have been giving his hospital address to some of these people without their asking me for it. Do you think that I should wait until they ask for his address of their own accord, or may I ask his friends and relatives to write to him?

R. F.

I think you're doing just the right, as well as the natural, thing by giving your husband's hospital address to his friends and relatives and asking them, even pleading with them, to write to him and so give cheer to the long days he must spend in the hospital. They may, for some reason, hesitate to ask you if they may write to him, and your gentle urging may be just the bit of persuasion they need. Don't hold back on the theme of "When a feller needs a friend", for every letter you achieve for your husband will be a godsend to him, and so a comfort to you too.

Making Their Ow Marriage Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was married for twelve years, have been divorced for thirteen years, and am now planning to marry again. I would like to know who would be the proper person to announce the marriage. In my immediate family I have only two brothers but we are not on good terms. Would it be proper for me to have a very dear friend announce the marriage, an elderly woman who has been almost like a mother to me?

H. C.

It isn't considered in the best taste for a divorcee to send formal announcements of her marriage. But if you wish to do this, it would be best, under the circumstances, for you and the bridegroom to make the announcement yourselves:

Mr. John Morrison

Mrs. Robinson Brown

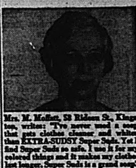
Widow's Name on Daughter's Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father is dead, and my mother has not remarried. On my wedding invitations should my mother's name be given as "Mrs. Donald Martin" or as "Mrs. Margaret Martin"?

C. M.

As a widow your mother should use the same form of name she used when her husband was living. . . .Mrs. Donald Martin . . . .and it is important that this form of name be used on such formal items as your wedding invitation. Using "Mrs. Margaret Martin' would most definitely be in error.



Mrs. M. Moffatt, 58 Rideau St., Kingston, writes: "I've never used a soap that gets clothes cleaner and whiter than EXTRA-SUDSY Super Suds. Yet I find Super Suds so safe. I use it for my colored things and it makes my clothes last longer. Super Suds is a grand soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Moffatt, for your swell letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Manager Selke of Canadiens Gives N.H.L. Enemies From Toronto the 'Silent Contempt'

Conny Smythe Says Habitants Nothing but Bunch of Woodchoppers

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Into the latest flame-fanning blasts of two National Hockey League master publicists, a curious note crept today with the assertion by General Manager Frank Selke, of Montreal Canadiens that he would give the "silent contempt" treatment to Conn Smythe of Toronto.

The silence, he hastened to add, went only for certain parts of the remarks by the major-domo of the Maple Leafs that Canadiens "as hockey players are good woodchoppers" and the battle, which oddly reaches peaks on schedule off-days, was on again.

"No wonder there is a shortage of pulp and paper in the country, Canadiens have called in all the woodchoppers," Smythe fired the opening salvo at a press conference in Toronto.

"Pleased to see that Conn is back in form," said Selke from the safety of his Montreal office.

"They use sticks 50 per cent stronger than anybody else in the league," said Smythe, inferring that this made the sticks hardier than the average player's noggin.

Swings Into Offensive

"I wish we did, because we'd save considerable money," replied Selke, who then swung into the offensive.

"They (the Leafs, that is) were quiet a few weeks ago when they were wondering if they were going to be strong enough to make the playoff. What a difference a few wins make! Now they are leading the parade and talking right out loud."

With the sparring taking place at 350-mile range no one was hurt but there was wonder whether this pounding would keep up every Monday night on weeks when the teams were unscheduled from Sunday to Wednesday. Last week it was Canadiens calling Leaf wrestlers. This week the others are woodchoppers.

One consolation was that Wednesday night will see the return to normal business in the world's premier professional league. Two games are scheduled, with the second-place Boston Bruins against the Red Wings at Detroit and the third-place Rangers at Chicago against the Black Hawks, tied with Detroit for the cellar.

Both the leading Leafs and the fourth-place Canadiens, wouldn't you just know it, are idle.

I've Found Relief From My Aching Joints and Depressed Feelings"

What a world of comfort there is for the one who again feels bright and well after passing through dark days. Mrs. E. B. is just such a case. Here is her letter:—

"Although I'm not nearly so young as I used to be. I work very hard. But for several months back, I have been getting rheumatic pains combined with very depressed feelings. So I obtained a bottle of Kruschen and in a short time the effect was most encouraging. The aching joints, the depressed feelings; the sleeplessness and constipation were all relieved. I felt so much better—and so bright."
—Mrs. E. B.

Perhaps you have ailments like those which bothered Mrs. E. B. and if that is so, why not try the same treatment? Kruschen is a balanced combination of several mineral salts. This saline treatment aids elimination and supplies the body with minerals which may be lacking in the diet. The result is relief from constipation, sluggish feelings and depression. Take Kruschen faithfully for the next few weeks. Give it a chance to help you as it has helped others. Kruschen is procurable in two sizes at all drug stores: 25c. and 75c.

Tiny Ainsworth And Don Mogard Billed to Appear

A feature attraction has been added to Wednesday night's local boxing card. It will bring together the former Number 1 Air Command heavyweight champion, Don Mogard of Toronto and Frank "Tiny" Ainsworth of Cobourg. This is the bout that Toronto boxing promoters have been after for months and, it should be the best bout seen in the local arena this season.

Local fight fans will remember Ainsworth as the huge belter who defeated our own "Tony" Acerra twice locally. He's a big man that packs plenty of wallop, in fact he's rated as one of the best heavyweights in the amateur business.

Mogard has been meeting with terrific success since his discharge from RCAF. Just about a month ago, he defeated the provincial champion Henry George in Toronto. His handlers challenged the Dominion champion Owen Safir but Safir would have nothing to do with him. You can easily see then, what a battle there will be Wednesday night. In the main bout, Belleville's "Tony" Acerra will trade punches with Keith Prosser of London over the five-round distance in a bout that should be filled with action. The last time these two met, Prosser won, so Acerra will be out to even the count here.

In the preliminaries, Joe Wilson of Belleville meets Al Rowand of Toronto; Belleville's Ron Mansfield tackles Oshawa's Harry Goulding; Art Duby of Belleville faces Gus Rubicini of Toronto; Belleville's Carl Clapper will try to outpoint Toronto's Ernie Majurie and Chief Emmerson Charles of Cobourg will meet "Mike" Baker of Toronto. The referees will include last year's British Columbia lightweight champion, Harry Myles who is presently stationed at No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton.

This card, which shapes up as one of the best cards ever presented in Belleville is being sponsored by the Optimist Club of Belleville and all profits are to be used in the furtherance of Boys' work in the city of Belleville.

'DaPreem' Popular In Wrestler's Role

Former Boxing Champion Now Handles Own Financial Affairs

By JIM BECKER

New York (AP)—Primo Carnera the wrestler is 10 years older, 10 pounds heavier, and 100 per cent smarter than Primo Carnera the boxer.

The new Primo answers to 38—record books list him as 40—as he undertakes the new role of mat gladiator. He tips the scales around 265. When he reigned as king of the boxing heavyweights he carried 255 pounds on his six-foot, six-inch frame.

But the old Primo was a huge freak with size 15 1-2 shoes who was pushed to the championship by devious methods. He was a buffoon with the manners of a cub bear and a heart to match the rest of him.

He couldn't fight a lick yet he was exploited for all the gold he could draw at the gate and then sent back to his native Italy with a mangled nose and cauliflower ears—and little money.

The new Primo hasn't lost his great heart nor his loveable manners, but he handles his own business affairs in his new racket. Primo declares that he is back at his "first love."

Still Draws Crowds

He hadn't lost a match when he reached New York on his cross-country tour, which was to be expected. Crowds jam the arenas for Da Preem who carries a six-night-a-week schedule.

"I'm keeping all the money," Primo announces, his ham hands clapping you on the back in a vertebrae-rattling gesture of friendship. He discounts stories that he is being handled by a combination which doles out $2,000 a week to the big man.

Carnera wants to realize as much money on this tour as he can gather in before he returns to Italy to bring his lovely wife and his boy, 7, and girl, 4, "to America to become American citizens."

In the ring, clad in long black tights to hide his "werriclose weins," Primo has absorbed all the hammy tricks of his new trade.

He is cast as the hero in the squared circle dramas and the fans love him. He is fast for his size and performs all the fist shaking and face grimaces required of him.

Sometimes he has his opponents touch shoulders to the mat in 15 or 20 minutes, sometimes the spectacle is dragged on for nearly an hour. He is the wronged fighter, the stout-hearted lad who shakes off the low blows and refuses to resort to kind despite the pleadings of the mob.

Hogan Favored To Win Marbles In Golf Tourney

By The Canadian Press

When the 46th renewal of the North and South Open Golf Tournament gets under way today at Pinehurst, N.C., belting Benny Hogan, golf's top money winner, will be the favorite to take top honors in the oldest consecutive tournament in the United States against an impressive array of U.S. and foreign golfers. In an exhibition match Sunday he rolled off a six-under par 66.

Hogan carded the 66 score as he teamed with Horton Smith in an 1-hole exhibition to down the leading British contestants —Dal Rees and Charles Ward.

Freddie Mills, British light-heavyweight champion is going to try again to take the measure of a ranking American heavyweight. Tonight he meets Joe Baksi of Kulpont, Pa., in a match at Harringay Arena, London. He lost earlier this year to Gus Lesnevich and Bruce Woodcock. Baski has been established a 4-6 favorite.

TORONTO TEAMS RESTING ATOP O.H.A. SERIES

Staffords Defeat Owen Sound in Senior Loop and St. Mikes Take Stratford in Junior "A"

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto teams rested atop both the Senior A and Junior A series in the Ontario Hockey Association today.

In the Senior Group, Staffords of the Queen City rang up a 6-3 victory last night over Owen Sound Mohawks to make it two wins in two starts. St. Michael's College Majors walked off with a 7-2 decision from Stratford Kroehlers, also their second victory in as many starts.

Last year's tail-enders, the Mohawks held Staffords to a 2-1 score in the first period, but with Frank Imonte pacing the Toronto team with a brace of goals the Mohawks didn't weather a rough second frame and fell behind.

Doug Gillespie tallied twice for Owen Sound, his first giving his teammates their only lead of the game in less than a minute of the initial stanza. Art Hayward scored the other Mohawk goal. Jack Stafford, Jimmy McKeown, Don Wilson and Lou Roubell were the Stafford goal-getters.

Squabbles netted the players 10 minor penalties in the second period but only Staffords were able to take advantage of the shortage when they managed one goal in that frame.

16 Penalties Handed Out

Altogether 16 penalties were meted out, 10 to the winners..

Eddie Sandford's hat-trick was enough to top the Stratford team, but teammates Winslow, with two, and Harrison and Hutka added others to swamp the Kroehlers'. The Stratford team started well and gave St. Mike's goalie Howie Harvey a few anxious moments, but the former Montreal netminder kept cool to assure last year's Eastern Canada Junior champs their victory.

Kullman and Wayne Service were responsible for the losers' goals.

Standout of the game at Hamilton was the home city's goalie Bob Decourcey who turned aside Barrie threats throughout the game.

Bill Barnes and Pierre Cadieux connected for Hamilton tallies while Barrett scored for Barrie.

Stratford's Senior team meets Hamilton in a Senior game, while Hamilton in a Senior game,, while St. Catharines play Young Rangers and Stratford meets St. Mike's in a junior double bill at Maple Leaf Gardens.

ALBERT JUNIORS DEFEAT B.C.I. TO PROLONG SERIES

Win 7-1 and Fourth Game Scheduled for Thursday

By winning from B.C.I. Juniors by a score of 7 to 1, the Albert Juniors lengthened out the best three out of five game series. B.C.I. now lead ? games to 1, and the fourth and perhaps deciding game will be played on the Albert field, Thursday, November 7th. The Junior Bay of Quinte Rugby Championship goes to the winner of the series, who will meet either Peterborough C.I. or Trinity College School of Port Hope in the next round.

A heavy wind blew throughout most of the game and made the catching of kicks difficult. B.C.I. started off with the wind in there back, and Albert kicking to them. The college boys held well, and for all of the first half the play centred around the middle of the field, although in the first five minutes Albert twice got to the B.C.I. 10 yard line on fumbles. On each occasion the B.C.I. held and Albert lost the ball on downs.

Half time score Albert 0, B.C.I. 0.

Albert pressed their advantage and on some fine plunging by Taugher, McGaughey, Scudds and Yates pushed the ball down to the B.C.I. fifteen yard line, from where Jimmy Taugher picked a hole and went through the centre of the line to go over standing up. Jimmy Hayman,(did some excellent blocking along with Orvil Wolfe, and Gord Baker. Taugher converted his own touchdown.

Albert 7, B.C.I. 0.

B.C.I. pressed during all of the later period of the game, but fumbles and strong play by the Albert line held / them off the score sheet until the dying minutes, when a long kick went behind the line, for a single point. As the game finished Albert had the ball on their own 25 yard line after B.C., had had three forward passes grounded.

Final score Albert 7, B.C.I. 1.

Referee, Goyer; Umpire, Forster; Head linesman, Simmons.

Veterans Protest Faulty Construction of Houses

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 5—(CP)—Ninety-seven veterans assembled Sunday to protest against alleged faulty construction in their homes in the Roseland and Oliver farm areas here.

A petition was drawn up asking Veterans Minister Mackenzie to investigate the construction of 60 homes erected in the Roseland area and 40 in the Oliver farm district under the Veterans Land Act. Earl Burgess, provincial president of the Canadian Legion at St. Thomas, will take it to a meeting with government representatives at Ottawa next Monday.

84 'DRUNKS'" ARRESTED

Toronto, No. 5 (CP)— Police had a bussy weekend with 84 arrested for drunkenness, 13 charged with careless driving and three for drunk driving. Police attributed an increase in cases involving liquor to the recent augmented liquor allowance.

In 35 accidents in the city 20 persons were injured.

Status of Widows, Mothers For Re-establishment Credit

The position of unmarried widows or dependent mothers of Canadian veterans who die after discharge but before using the whole amount of their re-establishment credits, has been clarified by recent amendment of the War Service Grants Act according to a recent issue of Veterans Affairs.

New Effective

The amending sections of the Act, which were given final assent on August 31st and are now in effect, provide that where an ex-service man who has deferred his application for re-establishment credit dies after discharge but before he has used his re-establishment credit in full, his widow is eligible for the unused credit.

In case he leaves no widow, his mother, if wholly dependent on the veteran immediately before his death, becomes eligible for the unused credit.

No credit will be made available to a widow or mother unless she is resident in Canada and the Minister is satisfied the credit will be used for an approved purpose. Where no widow or mother is eligible for the credit under this section the credit shall cease to exist, and if a widow or mother dies, or a widow remarries, before using the credit for which she is eligible under this section, the credit similarly ceases to exist.

Legal Ruling

A legal opinion has been obtained on the position of the widow or dependent mother of a veteran who died after discharge but while awaiting a decision awaiting qualification under the Veterans' Land Act or before any VLA benefits have been received by him. The widow or mother is eligible under these circumstances, and is also eligible if the veteran died after applying for vocational or educational training but before any Veterans' Rehabilitation Act benefits had been granted, legal authorities state.

Rise in Juvenile Crime Figures Causing Concern

By RONALD BEDFORD

London, Nov. 4 (Reuters) —A recent rise in juvenile crime figures in London is causing concern to authorities and the public alike.

Major headaches for London police are gangs of youngsters less than eight years of age.

During a recent visit to the east end of London I saw these "toddlers' gangs" at work. One crowd of children, led by a boy about seven years of age, were playing at the rear of a house which workers were repairing. The men had gone for lunch and the children were scattering sand, cement and other material all over the place. Other children were throwing stones at newly-glazed windows.

British law holds that children under eight years of age are deemed uncapable of criminal intent. They cannot be prosecuted however great the damage they do.

Basil Hendriques, Magistrate at East London Juvenile Court, said recently that "London's housing situation will be worse this winter unless this wave of hooliganism is stopped."

The most recent figures for juvenile crime in Britain show that arrests of children of 10 years of age or less increased from 684 to 811 for the year 1945. Of 209 persons arrested for robbery and assault with intent to rob, 83 were less than 21, 17 were between 14 and 16 years of age, and nine were less than 12 years of age.

Foot Found by Dog Was Bear Paw, Dog Finds 3 More

Toronto, Nov. 4 — Mystery surrounding the finding of a "human foot" in possession of a dog in Etobicoke Township Saturday was short-lived when the foot turned out to be a bear's The little terrier, Lassie, owned by William Duncan, Holbrooke Ave., yesterday led police to a nearby swamp and unearthed 3 bear paws.

The dog, on instructions from police, had been tied up unfed since it came home Saturday with what some persons mistook for bones of a human foot in its mouth.

"We released Lassie this morning," Duncan said yesterday. "She darted to the swamp and quickly came back with what we thought was a mate for the foot she had Saturday. We then went to the swamp and found two more feet which, it developed, were paws of a bear shot last autumn in Northern Ontario by Stanley Jones, also of Holbrooke Ave. Jones had thrown the paws into the swamp, and Lassie had unearthed them from under some brush and twigs.

Dr. W. K. Fenton, coroner, Etobicoke, said there is a similarity between the bone structure of a bear's hind paw and a child's foot.

Charwoman Buys 'Slice of Heaven' With Life Savings

San Francisco, Nov. 4. (AP) Gone are her twenty years of hard-earned savings as a charwoman, but Grandmother Agnes Boyd has bought herself a slice of heaven.

She never had been farther from Birkenhead, England, than "a ha'penny bu sride and a tuppenny ferry trip until she crossed the Atlantic recently on the Queen Elizabeth and came to San Francisco to visit her sister on her first vacation.

Describing her arrival in New York, the 63-year-old widow said: "There I was. I was through with the ship and the ship was through with me. Everybody was looking for Molotov (Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov) and nobody was looking for poor me."

She plodded around for hours until a waitress directed her to Travellers' Aid. A train brought her to San Francisco and—

"Every day green salads and fruit of all kinds and new things I never ate before like stuffed bell peppers and corn on the cob and creamed cheese.

"Here on my own flesh and blood's table everything is finer than in many a fine gentleman's home in England."

It took all her mony, "but it's all been more wonderful than I could imagine after the war years in England."

EXPENSIVE PROOF

Manchester, England (CP)—To convince his wife he had no interest in a 17-year-old girl neighbor, Enos Smathills slapped her face, the Manchester County magistrates were told. The girl, Joyce Stansfield, said she did not know Enos, who was fined 5s ($1) for the slap.

Killer of Sheep, Believed Escaped Puma, Wounded

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 4—(Reuters)—The killer cat of Valais which has killed hundreds of sheep and goats in the mountain pastures of Valais canton during the last few months, has been shot and wounded.

Marksman Rudolf Kuopem who fired the shot, said he saw two animals, believed to be pumas. The only explanation for their presence is that they must have escaped from a menagerie. Kuonem fired from the window of his office when he saw the huge cat pass by. He described it as reddish with zebra-like stripes and a long tail. The wounded animal limped into the underbrush and disappeared just as a second, smaller cat appeared. Kuonem fired at the second cat and missed.

Several persons have seen the cats and have heard their blood-curdling screams in the night. Sheep are found dead or dying every morning and five-inch spoors have been found nearby.

Epilepsy Creates Marriage Tangle

Totnes, England (Reuters) —Norman Whitehead of this Devonshire town was ordered to pay his wife £1 ($4) a week after unsuccessfully arguing that her epilepsy legally nullified their marriage.

Under the Herbert Matrimonial Bill of 1937 epilepsy is a ground for nullity if notified within one year. Whitehead said he had only two nights with his wife after they were married in 1942 and didn't return from army service until 1945, well after the prescribed year.

His first indication that Mrs. Whitehead was epileptic was a major fit shortly after his return. The magistrates held the bill not to apply, ordered alimony and fixed costs against him.

Marriage, Divorce Law Revision Advocated

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Revision of marriage and divorce laws was advocated by Senator Arthur Roebuck and Dr. C. W. Leslie, Associate Professor of Ethics at Victoria and Emmanuel Colleges of Toronto, at a United Church panel discussion here last night.

"I believe divorce grounds should be widened," said Senator Roebuck. He advocated the inclusion of such grounds as deserting for three years, insanity, life imprisonment and presumption of death as in England.

"Remember, you can't legislate happiness or morality," he said. "That still falls back on the character of the individual. Perhaps the greatest sin in marriage is not adultery. I'm not condoning it. But why should a person be condemned to an undesirable life such as caused by outrageous cruelty. There are higher laws than those legislated by parliament and the law of mating is one, and when the legal mating is outlawed you find another mating taking place. I think we should abolish prudery and prejudice and really look at this problem of divorce and revise the ancient procedure."

Dr. Leslie strongly urged that Ontario should recognize civil marriage.

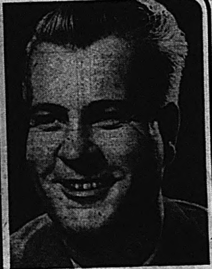
Keep fit AS THOUSANDS DO this easy way!



OVER 35? Watch your diet! When you find yourself feeling dull, headachey ::: irritable—it may be caused by insufficient elimination. Try this safe, easy way to keep fit—eat a bowlful of delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning. That malty-sweet flavour is grand! You'll want to keep on eating them every morning!

"Some of the people need Kellogg's Bran Flakes all the time...

You used to exercise—but lately you just haven't had time. Kellogg's Bran Flakes will help you keep fit the safe, pleasant way.

...ALL THE PEOPLE need Kellogg's Bran Flakes some of the time...

You've been feeling worn-out and on-edge... don't know what's the matter. Then try delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes with the malty-sweet flavour. It's fun to keep fit this way.

...so isn't it lucky they TASTE SO GOOD!"

Yes, Kellogg's Bran Flakes have a nut-like, malty-sweet flavour that is the exclusive secret of Kellogg's chefs. Once you try this bran you'll never be satisfied with any other. Made by Kellogg's, London, Canada.

ARE YOU A STENOGRAPHER? Salesperson? Clerical worker? If a sedentary job prevents you from getting the exercise you should—then do as thousands do, try Kellogg's 30-day test. Prove to yourself that one simple change of diet can really help you keep fit. And crisp, toasted Kellogg's Bran Flakes taste so good!

TRY THIS 30-DAY TEST

1. Start now to eat delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning. Prove to yourself you don't need horrid doses or harsh cathartics. To keep fit the natural way, get more of the "bulk" your system needs by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat. Gently-laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly, supply valuable minerals and proteins, too.

2. Just thirty days and you'll prove to yourself you do not need to feel dull and headachey, cranky or depressed all the time. You may only be suffering from incomplete elimination. Especially if you're over 35! Yet there's no need to let it spoil your work—or your fun! Just take this simple precaution: Eat a big, crisp bowlful of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning.

3. Of course if you're really ill you should see your doctor. But chances are, in 30 days, you'll prove for yourself that a big bowlful of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning leaves you feeling top of the world again with lots of energy for extra things.

"Get the 'bulk' you need in your diet and keep fit this pleasant way. For extra-delicious Bran Flakes look for Kellogg's golden-yellow package—try the big, economy size."

ARMY IS FACING STERN CHALLENGE FROM NOTRE DAME

Blanchard and Davis Will Have Hands Full With Lujack and Leahy

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 5 — (CP) — To Canadians who know Felix (Doc) Blanchard and Glenn (Junior) Davis merely as shadowy figures in a newsreel, the mounting hysteria hereabouts for Saturday's Army-Notre Dame game may seem a little far-fetched.

Those who remember the fighting Irish only as a team Knute Rockne coached in the '20s may be mildly shocked, for instance, to learn that Americans are offering $100 a pair for bleacher seats in Yankee Stadium — and up to $200 for the 50-yard line variety.

The explanation is simply that this is it, the "big" game, the battle United States college football has been waiting for since Blanchard and Davis pooled their matchless talents at the start of the 1944 season to accumulate a 25-game undefeated sequence for Army, spilling the proud Irish along the way 59-0 in 1944 and 48-0 in 1945.

There was no topping Blanchard and Davis, the 21-year-old all-Americans. Notre Dame had beaten the cadets 22 times in 30 meetings prior to 1944, but this time they couldn't answer coach Earl (Red) Blaik's black knights from the West Point, N.Y., military academy.

Missed Couple of Games

This season Blanchard missed a couple of games with a back injury but sidekick Davis carried on, flashing the same speed that hurtled him an average of 11.1 yards every time he carried the ball in 1945.

Meanwhile a revitalized Notre Dame team came out of South Bend, Ind. Coach Frank Leahy was back from the Navy and he had never been beaten by Army.

After him from an Atlantic subchaser came Johnny Lujack, the 21-year-old Polish quarterback who had filled famed Angelo Bertilli's shoes so well in 1943. With Lujack flinging the forwards — 30 of 58 completed for 579 yards — Notre Dame this fall won five straight, piling up 177 points to 18 for their opponents. Army had 208 to 55 in seven games.

In 57 seasons since 1887 the blue and gold from the university with the 4,500 enrolment had won 352, lost 77 and tied 28. No Johnny-come-lately Army team could take liberties with Leahy, Lujack and assorted stars like 18-year-old Terence Brennan, plunging Floyd Simmons, Gerard Cowhig and Emil (Red) Titko.

No matter how you wagered this 33rd meeting of traditional rivals with the national championship at stake was the biggest sports attraction of the post-war era, bigger even than the Louis-Conn fight last June.

The attendance would be only 78,000 but it might have been 1,000,000 if Yankee Stadium could hold that many.

HOCKEY RULES

Interpreted By BILL GRAY

PLAYING RULES

The object of this column is to explain some of the more intricate rules of the game. Readers must understand that when interpreting many of these rules the referee must use his own judgment as to how and when to apply the maximum or minimum penalty. In order that all interpretations may be standardized, lectures are given to all referees through the medium of the O.A.H.A. referees' board.

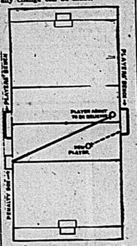
RULE 18

Change of Players

(a) Players may be changed at any time from the players' bench, provided that the player leaving the ice shall always be at the players' bench and out of the play before the substituting player takes part in the game.

(b) For violation of this rule, a minor penalty shall be imposed on the substitute player.

(c) A player serving a penalty on the penalty bench, who is to be changed after the penalty has been served, must proceed at once and be at his own players' bench before any change can be made.



As applied to Section C., the player who has just completed his penalty and is to be replaced must proceed directly to and be at his own players' bench before the player who will replace him is allowed to take the ice.

A minor penalty shall be imposed on any player who fails to do so.

Pete Backor, husky defenceman of the Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League, is comparatively new in the ranks of professional hockey but is accustomed to receiving all-star honors.

Pete, who stands six feet and weighs 185 pounds, hails from Ft. William, Ontario. He played with the Ft. William sextet in 1938 and 1939 and then starred for the next five seasons with the St. Catharines' senior team in the O.H.A. During his amateur days he was selected on the Toronto Star's all-star sextet in 1939, '40 and '41.

Pete attracted the attention of Hap Day, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and was a regular defenceman for the Leafs during the 1944-45 season. Last year he was sold to the Hornets where his play was a highlight of every game the Wasps played. He was an overwhelming choice for the all-star team selected by newspaper and radio men last spring.

TROUBLEBREWING IN GREYHOUND RACING WORLD

Owners Want More Prize Money But Promoters Say Dogs Will Cost More

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—"Operation Cashbox" probably is the best description of this post-war silly season in British sport. The click of the turnstiles has been sweet music to promoters and the performers have become a trifle envious.

First, it was the big-time soccer players. They put up such a fight that the government intervened. Now trouble is brewing in the Greyhound racing world, probably the most lucrative sport in the Isles—from a promoter's standpoint.

Owners say they aren't getting enough prize money and staffs at many tracks complain they are underpaid. The Greyhound owners complaint was a "natural" after hearing of the tremendous dividends paid by the tracks to shareholders.

Taking things on the whole the owners appear to have cause for grumbles. But here's the promoter's side of the question:

"If we increase prize money, Greyhound values would increase and dogs for which owners are paying £1,000 ($4,000) might well cost double. Would the owners like that?"

It's up to the owners. They still want higher stakes and they say they will take their chances on the dog-prices going up.

One queer twist in this money-mad era is offered by Freddie Mills, Britain's light heavyweight boxing champion. He has received so much money in his two bouts this year that he's trying to get off any more 1946 bouts after his fight tonight with Joe Baksi of the United States. The income-tax collector takes 18 shillings in every 20, he says.

Non-Profit Meals Pay County Fair

Middle Musquodoboit, N. S. — (CP)—It still holds: the way to a man's heart (and pocket-book) is through his stomach.

George Dickey, manager of the Halifax County Exhibition, revealed here how he realized a profit this fall from the fair, the first time in its 38-year history there has been a surplus.

Explained Mr. Dickey: "We have a dining room on the fair grounds and we give a good meal, even though we don't make any money on it. It pays in the long run."

Attendance figures backed him up. Second day of the fair more than 5,000 persons saw the show at Middle Musquodoboit, which is about 35 miles northeast of Halifax and has a population of less than 200.

Net profit? About $2,000.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A New York wise one cracks forth with the remark that Ted Williams, batting star of the late lamented World Series Red Sox couldn't hit the ball because "his bat got tangled up with his halo." At that, chortles Waldo, the demon copy kid, "there's a halo a lot of managers who would like to have him."

• • •

THINGS WE WON'T BE BOTHERED WITH

In Portland, Oregon, a drunk, draped over a parking meter, was removed by police protesting: "I put in my nickel; I got twenty more minutes to go."

• • •

Tonight at eight o'clock in the Hume Arena, the newly-formed Belleville Hockey Association is holding its first open meeting since becoming "poppa" to the intermediate and junior hockey squads of the city. All intermediate and junior players as well as fans are invited by President Bill Dennis, Secretary Wally Berry and their board of directors and it is hoped a large turnout will be on hand.

• • •

The Belleville Hockey Association hopes to lay the foundation of a new hockey era in this city, and it is deserving of the support of every fan as well as that of city business and industry. With the advent of what is hoped to be artificial ice, the work of the Association takes on a new angle. For next year, should reflect what is done during 1946, and it is the hope of the executive that much will be achieved during the current season.

• • •

But while it is good policy to look ahead, much remains to be done before any far-reaching results can be obtained. Off to a good start now, the way won't be so hard when expansion work looms ahead.

• • •

Here's some good advice offered by a well-known outdoor man who knows his hunting and shooting with the best of them. He is of the opinion that to get a great kick out of the hunting season take along that son, nephew or son of a friend and give him the benefit of your knowledge and experience. It's sound stuff.

• • •

Take a boy hunting, at least, one day.

• • •

Oh, yes, his bombardment of seemingly foolish questions may bore you at first. His awkward efforts to negotiate heavy cover quietly may irritate you. The first time he yields to the temptation to raise his head for "only a little look" just at the moment the ducks have decided to pay your decoys a visit also is a touchy moment.

• • •

But when you see the look in that boy's eyes as he retrieves his first duck, or the glow of proud accomplishment spread over him as he fondles the warm body of his first pheasant, you'll experience a thrill we guarantee you'll never forget. You will have been eyewitness to the birth of a man.

Maybe that youngster is your own son. Or he may be your nephew, a cousin or the son of a friend or neighbor. Makes no difference whether he is old enough to handle a gun or not, take him along anyway, for now is the time to get him started right.

• • •

Now is the time to show him why safety precautions should always be taken. Why certain things should be done and certain others should not be done.

Show him why, when two hunters are walking abreast, they should keep their gun barrels pointing away from each other.. when they're walking in single file, the business end of their firearms should still always be kept pointing away from each other.

• • •

Show him why a hunter should never climb a fence with a loaded gun in his hand; how easy and safe it is for one companion to hand over both guns after the other has crossed the fence; how easy and important, too, it is to keep the gun safety on; why, when two men pass each other in a boat, one should remain still until the other is safely seated in the new position.

• • •

Teach him these things and many others. Little bits of woodcraft, little morsels of bird lore, simple things about game habits. Watch him absorb these things and realize their importance and you'll have a front row seat in watching a boy grow into a man.

• • •

TAKE IT EASY

Take it easy with that boy, too. Teach him these things which will help him make a safe sport safer for himself and his companions. Yes, safer and more enjoyable. See that he is well and comfortable shod. Don't let him get a blister on his feet.

• • •

Be sure he keeps his feet dry. Advise him against carelessness about fire. Show him examples of the ravages of erosion and tell him how it could have been prevented. Teach him the niceties of field etiquette.

• • •

Albert College senior gridders and Belleville Collegiate Institute pigskinners, go at it again on Wednesday, tomorrow that is, at 3:15 in the third and payoff game of their COSSA championship series. BCI earned a 7-5 nod over the collegians at their last meeting which necessitated the playoff. The winners of the series meet the northern section for the Bay of Quinte COSSA district title. The game with the northern champs has been called for the weekend but "Red" Townsend of the BCIers says: "no soap for my squad."

• • •

Albert College juniors ran to a well-earned victory over their traditional foes the BCI youngsters yesterday afternoon winning their first game out of three by a 6-1 score. BCI already had two wins under their moleskins and needed but another to cinch the title. But a spirited college squad rose on their football haunches and threw the foe back for a loss. The 4th game of the series is slated for Thursday at 3:30 on the colliteh campus.

Natie "Nasty" Brown is still seething over that disqualification of last Friday evening and vows vengeance when he gets another crack at Sandy O'Donnell. However that won't be this week for the Nasty one must needs dispose of popular Pat Flanagan first. O'Donnell is slated for the semi-final go against the giant Dutchman, Henry Piers, while the sleep Iraquan, Sheik Emir Badui is scheduled to match his speed against the bull-dozing methods of the Don Cossack Kola Kwaranni in the main event, and that is something with a United Nations flavor. However, it shapes up as a mighty interesting bout and should be productive of what happens when brawn meets speed and agility.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP)— Jack Dempsey toppled from his heavyweight boxing throne 20 years ago this fall but the old Manassa Mauler still holds a firm place in the affection of boxing fans, whether they were around at the time of his reign or learned of his deeds from their fathers.

Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien tells this story as an example of why Dempsey's popularity is undiminished after two decades of retirement.

Dempsey was travelling by train from Halifax to Moncton, N.B., last month when a friend told him two car-loads of Canadian soldiers, just back from overseas, were hooked on to the rear of the train. The friend suggested they would welcome a visit from Dempsey.

"But they wouldn't be interested in me, I'm an American," the former champ declared.

"No you're not," said his friend. "Jack Dempsey is an international guy."

Dempsey went back to see the soldiers and in addition to receiving a hearty and noisy welcome was invited to join a game of dice. It was the boxer's day; 11's followed sevens.

Dempsey tried to give the money he won back but the soldiers would have no part of it. So when Jack left the train at Moncton, he shook hands with the Canadians' Colonel and gave him $500—considerably more than he won—and asked: "Distribute this among them after I go, please."

McGill University lost one of its best friends when Dr. Fred Tees died last week. The ever congenial Dr. Tees had been associated with the University's athletic administration for many years and was known personally by every college athlete who needed medical advice.

Dr. Tees was an outstanding track man in his youth and was one of these sprinters the distinguished Canadian sculptor, R. Tait MacKenzie, used as models in designing "The Sprinter," the trophy awarded for senior intercollegiate track and field competition.

Football coach Doug Kerr expressed the sentiments of a host of McGill men when he said of Dr. Tees: "He was the finest gentleman I ever know."

Six-Year-Old Gelding Wins Melbourne Cup

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 5—(CP)—Russia, a six-year-old gelding, owned by J. G. Leeds and E. Hush, romped two miles in three minutes, 21 1-4 seconds in the Melbourne Gold Cup race today to equal the Flemington course record and picked up £7,000 ($22,400) first money.

Thirty-five horses ran in the classic before 100,000 spectators. Russia took the lead in the last half mile, and at the finish was five lengths ahead of the favorite, On Target, which took £2,000 second money. Half a head behind On Target was Carey, whose third prize was £1,000.

Russia was ridden by veteran jockey Darby Munro, who previously had driven two horses Tomelbourne Gold Cup victories. The horse went to the post a 16-1 longshot.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

Many a contract owes its success to a strip-and-endplay. If a finesse is necessary, a strip-end is probably there. You may not know it will work for you. Make a stab at it anyway.

The idea is to strip as many suits as possible. Then throw an opponent into the lead. Hope that he must lead back only some suit that will save you a trick.

Here it is in this deal:

NORTH
♠9 8 5 3
♥Q 7
♦8 5 3
♣A 7 4 2

WEST
♠A K
♥9 8 4 2
♦Q J 10 9
♣K J 10

EAST
♠4
♥J 10 5 3
♦K 9 7 4 2
♣9 5 3

SOUTH
♠Q J 10 7 6 2
♥A K 6
♦A
♣Q 8 6

Assume you are in the south seat as declarer at four spades. West starts out with an opening lead of the diamond queen. First take stock of your combined resources.

You and dummy must lose two trump tricks. You may also lose two club tricks. At least, this is what you must consider before you know who holds what cards that you do not see.

There is very little hope of saving one of the trump tricks. That is your cue to concentrate on trying to save a club. You must save a club or acknowledge that you will be defeated.

Dummy has no suit on which you can sluff a south club. Nor are you able to trump clubs soon enough to do you any good. So, you must hope for an endplay after stripping.

Your diamond ace takes the first trick. Dummy gets in with the heart queen. A diamond from there is trumped by south. On your top hearts, dummy sluffs a diamond, the last one there.

Now lead a trump. West takes it and is endplayed. If he leads a club, south queen and dummy ace will take two tricks in that suit. That loses only one club for you.

Instead of a club, west may lead back a diamond. If so, trump it in dummy and sluff a south club. That loses only one club for you.

Give your opponents a chance—to make a mistake.

Halfback Toms Wins Scoring Honors of O.R.F.U.

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP)—Halfback Don Toms of the Hamilton Wildcats celebrated his first full season in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series by winning its scoring championship. Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press showed today that the graduate of Hamilton high school football collected 60 points on 12 touchdowns in 10 games this season, 22 more than his nearest O.R.F.U. rival, Johnny Lake of Toronto Balmy Beach.

Toms also is destined to finish no worse than third among scorers in the three senior unions in eastern Canada. Current eastern leader is Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial Big Four with 63 points in 11 games. Virgil Wagner, United States import with Montreal Alouettes, stands second to Krol in the Big Four with 60 points in 11 games. As the Big Four teams have one more game to go to complete their schedule season, both Krol and Wagner may fatten their totals further. But the O.R.F.U. regular schedule wound on Saturday.

Lake, former Winnipeg player, had a one-point edge in the final O.R.F.U. standing over Annis Stukus of Toronto Indians who was eastern scoring champion last season. Lake wound up with 38 points and Stukus has 37. Doug Pyzer of Toronto Indians was third with 36.

In the Intercollegiate Senior Union, big Bob McFarlane took over the lead from Don Bark of Toronto Varsity. McFarlane, star half of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, has 24 points in four games and Bark has 20 in five. The intercollegiate teams have one more game each to finish off their schedule.

Billy Taylor In Top Spot Of Scoring Race

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP)— National Hockey League statistics released today showed Billy (The Kid) Taylor, fleet forward of Detroit Red Wings, the league's leading point-maker for the second straight week with three goals and nine assists for 12 points.

Roy Conacher, Taylor's linemate, is in the second slot with five tallies and three assists for eight points. One point behind Conacher is Canadiens' Maurice Richard with seven points accumulated from five goals and two assists.

Richard and Conacher lead the league in the number of goals scored with five apiece and Taylor is the leading play-maker with nine assists.

The Canuck's Bill Durnan tops the goalkeepers with the least number of goals scored against him. He has allowed 10 shots to slip past him in six games. Frankie Brimsek of Boston Bruins and Durnan share the shutout honors with one each.

Hal Jackson, Detroit Red Wings fiery defenceman, is the most penalized player in the loop with 19 minutes in the cooler.

In 20 games of the 180-game schedule played Toronto's youthful Leafs are perched atop the league standings with nine points, made up of three wins, three ties and one loss. Hot on the trail of the Leafs are the Bruins with eight points as the result of two wins, four ties and one loss.

ONLY THE BRAVE PLAYED BALL IN EARLY DAYS

Sports Writers Hold Confab at Press Club on Good "Old Days"

By TIM DICKSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP) — It took brave men and hardy to play baseball in the old days of Ontario sport. The pitcher wound up with his back to the batter, whirled and rifled the ball overhand to the catcher who waited 45 feet away without shinguards, mask or padded mitt, his fingers protected only by a chunk of raw beefsteak, a strip of rubber or a flimsy cotton glove.

Toronto newspapermen had a glimpse of those by-gone days when a group of men who wrote about sport and played in many of its divisions 40-odd years ago took part last night in a forum at the Toronto Men's Press Club.

The old-timers recalled when news of sport, barely tolerated by space-conscious city editors, appeared as scattered items in 4-page handset dailies or, at best, under single line headings of "baseball," "lacrosse," "cricket" or bicycling."

Veterans who participated in the forum were J. P. Fitzgerald, sports editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram; Charlie Good, Sr., one-time sports writer for the Toronto Globe and the old Toronto World; W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association since 1903 and a sports writer until 15 years ago; and Clary Settell, radio sports commentator and former Los Angeles sports writer.

Sidestepped Question

Mr. Fitzgerald sidestepped the question of where hockey originated by pleading that as a director of hockey's Hall of Fame he was biased in favor of Kingston, Ont., but he recalled the game's beginning in matches on frozen creeks of "shinny on your own side." Twenty or 30 players on each side all took a crack at a lacrosse ball and tried to knock it into the opponents' goal.

Ontario had about 40 organized hockey clubs in 1903, Mr. Hewitt said, compared with between 200 and 300 at present.

At first, seven-man teams with no substitutes played 30 minutes to a half. Then the game changed to three 20-minute periods and the decision to permit use of subs speeded up play. In time the 200-by-85 foot rink became standard.

Mr. Hewitt predicted construction of new rinks in many Ontario communities as soon as building materials are available.

Mr. Good, asked if he thought it a good idea to introduce professional football in Toronto in the near future, replied:

"I don't see why not. It should draw good crowds."

Clary Settell said he became known as "The Old Observer"—and gained his first sports writing job — by writing letters in which he pointed out to the sports editor of a Los Angeles paper errors in sports page stories.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 5 (CP)—The only sports event of the winter season featuring top hats and tails opened at Madison Square Garden Monday . . . It was the 63rd National Horse Show, where Broadway and Park Avenue rub shoulders . . . The swank society event has been running, with a few interruptions, since 1883 . . . This year seven Quebec horses are entered . . .

Ooops, I Slipped

Most embarrassing moment of opening night came during the parade of international military teams . . . Two American army lieutenants tumbled from their restive nags . . . Fortunately the mishaps occurred before the stand-to for the National Anthem.

What's In a Name?

Mexico won the international military championship event with some nifty riding . . . The other Latin-American team taking part was Peru . . . Most of the Peruvians had regular Spanish type names such as Capt. Roberto Zapata . . . But one was named Anderson . . . His first name was Armando . . .

Sacrilege

One old-line American cavalry colonel came up to the press box to say hello . . . He commented sadly on one of his absent journalist friends: "I hear he goes to the race track at this time of year . . . I can't understand that at all —when he can go to the Horse Show." . . .

Call Me Hank

The society reporters had a field day . . . One was overheard arguing with the society editor on one name . . . It was Hank Greenberg, American Baseball League home-run king and husband of Carol Gimbel of the local department store clan . . . The society blokes wanted to call Hank "Henry." . . .

ELECT WHARF CLINIC

Port of Spain, Trinidad (CP)—Arrangements are being made for the erection of a wharf clinic here, the site for which is awaiting approval by government. Dr. Eric de Verteuil will take over the duties of medical superintendent of the clinic when it is finished.

PREHISTORIC CIGARETS

During prehistoric times the Pueblo Indian of New Mexico made cigarets by wrapping corn husks around the dry leaves of some wild tobacco plant.

TAKING IT EASY

Most farm animals do not sweat appreciably, and protect themselves against a rise in body temperature in hot weather by reducing their activities.

General Duty Nurse

By Lucy Agnes Hancock

CHAPTER 6

The patient in 327 smiled at her nurse. It was apparent she was feeling very much better.

Spring always did something to the patients in Linton Memorial. Perhaps the long rows of scarlet tulips that bordered the walks were responsible, or the pussy willows that flaunted their plump gray kittens beside the tennis courts, or it might possibly be the fact that the hill on which the hospital stood caught the first warm rays of spring sunshine and gathered unto itself every bit of vagrant perfume afloat in the soft April air. Anyway, Marcia Beach—badly ruptured appendix—smiled for the first time in the four days Sally Maynard had been on duty in room 327.

"O—h, you're better!" Sally cried softly, smiling in return. "I am so very glad! And today we have planned for you to have a visitor or two. I can imagine the two you are going to choose."

"Go ahead," the patient suggested. "Let me see how good you are." Her voice was suprisingly strong.

"Well," Sally said judicially, "one will be your mother, of course, and the other—that good-looking lieutenant who has been haunting the place ever since you arrived and who is trying desperately to bankrupt himself by filling your room with flowers—not to mention the quantities of fruit and sweats, which, of course you can't eat—at present. Right?"

"Right," the girl in the narrow hospital bed laughed softly. "Isn't Ted a darling nurse? What's your name—besides Maynard? I will not call you Miss Maynard."

"I'm Sarah Elizabeth Maynard—Sally to my friends."

"Sally," the other murmured. "I like it. It sort of suits you. Do you know I have been silently admiring you for days. I seem to know you—by reputation—that is my mother knows your aunt. Why have I never met you before—socially? Surely—of course you know you are beautiful. You'd be pretty dumb if you didn't; but what I can't figure out is how it happens that anyone as lovely as you are ever trained to become a nurse. A model or an actress yes; but a trained nurse! I don't get it. I should have thought—How ever did your special boy friend let you?"

Sally shook her head. This was nothing knew to her—this catechism. No doubt the other girls had to submit to the same sort of inquisition.

"Believe it or not my dear, there is no 'boy friend.' I'm a nurse because I want to be—because I love it. I wouldn't be anything else."

"But why? How did you come to choose—to make that decision, Sally? From what I recall, it wasn't exactly necessary that you—"

"I was ten when my mother died," Sally said quietly. "She was ill less than three weeks—flu and pneumonia. Ingrid Anderson was the nurse. She let me help her and together we fought for my mother's life. It was a losing battle but I wanted to be like Ingrid. I admired her more than any woman in the world. So when I was 18 I entered training here at Linton Memorial and I expect to make nursing my career—my whole life."

"But your young, Sally," the other protested. "You simply can't plan on spending your life here among the sick. It isn't right—it isn't—"

Sally laughed softly. "A life is made up of days, my dear," she said with what seemed to the patient unnatural logic in one so young and lovely. "And days are made up of minutes. When one is busy as I am, the days pass quickly and soon run into years. One is scarcely aware of their passing."

"For heaven's sake, Sally Maynard!" Marcia cried indignantly. "How old are you?"

"Twenty-two. Why?"

"You talk like a woman of eighty," Marcia said, impatiently. "And somehow it all sounds phony —affected, and I simply don't take any stock in it. I bet you're like the average girl—dreaming of the prince who will one day come and sweep you off your feet into an enchanted world Only in your case he probably will turn out to be a patient or, perhaps, a doctor—maybe a famous surgeon. A lot of nurses marry doctors—"

"Well," Sally protested, "here's one who won't or a patient either. You see, I'm not interested in men—never was—"

"Rats!" Marcia exclaimed inelegantly. "You only think you're not. But deep down in your subconscious there lurks a dream such as any normal girl has and I'll never believe otherwise."

"Okay," Sally shrugged. "That's your privilege. You asked for it and I gave it to you. What you do with it is your own affair. Now how about a short nap—a beauty sleep so that when your Lieutenant arrives he will be completely bowled over—"

Marcia laughed gleefully. "There! See? You're romantic. I knew it. What's the matter with that nice young interne—what's his name—Hallock? And I believe there's another one here, too. Hallock looks as if he might be fun to know." Her bright eyes mocked the other girl. "I bet they're both crazy about you."

"If they are they manage to keep it well hidden," Sally said and was annoyed at herself for blushing.

As if to make matters worse, Doctor Hallock paused before the half opened door and said softly:

"The United States Air Corps is growing impatient, Miss Beach." He pushed open the door and came inside. Sally busied herself by the window, her back toward them.

"May he come up, Sally?" the patient asked, [illegible] alight. "Do I look presentable. [illegible] was suppose to have a beauty nap before visitors barged in but—"

"Gosh, Marcy!" cried a vibrant voice from the stairway. "And they told me you had been desperately ill. You're blooming as a rose. How are you, darling—darling—" He dropped to his knees beside the bed.

"This is our cue to leave, my dear Sally," Doctor Hallock whispered, catching the nurse's hand and urging her from the room. "This is too sacred a moment for an unsympathetic witness such as you. But consider for a moment all that you're missing my girl."

"I expect to survive," Sally told him coolly, withdrawing her hand from his. "Was there something you wanted, Doctor Hallock?"

"Lovely day, isn't it—outside?" he said and when Sally merely nodded he went on with an exaggerated shiver: "But cold—burr! Darned cold—up here."

In spite of her determination to keep him at a distance, she giggled.

"Gosh, you're lovely when you let yourself go, Sally," he whispered. "Why don't you do it oftener?"

Sally bit her lip. "If there is nothing you want—"

"You know damned well what I want, you cold-blooded little—Oh-oh!" His voice took on its most professional tone and at the sudden change Sally knew a wild desire to laugh. Doctor Willoughby had come into the corridor from a room farther down. "Okay, Nurse," the young interne said loudly, "I'm glad you think it is quite safe to tell her uncle that he may see her." He turned and sauntered down the long corridor.

Sally heard the tap-tap-tap of high-heeled shoes echoing along the corridor and looked up to see her patient's mother, arms laden with flowers and magazines, coming toward her. She went to meet her.

"Lieutenant Allison is with her Mrs. Beach," she explained. "She is much better today and I am giving them twenty minutes together before I resume the role of wicked ogress and send him away. He has eight minutes to go. Shall we allow it or are you impatient to go in?"

Mrs. Beach laughed, "It has been days since they saw each other last, my dear. Let's give them all the time allowed. His leave is nearly over you see, and he has been pestering me to let them marry before he goes—this time he thinks it's to be overseas duty. Oh, this dreadful war! How is it going to end? If that Marcia laughing? She must be better."

"She is, but the incision is still draining and we can't take chances. She has been a very sick girl and needs watching. Time's up and her young man must leave—for now. Come on Mrs. Beach. I'm sorry; but that's the way it has to be."

"Mrs. Beach," the young man greeted them as they entered, "it's all settled. Marcia is willing and we don't even have to wait until she's out of the hospital. We can be married right here in this room—er—can't we, Nurse?"

Sally looked dubious. "You will have to see the superintendent and—perhaps—Doctor Richards, chief of staff," she told him

"Not so fast, Ted," Marcia's mother interrupted, a detaining hand on his arm as he made as if to rush away. "Just why this haste? You won't have time for a honeymoon—you won't even have any time alone together—"

"But we'll belong—Marcy will be my wife. She'll be waiting for me—someone to dream about while I'm flying above the clouds or in the midst of battle—someone to die for if that's the way it has to be. No tears, sweet," as Marcia's eyes filled and her arms went out to him. "I'll be back. I feel it and you're to get well and strong and go on with our plans and first thing you know I'll be home again and we'll pick up our life where we left it off here in this hospital room. I'll see about things right now. We have only two days and—" The door closed behind him and the girl in the hospital bed smiled as she sang huskily:

"'Nothing can stop the Army Air Corps.' You don't really mind, do you, Mother? It has always been Ted—you love him. There will never be anyone else and if it will make it easier for him—"

"I know darling," Her mother whispered tearfully, "but—"

"As it is, I feel as if I had let him down," the girl went on wistfully. "He wanted me to marry him on his last leave;but I held back. I never approved of war marriages; but we could have had those last few months together. He would have had that to remember. Now—"

"If it is permissable, you shall have the prettiest wedding we can provide, my 'darling,'" her mother promised, wiping her eyes. "Your nurse will help, I know."

"She shall be my maid of honor," Marcia announced. "I feel I have a duty to perform. I'm going to throw my bridal bouquet directly to her."

Sally left the room and although she was smiling she was unaccountably annoyed. The way Marcia Beach described her intention of devoting her life to nursing made her sound like a prig or an obnoxious misogamist That wasn't true. She didn't object to love and marriage for others. It was only that her love was given to her work—to helping people. Was that such a strange, unheard-of career?

But somehow, as she walked away from 327, she was unaccountably depressed.

"I'm not particularly proud of you, Sally Maynard," she told herself as she leaned against the wide parapet surrounding the roof garden on three sides. No patients out here at this hour and Sally drank in the beauty of the spring day, breathing deeply of the delectable fragrance of mingled newly turned sod and fresh growing things. How silly of her to let the happiness of Marcia Beach upset her; for she frankly acknowledged that it was jealousy of the other's radiant joy that had sent her self-satisfaction tumbling from its pedestal.

"Oh here you are!" a voice called. "Gosh, what luck! I've been looking all over the place for you. The chief is up in the air over this suggested wedding of your patient in 327? How come?"

"Then Lieutenant Allison saw him -about? And Miss Sunderlin?" At his nod she went on: "Well that's all there is to it. What am I supposed to do, Doctor Hallock?"

"Couldn't you make it 'Jim'?" he asked. "Only one syllable and very easy on the throat muscles."

Sally said nothing and he sighed deeply.

HAD BAD STOMACH FOR LONG TIME — "GREATLY IMPROVED SINCE TAKING SYNTONA"

Relieved Gas, Bloat and Sour Acidity. Free of Headache, Nerves Relaxed and Sleep is More Restful, Says This Man. "Glad to Recommend It."

'For a long time I was troubled with poor digestion, but since I found out about Syntona this is all changed and I feel greatly improved," said Mr. Hadoram Pembleton, St. Thomas, Ont., in a recent interview.

"I suffered with so much gas in my stomach that I felt bloated and short of breath and about an hour or so after my meals I would get heartburn so bad I often became sick and nauseated. Hot, sour liquids came up in my throat. I began to suffer from frequent headaches and my nerves became all on edge. Many nights I couldn't get my proper sleep, so I felt very tired in the mornings.

"I read about Syntona being made from herbs and roots and the idea appealed to me, so I decided to get some. I wasn't taking it long before I could tell it was helping my digestion. The gas and sourness cleared up and now I can enjoy my meals once more without having heartburn or that sick, nauseated feeling afterward. I am free of headache and my nerves have tended to quiet down, so I get better sleep at night and I don't feel so tired when I arise in the mornings.

"All in all I think Syntona is a very good medicine and I am glad to recommend it to other people suffering this way."

MR. H. PEMBLETON

Why not give this pure herbal medicine a chance to help you, too? Many people who suffered for years with stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys or liver, constipation, nervousness, or rheumatic aches and pains are surprised with good results they obtained by taking a few bottles of Syntona. Isn't it reasonable to expect that it can do the same for you?

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Jump in Milk Price Main Cause For C. of L. Rise

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—The cost-of-living index rose from 125.5 Sept. 3 to 126.8 Oct. 1 and the 1.3-point increase was largely due to higher milk prices, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

The food index increase was from 143.2 to 146.5 and the rent index increase from 112.6 to 113.4. Other increases: Fuel and light, 107.2 to 107.3; clothing, 129.8 to 130.2; home furnishings and services, 128.4 to 128.8. Miscellaneous items remained unchanged at 113.9.

Between Sept. 26 and Oct. 25 the composite index of farm product prices advanced 3.1 points to 113.2. The fluid milk increase was reflected in the animal products index increase of 7.6 to 136.7. Firm rye and hay quotations outweighed minor decreases in potato and onion prices to hold the field products index to 99.1, a gain of 0.3.

Composite index for 30 industrial material prices rose 0.5 points to 106.2.

Common stock prices on Canadian exchanges were steadier in October than in the preceding five months. The index for 100 common stocks declined 1.9 per cent to 101.7. Weaknesses in the utility section were almost balanced by gains in the industrial section.

The Liquor Authority Control Board of Ontario

TAKE NOTICE that the Annual Meeting of The Liquor Authority Control Board of Ontario for Authority District No. 9, will be held at the Council Chamber, in the City Hall, in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings on the 26th. day of November, A.D. 1946, at the hour of 1.00 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time it will hear and determine all applications for the renewal of Authorities in accordance with The Liquor Authority Control Act and Regulations.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that any person resident in the said authority District objecting to any such application shall file his ground of objection in writing with the Deputy Registrar at least three days before the date of the said Annual Meeting.

DATED at Belleville in the County of Hastings, this 4th. day of November, A.D. 1946.

Local Association of Boy Scouts Holds First Annual Banquet

The first annual banquet of the Boy Scouts Local Association of Belleville was held on Friday evening at the Kiwanis Centre with many leading citizens, as well as Scouters and Scout officials in attendance.

First speaker of the evening, Mayor Frank Follwell, himself a King Scout, told of how in the first days of Scouting in Belleville, the leaders had to overcome so many difficulties, and as a result, those boys then under their instruction have in the past six years of war proven to be amongst the best of fighting men, both in valor and principle.

Colonel Sisler, District Commissioner of Scouts, explained how the Local Association and Group Committees have functioned in the past, and how they will function in the future. He complimented Mr. R. L. Brown for the good job he has done, especially during the organization period, with so much to do.

Judge Chas. Cameron, president of the Local Association, had planned a drive for membership to raise finances, but unfortunately his work has made it necessary for him to leave the city.

Apple Day Success.

Reports on Apple Day proved very successful, although the Scouts picked one of the worst days in the year on which to hold it. A total of $791.27 was collected, with total expenses of $182.95, leaving a net profit for the day of $608.32. It was quite noticeable on Oct. 12th., that the people of Belleville went out to find the Scouts and Cubs, instead of the boys having to canvass them. Nickles, dimes, quarters, and even bills were dropped into the wet boxes.

The success of the Scout Camp at Point Anne, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Henry Nicholls, and the Cub Camp at Ameliasburg, was related by the Commissioner.

During the year some leaders have moved away and about forty Scouts have quit, due to insufficient leadership. Now, however, more leaders have been secured, and it is possible to handle more boys than ever before, although more Scoutmasters are still required in order to carry on the movement successfully.

Scoutmaster J. Spencer was presented with his Scoutmaster's warrant, and four Cubmasters who studied at the Gilwell Training Camp at Blue Springs near Guelph, were presented with certificates of training.

Field Commissioner Speaks.

Field Commissioner Jackson, opening his address with the statement that "We deal with boys," pointed out the importance of the movement to the whole Dominion, and how to his mother, a boy is a loving mystery, to his teacher he is a problem boy, to the average man he is a dim reminder of his own past, and to his leaders he is a constant tornado of contradictions.

Parents and leaders were asked to insist that all boys appear at meeting places in full uniform, for in this way they will become very proud of it, and will even fight for it on the streets. For this and many other reasons the boys should never be discouraged in their Scouting. And of course if the boys are expected to appear in uniform at all times, the leaders must first set the example by so doing themselves.

A sound sense of duty must be instilled in every Scout, especially his duty to God, and since no boy can be a Cub or Scout without attending a church and Sunday School, this duty is considered to be of the utmost importance in the movement. Here again the leaders must set the example.

Collected Much Scrap.

Reports have proven that the Boy Scouts collected more scrap and salvage than every other organization in the Dominion combined during the war. One out of every six awards for Canadians went to a Scout, and was a 14-year-old European Scout who lead the first invasion troops across the Rhine, and was himself killed.

Six million Boy Scouts all over the world are doing a good turn every day, and are showing up at the top of every business and organization in the world, although the movement is only 38 years old. Scouting, the Field Commissioner remarked, is a man's job cut down to boy size, and the principles of Scouting will stick for a lifetime.

In 1900 boys were considered to be little pests, but the founder of Scouts, Baden-Powell, said that the best way to deal with a boy was by getting discipline from within, not by beating him. For this reason, there is no militarism in Scouting. But the main thing is to keep the boy busy.

With regards to the Local Association, it is a group of men in the city who will stand up for Scouting at any time, and are continuously looking for ways and means to interest people in the movement.

Mr. Edwards then presented Mrs. Evelyn Goodier with a gift of appreciation for the fine job she has done for Cubbing in the city for the past three years.

Slate of Officers.

The following slate of officers for the coming year was presented to the meeting and was accepted as being the executive of the Local Association of Boy Scouts in Belleville for the year 1946-47:

Honorary Presidents—His Worship the Mayor, Col. P. H. Wills, His Honor Judge Chas. Cameron.

President — Maurice B. Button

Secretary — R. L. Brown.

Treasurer — Len. Fozard.

Vice Presidents — W. Warner, in charge of publicity; O. Lloyd, in charge of training; N. Edwards, in charge of badges.

1st Belleville group representatives — To be appointed by Group Committee.

2nd Belleville group representatives — A. Simpson, J. Spencer.

4th Belleville group representatives — W. Doyle, Miss Marion Brown.

8th Belleville group representatives — Ray Poste, Miss Gene Button.

Special thanks are extended to Mr. Bill Navin who was pianist for the evening, Mr. A. Simpson, song leader, and to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens, through whose kind efforts the banquet was held at the Centre.

DEATH FOR BETRAYER

Amsterdam, Nov. 5 — (Reuters) — G. J. De Groot, 44-year-old Amsterdam perfume dealer, was sentenced to death yesterday by a special court here for betraying Jews to the Gestapo during the occupation. He was said to have received 50 guilders — (about $20 at the current rate) for every Jew, plus 10 per cent of what was confiscated.

The last lap is the hardest!

You've probably figured your present car won't have to last much longer.

We hope you're right. For our part, we're doing our best to get those grand new Packards to our customers.

• You know the situation

But, like every other motor car manufacturer, Packard is still struggling with parts and materials shortages.

This year, the industry as a whole has been able to build only 44% of its output for the same period in 1941.

Packard has done better than that, but we'd like to put in a word of caution:

It may be some time yet before you get behind the wheel of your new car.

• Don't take a chance!

Make sure your present car keeps rolling. Test your car with this easy quiz.

If you find any of these symptoms, bring your car in for a quick check-up.

Lots of cars are lasting longer and running better because our expert mechanics are trained to nip trouble before it takes hold!

WINTERIZE NOW! These days, it's doubly important to beat winter to the punch. Bring your car in early for a thorough check-up of your battery, electrical system, and cooling system—as well as pre-winter lubrication and engine tune-up. The last-minute rush will be terrific—and the first cold snap may damage hard-to-get parts!

P.S. Fenders, doors, running boards—in fact, all body parts are scarce. Don't let rust eat them away. Our protective treatment will add to your car's life, appearance and value.

X This home quiz can help you catch little troubles before they become big ones!

1. ENGINE: Is smoke coming out of the exhaust? Are you using more oil than you used to? If "Yes," better have your piston rings looked at.

OK ☐ Needs Attention ☐

2. CLUTCH: Can you push the pedal down 1" to 1½" before the clutch starts to release? If the distance is less than that, better have it adjusted.

OK ☐ Needs Attention ☐

3. STEERING: Measure amount of "free play" from "A" to "B" and from "A" to "C." Two inches or more indicates too much lost motion before wheels begin to turn.

OK ☐ Needs Attention ☐

4. BRAKES: Does your brake pedal travel more than one inch before any braking is felt—and at least one inch of pedal travel left after a full stop in 30 feet at 20 m.p.h.? If not, police will say they are unsafe.

Squatters Defy New Legal Moves, Take Over House

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP)—Defying a thickening legal web being spun around them, squatter leaders supervised today the settling of three multitudinous veterans' families—22 persons in all—into a new home taken over in Montreal's northern suburbs.

Henri Gagnon, acting quickly between court appearances, moved in the three families, 16 children included, before neighbors could get police to the spot last night. Once in, police were powerless to evict them without a court order.

To Maxime Cyr, a veteran of two wars with a wife and eight children, the two-storey, nine-room building in residential Snowdon Junction looked good.

Mrs. Aime Leblanc quickly made a reconnaissance of kitchen facilities. For more than five years she has had one room for her six children, her husband, and herself. Rosario Beauchamps, the third veteran who moved in with his wife and two children, also said his family had lived in one small room for more than two years.

Gagnon, squatter leader who turned police away with a smile when they knocked at the door of the newly-occupied house to ask if there was "any trouble," was scheduled to be back in court today. Yesterday an additional charge—of "forcibly retaining immovable property"—was preferred against him, adding to the forcible entry previously filed in connection with the squatters' first coup Oct. 23.

The Snowdon incursion — the third in two weeks—took the squatters into the home ground of the Snowdon Canadian Legion Branch, whose charter was suspended for supporting the housing seizures. While the occupation was taking place, Gilbert Rosenberg, President of the Snowdon Branch, made public a letter to Maj. Gen. C. B. Price, Legion Dominion President, protesting the branch's "unwarranted suspension" by the Quebec Provincial Command and demanding reinstatement.

Two Ships Leave For Peacetime Manoeuvres

Halifax, Nov. 5 — (CP) — In a brand new coat of gray-green "peace-paint" two sleek ships of the Atlantic squadron strained at their anchor chains here today waiting for the signal "up anchors and away."

They were due to sail at noon and with good weather, Haligonians would see all the pomp of a peacetime departure after more than six long years of hush and secrecy on the waterfront.

The ships — the aircraft carrier Warrior and her escort the Tribal destroyer Nootka — will go to tropical waters to rendezvous with the cruiser Uganda and destroyer Crescent in Canada's first large-scale peacetime exercises.

The November and December training program is designed to give the maximum sea drill to new entry personnel and allow the ships — in command of Capt. Frank L. Houghton, O.B.E., of Ottawa — to take part in naval exercises and manoeuvres.

It is being timed to coincide with the shift of the Warrior from Halifax to her new station on the Pacific coast. It is understood she will eventually be succeeded here by the new carrier Magnificent, which is being fitted more appropriately for winter Atlantic conditions.

COUNCIL LEADER INSULTED

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP)—Pierre DesMarais leader of the Montreal city council, is insulted.

At a council meeting last night, Mr. DesMarais said he had lost a $2,800-per-year secretary to the Tourist and Industrial Bureau and had received a $1,400 secretary as a replacement.

The change, he said, was not only an insult to himself, as council leader, but also an insult to every member of the council.

Crew Wants 33⅓ P.C. Purchase Tax Taken off Boats

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 5 — (CP) — It won't be any of that well-known college students' rax-mah-tax if 18 perspiring young men in white shorts and blue sweaters invade the sombre Houses of Parliament sometime between now and next March 29.

University students can be counted upon to indulge in tomfoolery but this time it will be the Oxford and Cambridge boat-race crews with a "mad on." They want the 33 1/3-per-cent purchase tax taken off their boats.

The idea buzzing around the campus grounds of the two universities is that the crew for the March 29 boat race should rown down the Thames to the Commons and present a petition against the government's tax. It is just in the whispering stage, but conceivably could be carried out, if we know our collegians.

After Oxford University Boat Club announced its intention to sell souvenir programs on boat race day to bolster finances, M. R. Nicholson, Cambridge Boat Club president, came out strongly in support.

Mr. Nicholson said he had written his Member of Parliament saying that rowing — one sport in which Britain probably could hold its own in the 1948 Olympic games — is being "strangled" by the purchase tax.

M. Nicholson stressed that the government charged a tax for this year's race on rented seats in club balconies and private homes which lined the 4 1/2-mile route, but no contribution was made to the cost of the race. An estimated 100,000 persons, believed a record, lined the banks of the historic Thames to watch the annual battle and the government collected £700 in entertainment tax.

"The Song in my Heart," which Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, referred to in a recent speech, apparently isn't the Eton boating song.

Driver Sustains Face and Chest Injuries in Crash

Picton, Nov. 5—Severe face and chest injuries were sustained by Edward Williams, Lake Street, in a car accident on Picton-Bloomfield road, Saturday night. He is in county hospital here. Lawrence Ward, Bloomfield, who was given a ride by Williams, was severely cut on the forehead. The car was owned by Lawrence Robinson and had allegedly been taken without his consent. It went into the ditch on the Picton-Bloomfield highway, and rolled over several times.

POLICE SEEK STABBER

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Police combed the Toronto downtown area last night and today for a man who stabbed a companion four times and slashed a bystander after a fist fight which followed an argument in three languages — English, Hungarian and Ukrainian.

Danny Kozub, 34, was treated for wounds over the right eye, in the upper chest and on the right hand. His condition is not considered serious. One cut was only half an inch from his jugular vein. The bystander, Alex Mikes, was treated for a cut finger.

UNION JACK REPLACED

Halifax, Nov. 5 (CP) — The Canadian Red Ensign has replaced the Union Jack atop the Federal building in Halifax.

The change, made yesterday, was in accordance with instructions from Ottawa that as "Jacks" became too worn for further use, they were to be replaced by the Red Ensign until selection of the new Canadian flag.

U.S. Said to Favor Russ Opposition To Australian Plan

Point is on Procedure In Admission of Members

By MAX HARRELSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 6 —(AP) — The United States was reported ready today to line up with Russia in opposition to an Australian-led small-power campaign which would relegate the security council to a secondary position on deciding the admission of new members to the United Nations.

The United States' position became known as the General Assembly's powerful political committee was called into session at 11 a.m. E.S.T. to start debate on a group of resolutions growing out of the security council's rejection membership applications from Albania, Outer Mongolia, Eire, Portugal and Trans-Jordan.

Informed quarters said the United States delegation definitely would oppose an Australian proposal declaring that "the general assembly has primary and final responsibility" in the admission of new members.

The Australian resolution also proposed that the security council's role be restricted to deciding whether "the applicant state is able and willing to carry out its obligations under those sections of the Charter which come within the competence of the security council."

The United States delegation was understood to hold the view that the procedure for the admission of members is clearly defined in the U. N. Charter and that there is nothing wrong with the provision that the assembly may act on applications only after the council had made its recommendations.

Court of Appeal Continues Hearing Against Conviction

Toronto, Nov 6 (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal today continued its hearing of the appeal of Mrs. Marie Desmeules against her conviction on a charge of murder in the slaying last June 29 of her 65-year-old landlady, Susan Thoms, at Fort William after opening-day argument yesterday centred on the degree of intoxication which result if a person drank 19 ounces of gin in a five-hour period.

C. L. Dubin, counsel for Mrs. Desmeules who was sentenced to be hanged Nov. 26, argued that if she consumed 19 ounces of gin on the day Miss Thoms was slain she would have been drunk beyond the point of being able to form an intent of murder. He contended that the trial judge, Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly, should have left the jury the alternative verdict of manslaughter if they found that the accused was drunk.

Mr. Justice R. G. Fisher, one of the judges hearing the appeal, disagreed with Mr. Dubin's contention on the drunk angle. "I wouldn't think so from my experience," he said of the argument.

37 DEER BAGGED FIRST DAY IN PETERBOROUGH AREA

Peterborough, Nov. 6 (CP)—Deer hunters in the Peterborough area bagged 37 deer on the opening day of the hunt and on Tuesday every party continued to pile up the count with three or four animals to its credit. This shooting was done between Haultain and Apsley a ten mile stretch flanking the Crown Game Preserve. Hunters are out in near record numbers.

TO INVESTIGATE FIRE

Peterborough, Nov. 6. (CP)—A representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department is expected here today at the request of Fire Chief George Gimblett to investigate the fire which gutter the service station of Donald F. Laton on Tuesday.

Damage was said to be $5,000.

Windsors Plan Visit to Alberta

Southampton, Nov. 6 (CP) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor boarded the Queen Elizabeth in a dense fog Tuesday night, bound for the United States and planning a visit to Alberta before returning to England in the spring, but otherwise uncertain about their future.

In an interview before they motored to Southampton from the Earl of Dudley's estate, the former King said:

"My position today remains as I said in my farewell broadcast speech in 1936. I quit public affairs then, but I am always at the disposal of my country if there is anything useful I can do.

"I saw the Prime Minister for a short time but that was purely a courtesy call. I did not see Mr. Attlee to ask for a job."

Both he and the Duchess said they thoroughly enjoyed their three weeks' visit to England, which was marred by the theft of the Duchess' $80,000 in jewels.

"The one country where I did not think anything like that would happen to us was here," the Duke said.

"We really have no definite plans," he added. "We are looking forward to coming back here next spring. Before then we plan to visit my ranch in Canada, but we haven't fixed any date yet."

Workers Bid Bon Voyage To Duke and Duchess

Southampton, Eng., Nov. 6 —(CP) — Cheering dock workers lined the quay today to bid bon voyage to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor as they sailed for New York aboard the Queen Elizabeth. The Duke acknowledged the cheers with a wave of his hand, then moved away to chat with Commodore Sir James Bisset on the bridge. The Queen Elizabeth had 2,200 passengers for her second trip to New York as a civilian ship.

ROBERTSON TO TAKE PART

Sir Brian Robertson, deputy military governor of the British zone of Germany, is to take part in financial and economic discussions in Washington on the planned merger between the British and United States zones, the British Foreign Office news department reported today.

Divided Loyalties Among French Officers Prompted Move to Unite

London, Nov. 6 —(Reuters)— Divided loyalties among French officers in the early phases of the North African campaign partly prompted the decision to unite the British 1st Army and the United States 2nd Army Corps under Gen. Eisenhower, it was disclosed today.

A published report by Lt.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson, general officer commanding the British 1st Army, covered operations in North Africa to expel the Germans from Algeria and Tunisia.

Many French officers, wrote Gen. Anderson, "were still openly expressing loyalty to Marshal Petain."

Mayors, stationmasters, postmasters and other key officials with whom the forces had to deal were "lukewarm in their sympathies and hesitant to commit themselves openly," said the report.

Since the United States had maintained relations with the Vichy government, whereas Britain had recognized the movement of Gen. De Gaulle, it was thought the United States expedition would receive more local support, the War Office said in a note appended to Gen. Anderson's report.

ARABS AND JEWS APPROVE OF NEW BRITISH POLICY

Struggle to Establish Independent Jewish Homeland Will Be Continued

Jerusalem, Nov. 6 (AP)—Arabs and Jews expressed qualified approval today of a conciliatory new British policy designed to relieve tension in the Holy Land, but Jewish leaders declared the struggle for establishment of an independent Jewish homeland would be continued.

While evidences of British conciliation appeared, violence continued. A locomotive engineer was hurt and a 17-car oil train derailed by five land mines exploded on the Haifa-Lydda line of the Palestine railway near Kalkilyeh. It was the second such incident in two days.

A railway blockhouse also was attacked in the same area last night and a land mine exploded under a private automobile on the Beth Dayan-Rischon Le Zion road. There were no casualties in either incident.

Tangible manifestations of the new British policy, which one British source said might "mark the turning point in the history of Palestine," included the release of eight Jewish leaders from detention and the promise to free 120 more soon; the release of the exiled Arabs, and the lifting of the curfew in Palestine.

Washingtonians Say They Would Like to Vote

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—Wistful Washington residents said today that they, too, would like to vote.

In an unofficial election voteless Washingtonians rolled up a one-sided "yes" in answer to these questions:

1. Do you want the right to vote for officials of your own city government in the district of Columbia?

2. Do you want the right to vote for President of the United States and for members of Congress from the district of Columbia?

Washington hasn't had a real election since 1873. It once chose its own officials, but since 1874 a commission form of city government has been used. The President names the three commissioners.

Congress can allow Washington to choose its own city officials, but it would take a constitutional amendment before local citizens could vote in national elections.

Steady Increase Shown In Motor Accidents Since Gas Ban Lifted

Toronto, Nov. 6 —(CP)— A detailed report today released by the Motor Vehicles Branch announced that 598 persons were killed and 9,804 injured in 13,453 motor vehicle accidents in Ontario during the year 1945. Property damage loss in these accidents amounted to $2,249,271.

Commenting on this report, Minister of Highways Doucett said that from the peak of 801 deaths in 1941, the trend of fatalities was downward until the gasoline restriction were lifted in Sept. 1945.

"Since then there has been a steady increase in accident, deaths and injuries," Mr. Doucett said. "At the end of June of this year there were 252 fatalities reported representing an increase of 33.3 per cent over the same period last year and only 18 per cent below the 1941 peak when 309 were killed during the first six months."

The Minister reported that the 47 per cent increase in motor vehicle mileage as shown by gasoline consumption figures was an important factor in the increase in accidents. "The statistics show that inattention and poor judgement on the part of both drivers and pedestrians are the predominating causes of traffic accidents," the Minister said.

SHOWDOWN FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF TRIESTE DEVELOPS

Yugoslavia and Italy Both Called to Testify Before Foreign Ministers' Council

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, Nov. 5 (AP) — A showdown fight over control of the key Adriatic port of Trieste appeared to be developing rapidly today with Yugoslavia and Italy both called to testify before the Big Four foreign ministers council here.

Yugoslavia, with Russian backing, is driving for domination of the port while the United States, Britain and other western powers, insist on a strong United Nations government.

Last night Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia accused State Secretary Byrnes of trying to deliver an "ultimatum" to the council to force it to take an action considered unfavorable to Yugoslavia. Mr. Byrnes struck back with pointed digs about Mr. Molotov's constant insistence of his own views.

Following this brief flare-up, however, the two men joined in refreshments after agreeing with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Deputy Foreign Minister Couve De Murville of France to start today's session at 10:30 a.m. and continue until both Yugoslavia and Italy had been heard.

In one issue after another Mr. Molotov showed up on the minority side of stalemated issues in the projected Italian peace treaty—background of the Trieste fight—but the Big Four must unanimous before any agreement can be voted.

Dairy Officials Express Concern Over Exodus

Kitchener, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Dairy officials today expressed concern over the exodus of Waterloo county milk cattle to the United States under a heavy wave of buying pressure from American drovers paying $300 and up for cows coming into the milking period.

L. A. Wallis, manager of one firm, said that cows are being shipped from this county by the carloads every week and pastures will be depopulated rapidly if the export movement continues.

He indicated the buying wave was general throughout Ontario and said a serious decrease in milk, butter and cheese production would result.

Mr. Wallis said he understood officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture were worried about the situation.

At Toronto, Agricultural Minister Kennedy was not available but officials in his department refused to comment on Mr. Wallis' statement and said they had no figures available on the number of cattle exported.

WARTIME CONTROL MAY BE ENDED BY NEW HOUSE

Proposals Will Likely End Management - Labor Friction in Country

Washington, Nov. 6 — (AP) — The swift end of wartime controls over the economy of the United States and legislative proposals intended to ease management-labor friction shaped up today as the biggest issues facing the next, almost certainly Republican-dominated Congress.

Barring a jolting last-minute reversal of trend, Republicans were back in control of Congress for the first time since 1931.

The Republicans hold no illusion, however, that it will be easy to replace their program—when finally formulated — into effect. A Democratic president still sits in the White House. Hence they either must persuade President Truman to accept that program or try to crack his vetoes when and as they come.

The bulwark of Democratic votes from the fairly solid south will make the overriding of the Truman veto a major task. A two-thirds vote of each House is required.

Great problems confront the new Congress. International understandings — and misunderstandings — will shadow many a move. In that setting, the legislators must make decisions on such issues as:

1. Continuation of the draft, due to expire next March 15. Tied in closely with this problem is the administration's insistence on a permanent, compulsory military training program.

2. Merger of the army and navy —another administration "must" item despite sharp opposition from the sea arm itself.

3. Stepping up the housing program — a major sore spot particularly for veterans.

4. Reduction of taxes from high, wartime levels.

Representative Joe Martin (Rep.-Mass.), likely speaker of the new House of Representatives, has given No. 1 listing on his program to stripping away wartime powers from the executive branch so that "these United States will return to constitutional government."

Little Credence Given German Officer's Stories

Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 6. (AP) — United States army agents are investigating with skepticism the story of a recently captured S.S. Lieutenant-Colonel that Hitler is still alive and can be heard addressing his followers over a secret radio transmitter.

The S.S. officer is the same one who announced on his arrest near here last week that he had seen Hitler's former deputy, Martin Borman, in late May, 1945—after the date Bormann was reported killed in Berlin.

Army officials said they placed litele credence in his stories, for which they can find no substantiation. Privately they are inclined to regard the officer as a "crackpot".

The German says he is Hans Joachim Von Burgsdorf. Investigators can find no record of such a name in German military files. Psychiatrists reported he was not insane—"at least no crazier than any S.S. fanatic."

DOMINIONS MUST BE RESPONSIBLE SAYS ALANBROOKE

Maintenance of World Peace Depends On Solidarity of British Commonwealth

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 — (CP Cable)— Lord Alanbrooke, whose last duty as Chief of the Imperial General Staff was a study of Commonwealth defence, said today that acceptance by each member of the British Commonwealth of a zone of responsibility is one of the four fundamental defence requirements.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Royal Empire Society, he listed the other three "cornerstones of the edifice of Commonwealth security" as:

1. Recognition by British peoples that maintenance of world peace depends more on the solidarity of the Commonwealth than on an other factor.

2. Existence within each Commonwealth country of an organization capable of developing that country's full defensive power.

3. Provision of ways and means for co-ordination of Commonwealth defence requirements as a whole.

The United Nations organization is in its infancy and it would be many years before it would be able to make its influence felt as a guardian of peace, Lord Alanbrooke warned the society.

He suggested each Dominion assume direct responsibility for land, sea and air areas connected directly with its security defence. Within its own strategic zone each Dominion would carry out defence planning and formulate proposals on the degree and nature of assistance required from other Commonwealth members.

Weapons like long-range rockets, improved submarines and the atomic bomb had increased the United Kingdom's vulnerability. But in the United Kingdom was concentrated the bulk of defence resources, like manpower and industry.

Too Many Eggs in Basket

"There are far too many valuable eggs in this very small and seriously exposed basket," said Lord Alanbrooke, who was succeeded as chief of the general staff by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. "Can we disperse some of these vital requirements throughout the Commonwealth? Can we arrive at a more equitable distribution from the defensive point of view of our manpower and resources?

"Undoubtedly with the growth of the Dominions we are gradually working toward a better distribution of resources throughout the Commonwealth but this process is a slow one.

"Is this growth sufficient or should it receive any artificial stimulus? If so how?"

Such problems, he said, require examination by the Dominion governments and their military advisers to devise what zones of responsibility should be assumed.

Statesmen and people of the Commonweath should appreciate the power for peace held by the Commonwealth. The best way to ensure ultimate United Nations success was to guard it against a

British Papers Declare Elections In U.S. as "Landslide to the Right"

London, Nov. 6. (CP) — The London Star, printing the first British editorial reaction to the United States election results, declared today: "We shall see American big business attempting to exploit the Republican victory and in every way thwarting national and international efforts to get order into world affairs."

"That attitude cuts right across Britain's policy," the Liberal publication concluded.

Other London evening newspapers announced results of the voting in headlines such as: U.S. landslide to the Right."

"Britain may suffer the backwash of today's political topsyturvydom in America, but the British course is set," said the star. "Today's results make the increase of British industrial output all the more urgent.

"The only answer to the triumph of reaction in America is for Britain to stand on her own feet." As long as we continue to live on credit and capital, we shall be so much more at the mercy of backward decisions across the Atlantic."

The French Press interpreted the elections results principally as a rebuke to President Truman, with headlines reading: "Truman's adversaries triumph," "Truman disavowed by the Americans," and "Reversal of the majority in the United States."

In London, the Star's banner head read: "Truman is Voted 'Out'," while the Conservative Evening Standard, describing "A Resounding Call for a Businessman's Government," headlined: "Swing to the Right in U.S."

The Standard observed that in a world turning more and more to the Left, the United States has turned sharply and dramatically to the Right.

"It is, apparently, as clean a sweep as Britain's 15 months ago though the broom has swept in exactly the opposite direction."

Huge Majorities Rolled Up By G.O.P. Candidates

Democrat Stalwarts Fall Like Nine Pins in Elections

By Clyde Blackburn
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Republicans won control of both House and Senate of the 80th Congress today in a triumphant landslide that overturned the Democrats for the first time in 15 years.

The result meant a Congress meeting in January politically divided from the White House. Tradition pointed a favorable finger too toward G.O.P. capture of the White House two years hence.

The G.O.P. went over the top for House control in tabulations of late returns at 11:50 a.m. E.S.T. A few minutes later Arthur b. Watkins, Republican candidate, won a victory in Utah which gave his party undisputed possession of the Senate.

Watkins defeated Senator Abe Murdock (Dem.) who usually has been listed as a supporter of the policies of President Truman's administration.

Shook to Foundations

In a landslide that shook the Democratic party to its foundations from coast to coast, the Republicans won smashing victories in such big states as New York, where they re-elected Gov. Thomas E Dewey and sent Irving M. Ives to the Senate to replace Senator James Mead. Mead lost to Dewey in the governor race.

The Republicans also captured three governorships previously held by the Democrats, but lost one, in Colorado, to their opponents. It was the first of national proportion victory scored by the G.O.P. since it lost control of Congress in the early '30s.

The potential Republican presidential candidate for 1948, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, was re-elected with a record-breaking majority, defeating Senator James Mead, Democrat, who also was slated for presidental consideration if he won this election and if President Truman declined to run two years from now.

Police have charged Sutherland with intent to maim.

Marshal Stalin Does Not Speak On Anniversary

London, Nov. 6 — (AP)—Marshal A. A. Zhdonav delivered in Moscow today an address such as Prime Minister Stalin had been expected to make on the eve of the Russian Revolution's 29th anniversary. Soviet sources here said it was uncertain whether Stalin would speak later.

Zhdanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet, declared Russia was emerging stronger than ever from war conditions under which a capitalist country "would have become a second class power."

Zhdanov asserted that "the blood of our people was not shed for imperialist expansionists and pretenders to world domination—for atom blackmailers."

The celebration meeting sent greetings to Stalin, whose apparent absence was not immediately explained.

Zhdanov declared that opposition had developed — "in particular from Britain and the U.S.A." —to the Soviet program for a "democratic peace."

"The peoples of the world, the common people who defended liberty and independence with their blood against the German fascists, are thirsting for peace," he said amid applause.

Zhdanov said Russia's desire for "democratic, peaceful development in the world" would prevail despite "the anti-Soviet clamor of people like Churchill and others of like mind" — whom he labelled "world imperialists."

"The forces working for the cause of peace grow constantly," he declared. "The Soviet Union is not alone. Millions of people abroad support the Soviet Union."

His address was broadcast to the people of the Soviet Union from a celebration meeting of the Moscow Soviet, attended by Communist party and state leaders and Russian Army chiefs, in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre.

Zhdanov frequently has been spoken of an the most likely successor of Stalin, although he is comparatively a newcomer in the high councils of Russia.

In addition to his membership in the Supreme Soviet, he is a member of the politbureau, top political agencies of the Soviet Union, and secretary of the central executive committee of the Communist party. Zhdanov likewise is chairman of the Foreign Affairs Commission and head of the propaganda bureau. He rose to power in Leningrad as head of the Communist party there. He is 50 years old.

REPUBLICANS GAIN CONTROL OF HOUSE, SENATE

U.S. Said to Favor Russ Opposition To Australian Plan

Point is on Procedure In Admission of Members

By MAX HARRELSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 6 — (AP) — The United States was reported ready today to line up with Russia in opposition to an Australian-led small-power campaign which would relegate the security council to a secondary position on deciding the admission of new members to the United Nations.

The United States' position became known as the General Assembly's powerful political committee was called into session at 11 a.m. E.S.T. to start debate on a group of resolutions growing out of the security council's rejection membership applications from Albania, Outer Mongolia, Eire, Portugal and Trans-Jordan.

Informed quarters said the United States delegation definitely would oppose an Australian proposal declaring that "the general assembly has primary and final responsibility" in the admission of new members.

The Australian resolution also proposed that the security council's role be restricted to deciding whether "the applicant state is able and willing to carry out its obligations under those sections of the Charter which come within the competence of the security council."

The United States delegation was understood to hold the view that the procedure for the admission of members is clearly defined in the U. N. Charter and that there is nothing wrong with the provision that the assembly may act on applications only after the council had made its recommendations.

Windsors Plan Visit to Alberta

Southampton, Nov. 6 (CP) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor boarded the Queen Elizabeth in a dense fog Tuesday night, bound for the United States and planning a visit to Alberta before returning to England in the spring, but otherwise uncertain about their future.

In an interview before they motored to Southampton from the Earl of Dudley's estate, the former King said:

"My position today remains as I said in my farewell broadcast speech in 1936. I quit public affairs then, but I am always at the disposal of my country if there is anything useful I can do.

"I saw the Prime Minister for a short time but that was purely a courtesy call. I did not see Mr. Attlee to ask for a job."

Both he and the Duchess said they thoroughly enjoyed their three weeks' visit to England, which was marred by the theft of the Duchess' $80,000 in jewels.

"The one country where I did not think anything like that would happen to us was here," the Duke said.

"We really have no definite plans," he added. "We are looking forward to coming back here next spring. Before then we plan to visit my ranch in Canada, but we haven't fixed any date yet."

Court of Appeal Continues Hearing Against Conviction

Toronto, Nov 6 (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal today continued its hearing of the appeal of Mrs. Marie Desmeules against her conviction on a charge of murder in the slaying last June 29 of her 65-year-old landlady, Susan Thoms, at Fort William after opening-day argument yesterday centred on the degree of intoxication which result if a person drank 19 ounces of gin in a five-hour period.

C. L. Dubin, counsel for Mrs. Desmeules who was sentenced to be hanged Nov. 26, argued that if she consumed 19 ounces of gin on the day Miss Thoms was slain she would have been drunk beyond the point of being able to form an intent of murder. He contended that the trial judge, Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly, should have left the jury the alternative verdict of manslaughter if they found that the accused was drunk.

Mr. Justice R. G. Fisher, one of the judges hearing the appeal, disagreed with Mr. Dubin's contention on the drunk angle. "I wouldn't think so from my experience," he said of the argument.

Representative Joe Martin (Rep.-Mass.), likely speaker of the new House of Representatives, has given No. 1 listing on his program to stripping away wartime powers from the executive branch so that "these United States will return to constitutional government."

Little Credence Given German Officer's Stories

Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 6. (AP) — United States army agents are investigating with skepticism the story of a recently captured S.S. Lieutenant-Colonel that Hitler is still alive and can be heard addressing his followers over a secret radio transmitter.

The S.S. officer is the same one who announced on his arrest near here last week that he had seen Hitler's former deputy, Martin Borman ,in late May, 1945—after the date Bormann was reported killed in Berlin.

Army officials said they placed litele credence in his stories, for which they can find no substantiation. Privately they are inclined to regard the officer as a "crackpot".

The German says he is Hans Joachim Von Burgsdorf. Investigators can find no record of such a name in German military files. Psychiatrists reported he was not insane—"at least no crazier than any S.S. fanatic."

DOMINIONS MUST BE RESPONSIBLE SAYS ALANBROOKE

Maintenance of World Peace Depends On Solidarity of British Commonwealth

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 — (CP Cable)—Lord Alanbrooke, whose last duty as Chief of the Imperial General Staff was a study of Commonwealth defence, said today that acceptance by each member of the British Commonwealth of a zone of responsibility is one of the four fundamental defence requirements.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Royal Empire Society, he listed the other three "cornerstones of the edifice of Commonwealth security" as:

1. Recognition by British peoples that maintenance of world peace depends more on the solidarity of the Commonwealth than on an other factor.

2. Existence within each Commonwealth country of an organization capable of developing that country's full defensive power.

3. Provision of ways and means for co-ordination of Commonwealth defence requirements as a whole.

The United Nations organization is in its infancy and it would be many years before it would be able to make its influence felt as a guardian of peace, Lord Alanbrooke warned the society.

He suggested each Dominion assume direct responsibility for land, sea and air areas connected directly with its security defence. Within its own strategic zone each Dominion would carry out defence planning and formulate proposals on the degree and nature of assistance required from other Commonwealth members.

Weapons like long-range rockets, improved submarines and the atomic bomb had increased the United Kingdom's vulnerability. But in the United Kingdom was concentrated the bulk of defence resources, like manpower and industry.

Too Many Eggs in Basket

"There are far too many valuable eggs in this very small and seriously exposed basket," said Lord Alanbrooke, who was succeeded as chief of the general staff by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. "Can we disperse some of these vital requirements throughout the Commonwealth? Can we arrive at a more equitable distribution from the defensive point of view of our manpower and resources?

"Undoubtedly with the growth of the Dominions we are gradually working toward a better distribution of resources throughout the Commonwealth but this process is a slow one.

"Is this growth sufficient or should it receive any artificial stimulus? If so how?"

Such problems, he said, require examination by the Dominion governments and their military advisers to devise what zones of responsibility should be assumed.

Statesmen and people of the Commonweath should appreciate the power for peace held by the Commonwealth. The best way to ensure ultimate United Nations success was to guard it against a

British Papers Declare Elections In U.S. as "Landslide to the Right"

London, Nov. 6. (CP) — The London Star, printing the first British editorial reaction to the United States election results, declared today: "We shall see American big business attempting to exploit the Republican victory and in every way thwarting national and international efforts to get order into world affairs."

"That attitude cuts right across Britain's policy," the Liberal publication concluded.

Other London evening newspapers announced results of the voting in headlines such as: U.S. landslide to the Right."

"Britain may suffer the backwash of today's political topsyturvydom in America, but the British course is set," said the star. "Today's results make the increase of British industrial output all the more urgent.

"The only answer to the triumph of reaction in America is for Britain to stand on her own feet." As long as we continue to live on credit and capital, we shall be so much more at the mercy of backward decisions across the Atlantic."

The French Press interpreted the elections results principally as a rebuke to President Truman, with headlines reading: "Truman's adversaries triumph," "Truman disavowed by the Americans," and "Reversal of the majority in the United States."

In London, the Star's banner head read: "Truman is Voted 'Out'," while the Conservative Evening Standard, describing "A Resounding Call for a Businessman's Government," headlined: "Swing to the Right in U.S."

The Standard observed that in a world turning more and more to the Left, the United States has turned sharply and dramatically to the Right.

"It is, apparently, as clean a sweep as Britain's 15 months ago though the broom has swept in exactly the opposite direction."

Huge Majorities Rolled Up By G.O.P. Candidates

Democrat Stalwarts Fall Like Nine Pins in Elections

By Clyde Blackburn
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Republicans won control of both House and Senate of the 80th Congress today in a triumphant landslide that overturned the Democrats for the first time in 15 years.

The result meant a Congress meeting in January politically divided from the White House. Tradition pointed a favorable finger too toward G.O.P. capture of the White House two years hence.

The G.O.P. went over the top for House control in tabulations of late returns at 11:50 a.m. E.S.T. A few minutes later Arthur b. Watkins, Republican candidate, won a victory in Utah which gave his party undisputed possession of the Senate..

Watkins defeated Senator Abe Murdock (Dem.) who usually has been listed as a supporter of the policies of President Truman's administration.

Shook to Foundations

In a landslide that shook the Democratic party to its foundations from coast to coast, the Republicans won smashing victories in such big states as New York, where they re-elected Gov. Thomas E Dewey and sent Irving M. Ives to the Senate to replace Senator James Mead. Mead lost to Dewey in the governor race.

The Republicans also captured three governorships previously held by the Democrats, but lost one, in Colorado, to their opponents. It was the first of national proportion victory scored by the G.O.P. since it lost control of Congress in the early '30s.

The potential Republican presidential candidate for 1948, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, was re-elected with a record-breaking majority, defeating Senator James Mead, Democrat, who also was slated for presidential consideration if he won this election and if President Truman declined to run two years from now.

Wounded Man, William K. Good Weds in Hospital

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 6 — (CP)— Mr. and Mrs. William K. Good—married in hospital here yesterday when original wedding plans were halted by an attack on the groom—plan a honeymoon in Woodstock, Ont., as soon as Good recovers from shotgun wounds, the bride said today.

Hospital authorities said it would be several days before Good, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Good, Brantford, can be discharged as the injury to his arm, allegedly inflicted by John Sutherland, brother of the bride, still is serious.

Police have charged Sutherland with intent to maim.

Marshal Stalin Does Not Speak On Anniversary

London, Nov. 6 — (AP)—Marshal A. A. Zhdonav delivered in Moscow today an address such as Prime Minister Stalin had been expected to make on the eve of the Russian Revolution's 29th anniversary. Soviet sources here said it was uncertain whether Stalin would speak later.

Zhdanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet, declared Russia was emerging stronger than ever from war conditions under which a capitalist country "would have become a second class power."

Zhdanov asserted that "the blood of our people was not shed for imperialist expansionists and pretenders to world domination—for atom blackmailers."

The celebration meeting sent greetings to Stalin, whose apparent absence was not immediately explained.

Zhdanov declared that opposition had developed — "in particular from Britain and the U.S.A." —to the Soviet program for a "democratic peace."

"The peoples of the world, the common people who defended liberty and independence with their blood against the German fascists, are thirsting for peace," he said amid applause.

Zhdanov said Russia's desire for "democratic, peaceful development in the world" would prevail despite "the anti-Soviet clamor of people like Churchill and others of like mind" — whom he labelled "world imperialists."

"The forces working for the cause of peace grow constantly," he declared. "The Soviet Union is not alone. Millions of people abroad support the Soviet Union."

His address was broadcast to the people of the Soviet Union from a celebration meeting of the Moscow Soviet, attended by Communist party and state leaders and Russian Army chiefs, in Moscow's Bolshoi theatre.

Zhdanov frequently has been spoken of an the most likely successor of Stalin, although he is comparatively a newcomer in the high councils of Russia.

In addition to his membership in the Supreme Soviet, he is a member of the politbureau, top political agencies of the Soviet Union, and secretary of the central executive committee of the Communist party. Zhdanov likewise is chairman of the Foreign Affairs Commission and head of the propaganda bureau. He rose to power in Leningrad as head of the Communist party there. He is 50 years old.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, November 6 (CP) — Synopsis—Throughout the Great Lakes region, the northern plains of the United States and over the Prairie Provinces the weather this morning is generally clear. Temperatures in Ontarol are near normal while further west they are several degrees above normal. With the air moving into Ontario from the northwest and west today, the weather should continue clear and a little warmer. Rain associated with the slowly moving centre of low over Texas extends as far north as Missouri. The centre moving northeast will likely cause increasing cloudiness in southwestern Ontario Thursday but the rain is not expected to reach these parts.

JOHN BEAUDRIA
(Wallbridge)

Frankford, Nov. 6 (Special)—The funeral of John Beaudria of Wallbridge, was held from the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, on Friday afternoon last. The service there and at Frankford Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. H. Hillis.

The bearers were: H. Ketcheson, Barton Hinchliffe, James Sine, Frank Phillips, K. Kingston and George Ketcheson.

The late Mr. Beaudria died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Morley Phillips, Wallbridge, on Wednesday, Oct. 30th., after an illness of one week's duration. He was in his 78th. year and was born in Mayo township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Beaudria. At one time he lived in the Madoc district.

Surviving him are one son, Phil. Beaudria of Springbrook; three daughters, Mrs. Claude Wyatt, Frankford; Mrs. Roy Gryce, Belleville and Mrs. Morley Phillips, Wallbridge; four brothers, Benjamin and Joseph of McCarthy Mills; Alex. and Moses of Harwood Lake; one sister, Mrs. Kellar, Toronto; eleven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Robert Demorest Seriously Hurt In Car Crash

Robert Demorest, age 37 years, of 83 Purdy Street, Belleville, is in critical condition in Belleville General Hospital as result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident which occurred three miles west of the city on the Trenton-Belleville highway after five o'clock Tuesday evening.

Demorest was riding as passenger in an eastbound auto driven by Thomas Aylesworth, 83 Church Street, when the vehicle was in collision with a westbound car driven by F. Corrigan of Belleville. A second passenger in the Aylesworth auto, Arnold "Huck" Smith, Coleman Street, miraculously escaped injury, while Mr. Aylesworth suffered a nasty gash in his left arm. Mr. Corrigan was uninjured.

Both Mr. Demorest and Mr. Aylesworth were rushed to hospital by Martin's Ambulance where the former is under the care of Dr. G. H. Stobie. Early reports stated Demorest had suffered a fractured skull and serious back injuries.

Both cars were badly smashed with the one vehicle turning completely over to rest on its top. Provincial Constable Sam Ervine investigated the accident.

ARM BADLY MANGLED

Montreal, Nov. 6. (CP)—Louis Grief, 17-year-old Montreal construction worker of two weeks, was "very weak" in hospital today after spending nearly seven hours last night with his left arm caught under the wreckage of a 100-ton wall which collapsed.

Grief was extricated and removed to hospital after firemen of a salvage crew worked five hours with pumps, automatic drills and 50-ton jacks to move the mass.

His arm was badly mangled and it was feared an amputation may be necessary.

SCREEN STARS EVICTED FROM HOME

Screen star Susan Hayward, her husband, Actor Jess Barker, and their 20-months-old twins, Timothy and Gregory, are shown as they were forced to move from their rented Beverly Hills, Calif., home, the second time within a year that they have had to look for new quarters. They have now taken up housekeeping in a Santa Monica hotel room. They almost rented another home, but it carried a "no children" restriction.

Construction of Lavatory This Year to Violate Market Leases States Ald. C. Hyde

Construction of the proposed public lavatory on the market square, which got underway on Monday, ran into a snag on Tuesday as Alderman Charles Hyde, chairman of public works, opposed continuing with the project on the grounds that the city would be breaking market lease contracts with certain district farmers who regularly attend the local market.

Although the proposed lavatory is being built on the driveday on the west side of the market square, the building would overlap onto two market stands, the yearly lease for which does not run out until December 31st.

Excavation for the foundation of the public lavatory building was commenced Monday morning with the approval of a majority of the members of a special committee appointed to look after construction details, but over the objection of Alderman Hyde. Members of the special committee are Alderman Harold Armstrong, chairman, and Aldermen Glen Thompson, William Harvey and Chas. Hyde.

"As chairman of public works I have the authority to order the work stopped," stated Alderman Hyde this morning. "Also by continuing with the project we would in effect be trespassing on property which has been leased to farmers until the end of the year.

With the approval of Mayor Follwell the construction work on the building has now been held up until after council committee meeting Thursday evening when the matter will be further discussed.

Michigan Voters Elect Republicans

Detroit, Nov. 6 (AP)—Michigan voters elected Kim Sigler Governor and re-elected United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg with thumping Republican majorities which were approaching landslide proportions as unofficial returns mounted from Tuesday's general election.

The electorate not only swamped the Democrats outstate but apparently came close to realizing a pre-election G.O.P. boast that it would sweep heavily-industrialized Wayne County (Detroit), a Democratic fortress since 1932.

Both Republicans had leads unofficially estimated at better than 325,000 votes. Vandenberg led James H. Lee, Assistant Corporation Counsel of Detroit, while Sigler piled up a wide margin over former Democratic Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Sigler and his "hand-picked" state ticket was not carrying Wayne County, but his margin of loss was slim.

By big majorities on the basis of incomplete returns, the electorate said "yes" to constitutional amendments providing for a $270,000,000 veterans' bonus and a much-fought-over diversion of state sales tax revenues to local governments.

Deputy Governor Of Lions Club Special Guest

Bancroft (Special) — The Bancroft Lions Club held their regular semi-monthly meeting and luncheon at Hotel Bancroft Monday. November 4th at which an attendance of over seventy-five per cent of the club attended. The meeting was opened at 7.00 p.m. with the singing of "O Canada". A good luncheon intermingled with community singing put all the members in good spirits and the meeting was one of the best the club has enjoyed for some time.

There was considerable business to take place at this meeting but as the club had the pleasure of having the District Deputy Governor of District No. 10 Lion Cecil Ptolemy of Port Perry with them the regular business was dispensed with. Lion William Hopper gave a short address of welcome to the guests present. Lion Harry Price, chairman of the Publicity Committee gave his report on the amount of newsprint used in publicizing the clubs activities. Lion Bob Gardam, chairman of sports committee and also a member of the Health and Welfare Committee gave his reports. Lion William Morrison as chairman of the Education Committee gave his report to the club as regards the oratorical contest. Lion Jack Hahn introduced the guest speaker Lion Cecil Ptolemy with a few well chosen remarks. It was at this point the club members relaxed and enjoyed the short talk which Lion Cecil gave. His remarks were mostly directed to the children of the village and also on health. After Lion Cecil's address Lions Jack Hahn, Jack Follis, Cecil McAlpine, Wm. Morrison and Hugh Loucks were presented with club chevrons for their one hundred per cent attendance at the club meetings. The club was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Modern Grist Mill And Feed Warehouse To Open in City

One of the most up-to-date and modern grist mill and feed warehouse in Eastern Ontario will be opened on Tuesday by J. M. Wood and Sons on South John Street. The plans were drawn over a year ago and the building has been in the process of erection under the capable millwright, George Hetherington of Peterborough since a year ago last September. He has been ably assisted by a corps of local carpenters. The business will be conducted by Mr. Wood and his two sons, Ray, who served with distinction in the Navy overseas and "Stew", who has been prominent in softball circles for some years. The oldest brother had supervision over the construction and has taken a keen interest in the erection.

The building is 120 feet long and 32 feet wide and incorporated is a mill 60 feet long, by 32 feet wide and 60 feet high. The building is of frame construction covered with galvanized steel and the two sons of Mr. Wood laid every square of the galvanized iron on the building. There are six 2,000-bushel bins to hold grain, that can be filled from cars spotted on the railway siding that runs close to the warehouse. The grain is elevated by carriers into the bins this machinery being run by electricity. There are also eight service bins for farmers' gristings and there is installed in the mill one of the largest plate grinders that it is possible to procure and is run by two 25-H.P. electric motors.

The new firm is agent for Pioneer Feeds and Purity Flour, manufactured by the Purity Flour Company and the feeds include those for poultry, hogs and cattle. The mill will be capable of grinding, rolling or mixing feed of all types of grain and the farming community will be served by a courteous, efficient staff. The new warehouse will be open for public inspection on Saturday.

Detroiters Had To Rely on Radios For Election News

Detroit, Nov. 6. (AP)—Detroiters had to rely on radios for election news early today as the Detroit Free Press, the city's only morning newspaper, missed all its editions as mechanical department employees walked off their jobs to attend a Union meeting.

Ted Saunders, chairman of Chapel 18, International Typographical Union (A.F.L.), said the men left work a few minutes before first edition deadline and held an eight-hour meeting at which they discussed developments in contract negotiations with the Free Press management.

The Union at a Tuesday meeting rejected a company offer of a 12-per-cent wage increase and asked for approximately 20 per cent, Mr. Saunders said. The newspaper management said in a brief statement ". . . No papers are available due to circumstances beyond our control".

Labor Minister To be Mediator In Wage Dispute

Toronto, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Conferences were scheduled at Queen's Park today in an effort to reach settlement of a wage dispute involving 3,500 employees of the Canadian General Electric plant at Peterborough.

Labor Minister Daley will act as mediator in the talks, decided on at a conference yesterday between management and union representatives. The union has appointed a strike committee in the dispute following a week-end meeting when union employees—members of the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) — decided to strike if necessary to enforce their demands.

The union seeks increases in wages to reach equality with pay at the Westinghouse plant in Hamilton where a summer-long strike was settled recently on the basis of 13-cent hourly wage increases, pay for statutory holidays and other concessions.

The company has offered increases of 9.1 per cent in hourly rates plus six cents an hour. The union claims such an increase was granted at Westinghouse before the Hamilton workers went on strike.

Group is Directed To Show Cause

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 6—(AP) — Brown-shirted members of Columbians, Inc., newly-formed anti-Negro, anti-Jewish group, sat in police court here yesterday while a 17-year-old member was turned over to a Grand Jury on a charge of inciting to riot. The youth, J. R. Childers, was held in $500 bond in connection with the blackjacking of Clifford Hines, Negro. The Columbians have been directed to show cause why their charter should not be revoked.

Here Miss Wilkinson watches 4½-year-old Anthony Farrow and Daphine Baylis washing baby at the St. Leonard's nursery.

Conservation Authority To be Established in City Request of Survey Com.

Hastings County municipalities affected by the Moira River watershed will petition the Ontario Minister of Public Works to call a meeting of these municipalities with a view to having a conservation authority established here.

The decision to petition the Minister was made at a meeting of the provisional committee appointed during the inspection of the watershed last year held in the county buildings, yesterday. The committee is composed of Mayor Frank Follwell, Alderman Lorne McDougall, Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, W. L. Langlois, county engineer; Sam Curry, Tweed; J. E. Shortt and County Clerk Erle Denyes.

The inspection of the watershed last year, attended by county, municipal, government and other officials was undertaken with a view to getting some action from the provincial government for the control of floods.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., Hastings West, was present at last night's meeting and promised co-operation by the government with the city and county in the matter before the committee.

It is expected that the municipalities affected will pass motions at early dates, asking the Minister to call a meeting and also requesting a survey of the watershed as soon as possible.

Dewey and Entire Republican Slate Carry New York

New York, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Piling up a staggering vote unprecedented in New York State, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the entire Republican ticket yesterday rolled to a landslide triumph over their Democratic coalition opponents.

As late returns trickled in, the 44-year-old Dewey's record-smashing plurality passed the 700,000 mark over Senator James M. Mead who had C.I.O. political action committee support.

Irving M. Ives, G.O.P. Senate candidate, forced ahead of former Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the vote heralding a 250,000 plurality. Mr. Ives will be the state's first Republican senator in 20 years.

Republicans picked up at least six seats in the new Congress in their sweep of politically important New York state.

All state G. O. P. nominees were successful and the Republicans boosted their majorities in the state legislature.

Latest figures in the vote showed:

Governors: 9,460 out of 9,534 districts; Dewey, 2,802,658, Mead, 2,132,439.

Senate: 9,433 districts; Ives, 2,538,523; Lehman, 2,290,910.

The complete ballot in New York City, which in the past has given Democratic candidates overwhelming pluralities, was:—Dewey, 1,179,832; Mead, 1,369,452, and Ives 1,007,233; Lehman, 1,496,826.

Gov. Dewey's margin — greatest ever given a Republican gubernatorial candidate— propelled him into a favorable spot for consideration as Republican presidential nominee again in 1948.

Four years ago Dewey was elected governor by a 243,881 plurality over the combined total of his Democratic and American Labor party opponents. In 1944 as Republican presidential candidate, however, he went down to defeat to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt who won by a 316,591 plurality.

Vito Marcantonio, only A. L. P. member in Congress, successfully defended his 18th district post against Republican Frederick V. P. Bryan.

Wallace Gives Party Advice

Washington, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Henry A. Wallace, former Democratic vice president and secretary of commerce, interpreted the election results today as meaning "the Democratic party will either become more progressive or it will die."

Mr. Wallace, recently ousted from President Truman's cabinet after a controversy over policy toward Russia, said in a statement:

"Progressives must not be discouraged by the outcome of the election.

"The Republican Congress will inevitably multiply our economic problems and the American people who fundamentally are always progressive in their attitudes will then turn to Liberal leadership for help.

"As a result of this election the Democratic party will either become more progressive or it will die. I do not expect it to die."

John V. White New President Kiwanis Club

Jack White is the new president of the Kiwanis Club for 1947 and his assistant will be Ted Schwab as vice president and a directorate of ten not including the immediate past president. The results of the election were announced at the close of one of the best meetings held in some time by the club at the weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday. Special guests at the luncheon were the Governor, Harvey Doane, of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district, and Elmer Cogswell, Lieutenant-Governor elect for district No. 5. A new member was introduced in the person of William Davis, mechanical teacher at the Vocational School, who was introduced by Vic White and initiated into the club by the District Governor.

Members Asked to Stand

A departure in initiation was given by the district governor, who had all the members stand and repeat the principles of Kiwanis and later asked that all members respect these principles and practise them in their daily lives. "The Housing Situation" in Belleville was the theme of an interesting talk by John B. Badgley, secretary and manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who appealed for the club to get behind a situation which, the speaker claimed was 'intolerable.' He was introduced by Ted Schwab and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Harold Seldon, who suggested that the new directorate have as their first objective in the new year the betterment of housing in this city.

Announces Result of Vote

Lorne McDougall, chairman of the election committee, stated before announcing the result of the vote, that it was the closest election ever held in the club and that only a few votes separated the winners from the losers. When the winning candidates were announced the losers jumped to their feet and rushed over to congratulate them. Jack White stated he deems it a great honor to be elected president of the club but was sure that many of the new members of the organization would be called upon to carry some of the load that has so ably been carried by the older members over a period of years. He asked for the co-operation of every member in the coming year.

Ted Schwab, elected to the office of vice president, thanked the members for the honor conferred on him and he would try in the next year to give leadership and in his office help to the elected president. "I am sure that with co-operation and the ideals of Kiwanis firmly fixed in our minds this club will go to greater efforts in the coming years", said Mr. Schwab. Mr. Badgley, after accepting the greetings of the club stated he was one who thought Belleville should do something about the housing shortage in this city and was firmly convinced that Wartime Housing was the answer to the problem.

Explained Different Systems

The speaker showed why there should be more houses in Belleville and then went on to explain the different systems under which a house can be built. He thought the veterans, who had done so much for this country, should have a chance and a real one to secure a home and at a moderate cost. He described the Insurance Plan in which the veteran borrows money from the Company after his plans are approved by the Housing Administration. "The veteran then applies for a priority which is nothing more than a hunting licence" said the speaker. "He hunts for materials but never finds any. The integrated scheme was then explained in which contractors must build a minimum number of houses at a fixed price but this scheme does not work because the supply of materials is too uncertain and the profits on his investment too small.

Briefly Outlined

Mr. Badgley submitted that Wartime Housing was the answer. He stated the houses rented for from $22 to $25 a month and ran about $5,000 in cost and there was a movement now on foot to lift the rent a trifle and have the payments of rent applied on the purchase price. He stated that the municipality was only asked to contribute the lots and the services to the street line and that Wartime Housing would pay a total of $26 a year taxes but would administer the property for the life of the contract. He stated that the municipality would have the opportunity of purchasing these houses at the expiration of the contract for $1,000 each so that in the long run the city would not be out much money. He referred to Lindsay as a progressive community because that city had tackled the problem in a business-like way.

BRIDE-TO-BE SEES GROOM SHOT THREE HOURS BEFORE WEDDING

VIOLET SUTHERLAND

JOHN SUTHERLAND

WILLIAM GOOD

Three hours before Violet Sutherland, 18, and William Good, 21, of St. Catharines, Ont., were to be married, the groom was shot, police claim, by John Sutherland, 32, brother of the intended bride. Police have laid a charge of attempted murder against the brother who protested consistently when boy friends or even girl friends visited his sister. "I'll try to arrange the wedding to take place in his hospital room if he's going to be here long," stated Miss Sutherland, as she waited in the hospital to learn of the condition of her fiance.

Britons Giving Thought to Things That Will Fill Christmas Stockings

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Early as it is, Britons are giving a lot of thought to the things that will fill their Christmas stockings and load their tables this year.

Last year, the first peacetime Christmas, didn't see much improvement over wartime supplies. Christmas trimmings of all kinds were scarce and expensive. Things are a bit better this year and people are scrambling to buy them before they disappear. One London newspaper, urging early shopping, made suggestions like this:

"Blouses (four coupons) costing between 68s 1qd. to £6 ($13.75-$24) are useful presents . . . Briar pipes from 5s 6d to 300s . . . Cigarette cases are fairly plentiful. Some are of nickel and gilt and are as low as 12s 6d each; others of perspex, are 14s 3d and upwards.

"There are some good painting outfits for children. A strong metal box containing 10 tubes of paint and a brush costs 8s 6d . . . Colored sheet sets in blue, pink and green — consisting of two sheets and two pillowcases — cost £12 2s 4d (single bed size) and £13 7s 3d (double.")

Toy stores report more plentiful stocks than last year, but prices are still sky-high. A teddy bear which sold for 5s ($1) before the war now has a price tag of £6 ($24).

Small dolls' prams with the hoods and covers made from silver "barrage balloon" rubber sell for £8 16s. While the price of a toy car ranges from £7 to £8 10s.

"The high prices are caused by purchase tax, which means no cheap toys for Christmas stockings, and higher prices all round," said a store manager.

Hopes that the 33 1/3-per-cent purchase tax on toys would be lifted or at least eased have not materialized.

On the food front the menu promises to be better than last year.

Canned Christmas puddings are being imported and there have been efforts to provide more fruits for making puddings and cakes. Fresh fruits, too, are being brought in in larger quantities, so that the traditional orange should round the toe of most children's stockings.

Wines and spirits—particularly the former—are being imported on a heavier scale. If the festive boards don't groan, they should be able to produce a creak.

W. I. SOCIAL EVENING

Bonarlaw — (Special) — Nov. 6 — On Wednesday evening last the Springbrook Branch of the Women's Institute held a social evening in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church and donated a quilt to each of the following returned men and their war brides: George S. Bateman, Fred Hodge, Ralph McKeown, Jack Thompson, Ed. Galloway, Stanley Ray and Arthur Herrington. All were present except Mr. and Mrs. Herrington, and thanked the W. I. for the gifts in short addresses. Prior to the presentation a short program was given consisting of a reading by Mrs. A. V. Brown and piano solos by Misses Rose Mary Webb and Barbara Meiklejohn. Progressive euchre was played the prizes going to Mrs. Stanley Ray and Mr. Lindsay Mumby. The Institute president, Mrs. Frank Cosbey was in charge of the proceedings. Bounteous refreshments closed a very pleasant evening.

Hallowe'en Party

The Hallowe'en party held in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church on Thursday evening sponsored by St. Mark's Young People's Society was a decided success, being well attended with many in costume. Past President Robert Cosbey was master of ceremonies.

Prizes were awarded as follows:—fancy costume, Mrs. John Brown; best original, Doris McComb; best couple, Jean Anderson and Margaret Harrison; best lady, Mrs. W. J. Barlow; best gentleman, Jack McComb; best comic, Mrs. Jennie Wellman, best children (under 12), Diana McCoy and Garland McCoy.

Following the awarding of prizes the following program was given: song by the 12th line school; solo by Fay Wellman; reading by J. F. Baker; song by Bonarlaw school girls; short play by Y. P. members; contest conducted by Miss A. Gunter; spelling match by Aileen McInroy.

Abundant refreshment with pumpkin pies much in evidence was served by the committee.

Tribute to Great Leader

Representatives of fifty-one nations of the United States, the General Assembly of which has been meeting near New York, paid on Sunday afternoon homage to the memory of the great warrior and champion of freedom in the late war, Franklin D. Roosevelt, placed a wreath on behalf of the United Nations on his grave and bowed heads in silent tribute to his memory. The objects for which he fought and which he helped achieve are now made into a world organization, aimed to preserve peace throughout the earth. The day after this tribute was paid the foreign ministers of the Big Four met in New York City to begin the task of finishing the five peace treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Sunday's ceremony at the grave was moving in its sincerity and simplicity. President Spaak of the U.N. Assembly voiced regret that the late President was not living to take an important part in the difficult days ahead. Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia through his interpreter used the words, "the eternal memory we have of the great President Roosevelt" as the best way in which the sentiment of the Russian delegation could be expressed. The Russians placed a wreath at the side of the grave of the late president of the United States.

The UN tribute to the great figure who exerted an influence that will react in goodwill down the generations is proof of the homage the world will continue to bring to the life and memory of a great statesman and leader and lover of humanity.

Book Week

This is Book Week in Canada which serves to draw attention of the people to their native literature. Canada, young as a nation, has yet a past of importance in the literary sphere and at the present time she has a large number of writers who have been adding distinction to Canada's laurels as a home of poets and other writers who have become the voice of the people.

Canada is on the way to a greatness as a nation among nations, there can be no doubt of that. And every nations that rises to importance develops a literature that will live. Canadian writers are already recognized for their merits by American and British readers and in Canada too, and can be helped greatly in the inspiration that a loyal reading public at home can inspire in them. No Canadian can decry the important body of literature that has been produced in Canada for the national literature in many fields has been of high merit. Canadians are interpreting the spirit of the life of this country and her people in this very modern age.

The more enthusiasm Canadians take in their own authors the greater the impulse and inspiration to these creative artists in words who are appreciative of recognition of their work. The same can be said with respect to the other arts such as painting, and music in which this country has a large number of apt interpreters of the Canadian scene.

Culture in the life of a nation is of very vital importance. In Canada there is a fine foundation for a superstructure of great art and literature. Her people have artistic ancestry of great appeal, that of the British and French peoples and this land provides a setting in which destiny is to mould a great race of people. True culture which expresses itself in the things of the spirit has an ideal soil in Canada, in the spirit of freedom and courage and enterprise and the inspiration of a great heritage. She has the possibilities of marked intellectual progress.

The books her writers compose, the scenes her artists depict, the harmonies which her musicians can draw from life in this land bid fair to help in no small way to make Canada great. And so Canadians must appreciate the work of her artists in every field for what they do to express the Canadian soul.

In November

November has so far been gentle in these parts and hardly cold enough for the hunters who will shortly be making their way to the north where roams the deer, the prize quarry of those who at this season enter the woodlands. To some November is a dreary month with cloud or dull sky but to the hunter it is the season of adventure, of happy gatherings and of the attainment of their desire in the chase. What makes scenes in the northern woods so memorable is the natural setting, which usually is cold enough to test the mettle of the sturdy huntsman and bring a glow to his cheek, while within the camp is the friendship and cheer of good friends. So November has its place among the months that have an irresistible appeal. Nature is calm and seemingly thoughtful and wears her dull attire. At this season the year seems to be waiting for the winter that is to come.

To those who do not enter the woods in the north but remain at home, November still offers an opportunity to complete the season's tasks. At the same time, it brings the time to begin the plans for the great winter festival of Christmas. No sooner is the hunter home from the haunts of the deer and other game than the whole population sets its eyes on Christmas, then less than a month away. This month is a half-way-house between autumn and winter and has a spirit of appeal all its own.

Leaf Smoke

It's hard to tell which you notice first these evenings—the music of young voices or the sharp smell of the burning leaves. But where there's smoke there's laughter, and time for a chat—at any rate, on suburban streets where the leaves have been piled like Midas' too much gold, says Christian Science Monitor.

They would burn better when drier and browner. But where there's a wind there must be a way to dispose of the rakings before some gusty tomorrow undoes one's good work. So the groups gather about the smouldering piles, rakes lift the masses of yellow to let the flames breathe, but the job takes more time than anyone but the children could hope.

A dog bounces around the circles, plunging through to bark at some timid flame. Joe Smith comes up the street and explains why he missed the five o'clock express. Mrs. Brown passes by with a word of caution for little Billy Slocombe. And a voice comes from the front porch: "Whatever is to be done with those leaves had better be done in about five minutes, for supper's nearly ready."

Leaf smoke, some people think, comes simply from burning leaves. But there is more to it than that.

U. K. Documentary Films

The story of Britain's rehabilitation and reconstruction is to be shown to the world in a series of some 169 documentary films. These will be sponsored by the films division of the Government's Central Office of Information at an annual cost of $3,000,000. The most important subjects to be treated by these documentaries now planned cover Britain's hydro electric achievements, developments in radio and television, shipbuilding, civil aircraft and scientific instrument making. A monthly film magazine, "This is Britain," is also issued, featuring three items one of which has an industrial angle wherever possible.

The films are distributed through two channels — non-commercially through the United Kingdom Government's various overseas information services and commercially through the best available trade channels.

The Central Office is also sponsoring a comprehensive program of documentary pictures for commercial and non-commercial showing throughout the United Kingdom. Among these is a special trailer for newsreels to help people at home to appreciate the current need for Britain to "export or die."

MARRIAGE

How to get along together,
Man and maid?
How to stand to stormy weather
Unafraid?
Truly, there is little to it
If you have the will to do it.

How to keep the home fires glowing,
Man and wife?
Keep the love and laughter going
All through life?
Don't tear love to shreds and tatters
Over foolish, trifling matters.

How to marry and stay married,
Glamor gone?
Share the burdens to be carried,
Two as one.
Home will be the place you make it.
Don't for selfish whims forsake it.

Vandenberg Says "No"

Wearing headphones, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, is shown as he represented the U. S. delegation at the meeting of the United Nations' administrative and budgetary committee at Lake Success, N.Y. Senator Vandenberg served notice that the U. S. refuses to pay 50 per cent of the administrative costs of the United Nations. This year the U. S. paid 25 per cent. Vandenberg said that during "the present emergency" the U. S. will agree to pay as much as 35 per cent. He made a sharp differentiation between administrative and operational costs. In the latter instance, he said, the U. S. expects to bear more of the burden.

Arctic Conditions Will be Used To Test Tanks

Churchill, Man., Nov. 6—(CP)—Tanks will be tested at Churchill this winter for the first time under Arctic conditions, along with improved models of snow-blowing and removing equipment for clearing airfield runways, it was learned here today.

The number, type of tank and the tests to which they would be put remained unknown but all indications were that the tests would be on a smaller scale than that of Arctic equipment used in Exercise Muskox last winter. Eleven snowmobiles and 50-odd officers and men made up the moving force of Exercise Muskox which left here in mid-February and arrived in Edmonton 81 days later after travelling almost 3,500 miles through Canada's sub-Arctic barrens.

Machinery to be tested is expected to arrive within a few weeks. Much of the preliminary work will be in preparing existing barracks and the general camp site for winter occupancy.

Already the few troops here—Canada has maintained her interest in the north is purely one of exploration, research and defence and the total this winter at Churchill will only be about 400—have had their first taste of winter. They have manned bull dozers and shovels to clear drifted runways in order that the single large aircraft on the base could take off Oct. 27 for Baker Lake, 500 miles north to rescue the crew of the former harbor dredge Neophyte. The dredge had been frozen in a cove 40 miles from the Hudson Bay post which it had just provisioned for the winter.

Transfer of the crew was completed with the safe return of the aircraft Oct. 28.

Murder Trial Draws to Close

Winnipeg, Nov. 6—(CP) — A verdict is expected late today in the murder trial of Telesphore St. Cyr, 18-year-old, French-speaking farm youth from St. Eustace, Man., charged with the fatal shooting of his uncle last Sept. 13.

The uncle, Modest St. Cyr, was fatally wounded by a rifle bullet when, according to defence testimony, he pursued Telesphore and Telesphore's 20-year-old sister, Margaret, as they fled to a neighbor's house to summon police. They and other defence witnesses said Modest had come drunk to their granary home, attempted to attack Margaret and then chased the two across fields in his buggy.

Spectators who flocked to four previous murder trials at the present Assizes and heard death verdicts returned in three of them are still thronging the court for this trial.

Yesterday Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart ruled against the admissibility of two written statements and the question and answer portion of a third, all said to have been dictated by Telesphore. He held that after a voluntary statement had been taken from an accused, the police had no right to subject him to further examination, even after the usual police caution had been given.

Telesphore, who can neither read nor write, and who does not understand English, is aided by a court interpreter. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William St. Cyr, and his sister, Margaret, all of whom have testified, have been present at all sessions so far.

OUTLINE OF THE VITE DIET

Here is the pattern on which any one over eighteen years of age may build his or her own corrective, protective vite diet. As it stands it is a good reduction diet for any one over eighteen. Incidentally, in my opinion it is dangerous for a child to attempt to reduce by dieting unless he or she is under the constant care of a physician.

Breakfast

Glass of orange juice or better, the oranges—100 calories.

Two eggs cooked as you like—166 calories.

Fresh fruit in season—80 calories.

Glass of milk—160 calories.

Lunch

One-third head of lettuce—16 calories.

Tablespoonful of oil dressing or mayonnaise—93 calories.

Two fresh vegetables—80 calories.

Two glasses of milk—320 calories.

Fresh fruit in season—80 calories.

Dinner

Meat—190 calories.

One-third head of lettuce—16 calories.

French dressing or mayonnaise—93 calories.

Two fresh vegetables—80 calories.

Pat of butter—95 calories.

Glass of milk—160 calories.

Fresh fruit in season—80 calories.

Handful of nuts—140 calories.

Cheese—90 calories.

That adds up to approximately 2250 calories a day, with a leeway of a couple hundred calories more or less.

Don't try to count the calories accurately—unless you measure and weigh out each item and each ingredient or component of the item, as in a scientific laboratory study, you can make only a rough estimate of the caloric value of your diet in any case, by assigning to each item a round number for the average serving.

When Mrs. F. P. R. told us here the other day that she had lost six pounds in five weeks on this basic health or vite, a lot of dizzy—I mean many gullible readers probably lost interest. What, only six pounds in five weeks? That's far too slow to suit the fancy of the naive. These simple souls will not buy reducing treatment unless it purports to remove the superfluous before nine o'clock next week. It takes from two to ten years to accumulate a moderate ten per cent handicap of slacker flesh in most instances, yet the poor geeks expect to burn it off in as many weeks.

Burn it off is right. Indeed that is the only way any one can get rid of or reduce fat, superfluous flesh, stoutness, embonpoint or whatever you please to call it—by combustion, oxidizing it, burning it off. And here is further physiological truth which defies contradiction: You have to burn it off yourself. You can't hire some one to burn it off for you—by boiling making, hot air, with or without the aid of physic, massage or trick "theraphy."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ducking the Cri

I am 72, retired mail carrier, 34 years of service. Go to gym three times a week, play hand-ball three hours, feel fine, never tire. Since I learned about "cri" from you I have had only two in twenty-five years. And you know a mail carrier can't always duck when a citizen who has the cri wants to talk to him! B. M.)

Answer—Congratulations on your fine condition. Maybe a mail carrier can't always duck, but anyway it is a protection to him, as it is to any one else, to known how the cri is spread. Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address for booklet "Call it Cri." It deals with the common respiratory infections, sinus trouble, tonsils, catarrah, chronic bronchitis, etc.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is the porpoise a fish?

The porpoise, like the whale and dolphin, is not a fish but an aquatic, warm-blooded, air-breathing mammal that gives birth to living young and nourishes them with milk from its own body.

The name is derived through early French "porc poisson" from Latin "porcus," swine, and "piscis," fish, and literally means "pig fish," referring to the snouts of these animals. In Shakespeare's "Pericles" a fishermen says to the Prince of Tyre: "Nay, master, said not I as much when I saw the porpus how he bounced and tumbled? They say, they're half fish, half flesh." The modern French and German names for the porpoise signify "sea pig."

These deep-sea mammals are covered with a black substance as thin as tissue paper and have no true skin or hide, the so-called "porpoise leather" used in making shoes being the tanned skin of the white whale.

Whales, porpoises and dolphins belong to the order of marine animals known as Cetacea and differ from fish in having horizontal instead of vertical tail fins. Dolphins and porpoises are often confused. Generall dolphins nave long, beak-like snouts while porpoises have short, rounded muzzles. The "porpoise" often seen performing antics around ships are really dolphins. These clowns of the ocean sometimes escort ship for miles and seem to take delight in exhibiting their swimming tricks to sailors and passengers. They are the subjects of numerous myths and are often called "sailors' friends" and folktales.

For 32 years a dolphin, last seen in 1922, regularly swam ahead of ships entering and leaving Pelorus Sound, New Zealand. "Pelorus Jack" as it was called was granted protection for its natural life by an Order in Council.

Dolphins and porpoises are swift and elegant swimmers. They can swim between 40 and 50 miles an hour and have been known to keep ahead of some of the fastest naval vessels. A baby dolphin or porpoise is an expert swimmer from the time of its birth and can keep up with a school of its elders as soon as it is born.

In are and literature dolphins are conventionally represented with decidedly curved backs, but actually their backs are as straight as those of related marine animals. Shakespeare alluded to this conception in "Antony and Cleopatra" when he had the Egyption Queen say of "the triple pillar of the world" that "his delights were dolphin-like; they show'd his back above the elements they liv'd in." In the art of the Middle Ages the dolphin was the symbol of social love.

"Dolphin" is popularly but erroneously applied to different species of ocean fish belonging to the genus Coryphaena and noted for their brilliant and changing colors when out of the water and dying. The boto, found in the Amazon, belongs to this family of dolphin fishes. Among some of the natives of the Amazon there is a superstition that possession of a boto eye will make a spinster irresistible to men.

Anniversary Services of St. John's Church Held

Tweed — The annual rally of North Hastings Young People was held in Queensboro on Saturday, November 2nd. Miss Helen Orr of Tweed was elected president of the district and Mr. Jack Alexander of Queensboro was elected secretary treasurer. The ladies of the Women's Auxiliary served a delicious chicken supper.

St. John's United Church Anniversary.

St. John's United Church held most successful anniversary services on Sunday and were attended by large congregations both morning and evening. Rev. Basil Thompson, M.A., of Kingston, ex-president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, was guest preacher and brought many helpful messages. Master Ronald Elmy of Belleville as guest soloist was especially enjoyed. A choir of twenty voices under the capable leadership of Mr. S. Connor and Mr. Fred Porter as organist, was heard in two anthems with Mrs. Mel. Ostman of Kaladar and Mrs. Constance Sharpe of Tweed taking the solo parts, the quartette by Mesdames Sharpe, Ostman, Connor and Beatty was well given and much appreciated. Many friends and former members of the congregation were in attendance. Contributions were well up to expectations.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sayers and family of Havelock visited with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sayers and attended the anniversary services in St. John's United Church.

Mr. Harry Rollins, ex-mayor of Belleville, and Mrs. Rollins, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moon.

Mrs. A. J. Terrill of Colborne was a weekend guest of Mrs. P. K. Newton and Miss Marion Newton.

Mr. Percy Woods of London, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blackburn, Orillia, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woods of Ivanhoe and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson of Halloway were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster, Mr. and Mrs. William Webb and Mr. and Mrs. Sian Webb of Bethel attended anniversary services on Sunday.

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart's on Sunday were their daughter, Mrs. Elvin Holland, and Mr. Holland, of White Lake, and Mrs. McTaggart's parents' Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Martin of Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Ostman and son David of Kaladar spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fleming of Belleville, were guests of Mrs. Fleming's sister, Mrs. Claude Barnett and Mr. Barnett.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Elmy and Ronald of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson.

The condition of Mrs. Alfred Davis still remains critical.

Much regret is felt in the passing of Mr. H. W. Crosbie of Toronto, formerly of the Forestry Branch here, and Mr. Morley McKenzie, also of Toronto, former manager of the Royal Bank at Tweed.

Mrs. Triffly Merau, a highly respected resident of the Lodgeroom neighborhood, passed away at the home of her son, Mr. Clarence Merau, on Saturday.

Mrs. Joseph Johnston of Fergus is visiting at the home of Dr. M. G. Dales and Mrs. Dales.

Mr. and Mrs. John Coombs and son of Toronto spent the weekend with Mrs. Coombs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kennedy of Thomasburg attended anniversary services on Sunday.

TO REPLACE BARKER

Major General G. H. A. MacMillan, director of weapons and development at the war office in London, where he is shown at his desk, is to succeed Lieut. Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker as British commander in troubled Palestine on or about February 1, 1947. He gained six decorations and awards in two world wars. A wound in the leg kept him out of part of the northwest European campaign.

Finds Law "Cinch" Housekeeping Tough

Regina (CP)—Former Alderman Mildred Gale, who gave up practising law to become a housewife with the immediate reaction that law was a comparative "cinch" is returning to her study of law and full-time household duties after a year's term on Regina's city council.

Mrs. Gale resigned her post recently to prepare to move to Vancouver where her husband has a new position. After her city council experience she said there is definitely a place for women in public life. She believes women are more sympathetic than men on such problems as health and recreation.

A member of the school board for the past two years, Mrs. Gale said that she had originally given up her profession to marry another lawyer-graduate of the University of Alberta. She said that a profession is not wasted on a housewife.

"Girls should be encouraged in their professions, not for financial reasons but for the enjoyment they can get out of them," she said. "Any education you can bring into a home is a benefit to that home."

Her family, including one son and daughter, decided to travel to Vancouver by train after they learned that dogs were not allowed aboard passenger aircraft. Their dog does not like to travel alone, she explained.

Mrs. Gale does not intend to continue in public life when she reaches Vancouver.

"I plan to read law and perhaps take a few classes in psychology at the university,' 'she said.

Gibbons Judged Mentally Fit To Stand Trial

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 6—(CP)—Re-trial of lumbering Tom Gibbons on the charge of murdering Joseph and John Fitzmaurice on his Admaston township property last Feb. 1 was scheduled to get underway today before a Fall Assizes jury under Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel.

It was expected the trial would start shortly after selection of a new jury.

The 46-year-old farmer was judged mentally fit to stand trial by another jury which deliberated 1½ hours last night before reaching a verdict. When the case opened Monday, defence had pleaded that a trial was not in order because the prisoner was insane.

Gibbons, convicted here at the Spring Assizes and sentenced to be hanged June 11, was later granted a re-trial by the Ontario Appellate Court. In the previous trial, evidence submitted by the Crown by direct witness and in the form of statements given police by the accused said the big, lonely farmer had shot the Fitzmaurice brothers with a rifle on a snow-choked road which had been in dispute between the two parties.

Evidence given by defence witnesses said Gibbons suffered from delusions, and that he believed he had been chosen by God to fight forces of evil in the community—forces with which the Fitzmaurices were linked. Other testimony said various members of Gibbons' family were in mental institutions.

Charging the jury yesterday, Mr. Justice LeBel said Gibbons was not to be excused on the ground of insanity if he was merely eccentric or had fits of temper. However, he was "considered insane if he labors under delusions to such an extent as to render him incapable of appreciating the nature or quality of the act he committed, or of knowing that such an act was wrong in the sense forbidden by law."

Ivanhoe

Ivanhoe — Mrs. Frank Palmer, Mrs. Stanley Prest, Miss Cora Prest, Mrs. Arthur Cooney, Mrs. Samuel Twiddy, Mrs. Murney Ray and Mrs. J. F. Everson attended the W.M.S. Sectional Rally held in Tweed on Wednesday.

Mrs. Donald Fleming spent a day recently with her aunt, Mrs. John French of White Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Holland of White Lake attended the anniversary services in Tweed United Church on Sunday and spent the day with Mrs. Holland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty. The guest speaker was Rev. Basil Thompson of Kingston.

Some repairs are being made to the furnace in Bethesda United Church.

Rev. J. F. Everson was leader of the commission group on Christian Citizenship at the Young People's Rally for North Hastings held in Queensboro United Church on Saturday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Everson.

A very successful Hallowe'en party under the auspices of the Women's Institute was held in the town hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. William Radnor is slowly recovering from an injury he received while at work on the C.P.R. a few days ago.

Miss Nora Craig of Schomberg, the instructress who last week gave leadership at the sewing class held under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was entertained by Mrs. Milton Shaw during her stay here.

Mrs. Joseph Rollins and her daughter Gladys are visiting with friends in Syracuse.

Under the auspices of the National Film Board some very helpful moving pictures on agriculture were shown in the town hall on Friday evening.

Salem

Salem — Mrs. Thos. Leslie was hostess to the ladies of Melrose Women's Institute on Thursday. Dr. McVickers of Deseronto was guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCreary, Queensboro, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hagerman last Monday evening.

Mrs. Fred Robinson spent a few days recently with her mother, Mrs. H. Demille, Melrose. Mrs. Demille is under the doctor's care.

Miss Bessie Beatty, Belleville, was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Haight, John and Leslie were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Pascoe, Roslin.

WEDDINGS

LATHANGUE—BENNETT

The vestry of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church, Toronto, was the scene at 9:30 on the morning of Oct. 29, for the marriage of Miss Ura Theresa Bennett, daughter of Mr. Leo Bennett and the late Mrs. Bennett, to Mr. Carl Clarke Lathangue, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lathangue, of Belleville, with Rev. Father Hendricks officiating.

The bride made a charming picture in a suit of turquoise blue wool, with shell-pink blouse and matching feather hat, black accessories and wearing a corsage of red roses. Miss Bernice Bennett was her sister's only attendant, wearing a suit of brown gabardine, with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. John Bennett, brother of the bride, performed the duties of groomsman.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doran, 446 Quebec Ave., where the rooms were tastefully decorated with a combination of carnations and baby 'mums in the pastel shades of pink, yellow and white. The bride's table was very attractive with its lace cloth centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders.

The hostess, Mrs. C. Doran, received in a turquoise blue dress with black accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. G. Lathangue, assisted, wearing a black crepe dress with matching gold-trimmed hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a wristwatch; to the bridesmaid, a gold locket; to the groomsman a cigarette lighter.

For travelling to Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride donned a salmon red wool dress, with a grey, fur-trimmed top coat and black accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Lathangue will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Ingersoll and Belleville, Ont.

MAYBEE—COLGAN

In a double ring ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 22, a very pretty wedding was solemnized when Miss Colleen Mae Colgan, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Colgan of Tweed, was united with Mr. William Bidwell Maybee, son of Mrs. Verda Maybee, Detroit, Mich., with Rev. A. L. Sisco officiating.

The rooms were effectively decorated with Autumn leaves, bronze and mauve 'mums and red gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a gown of pale blue satin, with fitted basque, sweetheart neckline and long full skirt. Her matching fingertip veil, falling from halo headdress of pleated net, and long blue gloves completed the picture. Her bouquet was a cascade of American Beauty roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Hazel Colgan was bridesmaid, wearing pale pink taffeta fashioned with a tight fitting bodice and a silk net overskirt. Her shoulder-length veil of pink net fell from matching headdress, and she carried a Colonial bouquet of pink and cream roses.

Mr. Donald Porritt, of Tweed, ably performed the duties of groomsman.

The Wedding March was played by Miss Betty Snare, and during the signing of the register she played "Because".

Following the ceremony a reception was held, Mrs. Colgan receiving in a gown of brown wool, with matching accessories and wearing a corsage of roses. The groom's mother assisted, wearing a pink wool suit with winter-white accessories and a corsage of roses. Mrs. W. J. Finley, of Trenton, grandmother of the bride, poured the tea and Miss Marion Hall and Miss Helen Orr assisted with the serving.

For travelling the bride donned a brown and beige tweed suit, with which she wore a jewelled chatelaine pin, the gift of the groom. Her accessories were brown and green. Mr. and Mrs. Maybee will later reside in Detroit, Mich.

Out-of-town guests were from Trenton, Detroit, Sundridge, Smithfield, and Brighton.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The November meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S., held in the Sunday School room, with Mrs. L. Reid conducting. After opening the meeting Mrs. Reid invited Mrs. Dobbs to take charge of the program. Mrs. Coulter, a member of Mrs. Dobbs' group, gave a synopsis of a chapter from the study book "India at the Threshold". A solo by Mrs. Jeffrey, with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano added much to the enjoyment of the meeting.

Mrs. W. C. Haggerty, of Cherry Valley, was introduced by Mrs. Dobbs, as the president of the Bay of Quinte Branch. She brought a very worthwhile message from the subject, "Women Who Do Without". She said—"Canada today is being abundantly blessed, and it is up to us to make sacrifices, to help those in less fortunate places. We are facing a bewildered world, and now is the time to do our utmost to show others that we are God's children and are willing to share our blessings. Our reward will be a satisfaction in seeing others happy, and we will be building material for our own palace in Heaven." Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Haggerty by Mrs. F. Wilson.

Mrs. Anderson, who was a delegate to the Sectional Rally recently held in Cannifton church, gave a most comprehensive report, which was greatly enjoyed. The President remarked that nothing of the convention had been omitted, and that the society had chosen wisely in sending Mrs. Anderson as its delegate.

During a business period, various reports were received and adopted. Mrs. F. Scott read a letter of appreciation from Miss Sweetman for flowers, which were sent to her on her eightieth birthday, also a letter from the local radio station saying that W.M.S. appreciation of their Sunday program was gratifying, and that it is intended to continue these programs in the same high order. Reporting for C.G.I.T. Mrs. McMurray said the groups were away to a good start with forty members enrolled and several new leaders. Their project is to secure new music for the junior choir. A nominating committee was appointed to secure new officers for 1947, the ladies accepting this responsibility being Mesdames Hitchon, Cordes and Anderson.

The offering was received by Mrs. Denyes and Mrs. Oliphant. Mrs. Denton was pianist for the afternoon. The President closed the meeting with prayer. Dainty refreshments were served by the Group in charge.

Centenary Young People Guests Of Local Society

On Monday evening the Young Peoples' Union of Bridge Street Church were hosts to the Young Peoples' Union of Centenary United Church. The meeting was in charge of Miss Jessie Hart. Before the meeting started the guest for the evening, Mr. Enos David entertained the group with a few of fine records he brought with him. The worship service was conducted by Miss Nellie Morley. The first hymn sung was "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind" followed by the Scripture Lesson read by Miss Morley. A meditation on the Scripture reading and prayer was offered by Miss Sara Harrison. The offering was taken by John Randle followed by the hymn "Fight the Good Fight". Miss Hart then took over the meeting, first welcoming the guests and then introducing Mr. David to the group. Mr. David then entertained the group with a delightful musical appreciation program of records. Included in the program were some negro spirituals sung by the ever-popular Paul Robeson followed by some violin selections by Fritz Kreisler. Following this enjoyable program, Rev. D. C. Amos led the group in a hymn-sing while Mr. Harold McNish presided at the piano. Refreshments were then served by the young ladies of Bridge Street. Mr. McNish then conducted a short recreational period which brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

Keep Baby From Harm

By EDWARD S. KITCH

Chicago (CP)—Fatal accidents among infants are common —and common sense can prevent them.

Mrs. Anne H. Barnard, director of the Women's Division of the National Safety Council, knows the hazards and how to avoid them. Here is her advice to young mothers.

Accidents caused 58.9 per cent of the deaths of children under five last year—the lowest rate on record for this age group. Mrs. Barnard says most child deaths were caused by burns and suffocation. Poisoning, drowning and falling contributed to the total of 7,912 child fatalities occurring in 1944.

She says even the safety pin is unsafe because the dangers of pricking a child or of its being swallowed. A mother so often sets a poor example by holding safety pins in her mouth while changing a diaper.

Safety pins should be stuck into the mattress or cake of soap. When not in use the pins should be closed and put out of reach of busy little hands.

A safety pin should not be used to fasten a blanket around an infant. This practice, a survey shows, is the principal cause of death by smothering.

When placing a baby in its crib, Mrs. Barnard suggests that no pillow, no fuzzy or painted toys, be placed in the bed with him. A mother should be sure the paint on the child's bed does not contain lead, lest the infant's chewing tendencies bring about lead poisoning.

Insecticides, medicines, sleeping tablets—it takes only one— deodorants and lye should be kept away from a child's reach.

Electrical appliances should be carefully checked for possible faulty connections. Electric wall outlets should be protected, and a mother should be cautious with electrical heaters when bathing a child.

Protectors should be placed around steam and hot water radiators. Mothers in rural communities should watch their babies when exposed stoves are used for heating. Walkers and creepers should be kept indoors when leaves and brush are burned during the fall cleanup.

When a mother is busy in the kitchen, junior should be placed in a pen or highchair. Many children have been scalded to death because of over-fascination in mother's work.

Unprotected walls, cisterns and garden fish ponds are potential hazards.

Mainly, Mrs. Barnard says, it's a good idea not to leave a tiny tot alone for too long.

Wonderful Wool Stole

By ALICE ALDEN

ROMANTIC REVIVALS of yesteryear add charm, sparkle and plain old common sense to the very newest in fashion. Think, of the wool stole, how comfortable it is with a decollete dinner dress in a poorly-heated or draughty room. Glentex has considered the idea and has come up with this beauty, designed around an old sampler print, very now and colorful in lightweight, loose-woven wool, with a narrow fringed edge.

W.C.A. Holds Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held in the Board room of the hospital, Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. Imlah presiding. Various reports were read and approved and many business matters discussed.

Mr. Friesen reported good progress in various departments of the hospital.

The Home Board meeting preceded the general meeting and Mrs. Jack Marshall was appointed "lady-on-duty" for the month of November.

Donations to the Home for the month of October were as follows—Dr. and Mrs. J. Marshall, 2 bushels of MacIntosh apples; Group 1, Tabernacle Church, mashed potatoes, peas and celery: Mrs. McKnight, flowers from her mother's funeral, (Mrs. Wilson); Young People of St. Andrew's Church, rolls and apples; Miss Nurse, basket of grapes for the ladies; Mrs. Roblin ,ice cream for the ladies; Mr. Ruston, magazines; Holloway Street Church, scalloped potatoes, cold meat and vegetables; Miss Purdy, sandwiches and bacon fat; Kiwanis Club, sandwiches; Hanna's Bakery, fruit loaf and apple pie.

The weekly services were conducted by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling.

The District Deputy President was assisted during the evening by Anna Reid as musician and Constance Sharp as soloist.

Housekeepers Work By Priority System

Sydney, Australia (CP)—Elderly women, often the mothers of large families, are among volunteers offering their services to the new State Housekeeper Service which has just been launched in New South Wales.

Labor Minister Hamilton Knight said women taking positions under the scheme as housekeepers are not referred to or considered under the scheme as housekeepers are not referred to or considered as "domestics." They have the status of a new type of welfare worker.

There are at present 50 housekeepers employed, and so great is the demand for their services that they are allotted by a priority system.

Housekeepers receive £3.10.0 ($11.50) a week, plus their travelling expenses, and in any genuine case of distress a housekeeper is supplied free or for a small payment; the government makes up the different in money.

Conditions under which government housekeepers work are closely supervised. They are employed on either a full-time or part-time basis, whichever is suitable to the employee. A casual housekeeper receives two shillings an hour, but is not entitled to sick leave or annual holidays. A permanent housekeeper has two weeks' annual holiday, and is entitled to sick leave.

Next step in the scheme is to establish a hostel for the housekeepers and a training centre for young girls interested in taking up the work. The latter will be established as soon as facilities at the technical college are available.

Fashion Flashes

LOTS AND LOTS of navy in the Winter picture. We liked a theatre suit of smooth navy woollen with waist-length, tapering revers of mink, the jacket lined in white satin. Shown with two skirts, one street-length, the other long.

Something different for town wear, and ideal for Winter resort use, is a hat of white felt, its high sloping crown trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in milk-chocolate brown. Wide, cloche brim; mesh veil is in lighter brown and has a rose-gold cast.

Nicer-than-ever rainwear now awaits the first cloudburst. Satin twill in lovely colors is used for a handsome raincoat styled with square tucks across the bodice to suggest a yoke below the high buttoned fastening and club collar. Deep waist darts give a slim torso. Huge pockets with small flaps and buttoned cuffs for the full sleeves.

New Soapless VEL Cleans Without Suds

by Frances Thompson
noted homemaking authority

Over a million dollars have already been invested in perfecting VEL, a revolutionary new post-war discovery in cleaning. It is not a temporary substitute for soap. And because it is not a soap its action is entirely different. Like all things new, when you use VEL you must know the right way to get the best results.

NO SUDS NEEDED

The most noticeable difference between VEL and soap is in the suds. Most women have always looked to the suds, in soap for its cleaning power. VEL makes suds, but the suds are unnecessary to the cleaning action. In fact, VEL cleaning action continues long after suds dissolve.

Next you'll notice a difference in the water. Soap combines with water to make a cloudy milky-white solution. When the suds dissolve, VEL leaves the water as clear as soft water in a rain barrel . . . makes the water act soft too. As a result, you'll quickly see how much grease and grime VEL removes.

SURPRISINGLY LITTLE NEEDED

Just as too much baking powder can spoil the best cake recipe, so, too much VEL may give you disappointing results. So follow the instructions on the package carefully. It's surprising how little you need.

VEL FOR DISHES

A teaspoonful or two is plenty for a dishpanful of water. No need to add more VEL unless you have a larger sink or very greasy pans. You'll be pleased to find how sparkling clean VEL leaves glassware and dishes . . . how VEL leaves no soap scum on dishpan.

Tight N.H.L. Race Shows Only Detroit With More Losses Than Victories; Two Games Tonight

Rangers Visit Chicago While Red Wings Take on Bruins at Home

(By The Canadian Press)

To accentuate the tightness of the National Hockey League's early run, it takes merely a glance at the standings that show only one of the circuit's six teams playing, in baseball parlance, at a lower than .500 clip.

With Detroit Red Wings the lone counterbalance, the standings seem top-heavy until another glance shows the reason for it—the number of ties the teams have played.

With six of the 20 games so far fought to deadlocks, each team has taken part in at least one. The fact that the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs have three draws to go with their record of three victories and a loss largely accounts for their being only four points ahead of the two last-place teams, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

Both the Wings and the Hawks get opportunities on home ice to improve their positions in tonight's games, although the tasks may be difficult.

Visitors at Chicago are the surprising New York Rangers, whose flying start finds them in third position, while the powerful Boston Bruins, only one point behind Toronto in second place, are the Red Wings opponents at Detroit.

Both games mark the first meeting of the season between the respective teams.

These games, if precedent is followed, should end in a definite verdict as New York, Detroit, and Chicago are the three clubs that have taken part in only one tie contest so far. The fourth club in action, Boston, is the worst offender, however, with four deadlocks in seven games—one more draw than Toronto has.

Both the Leafs and Montreal Canadiens are idle tonight, the latter meeting Chicago in a Thursday night contest and Toronto not getting back into action until Saturday night.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE WILL BE LAID

St. Catharines, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Donald Andrews, 17, will be charged with manslaughter in connection with the death last night of 50-year-old Thomas Sheehan, Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster said today.

Charge will likely be laid when Andrews appears in court Thursday to face a previous charge of assault and causing bodily harm to Sheehan. The alleged attack took place the night of Oct. 31.

'THE HAT TRICK' PERFORMED NINE TIMES THIS YEAR

Paul Gladu Scores Three Times as St. Louis Defeats Indians

(By The Canadian Press)

The once rare individual hockey scoring feat, "the hat trick", already has been turned in nine times this season by American Hockey League skaters.

Paul Gladu of St. Louis Flyers is the latest to join the group of puckchasers who have netted three or more goals in a single game.

Gladu rammed home three goals last night to lead the Flyers to a 5-3 victory over Springfield Indians in the loop's only game.

The speedy flyer forward netted twice in the first period and once in the second to provide the tail-end Western Division Flyers with a 3-0 lead. George Pargeter and Paul Courteau then counted for the Indians but St. Louis' Pat McReavy and Fred Hergert followed with scores to clinch the game. Billy Summerfield scored Springfield's last tally.

Judd McAtee of the Flyers was the first skater to tally three times in one game and Gerry Couture, now with Detroit of the National League, is the only player so far to perform the feat twice. Couture scored five goals for Indianapolis against Philadelphia Oct. 20 and four days later rapped in three goals against New Haven.

Six of the nine three-goal performers have picked on the last place Philadelphia Rockets of the Eastern Division in turning in their feats.

Three games are scheduled for tonight. Springfield at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Providence and Hershey at Philadelphia.

New York, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Rocky Graziano, the Lower East Side middleweight belter, has made quite a career out of fighting welterweights . . . On the other hand, Sugar Ray Robinson, the Harlem welterweight, enjoys tying into middles . . . Ray meets Artie Levine of Brooklyn in Cleveland tonight and it doesn't seem to worry him at all that he will be giving away plenty of weight . . . Robinson, rated as the uncrowned king of the welters, has been knocked out only once — by Jake Lamotta, a middleweight . . . But he beat Lamotta four times in return engagements . . . If he gets past Levine, Ray may challenge middleweight champion Tony Zale . . . Already he had a title bout lined up with Tommy Bell for the vacant welterweight crown . . .

PLAYOFF DATES OF I.R.F.U. GAMES ARE ANNOUNCED

If Argos Win on Saturday They Will Play Winners of Ottawa-Montreal in Toronto November 16

Montreal, Nov. 6—(CP)—Dates and locations for playoff games in the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union, taking into consideration the standings shuffle which may follow games next Saturday, were announced Tuesday by Fred Porter of Montreal, I.R.F.U. president, and Wes Brown of Ottawa, secretary.

Toronto Argonauts are in first place at present, two points ahead of Montreal Alouettes who in turn are two points ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders. Argos play Alouettes and Ottawa meets the tail-end Hamilton Tigers in the closing regular games Saturday.

If Argos beat Alouettes and Rough Riders defeat the Tigers, Montreal and Ottawa, who then will be tied for second place, will meet in Ottawa Wednesday, Nov. 13, in a sudden death game. The winner will play Argos in Toronto Nov. 16 for the league title.

If Argos beat Montreal Saturday and Hamilton defeat Ottawa, Alouettes will go to Toronto Nov. 16. But if Alouettes win Saturday, the playoff final against Argos will take place here Nov. 16.

The league constitution provides that in the event of ties in the standings the team which has scored the greatest number of points against the team with which it is tied has the choice of field for the playoff.

Consequently, if Ottawa and Montreal tie for second place, Rough Riders will play at home because they scored more points than Alouettes in games between the two teams. Similar, if Argos and Alouettes tie for first place, Montreal, who has scored more points than Toronto in games between the teams, will play at home.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 (CP)—Latest word is that Great Britain will have an Olympic basketball team for the first time when the games take place here in 1948. Officials admit Britain's chances of winning are slim but they feel players will get valuable experience and public interest will be aroused in the game.

J. A. Clay of Birmingham, secretary of the England Basketball Association said there were about 5,000 players in the country before the war and now, with interest stimulated by the men in the services, and contact with the Americans, there might be about 7,000.

Basketball is on the same basis as soccer, rugby and field hockey in the army, and is being taught in services training depots and physical training schools.

Basketball was first included in the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936.

Harringay Arena's four-sided electrically - controlled timing clock, the only one of its kind in the British Isles, is in use at the London rink this year. The clock, a copy of the original at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, was damaged during an air raid and required entirely new workings.

George Allison, Arsenal's portly manager, blames the war on the Gunner's dismal showing in English football this season.

"All our players with two exceptions, were in the forces, and mostly abroad," he said. "We had no home no facilities for training reserves and now we find our players seven years older — a 60-percent slice out of the life of professional footballer."

The Amateur Athletic Association has agreed in principle to appointment of a professional coach, but with a stipulation. He would not be attached to a particular "star" but would teach other coaches who would impart their knowledge widely.

"The air is to raise the efficiency of coaches generally," the A.A.A. says.

REPUBLICANS

Former Ohio Governor John Bricker, Republican vice-presidential nominee in 1944 with aspirations for a try at the presidential nomination in 1948, was winning handily in his home state senatorial contest.

The elections were for all 435 seats in the House of Representatives, 36 of the 96 Senate seats (including four for unfinished terms) and for 34 state governorships, in addition to numerous minor state and local offices.

However the voting in main took place Sept. 9 in advance polls returning a complete slate of Republican incumbents, a governor, senator and three House members.

Standing at Start

When the voting started Tuesday the Congressional standing was:

Senate 56 Democrats, 36 Republicans, other parties one.

House: Democrats 235, Republicans 192, other parties two and vacant six.

Early returns saw the eclipse of such outstanding Democratic senators as Joseph Guffey in Pennsylvania, James M. Tunnell in Delaware and David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, the latter after a solid 25 years in office.

The two senators who have been such help to State Secretary Byrnes and given a bi-partisan front to his delicate negotiations in the United Nations and the Counsel of Foreign Ministers, both were returned.

Get Good Majorities

They are Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Michigan) and Tom Connally (D-Texas), and both got handsome majorities although they were unable personally to campaign for votes.

There was a nip and tuck battle in New York for the Senatorial vacancy, with Republican Irving M. Ives squeezing out the Democratic candidate, Herbert H. Lehman, four times Governor of New York and until recently U.N.R.R.A. director general.

All New England went Republican except tiny Rhode Island which clung to its new deal Democratic representation but with greatly reduced majorities.

Massachusetts turned out not only Senator Walsh but the Democratic candidate for re-election as Governor—Maurice Tobin.

The Democrats carried the deep Southern States as usual, returning such Senators as Theodore (The Man) Bilbo and Rep. John Rankin in Mississippi, Sen. Kenneth McKellar, president pro-tempore of the Senate, from Tennss, Harry Byrd of Virginia.

Rmains Republican

In Kentucky, on the border of the solid south, Democrats had hoped to win back the Senate seat vacated by A. B. (Happy) Chandler when he resigned to become baseball commissioner and was replaced by a Republican appointee. But that too remained in the Republican fold.

President Truman, who took no active part in the campaign, went out to his home town of Independence, Mo., with his wife and daughter, to vote. They voted early and headed for Washington on a special train with the President telling reporters the Democrats were "sure to win."

Overnight reports from the train were that the President had been getting news of the elections results but would not comment.

Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House, who will be replaced by Massachusetts Republican House Leader Joe Martin when and if the Republicans take control, said he would wait until all votes were counted before conceding party defeat.

Not a Single Gain

The Democrats had pot made a single gain in either Senate, House or Governorship elections while the Republicans early Wednesday had gained a certain 26 House seats from their long-dominant foes and were leading in many more Democratic strongholds.

Republicans had gained five of the necessary 10 seats to give them Senate control and seemed likely to end up with more than 50 of the 96 seats in the Upper Chamber.

It was a straight old-line party fight in almost every case. Outstanding third-party candidate to win was fiery representative Vito Marcantonio who was re-elected in New York's 18th District after a tempestuous campaign.

There were 1,065 candidates for the 500 major congressional and governorship vacancies decided in Tuesday's polling. Many of them were veterans of the First or Second Great War.

Rep. Andrew J. May, a Democrat who has been in the House since 1930 and is in his 72nd year, was defeated in his Kentucky home district where he has been recovering from an illness with which he was stricken early in the Summer when called to testify before the Mead Senate committee for alleged connection with the Garsson munitions scandal.

Will Strip Govt. of Power

Rep. Martin already has promised that the G.O.P. will go into the January session with a program aimed primarily at stripping the executive department of its emergency wartime powers, including the remnants of office of Price Administration controls.

Always facing the possibility of a presidential veto which it would be difficult to override because of the substantial Democratic contingents sure to be left in both houses, the Republicans have pledged an attempt to balance the budget but have promised tax reductions at the same time.

Rep. Martin also indicated his party would want to look into "waste and graft" in the government.

Democratic big-city organizations failed in many instances to muster their usual strength for Senate, House and Governor candidates.

Mayor Frank Hague's Jersey City organization was unable to stem the G.O.P. in New Jersey which carried Republican Senator H. Alexander Smith back into the Senate and gave Republican Alfred E. Driscoll, the governorship.

In Illinois, the Chicago Democratic organization headed by Mayor Edward Kelly gave Rep. Emily Taft Douglas an insufficient margin to overcome the down State lead of her Republican opponent, William G. Stratton, former Congressman.

The C.I.O.-P.A.C. took a trimming in New York and New Jersey, where it had endorsed the major Democratic candidates.

major crisis in its infancy and this could be achieved by supporting the British Commonwealth organization to the utmost while fostering bonds eof friendship and blood binding it to the United States.

Best System

Without realization by each Dominion of the role the Commonwealth would be called upon to play in future, together with acceptance of individual responsibilities, "no system of Empire can exist."

The Chiefs-of-Staff Committee organization developed in the United Kingdom was "probably the best system history has produced to date." In each Dominion, he said, there was some form of Chiefs-of-Staffs Committee but there was no organization specifically intended to examine day-to-day developments affecting Commonwealth security and capable of promoting continuous co-ordination of defence plans.

During the war Britain and the United States frmed a combined Chiefs-of-Staff system which "worked admirably". Full government control was retained at each and and sovereign rights of the countries concerned was not impinged upon. Liberty of individual action remained.

"Some such system surely can be set up within the Commonwealth," said Lord Alanbrooke. "It already exists in an incomplete form and it would take little to convert it into an efficient organization for co-ordinating Commonwealth defence policy."

LITTLE DRAMAS OF HOME LIFE

Pop was writing the household cheques ...and suddenly blew his top!

It was as quick as that! All was serene in the household, with the Male Parent working in his den, the rest of the family scattered around. Then, all of a sudden, Pop exploded like a landmine.

What had happened to Pop? — Was it the bills? — no, they came every month. Was it the kids? — no, Pop usually took them in his stride. Was it — yes, this sounds like it — a caffein hang-over? For Pop had been going it rather strong for tea and coffee recently.

Watch your nerves! Drink Postum — for its grand, rewarding flavor — and because it's the ideal way to stop drinking tea and coffee. Contains no caffein to over-stimulate and upset you. Convenient — made right in the cup — economical — costs less than a cent a serving.

STANLEY HARRIS YANKEE MANAGER FOR TWO YEARS

Interested in First Baseman, Catcher, Some Pitchers and an Outfielder

By JACK HAND

New York, Nov. 6. (AP)—The task of reviving the sagging baseball fortunes of the once-mighty New York Yankees has been handed to Stanley (Bucky) Harris, a reported $35,000-a-year ex-boy wonder who returned to the playing field from the executive ranks.

A minor shakeup is imminent after Harris' admission yesterday, when his new job was formally announced by President Larry MacPhail, that he is interested in a first baseman, a catcher, some pitchers and another outfielder.

Both the new manager and the club president have made it emphatic that Joe Di Maggio is to remain with the Yankees.

Ted Williams is not under consideration according to MacPhail who confirmed a World Series meeting with owner Tom Yawkey of the Boston Club. Larry said no players were discussed.

Nick Etten definitely is on the block. Harris said thtat his line-up needs are flexible to the extent that Tommy Henrich can be used either at first or right field. That would add up to a trade of Etten for a flychaser if suitable material were available.

Needs Relief Help

Harris realizes that catcher Aaron Robinson needs relief help if he is to continue his long-distance slugging. With Red Ruffing and Ecie Bonham both departed, the pitching staff needs at least two starters in addition to Allie Reynolds, who was acquired from the Indians for Joe Gordon.

Chuck Dressen, late of Brooklyn, as the No. 1 coach, will handle the third base coaching chores but the other coaching job won't be filled immediately. Johnny Schulte, Joe McCarthy's bull pen catcher, will be retained in some capacity.

The New York skipper has been a big league pilot for 20 years, starting at the top of the ladder by winning Washington's first pennant and World Series in 1924 in his first year as a manager. He was only 27 at the time and the "boy wonder" tag was hung on him. He will be 50 Friday.

Main Event Boxing Card A "Natural"

Local fight fans are all agog over the special attraction that has been booked for the local fight card tonight. It brings together Frank "Tiny" Ainsworth of Cobourg and Don Mogard of Toronto and this bout is so much a "natural" that Toronto swat promoters have been trying to arrange it for some time.

It is interesting to note that this will be the last time Ainsworth will enter the ring as "Tiny" Ainsworth. Ainsworth has a new manager, Fred Bell, and he has to have the huge "Tiny" adopt a new ring monicker. Henceforth, Ainsworth will be known in the ring as Frank Worth. It makes no difference what they call him, he's still the great big man with the wicked punch who knows how to handle himself. The main "go" cannot be crowded into the background by the Ainsworth-Mogard affair. "Tony" Acerra and Keith Prosser should "bring the house down" in their encounter. Acerra has always had a huge following in Belleville and his loyal supporters wouldn't miss this one with Prosser. The card is being sponsored by the Optimist Club of Belleville and the entire profits will be used in the furtherance of boys' work in the city of Belleville.

OGDEN LIVERPOOL

Easy to roll—delightful to smoke

PIPE SMOKERS: ASK FOR OGDEN'S CUT PLUG

SHEIK EMIR BADUI

KOLA KWARIANNI

When the wrestling fans roll into the Arena on Friday night they may think a Hallowe'en masquerade party is going on, especially if they see the two main bouters around the building before they strip for action. For Manager Walt Gerow has signed up as his "piece de resistance" of the evening, Sheik Emir Badui, the Arabian wrestler with the flowing robes, to meet none other than Kola Kwarianni, the uniformed Cossack from the Siberian steppes.

The match is an absolute "natural," for although the Sheik lost in his thrilling battle with Whipper Watson here, he showed that he is a master wrestler and can be expected to make the big bald-headed Russian wince and weave with a hundred different holds. On the other hand, Kwarianni has marvellous endurance and hardly gets warmed up inside of half-an-hour. After that in his Toronto and Buffalo matches he has "turned on the heat" in a way to thrill the most hardened fan.

What rates practically as a main bout is the semi-final match between Sandy O'Donnell and Henry Piers, the Dutch Giant. Piers will be introduced here in the semi-final position but the Flying Dutchman is nobody's fool on the wrestling mat and may soon be up there in the top spot. But he'll have to show a lot to beat the mighty Sandy O'Donnell.

In the third bout, Pat Flanagan meets Natie Brown. Pat met Brown once before and kicked five teeth out of Bad News Brown's mouth, so a thriller may result when they hook up again.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Packed full of information a new sports series which interprets hockey rules in a clear concise manner started in this newspaper yesterday. There are forty articles to the series which cover every rule in the book. There is plenty of educational matter in the daily columns which should be of benefit to the youngsters and the oldseters as well. The rules are up-to date and the interpetations easy to read and assimilate. The feature will run daily for a while then drop to three times weekly. We urge hockey players and fans to clip the series for future reference.

The sports tidbit tonight is the Optimists Club Show at the Hume Arena where a star-studded card of leather-pushers marks the new service club's debut into the realm of spot. The Optimists have spared no expense in bringing to boxing fandom here some of the top-notch ringmen in the province. There are eight bouts which fairly shout class and the faithful besides giving it support to a fine service organization which is doing an outstanding job in assisting the boys of the city, should enjoy a nice evening of fistic entertainment.

Stanley (Bucky) Harris today was named the 1947 pilot of New York Yankees by club President L. S. MacPhail. Charles Dressen, who resigned from the Brooklyn Board of Strategy recently, was named his No. 1 coach.

MacPhail said Harris, who had been a member of the Yankee official family since last fall, had signed a pact for two years. The salary was not announced but it has been reported that it would be approximately $35,000 a year.

• • •

Harris was dubbed the "boy wonder" when he managed Washington Senators to American L[illegible]e pennants in 1924 and 192[illegible] and the nickname has stuck with him ever since, although he will be 50 years old Friday.

He has been in pro ball since 1915 and takes over the task which Joe McCarthy, Bill Dickey and Johnny Neun all held at various times last year.

What's the mark of a champion and where do you look for it?

The question will bring anguished cries of remorse from many an athletic entrepreneur who had a gold mine at his feet, only to have his divining rod go strangely askew. Nor is experience the only teacher. The graveyard of the second guess is littered with the bones of men who should have known what they had when they had it — and didn't.

• • •

For men know as much about thoroughbred race horses as Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, grizzled and gimlet-eyed trainer for some of the country's biggest stables, including Belair Stud and the Wheatley string. Sunny Jim has saddled three Kentucky Derby winners—Gallant Fox, Omaha, Johnstown—and won more stake races and big handicaps than he can recall.

There was no reason for anyone to question his judgment when he approved the sale of a small three-year-old Hard Tack colt owned by the Wheatley Stable. In thirty-five starts as a two-year-old the colt had hardly shown enough to warrant its feed bills; the Wheatley barns were bulging with animals of greater promise.

• • •

So when an obscure Westerner offered $8500 for the colt, Sunny Jim viewed it as found money. Four years later, when the horse was finally retired to stud, it had won for its owner, Charles S. Howard, some $437,000 in purses to become the turf's all-time leading money earner. The long-tailed Whirlaway surpassed that mark in 1941, but that robbed no lustre off the amazing record of the $8,500 castoff, the horse that shrewd Jim Fitzsimmons had let go without a qualm—Seabiscuit.

Before Fireman Johnny Murphy came along, the Yankees had a relief curver with speed, by the name of Henry Johnson. Henry had terrific stuff but was wild, and maybe not too confident.

Henry once got in the doghouse with Joe McCarthy by shooting pigeons from the Shibe Park bullpen. Of Johnson it is told that one day he was consuming a hot dog in the Stadium bullpen, while warming up. The summons came.

"Who's up?" Johnson asked.

"Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx," he was told.

"Don't anybody touch this hot dog," Henry said. "I will be right back." He was.

Manager Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals received stacks of mail from fans during the World Series, and many of them were critical of the Redbirds' defence against Ted Williams, Dyer received a particular kick out of one sent from New York.

"Why do you prevent Ted Williams from making his usual home runs and bases, etc?", it asked. "Are you afraid of him?"

"I am a baseball fan for 40 years and never saw such gangster methods as you and your players employ.

"You insist on intentional passes and then gather your players in front of him by switching and changing bases.

"Are you so afraid of those fine Red Sox players that you cheat and steal from them? Shame on you!"

BIG JOE BAKSI DEFEATS MILLS IN SIXTH ROUND

Seconds Pitch in Sponge When Both Eyes of Mills Closed

By BILL MACKLIN

London, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Big Joe Baksi, latest in the parade of American boxers to cash in on booming British fight gates, appeared likely today to be matched in the near future with Bruce Woodcock, British Empire heavyweight champion.

Baksi dispensed with Britain's No. 2 fighter, light-heavyweight champion Freddie Mills, in a non-title fight before a sell-out crowd of 10,700 in Harringay Arena last night. The American was awarded a technical knockout when Mills failed to answer the bell for the start of the seventh round.

Mills was bleeding badly from both eyes when his seconds pitched in the sponge after six stanzas of the scheduled 10-round bout. Baksi weighed 211½, Mills 184.

The Kulpmont, Pa., clouter, who came out of the encounter unscarred, had the lighter Mills in a bad way after three rounds. The game Mills did not retreat but his good left was an inadequate defence.

Woodcock, like Baksi, a contender for the world title held by Joe Louis, was at the ringside. In his dressing room after the fight, the unruffled Baksi declared "It was a swell workout. Now I'd like to meet Woodcock."

Promoter Jack Solomons had said before the bout there was a possibility of matching Baksi with Woodcock if the American performed well against Mills.

In post-mortems today, several British sports writers criticized the matching of Mills against an obviously superior foe.

The Daily American called the match "a mistake," and the Express in a sharply-worded page one article headlined "the slaughter of the British," asked "Who staged last night's big fight? Thousands at Harringay Arena wanted to know."

REALIZES WISH

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP) — Walter Johnson, former strikeout king of the American League, remained in critical condition today at hospital after realizing a wish—to reach hs 59th birthday yesterday.

The game old pitcher whispered the wish a few days ago to Clark Griffith, who was his boss during 21 seasons with Washington Senators.

Johnson has been in the hospital since April 15 with a paralyzing brain tumor.

Greco May Meet British Empire 147-lb. Champion

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal's Johnny Greco may meet Ernie Roderick, British Empire 147-pound champion, for the British Empire welterweight title, if negotiations now being conducted by their managers prove successful. That was the word yesterday from Lew Burston United States representative of British Boxing Promoter Jack Solomons. The proposed title fight would take place at London.

Greco, who lost a split decision to Tony Pellone of New York's Greenwich Village Friday, earlier was offered a bout against Ray Robinson for the world welterweight title. The offer came from promoter Mike Jacobs but Greco turned it down.

In a Rugby Union match at London, Eng. yesterday, Oxford University defeated Trinity College Dublin 53-0.

An Associated Press poll of sports experts has disclosed the West Point Cadets are the No. 1 College football team in the United States, according to popular opinion. In second place is Notre Dame but opinion may be revised after the big game between the two teams at Yankee Stadium in New York on Saturday.

Two Detroit fighters tangled in a 10-round bout there last night with Willie Anderson taking a unanimous decision over Al Ellis and with it the Michigan Bantamweight title. Both fighters weighed 117.

St. Louis Bombers came from behind in the last five minutes of play at Detroit last night to defeat Detroit Falcons 53-49 in a Basketball Association of America match. At Boston Chicago Stags downed Boston Celtics 57-55.

Dick Chapman, with a three-under-par 69, took a two stroke lead in the $7,500 north and south open golf tournament at Pinehurst, N.C., yesterday.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

All kinds of players make up the world of bridge. Stub R. Knox critizes partners only because he expects them to make mistakes, Par A. Dox makes mistakes and criticizes partners.

Out came a deal that was like this:

NORTH
♠K 6 4 2
♥9 6 5 3 2
♦A
♣A K 4

WEST
♠Q 10 9
♥Q 10 8
♦J 10 9 5 3
♣10 8

EAST
♠8 7 5
♥7
♦Q 8 6 4
♣J 9 8 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠A J 3
♥A K 7 4
♦K 7 2
♣Q 6 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	3 H
3 NT	4 NT
6 H	Pass

South had enough tricks, high cards, sure tricks for an opening one bid. With a biddable heart suit, his opening one heart was oke.

An immediate jump assist in a major suit guarantees tricks to help make a game. Also at least two sure tricks among them. Also, of course, adequate support. North has all of that and more.

With no more than the five tricks shown by an opening, south must not raise. His three no-trump says so. But north wants to take a flier at a slam even though he sees a pair count of only 11 tricks.

His four no-trump is the ace and king asker. Six hearts is The Kibitzer convention reply for showing two aces and two kings. There they are at the contract north was aiming for.

Ordinarily, a count of 11 tricks will not produce enough for a slam. But with a preponderance of sure tricks there may be a good gamble for it. A trick may develop through a special play.

When south played the contract, he lost a spade finesse and a trump trick to the west queen. He then jumped on north for pushing him into a slam. But the slam can be made.

An early beef, despite the facts, may stop a critic in his tracks.

SCHEDULE ENDS IN FOUR-WAY TIE

Lindsay, Nov. 6 (CP) — The Lakeshore Junior Rugby League of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association started the season with four teams but the 24-game playing schedule came to naught when the season ended in a four-way tie for first place.

A sudden reversal of form in the second half of the schedule brought about the unusual tie and now the loop title will be determined by three sudden-death games Trinity Collegiate, which won its first three starts and lost the last three, meets Lindsay Collegiate, which lost three straight at the start of the season and won its last three games. The teams play Thursday at Peterborough.

Oshawa Collegiate and Peterborough Collegiate, both of which won three and lost three during the season, also meet Thursday and the winners play for the crown Saturday.

The Lakeshore winners meet Bowmanville high school to decide the eastern C.O.S.S.A. championship.

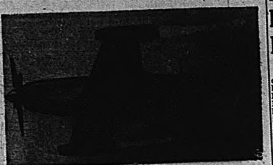
WANT JUNIOR FINAL

Montreal, Nov. 6 (CP)—A meeting of the Quebec Rugby Football Union last night voted to donate total gate receipts to Calgay West End Tornadoes if the team cam:s here to take part in a final series for the Dominion junior title.

Les Ferguson of Calgary, President of the Alberta Football Union, said at the western city that the union was willing to send Tonadoes, western junior football champions, into a junior final provided satisfactory financial arrangements were made

If such a series was staged, Tornadoes would meet the winner of the Notre Dame De Grace-St. Lambert Q.R.F.U. junior final to be played here Saturday.

RAMJET POWER AT HER WINGTIPS



A North American Mustang (P-51) is shown in flight, driven by two Ram jet engines, one at each wingtip. The demonstration flight was part of an aerial show at Wright Field in Dayton, Ohio, as the climax of a three-day meeting of the Institute of Aeronautical Science. Standard engines are needed to give the plane the velocity required before the Ram jet engines will function. The Ram jet itself is the ultimate in simplicity, and has been described as "a stovepipe with a fire in it." The engine, exclusive of the fuel system, has no moving parts.

Managing Editor North Bay Nugget In a Dilemma

North Bay, Nov. 6 (CP)—A dilemma with two mighty sharp horns confronts C. M. (Mort) Fellman, managing editor of the North Bay Daily Nugget, causing him to remark in a recent editorial: "Being editor of this newspaper isn't a bad job at all but we wish somebody else had it for the next six weeks."

His predicament: "Who should be Mayor of North Bay in 1947... by boss or my father-in-law?"

Alderman J. F. Grainger, general manager of the Nugget, and Alderman Arthur Beattie, Fellman's father-in-law, are the only candidates yet nominated for the post and Fellman worried it out this way in print:

"If we tell the public that Ald. Grainger is a no-good so and so and that Ald. Beattie is the man for Mayor, we'll probably get kicked out of our job. On the other hand, if we tell the public that Ald. Beattie is a no-good so and so and that Ald. Grainger is the man for Mayor, we'll probably get kicked out of our home. Baffling, isn't it?"

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper, being lam stew without dumplings, and I had a swell idea, saying, Hay, pop, G, ma, why cant we start a sistem of eating our dessert ferst and the rest of the meal afterwards instead of the other way around the way we do now?

Goodness, isn't that rather a radical ideas? ma said, and pop said, All brilliant ideas are considered radical at ferst. Probably Benny has some practical foundation to back up his thought, he said.

Sure I have, pop, I said, If you started with dessert while you were nice and fresh and empty, you'd never have the dissappointment of seeing left-over dessert waiting to be ate while you sit there too full of other stuff to hold any more, I said, and pop said, I'm afraid that's practical on the surface only.

Well gosh, why? I said, and pop said, Because, no matter how much room you had left, you would very rarely find more than one exter helping of dessert left over, so your dissapointment would be keener than ever

But jimminy, why couldn't you have all the dessert you could eat, I mean there's no law about it, is there? I said, and ma said, I should say there is, there's the law of supply and demand, and believe me the markets demand plenty for whatever they supply in the shape of butter and eggs to make desserts with

But meat and stuff costs a lot too, and if everybody was full of all the dessert they wanted they wouldn't need hardly any meat and stuff, so the whole thing might tern out to be even cheeper, I said Cant we try it just for the experiment? I said, and ma said, Well yes, it might be very intristing. We could experiment with great quantities of plain rice pudding and nice plain tappioca. When would you like to start? she said.

Aw heck, never, I said. We might as well keep right on the way we are, I said.

Which we probably will.

Us fellows were talking and arguing around the letter box, and Puds Simkins said, Here comes Glasses Magee, I bet the fest thing he does is pull out that big silver watch he got for his berthday. Good night, he's so stuck up about that silver watch you might think it was a grandfathers clock or something, Puds said.

Hay, if he pulls it out let's pretend we dont even notice it, I said, and the other fellows said, Sure, oh boy that's a good one, oh boy will he be mad.

Which just then Glasses came up, saying, What time is it, fellows? Never mind, I've got it right here, he said.

And he took out his new watch, saying, G, 20 after four already, can you beet that?

And he put the watch back in his pockit and us fellows didn't even let on we had ever saw it come out, and pritty soon he took it out again, saying, It's exactly 23 and a half minutes after 4, oh boy what a quick 3 and a half minutes.

Nobody still leeving on they noticed his new watch, and after a while Glasses took it out again, saying, If the end of the werld was to come in 5 minutes, I'm the only guy here would know exactly what second to expect it

Us fellows just keeping on talking about different subjects but not his watch, and Glasses looked at it again, saying, Oh boy I've only got 10 more minutes to decide who to invite to that watermellon party I'm going to have in my back yard to make up for not having any berthday party.

And he quick walked away before we had time to pretend we weren't pretending about not noticing his watch, and Puds said, Aw, I bet he was just making that up about a watermellon party.

And us other fellows bet he was too, only we felt kind of nerviss just a same, and the next time anybody sees him they'll probably ask him what time it is by his new watch.

CHAPTER 7

"It could quite simply be a double wedding. I'll willingly provide the extra groom—if you'll be the bride, Sally."

"Don't be ridiculous! And I don't think the idea the least bit funny."

"Heaven forbid!" he said softly. "I never said it was in the least funny."

"Then stop saying such preposterous things," the girl cried, and turned away, starting to leave the roof. He caught her hand and drew her close to his side.

"What's got into you lately, Sally Maynard?" he demanded, refusing to let her go. "You're as touchy as the fever patient in 218 You said you didn't hate me, darling—You did to—I heard you," "You told Maggie Adams—Oh, for Pete's sake, Sally, be a little kind to me. I like you such a lot and honestly I'm not a bad guy. Why can't we be friends—at least? I ask you. Bury the hatchet and all that." He gave her a little shake as they reached the exit and whispered, his lips close to hers: "Promise? Be a good girl and—Oh, my darling!" His arms enfolded her and his eager mouth came down on hers. For a long moment Sally, too astonished and shaken to move, remained quiet in his arms. Then with a little cry of bewilderment and hurt she tore herself from his embrace and ran —refusing to listen to his pleading.

Doctor Hallock watched her headlong flight down the stairs His face was flushed, his breath hurried and he scratched his head in something like consternation.

"Now why in heck did I do a thing like that?" he demanded of himself as he descended the stairs. "And just where does it get me?" He said the last aloud bumped sqarely into Norma Holden at the turn of the corridor.

"I don't know about you," she said straightening her cap, "but it's apt to land me in infirmary. You kicked me in the ankle—you big brute! Why don't you look where you're going?"

"Why don't they teach you girls manners?" he retorted. "Some of you nurses in this hospital have no conception of the meaning of the word or respect either—for your superiors."

"Such as?" the nurse jibed.

Doctor Hallock, however, refused the bait and hurried away. Norma Holden watched him until he disappeared then muttered to herself:

"First Maynard looking as if something had upset her much advertised poise rushes past and then Hallock looking like the cat that ate the canary—feathers still clinging to his lips. I wonder what happened. I'm going to find out." Her mouth set viciously, her eyes narrowed. "Wouldn't it be just too funny for words if Sunderlin should just happen to hear that her pet and the irreproachable Maynard should be having an affair. Oh boy!" She sighed for her own shattered dream, bit her lip, and went on to her patient.

And Sally, more upset than she had ever been in her life, rubbed her burning lips vigorously in an attempt to erase Jim Hallock's kiss.

"Oh, oh, oh!" she moaned in her heart. "How could he? How dared he? What have I ever done to let him think I allow men to take such liberties? I—I hate him! I could kill him! the beast!"

She slipped into the corridor washroom and bathed her burning cheeks, holding cold water against her eyes and lips in an endeavor to bring coolness and serenity again to her troubled spirit. But for the remainder of that day and until sleep brought relaxation she continued to feel the pressure of those eager lips and the strength of those strong arms holding her close.

The wedding between Marcia Beach and Lieutenant Allison took place on the morning of his departure. The hospital room was filled with flowers and the bride was lovely even if she lacked both an elaborate wedding gown and an heirloom veil. She did, however, have a bridal bouquet which with the help of her husband she succeeded in tossing straight at Sally Maynard who could do nothing else but catch it.

Only the bride's mother and Major Allison, the groom's brother, were present besides Sally, the Rector of St. Mark's and the house physician—the latter just in case. But there was no need of his services and at the close of the ceremony everyone considerately slipped out of the room for a few minutes so the two could be alone. Mrs. Beach frankly wept and Sally tried to comfort her. Major Allison patted both Mrs. Beach and Sally indiscriminately His car was outside. He was going to drive his brother to the airport where he was to board the big transport plane for the West Coast.

The hospital was alive with curiosity. Both patients—those convalescent or for the moment free from pain—and the staff were excited. Mrs. Beach had provided a huge wedding cake, small pieces of which, together with the flowers were distributed through the wards. However,it was all over quickly. Major Allison hurried his brother away and Sally and Mrs. Beach returned to the patient whom they found—not in tears as they expected —but starry-eyed with happiness. She held out her left hand to Sally.

"Isn't it darling, Sally?" she said. "I won't have to take it off, will I?"

Sally shook her head. "Not now, when you are so nearly well. Why, I suppose you will be going home in another week or ten days—maybe sooner if your improvement continues. It was a beautiful wedding, Mrs. Allison."

Marcia laughed softly. "Mrs. Allison.'. Sounds lovely, doesn't it?"

During the following days, Sally was compelled to listen to the bride's endless rhapsodies. Good wishes poured in from relatives and friends of both parties She answered telegrams, reported telephone communications and was soon mailing letters to the West Coast. Most of these latter were discussed in detail and quite frankly with her before mailing, on the theory that she needed training in such things.

"Why don't you save your strength for the job of getting well, Marcia?" the nurse asked one day when the patient was feeling a little depressed.

Marcia smiled sweetly. "I know," she conceded, "but it's my nature to be excited. I'm always that way—when I'm well. Life is exciting. And, darling, you need my example. What will become of you after I leave? I'm worried."

Sally laughed. "I'm still a hospital nurse, you know, and expect to remain just that to the end of the chapter."

Maria Allison shook her head in exasperation. "I only hope I'll be around when you fall, for I have a hunch the fall will be cataclysmic. Your kind always go out for love when it strikes."

When Marcia left the hospital a few days later, she extracted a promise from her nurse to spend a portion of her vacation with her at the beach summer home in the mountains.

"Perhaps I'll invite that nice Doctor Hallock to come up while you are there, Sally. The man needs a bit of encouragement and you need a good big dose of love administered vigorously and often. There are times, Sally Maynard," she said in exasperation "when I wonder if you are quite human."

Sally said good-bye to Mrs. Allison with a feeling of regret not unmixed with relief. Marcia had on more than one occasion ruffled her complacency—made her dissatisfied with the future she had so smugly planned. She almost wished she had a past—a phantom lover somewhere in her girlhood to whom she could claim allegiance—carry a torch for, sweet eternal loyalty to, especially if he had died a hero or under dramatic circumstances. She sighed deeply. Her past had been singularly free from entanglements, Her life with Aunt Clem had been quiet, circumscribed but by no means unhappy. If she had gone to college or to a finishing school as the good lady wanted, no doubt things would have been different As it was, Sally found no man in her past whom she yearned to make responsible for her determined spinsterhood—her resolution to remain free of amorous detachments.

And right then and there an idea was born. What was to prevent her manufacturing an absent lover—even a dead or missing one? Everyone had someone and men where disappearing and dying all the time in this horrible war. Why couldn't she borrow one? Then the apparently preposterous idea of her preference for a life of nursing, which she had chosen, would be accepted without comment. It certainly would be easier to listen to sympathy and condolences than to endure the raised eyebrows, laughing incredulity, mocking jibes and, what was even worse, the quite obvious match-making.

In the big gymnasium, Sally countered Dora Bronson, and the two had a strenuous bout with the medicine ball after which they flung themselves side by side on an exercise mat. They were panting a little and lay for a few minutes relaxed and quiet.

"Did you hear about Marion Phillips in 315, Sally?" Dora, who was never silent long, asked.

"No. Marion Phillips—the actress? Is she here in Linton, Dora?"

"She sure is—in 315. Stomach ulcer. Pretty bad, I guess. Ruptured. They've had to give her three transfusions already. Imagine dieting the rest of your life. Some fun!"

Sally laughed and rolled over on her stomach. "To hear you talk one would imagine you were a glutton."

"Which I am darling," Dora said kicking up her heels. 'I'm disgracefully plebian in my tastes, Sally. I quite frankly like to eat. After all, it's one of the few pleasures I can enjoy without comment. If I dance there are dozens who do it better. If I sing—and heavens knows I can't —people stop their ears. I'm a fair nurse but there are hundreds better. I'm certainly not ornamental but can I eat! Oh, brother!"

Sally laughing again as she flung an arm about the younger girl. 'You're a darling, Dora Bronson," she said, drawing the other close to her. "You're sweet and wholesome and lovely and I don't care who disagrees. And to some lucky man you will one day be the loveliest creature in the world."

The eyes of plain little Dora Bronson were bright as she gazed at the ceiling of the big gymnasium. "Do you really believe that Sally?" she asked softly. "They—they always seem to pass me by—the really desirable ones. It's —it's sort of discouraging."

Sally gave her a little shake "The right one won't pass you by, Dora. And don't tell me you have your eye on anyone already—at your age!"

"I'm 21," the other stated belligerantly. "I'm not getting any better looking as I get older either."

Sally sprang to her feet. "Looks — looks —looks!" she stormed. "What are looks? Some of the very nicest people I know are plain the surface but one forgets it after knowing them. And let me tell you something, you little goose. A man, if he's worth anything, doesn't care a hoot if the girl he loves is beautiful in other men's eyes as long as she is lovely to him."

Dora stared at her friend quizzically for a long moment. "And how, may I ask, do you happen to know so much about it? How does it happen that you speak with authority? From what I've heard about you from the others you don't care for men—aren't the least bit interested in men. You've even gone so far as to take a vow of celibacy or something and intend devoting your life to good works."

Sally's gray eyes clouded. "Is that all you heard about me, Dora? Didn't anyone ever tell you about Blair?" She thought fast. This was the time. The name rolled easily off her tongue ready-made. Where had she known or even heard of a man named Blair?

Dora was startled. Her blue eyes were wide with interest. "Blair? Blair who?" she demanded.

"Blair Canfield." Sally hoped she wouldn't forget his name. His plane went down in the Pacific—nearly four years ago." Her voice faltered and she turned away. "No one has heard anything since."

Dora got to her feet and patted Sally's shoulder, leaning close to her in sympathy.

"Somehow I can't seem to care for men—they just don't interest me. You are the only one I have ever told this to Dora, I wish you would forget it." There, she told herself, that last is true, anyway.

Dora didn't notice the surreptitiously crossed fingers of Sally's left hand. "You poor darling," she murmured. "I think you're wonderful to bear it so bravely."

Now I've done it, Sally thought That ought to satisfy their insatiable appetite for romance . If anyone had ever told me I should turn into a large scale liar I would have torn him limb from limb. However, this is perfectly harmless and is merely a bit of camouflage for purposes of self-protection. Even the Army approves of that. She was convinced that the story of her tragic love life would be repeated to the others, losing nothing in the telling.

"It's something I don't talk about," she said softly.

"Of course you don't darling," the wide-eyed Dora murmured sympathetically. "How you must have suffered—not really knowing, and so young and lovely!"

Something in her voice made Sally wince. "Don't envy me, you idiot!" she cried. "You think it's romantic, don't you? Well, its all past but—my life is changed. I feel as if part of me had died." Even as she said it she knew it sounded theatrical.

"Nonsence, Sally Maynard! And stop talking like a maiden aunt. You're young and beautiful and good and you'll fall in love again perhaps many times before you marry and have a dozen handsome children. And you'll live a full and happy life. You see, I'm something of a clairvoyant myself."

"Good heavens!" Sally thought "I shouldn't have killed him. Noweveryone will be trying to provide an antidote—another man."

Windsor Council ToSeeCommission

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 6 — (CP) —City council will meet shortly with the Windsor Police Commission to enquire into charges alleging "manipulation of police court cases" laid by Alderman Ernest Davenport, it was decided at a council meeting last night.

Mr. Davenport said he understood a "son of a prominent family" was arrested recently for drunk driving but no charges were preferred. "We cannot go on with one law for the rich and one for the poor," he said.

It was indicated the meeting of council and commission members would be held in camera.

"If someone is not doing what should be done in the administration of justice, it is a matter for the Attorney General," declared Mayor Arthur J. Reaume.

The discussion was precipitated by Alderman Davenport who some time ago sought a report on an attempted rape charge which he said had been reduced to assault.

Alderman J. Al Kennedy, a former assistant Crown Attorney, told council the matters involved "do not concern the Magistrate or Judge. They all happen before it gets to the Magistrate or judge."

No names were offered to council by either Mr. Kennedy or Mr. Davenport, but Mayor Resume asked that names be given in confidence to C. V. Waters, city clerk, who in turn would communicate them to the secretary of the Police Commission, as the basis of a complete investigation.

Alderman Davenport reminded council that sometime ago he asked for a report on charges being laid and reduced. He wanted to know if the report was available.

From the chair, Mayor Resume said elected representatives could take their inquiries to the police department at any time and determine the truth of reports.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP)—Stocks posted index losses at mid-day on the Toronto Exchange today, the industrials leading the drop with an index loss of 1.11. Base metals were down .79 on the denial of a eport that the removal of price ceilings on base metals were contemplated. Volume totalled 1,326,000 shares for the first three hours.

Hiram Walker, International Paper and Toronto Mortgage weakened a point and fractional losses predominated in the utility, paper and miscellaneous groups.

Some cheaper golds changed hands in quantity at steady to slightly lower prices. Pen-Roy weakened a few cents to 37 and Detta was off narrowly. Rush Lake, Osisko, Donalda, East Sullivan, Central Patricia and Buffalo Red Lake were soft spots.

Smelters took a loss of a point and Hudson Bay, Nickel and Noranda dropped fractions. Sherritt weakened 14 cents.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Nov. 6 —(AP)— A wave of selling squelched an attempted rally in the stock market today in the wake of the nationwide Republican landslide. Dips of more than 2 points followed before the downswing lost its momentum. Although some later recovery was attained here and there, losses were general near the fourth hour.

Traditionally "selling on the good news," Wall Street was reported of the belief much of the Republican ballot sweep already had been discounted in recent market sessions.

In losing territory much of the day were Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Western Union "A," Anaconda, Caterpillar Tractor, Eastman Kodak and American Smelting.

Canadian stocks were unevenly lower. Both Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram slipped ¼ and Canadian Pacific ⅝. McIntyre gained ¾.

Bonds were steady. Cotton dropped the daily permissible limit of $10 a bale and grains were weak.

POLIO'S DISCOVERER

It is believed that poliomyelitis was first described by a London physician in 1784.

Executives Help To Deliver Papers In Sault Ste. Marie

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Nov. 5 (CP)—Three executives of the Sault Daily Star joined other members of the newspapers' staff yesterday and tried their hand at delivering papers on regular home subscriber routes.

When Star carrier boys went on a brief strike among the hurriedly conscripted carriers were Robert Curran, managing editor; John Curran, city editor; and Dave Cohen, advertising manager. However, the strike was shortlived and the boys were expected back at work today.

The dispute arose over an increase in the paper's price from 18 cents a week to 25 cents, effective Nov. 15. The carriers' income will be increased from 4 1-2 to 6 cents for each customer a week. However, the boys are seeking two cents a customer each day.

Picketing lasted several hour and management-carriers discussion will take place when the price increase becomes effective.

Holland Marsh Folk Have Best Year in History

Bradford, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—The 500 men and women who till the fertile black loam of the Holland Marsh in this area some 30 miles north of Toronto are reaping one of their most bountiful harvests this year— the result of long and patient work in developing the 5,000 acres devoted to raising market garden produce.

This year's crop means more to them than ever before, largely due to the opening in the last year of a co-operatively-owned cold storage plant which makes it possible to sell marsh lettuce or celery in Saskatoon or Halifax, just as crisp and fresh as in Toronto. Until its members of the colony organized the co-operative, their market for fresh produce was limited to the Toronto area and nearby Ontario points.

Vote on Referendum On Milk Delivery By Civic Agency

Brantford, Nov. 5 (CP)—Brantford electors will vote Dec. 9 on whether they wish milk distributed by the Public Utilities Commission or other civic agency.

City council decided on the referendum last night after City Solicitor Norman MacDonald said that the vote would be only an expression of opinion and that a vote of the taxpayers would be necessary to approve any expenditure.

Robert S. Stacey, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) international representative, told the council living standards of many Canadians are threatened as the result of the recent increase of three cents in the price of a quart of milk.

MUCH IMMORALITY

Wakefield, Yorkshire, England, Nov. 5 — (CP)—At least one in every eight children born in England is conceived before marriage, it was stated yesterday in a report on moral welfare work presented to the Dioceson Conference of the Church of England. The report said 100,000 women in England and Wales are "becoming pregnant outside of marriage every year."

Barrack Room Practices to Go, Comfort Planned

Edmonton, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Elimination of barrack room 'spit and polish' practices and plans to increase the personal comfort of private soldiers, were announced today by headquarters of Western Army Command.

Under the scheme, doubledecker beds will be replaced by single beds with good linen, pillows and mattresses. Quarters will be equipped with bedside lamps, shelves for books, bedside tables and individual lockers. Abolition of blanket folding before morning parades and the BQP p.m. "lights out" regulation are also planned.

Toronto Truck Driver Fined $40 for Leaving Scene of Accident

William Fisher, Toronto, employee of a plumbing contracting firm at Lansing, Ontario, was assessed a total of $40 in local police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today when he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and of driving without a permit.

Police told the court that late last evening a truck had crashed into a hydro pole near the Devil's Elbow on Dundas St. W, breaking the pole and damaging the transformer. Driver of the truck had then left the scene of the accident with Fisher later being apprehended at a local cafe.

Fisher stated to the court that he was in the city completing a plumbing contract at the veterans' houses north of the city. He agreed to pay the $40 fines and costs, and also to pay damages to the hydro pole and transformer, amounting to approximately $90.

Other Minor Cases

Although the morning's court docket list was a lengthy one, proceedings were completed in short order as the majority of the cases were for overtime parking and settled out of court.

Four drunks, all second offenders, were assessed the customary $53, or in lieu of payment were sentenced to one month in jail. None of the four had prospects of acquiring the necessary funds "forthwith" and accordingly will serve out their time.

M. Gandhi Will Fast If Communal Riots In Bihar Do Not Stop

Patna, India, Nov. 5 (Reuters) —Mohandas K. Gandhi will undertake a fast unto death if communal rioting in the predominantly Hindu Province of Bihar does not stop within 24 hours, Food Minister Rejendra Prasad of the intrim government said today.

Gandhi is 77. Last week he was said to be suffering from a cough which were causing anxiety but at the weekend his health was said to be better.

The last time Gandhi carried out a fast—his ninth—was in 1942 when he was arrested after launching of the Congress party anti-British "quit India" campaign which followed the Sir Stafford Cripps' mission to India.

A. F. M. Termed Racketeering Organization

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP)— The American Federation of Musicians (AFL) was termed an organization "of racketeering extortion" yesterday in Federal Court by government counsel seeking to prove a charge of violation of the Lea law against James C. Petrillo, A.F.M. President. Petrillo was accused in a criminal information of breaking the law by calling a strike against Chicago radio station WAAF after rejection of a demand that the station hire three additional record librarians.

Waterloo Votes $1,093 to Build Horse Shelter

Waterloo, Ont., Nov. 5 —(CP) —Parking meters may have replaced the old hitching post in most places but in Waterloo horse shelters are the coming things.

Town council last night voted $1,093 towards the cost of building a horse shelter. The plan was aproved more than a year ago but later was rescinded after ratepayers protested its proposed location.

Questioning the use of the shelter, Alderman Archie Case said the farmers "will only park their horses in Waterloo and do their shopping in Kitchener."

G. Sheats Convicted Of Throwing Acid

Kingston, Nov. 6—(CP)—For throwing acid at his wife during a quarrel Oct. 30, Gerald Sheats was convicted Tuesday of assault and remanded to Nov. 12 for sentence. In the meantime the accused will submit to a mental examination.

Defence Counsel H. L. Wright said he suffered "an obsession" regarding the presence in his house of a boarder, Clarence Young. Young testified that he had several arguments with Sheats but had no part in the acid-throwing episode.

Mrs. Sheats said that when the acid struck her a white fog arose from her hair and the back of her neck. She ran to the home of a neighbor who called police and an ambulance which took the injured woman to hospital.

AIDED STRANDED MOTORISTS

Canton, O., Nov. 5 — (AP) — Quick work by a local amateur radio fan brought help Sunday to nearly 300 motorists caught in a "terrific snow storm" some 1,750 miles away in New Mexico.

Paul L. Hughes was listening on the 10-metre band when he caught a message: "Trapped in terrific snow storm 65 miles west of Albuquerque. Can you get help?"

He sent an emergency call and raised an Albuquerque amateur, Foy A. Roger, who notified the New Mexico State Police. The rescue party was under way 26 minutes after the call for help.

Held on Narcotics Charge

Vancouver, Nov. 5 (CP)— Alfred E. Golfinch and Peter Johnson of Vancouver were remanded to Nov. 12 when they appeared in police court yesterday charged with possession of narcotics in a case which revealed police seizure here of one of the biggest hauls of white heroin in recent years. The deadly white heroin, more desirable to drug addicts because of its powerful effects, was cached in an alley in Vancouver's west-end when R.C.M.P. aided by city police made the seizure and the arrests. The drugs seized were said to have a value of almost $2,000 in the underworld.

Handles Skunk Expertly

Port Stanley, Nov. 5 (CP)— A man who will undoubtedly be much in demand in several skunk infested Ontario towns is Mr. McDonald of this town. When one of the black-and-white animals walked into his mother-in-law's restaurant Monday evening, McDonald calmly picked it up, carried it by the tail past horrified diners and exhibited it to passers-by before placing the skunk on the ground. And all this was accomplished with no ill-effects.

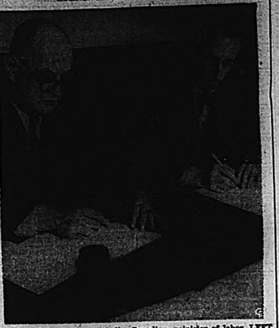
SIGNING ILO INSTRUMENTS



Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Canadian minister of labor, LEFT, president of the recent conference of the International Labor Organization in Montreal, and Edward Phelan, director-general of the International Labor Office, authenticate with their signatures the seven international instruments adopted by the conference. The signing ceremony took place at I.L.O. headquarters on Drummond St., in Montreal. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Phelan signed the instruments in behalf of all the I.L.O.'s member governments, in contrast to the usual procedure under which international treaties are signed by plenipotentiaries representing each government.

Communist Party Fate in France May be Decided in Sun. Elections

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 5 (CP)—France next Sunday holds her most important general election since the liberation, to elect her assembly for a maximum terms of five years, and the spotlight is largely on the fate of the Communist party—at present the second party of the Republic.

The results will be watched through Europe with keener interest than any vote since the British general election of July, 1945, as a weathervane in the uncertain wind of continental politics.

Influence of the ballotting will be felt far beyond France, and particularly in Italy and Greece where the Communists are battling to advance their position to take advantage of economic and political confusion.

If the French Communists are rebuffed it will be a blow to Communists across Europe and give encouragement and prestige to more moderate parties in every country.

Coming soon after the significant Communist setbacks in the Berlin municipal elections, losses in France would provide an important indication that the tide no longer is running to the extreme left in Europe.

But should French voters give the Communists more support than in the general election last May, it will be a serious blow to anti-Communist forces from Athens to Brussels.

Voted With De Gaulle

In the Oct. 13 constitutional referendum, M.R.P. co-operated with Communists and Socialists in support of the constitution, seriously compromising its leading position. Thousands of M.R.P. followers voted against their party and in line with Gen. De Gaulle, who opposed the constitution.

Sharply aware of this defection, M.R.P. in its election campaign heads its platform with a plan to revise the approved constitution. In this way, it hopes to win back the deserters and ride the storm.

The proposed M.R.P. revision would provide a constitution more to Gen. De Gaulle's liking—chiefly giving more power to the president.

The Communists under Maurice Thorez are by far the best organized and disciplined party in France and are fighting a strong, stern campaign, playing to a large extent on the multitude of economic difficulties facing the country. They also press for revival of the 1936 Popular Front, from which the M.R.P. would be excluded.

The Socialists seem to be in a comparatively weak position.

The right-wing Radical-Socialists and the newly-formed Union Gaulliste don't hope to poll any spectacular vote.

As usual, the influence of Gen. De Gaulle is one of the great mysteries.

25 Sea Cadets And Two Officers To Visit U.K.

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Toronto headquarters of the Navy League of Canada today announced 25 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets and two officers would be selected to form a party to visit the Sea Cadets of the United Kingdom next summer.

The decision, reached during the weekend by the National Sea Cadet Council meeting at Winnipeg, is in answer to an invitation by Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, president of the Navy League of England. Closely associated with the latter body is Viscount Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada.

James M. Moffatt of Weston, Ont., vice-chairman of the committee, said three cadets would be chosen for the trip from British Columbia, two each from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, 10 from Ontario, two each from Quebec and Nova Scotia and one each from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

STOLE STURGEON

North Bay, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Theodore Goulais and Edward Commanda, both of nearby Garden Village, Sturgeon Falls, yesterday were sentenced to one month each on a charge of theft of two sturgeon from the nets of Mayor Roy Cockburn, Canada's "caviar king." Mayor Cockburn told the court that there have been frequent thefts of a similar nature in recent months.

COMMISSIONER DIES

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Dr. Simon James McLean, Assistant Chief Commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners from 1918 to 1938, died in hospital today after a long illness. He was 75.

Since his retirement in 1938 Dr. McLean had served as technical advisor to the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada. He was a former associate professor of political economy at the University of Toronto.

Diplomatic Changes Announced

Appointments Are Made to Missions In 6 Countries

Other Posts to be Filled In Due Time Says Mr. King

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Diplomatic appointments to Canada's foreign missions in Belgium, China, Chile, the United States, Eire and South Africa were announced today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a news-packed press conference.

Disclosing appointments expected for several weeks, Mr. King announced these changes in the diplomatic service:—

To Chile—Fraser Elliott, Deputy Minister of Revenue, as Ambassador;

To China—Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, former High Commissioner to Australia, as Ambassador;

To Eire—W. F. A. Turgeon, former Canadian Ambassador to Belgium, as High Commissioner;

To South Africa—Edward D'Arcy McGreer, member of the External Affairs staff, as High Commissioner;

To Washington—Thomas Stone, member of the External Affairs staff, as Minister.

Mr. King also announced that Victor Dore, superintendent of public construction for Quebec province, has been designated as the new Ambassador to Belgium but formalities of his appointment have not yet been completed.

Mr. King also said the government is considering the appointment of high commissioners to Australia, to succeed Mr. Justice Davis, and to India, which will be a new post in the Canadian diplomatic service.

He added that appointments to some of the foreign nations which appointed representatives to Ottawa during the war would "come along."

It was hoped these appointments could be made "by degrees."

Referring particularly to Mr. Dore's appointment as Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. King observed that thus far he had only been "designated," subject to the approval of the Belgium government. This was a matter of formality.

The Prime Minister said it was not usual to say anything about a diplomatic appointment until all the formalities had been observed but added that he would like the country to know that Mr. Dore had been designated.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Synopsis: Rain is general this morning throughout the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, over southwestern Ontario, Michigan and northwest into the Dakotas and Nebraska. This rain area has moved northeast from the Texa Oklahoma region since yesterday morning and it is expected to continue northeast spreading to the northern and eastern parts of Ontario by late evening but with the intensity and extent of the rain decreasing. Cooler air is flowing from the northwest over the Prairie Provinces and the northwestern United States and with this air moving into the Great Lakes area Friday the weather should improve for the weekend. Temperatures which were a few degrees above normal yesterday in Ontario will be much the same today and a little lower Friday.

Churchill Leader Because Man Of Understanding

Montreal, Nov. 7 (CP)—Winston Churchill, wartime prime minister of Great Britain, was a great leader when he said "I give you blood, sweat and tears" because he was expressing what the majority of people were ready to say themselves, Dr. James S. Plant, director of the Essen County Juvenile Clinic, Newark, N.J., said in an address here last night.

Dr. Plant said that in a democratic nation it was not the outstanding man, but the man of understanding who was the natural leader.

In an autocratic form of government the leader was the man who expressed his own rather than popular beliefs.

"We have made mistakes," said Dr. Plant, "because we have this crazy notion that the leader is someone ahead of the group, instead of the exponent of the wishes of the majority."

Molotov to Call On Pres. Truman

Washington, Nov. 7 — (AP) — The White House announced today that Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia will call on President Truman this afternoon.

Mr. Molotov, who has been attending the Foreign Ministers Council meeting in New York, will be accompanied to the executive mansion by Dean Acheson, under-secretary of state, and Russian Ambassador Nikolai V. Novikov.

Hamilton, Nov. 7 (CP)— David Springate, 18-year-old Toronto truck driver, was killed early today when his truck crashed into a tree after apparently striking a post on Hamilton Beach.

NO SUGGESTION PRESIDENT WILL RESIGN OFFICE

Administration Rebuke At Polls Leaves Mr. Truman at Three-way Political Crossroads

By JACK BELL

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP) — President Truman, his administration rebuked at the polls, faced with outward calm today three political decisions which could alter the course of United States and world events.

Mr. Truman apparently must decide:

1. Whether he shall compromise with the Republican-dominated Congress on controversial domestic and foreign issues, or challenge it and fight back with Democratic-supported vetoes.

2. Whether he shall attempt to lead his own party back toward the more conservative line that appeared to be popularized by Tuesday's sweeping G. O. P. victories or steer it even more forcefully toward the opposite side of centre.

3. Whether he shall attempt to rally dispersed Democratic forces around himself as a candidate for re-election in 1948 or prepare to step aside then for some other nominee.

Mr. Truman gave no indication that he is considering seriously suggestions that he supplant State Secretary Byrnes with a Republican—presumably Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan— and then resign to permit that Republican to become President for full G.O.P. control of the government.

This suggestion was taken up editorially by the Chicago Sun, a strong backer of the late President Roosevelt's administration but a some time critic of the Truman course.

But the Washington Post, independent in politics, asserted that any such action "would be a confession of p usillanimity of which Harry Truman has never been accused."

Will Not Quit

Associates of the President were inclined to agree that Mr. Truman will not quit.

This much is clear:

For the first time in 14 years the 80th Congress which convenes next January will be controlled by the party which does not hold the White House.

Tuesday's landslide swept the Republicans to a tree-vote majority in the Senate and at least a 28-member advantage in the House.

NO SUGGESTION—Page 19

Stiffening Attitude Toward Russia Predicted Sequel To Republican Landslide

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Foreign newspapers, while generally agreeing that Tuesday's Republican landslide in the United States constituted a rebuff to President Truman, predicted today that the election results would be reflected abroad in a stiffening attitude toward Russia.

In Paris, President Georges Bidault's Mouvement Republicain Populaire Party organ, L'Aube, interpreted the results of the polling as a vote "for Byrnes against Wallace."

Like most French papers, it viewed the G.O.P. triumphs as a reinforcement of a stiffened United States attitude toward Russia.

The British-licensed Berlin Telegraf predicted the Republican victory would "very likely result in a stiffening of the American attitude towards the Soviet Union."

The major Russian-controlled newspapers in the German capital relegated the election news to their back pages without editorial comment.

Communist newspapers in France described the election results as a victory for "dollar democracy" and "atomic diplomacy".

The Communist L'Humanite referred to New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey as "the Fascist candidate for the Presidency of the United States."

In Copenhagen, the Agarian government party's organ commented that "'Moscow's interference in the election . . . possibly gathered voters around the Republicans" and predicted "severe unrest in American policy."

Australian newspapers took a similar line, commenting on the "inevitable contrast between the genius and strength of Roosevelt and the weakness and mistakes of Truman."

In London, the Conservative Spectator cautioned against "despair" and against indulging the belief that the United States was giving up world leadership.

In this latter opinion, the Spectator's views paralleled many British newspapers, but the Irish press, in general, took a pessimistic view of the Republican victory, Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Irish press commenting, for example, that United States "capacity to take action either at home or abroad has been gravely crippled."

CIVILIAN LABOR FORCE IN CANADA TOTALS 4,977,000

Shows Increase of 149 Over Previous Survey and 450,000 Over February,

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—Canada's civilian labor force totalled 4,977,000 persons Aug. 31 compared with 4,828,000 at end of April in the Dominion of statistics representing the fourth of a series of quarterly surveys on the labor situation.

The force—composed of persons who are either working or have jobs from which they are temporarily absent or are seeking work—showed an increase of 149,000 over the previous survey and about 450,000 over the Feb. 23 survey. The figures also showed a decrease in unemployment from 126,000 June 1 to 117,000 Aug. 31.

Increase in the force was principally accounted for by students entering the labor market during the summer vacation. In adidtion, it is growing as a result of the return of discharged military personnel to civilian life.

Most of the increase occurred in non-agricultural industries, where the labor pool was estimated at 3,658,000 compared with 3,551,000 at the last survey. However, the agricultural force was 1,319,000—well above the high level of 1,277,000 of June 1.

Ontario, Quebec Highest

The report showed an increase in the numbers employed in every section of Canaca, the largest increases occurring in Ontario and Quebec. Employment by districts, with figures for June 1 in brackets: Maritimes 423,000 (414,000); Quebec 1,330,000 (1,289,000); Ontario 1,673,000 (1,618,000); Prairies 1,041,000 (1,007,000); British Columbia 393,000 (374,000).

Numbers of unemployed, with June 1 figures bracketed: Maritimes 20,000 (21,000); Quebec 42,000 (44,000); Ontario 36,000 (33,000); Prairies 11,000 (15,000); British Columbia 8,000 (13,000).

The Aug. 31 labor force was composed of 3,747,000 men and 1,113,000 women, the men being employed approximately as follows: Agriculture, 1,101,000; Forestry, Fishing and Trapping, 95,000; Mining, 65,000; Manufacturing, 981,000; Construction, 262,000; Transportation and Communication 312,000; Trade, Finance and Insurance, 475,000; and Service, 456,000.

Breakdown women's employment showed: Agriculture, 216,000; Manufacturing, 248,000; Transportation and Communication, 42,000; Trade, Finance and Insurance, 252,000; and Service 346,000 with numbers in other trades negligible.

Of the women employed, 711,000 were single, 310,000 married, and 92,000 widowed, divorced or permanently separated.

PRESENT SYSTEM LIAISON FAVORED BY GEN. SIMONDS

Says Commonwealth Lands Will Rally on Any Challenge to U. K. Interests

London, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, saying he believes that Commonwealth countries will "rally to the situation" whenever United Kingdom interests appear to be challenged in "a real way," contends that a Commonwealth chiefs - of - staff committee to co-ordinate all Commonwealth defences is unnecessary.

Gen. Simonds, instructor at Britain's Imperial Defence College, spoke as a Canadian citizen and without official sanction at a meeting yesterday of the Royal Empire Society.

The proposal for a chiefs-of-staff committee was laid before the same meeting earlier by Field Marshal Lord Alanbrooke, whose last duty as retiring chief of the Imperial General Staff was a study of Commonwealth defence.

Chiefs-of-Staff Suggestion

Lord Alanbrooke referred to the chiefs-of-staff plan as "probably the best system history has produced to date" and expressed belief that "some such system" could be created within the Commonwealth.

Invited to discuss Lord Alanbrooke's suggestion, Gen. Simonds of Kingston, Ont., former commander of Canadian forces in The Netherlands, said he believes the present close system of liaison among Commonwealth countries is adequate. This system must be maintained at military and government levels "to foresee and take necessary steps to prevent dangers and in that way lay a basis for quick organization for war."

Commonwealth countries were reluctant to enter any more formal undertakings because the question of peace or war was involved.

"The power to take a decision in these matters rests only with the elected representatives of the people and there is reluctance to give any flat undertaking until such events actually materialize. Otherwise in fulfilling them there would be danger that countries would go to war divided internally or else placed in the insidious position of having to forego an accepted obligation."

Norman Robertson, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, attended the meeting at which Lord Alanbrooke also proposed that each Dominion assume direct responsibility for land, sea and air areas connected directly with its security defence.

Within its own strategic zone, said Lord Alanbrooke, each dominion would carry out defence planning and formulate proposals on the degree and matter of assistance required from other Commonwealth members.

Diplomats Believe Election Results Will Not Affect Bond of Friendship

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 7 (CP) — A canvass of reaction among British and Canadian diplomats here on the possible effect of a Republican majority in Congress on relations with their countries revealed a feeling of confidence that it will not interfere in any important way with the bond of friendship, common purpose and co-operation which heretofore has existed.

American observers questioned on this point said they could see no reason why the change of control in Congress—nor the ascension of a Republican administration in the White House two years from now—should weaken the neighborly ties between English-speaking peoples which have been so mutually beneficial in the past.

Two Canadians in New York as delegates to the United Nations General Assembly were interested keenly in their close contact with a United States national election for the first time.

They are John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader.

They would not comment in any detail on their reaction to a political upheaval which saw the government swing from left to centre, which probably is the position Mr. Coldwell and his party would claim, to the right of centre, which is the vicinity Mr. Bracken's party occupies politically.

"As a Canadian public man," Mr. Bracken said, "I hesitate to comment upon the domestic affairs of a sister nation.

"We who live north of the 49th parallel have every confidence that whatever party is in power here, it will further the already close friendship that exists between the two countries."

Mr. Coldwel said he was "quite sure" the change would involve no interference in the continuity of United States co-operation in world affairs because of the bi-partisan front the United States has presented in international councils.

On international matters the two parties have presented a more or less solid front and the general opinion is that foreign policy is not likely to become an issue between the parties — at least not for a long time.

There is a possibility some of the most outspoken Republican critics of the loan to Britain and of relations with the United Kingdom in general, may take fresh heart from the Republican victory and bear down more heavily against co-operation with Britain that costs money.

The United States-sponsored move to create a world trade organization looking toward eventual removal of artificial barriers is expected to move forward as rapidly as it has since it was promulgated last December — which is not particularly rapid.

Archbishop Would Free C. of E. From Govt. Control

Liverpool, Nov. 7 (CP)— Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, Arch-Bishop of York, proposed today freeing the Church of England from government controls because parliament "no longer consists of churchmen."

"With the growth of the totalitarian state," he declared in an address prepared for the Liverpool Diocesan Conference, "it is possible that in the future only those would be chosen for ecclesiastical posts who supported the government of the day."

Dr. Garbett said "freedom of the church was precarious," and added:

"The House of Commons has neither the time nor the wish to deal with the worship of the church. Some method must therefore be found to enable changes to receive the Royal assent without debates in parliament."

Pay Increase For British Cops

London, Nov. 7 (Reuters)—British police will receive a pay increase of 15s ($3) a week, bringing minimum weekly rates to £5 3s ($21) it was announced in the House of Commons yesterday.

Treasures Had Been Stored In Convent, Beaupre Church

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—Dr. M. Babinski, former Polish Minister to Canada who, present Polish officials say, "presumably" ordered removal of a million-dollar art collection from its original hiding-place here, shrugged his shoulders today and said "I know nothing about it."

The greying, middle-aged economics professor now living in Ottawa as a private citizen, told The Canadian Press he at no time was responsible for the safety of the treasures.

Dr. Alfred Fiderkiewicz, the present Minister said last night that 36 trunks of a "priceless" 39-trunk collection are missing.

All 39 had been located originally at the Central Experimental Farm here. Three were transferred to the Sparks Street branch of the Bank of Montreal, but 28 sent to a church in Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Que., and eight hidden in the Precious Blood Convent here had disappeared.

Transfer Made in '45

The Minister said the transfer was made in 1945 "presumably" at Dr. Babinski's order.

Dr. Babinski, head of the Legation from Sept. 1, 1944, until July 6, 1945, when the Polish government-in-exile in London was replaced by the present Warsaw government, said Dr. Stanislaus Swierzzaleski, a Legation official under both regimes, was custodian of the treasures and "solely responsible" for them.

And the former Minister said he knew very little about Joseph Polkowsky except that he is believed to be in Ottawa.

Dr. Fiderkiewicz said early today he was certain a man named Polkowsky obtained eight of the treasure trunks from the Ottawa convent after giving a nun the password "Holy Virgin of Czestohova".

The nun's description of "the man with a tumor behind his ear" led to the identification, Dr. Fiderkiewicz said.

Dr. Babinski described Polkowsky as a "technical man" who was an assistant to Dr. Swierz-Zaleski.

"I know nothing of 'the man with a tumor' nor of the visit to the convent," he said. "It wasn't until I read the newspapers that I ever heard of the password.

"Swierz-Zaleski was in charge of the treasures and all I knew was that they were at the Central Experimental Farm."

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—Disappearance of a million-dollar collection of Polish art treasures remained a mystery today and the only certainty was that 36 trunks of valuables were missing, eight of them obtained by "the man with a tumor behind his ear" who gave the password "the Holy Virgin of Czestochowa".

The man was identified by Polish authorities here as an employee of the previous legation. They said his name was Polkowski.

But Polkowski's whereabouts presented another mystery. The only comment for Poles who know him is that he lives in Ottawa. None said they knew him well.

"The man with a tumor" obtained the eight trunks from the Precious Blood Convent here last May, a few days before a representative of the present Legation whispered the same "Virgin" password to a nun who met him at the Convent door.

Dr. Alfred Fiderkiewicz, the Polish Minister, said 28 other richly-filled trunks were obtained from safe-keeping in a Ste. Anne De Beaupre, Que., church after "two or three men" presented a "receipt for them."

Situation Confused

The situation was confused today by a welter of rumors. One said the 28 trunks in Quebec still are hidden "within seven minutes' distance" of the palace of Cardinal Villeneuve in Quebec. Earlied Dr. Fiederkiewicz quoted Cardinal Villeneuve as saying the present location of the 28 trunks is not known.

Another rumor concerned the possibility of the treasures having been taken across the international border into the United States. But unofficial comment at the Polish Legation indicated the Poles believed the treasures still are in Canada.

Meanwhile, the disappearance of the treasures had not been referred to Canadian authorities. Dr. Fiderkiewicz said that action might have to be taken.

He said the "tumor" description identified the mysterious convent visitor as a man named Polkowski, a member of the Polish Legation here during the tenure of the Polish government-in-exile in London.

R.C.M.P. and other government officials said they had not been informed of the loss of the treasures but it was considered likely an official investigation would be started soon. Dr. Fiderkiewicz said he would refer the matter to the justice department in a few days if the missing articles were not recovered. An approach to the Canadian government was his "last resort".

Shepherded Across Ocean

The missing 36 trunks, containing gold and silver woven 16th century tapestries, precious stones and gold vessels, represented about 75 per cent of a vast "priceless" collection shepherded across the Atlantic early in the war for safekeeping in Canada.

The other 25 per cent including a Polish coronation sword, Gutenberg Bible, 12th and 13th-century prayerbooks and some of the composer Chopin's manuscripts, were stored in the vaults of the Sparks Street branch of the Bank of Montreal.

More than $117,000,000 in Polish gold bullion recently was reclaimed from the Bank of Canada where it had been kept since late in 1940.

Dr. Fiderkiewicz said the man named Polkowski still is in Ottawa, living as a private citizen. He added bluntly he believed "disappearance" of the treasures stemmed from friction between Ottawa representatives of the old and new Polish governments.

M. Babinski, Dr. Fiderkiewicz' predecessor as minister, also is in Ottawa.

But Mr. Babinski, who relinquished office in July, 1945, said last night: "I have no idea what happened to them (the missing treasures). I know some were stored at the Experimental Farm but I did not see them."

Red Fete Highlights Preparedness As Need to Assure Lasting Peace

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP)—Thousands thronged Red Square today to witness a display of Soviet military might in a celebration of the 29th anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution highlighted by an order of the day declaring Russian preparedness necessary to guarantee peace and security throughout the world.

The parade began after the usual formal greetings to troops, delivered by Marshal Leonid Govorov, 49-year-old hero of Leningrad.

(Moscow dispatches gave no indication that Prime Minister Stalin attended the celebration. The fact the speech preceding the parade was delivered by Marshal Govorov suggested that, for the second successive year, Premier Stalin shunned the limelight. Likewise, the order of the day was signed by the Deputy Minister of Defence and not by the Prime Minister. A year ago Premier Stalin broke a precedent by allowing Foreign Minister Molotov to deliver the address, and did not attend the ceremonies.)

An icy light rain fell on Moscow on this first day of a three-day celebration for which all cities throughout the Soviet Union were decked in red flags and portraits of Premier Stalin and other Russian leaders.

Announcers describing the parade—one of the smallest anniversary military displays in years — spoke frequently of Russia's demobzilization, and repeated Premier Stalin's statement that the country had only 6 incomplete divisions in the west, and shortly was to have but 40.

(The Moscow radio, heard in London, quoted Marshal Govorov as saying in his keynote speech that Russia would "fight untiringly for a lasting, stable and democratic peace," a cause he said would triumph "despite the intrigues of the forces of world reaction.")

The order of the day, signed by the Vice-Premier of Defence, Nikolai Bulgani, told the Russians there is no direct threat of war at the present time, but cautioned them against complacency.

"Constant fighting readiness of the Soviet army and navy," the order said, "is the guarantee of the security of our country and a sound peace throughout the world."

Border guards led one contingent, followed closely by representative units of infantry from regiments whose war achievements were outstanding.

After cavalrymen came horse-drawn anti-tank guns and machine-guns. Heavy artillery rumbled through the square. Tanks completed the military section of the parade.

After the military came the civilians, carrying posters and slogans and shouting their greetings to the Soviet leaders reviewing the display from the top of Lenin's tomb.

City and District News

DISTRICT CONFERENCE WILL BE CONVENED IN PETERBOROUGH

The District Older's Boys' Leadership Conference will be held in Peterborough this coming weekend with delegates from Belleville, Peterborough, Toronto, Midland and Orillia Y's being in attendance. This conference will be one of ten across Canada being held at this time. Boys from 15-18 will be represented and the Belleville delegation includes, Hugh Cameron, Jim Airth, Jack Campbell, Ronald Bulton, Sid Spiegel, Ray Scott, Dick Martin and Stanley Hagerman Jr. They will be accompanied by Wilbur Countryman of the B.C.I. staff and Ed. Shortt, Physical and Program secretary of the "Y".

TEEN-AGERS TO HOLD REGULAR DANCE

The regular dance of the Belleville Teen-Age Club will be held in the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday night starting at 8 p.m., officials of the club announced today. Dancing will be held in both gymnasiums, with music by the Serenaders. Teen-agers from 13-19 are cordially invited.

CROP REPORT

Despite the recent wet weather, more rainfall is needed in Hastings county to assure an adequate supply of water in wells for stock needs this winter, according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Apple picking is now practically completed with the crop somewhat better than was anticipated. Fall wheat is showing plenty of top with fall plowing about two-thirds completed. Dairy cattle are in strong demand.

FIREMEN REPORT TWO MINOR BLAZES

Firemen were called out on two brief runs during the past 24 hours with little if any damage being reported as result of either blaze.

Wednesday afternoon firemen were called to the girls' residence at Albert College for a chimney blaze, while early Thursday morning a call was received from a residence on Baldwin Street where a chesterfield was reported ablaze.

Search Recalled By Recapture Of LaFortune

Henry LaFortune, 30-year-old escapee, who led police and penitentiary guards a wild chase over a large area, was recaptured on Tuesday 18 miles from Sudbury. He was still in temporary custody in the Sudbury jail awaiting officers from Kingston penitentiary.

It was not known if penitentiary officals planned any charges against LaFortune in connection with his escape last August 2 from the Portsmouth farm while serving a seven-year sentence for breaking, entering and theft of an automobile at North Bay.

On Tuesday, Provincial Police Constable R. Pepper, of Warren, Ont., who was one of the witnesses at LaFortune's trial in North Bay, received information that the escapee had been employed for a few weeks at a small lumber camp operated by a contractor on Eighteen Mile Island. Three officers together approached LaFortune as he was finishing his noon-day meal. There was no argument nor any attempt at escape. Police say LaFortune travelled 400 miles from Kingston on foot and at night. The trip took two months.

After his escape, the convict was reported in the Brewers' Mills district, near Kingston, on August 14, when Mrs. Lillian Smith told police that a man answering his description called at her home, demanded food and when she refused he knocked her to the floor and stabbed her in the right leg and arm.

On August 17, he was reported to have been seen and spoken to on the Howard Lough farm on Huff's Island road. He managed to reach the "fastnesses of the Huff's Island marshes and successfully eluded capture by provincial police and a searching posse of armed farmers.

A day or so later he was reported to have been seen in the south western part of Prince Edward County, a few miles west of Wellington. Again a search was instituted and again LaFortune slipped through the cordon of farmers and police. He was not heard of again until his recent capture.

Jail Term Given On Theft Charge

Francis Leween, Shannonville, was sentenced to one month in jail following a plea of guilty to a theft charge and Charles Caverly, city, was fined $15 and costs on a charge of careless driving when the two appeared in county police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, Thursday morning. Both charges arose following a traffic accident which occurred on the 2nd concession of Thurlow township Monday evening.

Giving evidence in court, Provincial Constable Charles Siple stated that he had been called to Thurlow township to investigate an accident involving a local soft drink truck. Damages of approximately $250 had resulted to the truck when it had struck a culvert and hydro pole, while the soft drinks had been spilled into the ditch and the truck motor burned out.

According to police evidence Caverley had offered to give Leween a "lift" to Belleville in his soft drink truck and becoming sleepy en route had permitted his passenger to take the wheel. In some manner the truck went off the road and became stuck in the mud whereupon Leween had decided a tow truck was needed. He had offered to get one and was driven to Shannonville by a local farmer.

When the tow truck failed to appear at the scene police were informed of the accident with Caverley later discovering that the proceeds of his day's sales of soft drinks were missing. Following investigation Leween was arrested on the theft charge and was later charged with having beer and wine books in his possession. Concurrent sentences were given on the latter counts.

Tom Dredge Retires From Active Duty With Bank of Montreal After Forty-Four Years of Service

Has Won Host of Friends in Business and Social Circles in City

"What I am going to miss more than anything are my friends dropping in to see me," mused Tom Dredge, manager of the Bank of Montreal, yesterday.

He sat in his spacious office while the hum of routine bank business sifted in from the outside.

He inserted a cigarette into the long holder that is part and parcel of him, and leaned back in his chair. He gazed through smoke rings at the ceiling as his memory went back over the 44 years of continuous efficient service he has given the public through the medium of a bank official.

For Tom Dredge, as he is known to his many friends both here and in various sections of the province, to his "customers" and the the "boys" is retiring from active duty with the bank, and at the end of the present month will relinquish all official activities and begin a well-earned well-deserved rest.

Started Work in Trenton

It was away back in 1902 when he, a shy youngster who first saw the light of day in Aylmer, Ont., walked into the office of the Trenton branch of the Molson's Bank to take up the important duties of a junior clerk. Later he was merged with other members of the staff into that of the Bank of Montreal. 1909 found him in Simcoe, Ont., where he stayed for five years when he was appointed to the accountancy of the Woodstock branch of the bank. He was elevated to the position of branch manager and the following years up to 1938 saw him in that capacity in Alvinston, Delhi, and Leamington, Ont. He came to Belleville in 1938.

He fitted into the business scheme of things here with the ease of a man who knows his fellows. He was accepted at once. Within a few days business and industry, and the man on the street knew Tom Dredge, And he knew them. And since that day he has held, effortless, the high esteem and respect of the public of this city and district.

Treated All Alike

Tom Dredge had the happy faculty of knowing men. He, in his business dealings paid as much attention to and gave the same personal interest to the man of the small loan as he did with moneyed ranks who sought his advice.

And no finer tribute has ever been paid to a city than that of Tom Dredge to Belleville. "You know," he said, "It is people that make a town, village, hamlet or city. When I came here eight years ago I knew Belleville was 'it'. I have never met a finer representative population than is in this city, and that is one of the reasons why I am staying here."

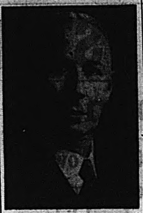
Mr. and Mrs. Dredge have purchased a house here and will make Belleville their home in the well earned days of rest to come.

"It's going to be good for a while," Mr. Dredge smiled," for me to come down town and watch you fellows work, while I loaf in more or less retirement grandeur."

Will Miss Associations

"But," he added, and a wistful look came in his eyes. "I am going to miss people. I am going to miss the friendly association of the folks who came in to see me. I am going to miss their smiles and their problems. But after a rest, I am going to get myself a job, just to keep in touch with those people who are my friends."

Mr. Dredge is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Belleville Club, a member of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, and highly esteemed Rotarian. He plays golf but doesn't brag about his scores. He fishes, too, but the "big ones" that got away are never part of the post-fishing conversation.



MR. TOM DREDGE manager of the Bank of Montreal branch here who retires from active duty after 44 years of service.

And so passes "out of circulation" as he puts it, a highly esteemed resident of this city. For Tom Dredge has adopted Belleville as his "home town."

Mr. Dredge is succeeded here by Mr. Henry N. Becker of Renfrew who takes over his duties on November 14.

HENRY N. BECKER

Mr. Henry N. Becker, manager of the Bank of Montreal branch at Renfrew, Ont., has been appointed manager of the Belleville branch, bank officials announced today. He will succeed Mr. Thomas Dredge, manager for the past 8 years, who is retiring from active duty with the bank. Mr. Becker will arrive in the city next week and will assume his new duties on November 14.

Born at Waterloo, Ont., Mr. Becker entered the bank at St. Marys in 1913. In the First World War, he served overseas in France and Belgium from 1916 to 1919, first with the 25th Battalion and later with the Royal Air Force, to which he transferred in 1918.

After junior training at Ontario branches, he received his first appointment, in 1927, at the bank's office at Waterloo, his home town. Given charge of the Tavistock branch in 1930, Mr. Becker, after three years there, was successively manager of the bank's offices at North Bay, Norwich, and Richmond, Que. He served at Richmond from 1936 to 1943, then came to Renfrew.

Mr. Becker, who expects to arrive here next week, has been very active in Renfrew organizations. Up to the time of his present appointment, he was vice-president of the Renfrew Branch of the Legion, the Board of Trade, and Rotary Club. For recreation, he turns to fishing and golfing, and curling in the winter months.

Rubber Company Official Addresses Cost Accountants

The Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants, Bay of Quinte Chapter, held their monthly meeting on Monday evening at the Bar-B-Q dining hall. The Chapter was honored by the presence of eleven members from the Kingston Chapter. Mark Vanner officially welcomed the guests and Mr. R. G. Neill of Kingston expressed the wish that the two groups have more combined meetings.

Vice Chairman Harold Kellar very ably handled the necessary business as chairman Art Lockley was unable to take the position. Student instruction chairman Carl Casey announced that the second class would be held on November 19th. in the sales room of Deacon Brothers Limited. This instruction is in the interest of those taking R.I.A. and similar accounting courses.

Mr. H. I. Ireland, general manager and vice-president of the Canadian Rubber Company, Galt, was introduced by Les. Lennox. In 1928 Mr. Ireland went with the rubber company as a payroll clerk and has risen to his present position. In the beginning of his address Mr. Ireland asked the all important question, "Is accounting a function of management?" The speaker stated that the daily profit and loss statement could keep management on top and still earn money for the company. By the dynamic accounting system the material and labor variance could be effectively controlled by foremen's bonuses. Mr. Ireland proved his thorough knowledge of accounting in practically every phase by answering a number of questions at the completion of his talk.

The thanks and appreciation of the Chapter were expressed by Bob Taylor. Program chairman Ray Lennox was complimented on his work in connection with the booklets distributed at the meeting; the 1946-47 program in its completed form.

The December meeting is to be addressed by Mr. Gordon Friesen, the administrator of the Belleville General Hospital.

Breaking, Entering Stealing Charged

The law caught up quickly with Arthur Jones, age 23, formerly of Newfoundland, who was arrested in Brockville Wednesday afternoon on a charge of having stolen property in his possession. In fact he was arrested before the theft of goods was discovered in Belleville.

Wednesday afternoon local officials of the Salvation Army visited the Citadel basement only to discover that the premises had been entered and a carton of used clothing taken. The clothing had been contributed by local residents for shipment overseas.

During the afternoon Brockville police called the local police department stating they had apprehended Jones while he was in possession of articles of clothing. After questioning, police said, he had admitted breaking into the Belleville Salvation Army Citadel.

Jones was brought back to the city last evening under escort and is charged with breaking and entering and stealing from a place of worship.

Appetizing Meals Will Be Specialty At Dutch Mill Inn

Official opening of Dutch Mill Inn, recently constructed roadside dining room at the eastern limits of the town of Trenton on Highway No. 2, has been announced by the proprietor, Captain R. E. Bernier.

Management of Dutch Mill Inn will cater especially to receptions, teas and dinners but with an eye to the casual business will maintain an open dining room seven days per week. Fried chicken, T-bone steaks and home-made apple pie will be featured.

Former captain in the Canadian army, Robert Bernier was formerly in business in Montreal where he was a member of the Rotary Club. His wife served in both the RCAF and in the Army and both received their discharge last March.

Choice of the Trenton site was made because of the desire to have an extensive waterfront in connection with the property and plans for next summer include development of facilities for full enjoyment of water sports.

Read Junior Farmers Hold November Meeting

The November meeting of the Read Junior Farmers was held in the Parish Hall, Read, on Tuesday evening. Mr. William Hanley, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting.

Mr. H. L. Fair, agricultural representative, was the guest speaker and he outlined the subjects that would be taught at the proposed short course in agriculture to be held at Read from November 25th to December 13th inclusive.

The night classes in vocational agriculture at the Belleville Collegiate were also discussed. A number of Junior Farmers present signified their intention of taking these night classes.

Rev. Father Bryceland addressed the group on the advantages to be gained in taking part in a short course in agriculture.

A general discussion took place on the Junior Farmer Get-Together to be held at Madoc on November 8th. It was decided that a number of members would attend this function.

Two Picton Men Injured When Car Rolls into Ditch

James Russell of Picton, suffered a broken arm and Stewart Courtney, also of Picton, sustained a bruised right side and lacerations to his face, when the automobile in which they were riding left the highway near Mountain View and turned over in the ditch. The accident occurred shortly after the noon hour on Wednesday with the two men being admitted to Belleville hospital.

According to Provincial Constable James Heath who investigated the accident the car, driven by Russell, was proceeding to Belleville when it went out of control and left the highway. A second passenger in the auto, Rex Wadsworth, also of Picton, received injuries to his side, but was not admitted to hospital.

Almost the entire top of the car was torn away as it turned over in the ditch with one of the occupants being thrown out of the vehicle.

BELLEVILLE POPPY FUND

To Our Citizens:

The local Branch of the Canadian Legion and Army & Navy & Air Force Branch has designated Saturday, November 9th as Poppy Day in Belleville.

The sacrifices made by our Canadian men and women during the fateful years 1914-18, and in the recent conflict, are again recalled as we observe Remembrance Day, and a thankful people hold in grateful remembrance the courage and heroism of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and the Women's Corps who have given their lives in the cause of Freedom.

The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League and Army & Navy & Air Force Branch has contributed valiant service to this country in helping to heal the scars made by the acts of war, and has brought comfort, courage and practical aid to many in distress.

The difficult conditions existing at the present time offer a challenge to us to respond even more generously than usual to the Poppy Fund Committee appeal.

Let everyone feel it a duty and a privilege to wear a poppy on Remembrance Day and in so doing strengthen the hands of the Legion in their splendid work.

Frank S. Follwell
Mayor City of Belleville

Traffic Accidents Increase

Rather a depressing fact is presented to the people of Ontario in the announcement of the Motor Vehicles Branch of Ontario, that last year 598 persons lost their lives and 9,804 were injured in no fewer than 13,458 motor vehicle accidents in this province, while property damage to about two and a quarter million dollars was caused. Highways Minister Doucett noted that there had been a decline in the trend of fatalities from the peak of 1941 when there were 801 traffic accident deaths until gasoline restriction was lifted in September of 1945 but that since then there has been a steady increase in accidents, deaths and injuries. For the early part of the year 1946, the Minister gave the number of accidents of a fatal nature on the highways and roads as 252, representing an increase of 33 per cent over the same period of last year and only 18 per cent below the 1941 peak when in the first six months there were 309 fatalities.

Of course the milage has increased by 74 per cent as shown by gasoline consumption and the Minister explains that this was an important factor in the increase in accidents.

The latter part of the statement however places the duty upon every driver of a car to check himself or herself and find out in what way he or she may do or fail to do which might have some relationship to the increase in accidents. Pedestrians too are named in connection with these facts underlying accidents.

The Minister refers to the proof in statistics that "inattention and poor judgment of both drivers and pedestrians are the predominant causes of traffic accidents." That is a statement based on figures in the records and every driver and walker should take care to do nothing that would be responsible for any highway or road accident.

Tribute Well Earned

Tribute to the women of Canada was paid by an assistant director of the Consumer Branch of the Prices Board, Corinne de la Durantaye, who remarked in reference to the interest of women in economic problems such as have been faced during the war, that "I never thought women as a whole could be so interested in economic problems." She related how crowded meetings of housewives and business and professional women asked questions connected with shortages and price control.

Of the difficulties of the past years, she said to business or professional women, "you may have only your lunch hour in which to shop but you still have to take your place in lineups." Women are still keeping as sharp an eye on prices and shortages as they did during the war, she said.

The public at large now understands something of the problems of the housewife and how devotedly she has done her task and how large a share of the household economy is in her hands and on her mind.

In the matter of rationing the women have done a national service that cannot be forgotten for the wholeheartedness with which they contributed their help in the nationwide distribution of ration books ever since rationing was set up. Other members of the family now realize how great a task has always devolved upon the housewife but this has been more clearly demonstrated in these latter years. What they have done in this alertness and devotion in the war years and since is a national contribution of no mean importance.

Cyprus

Cyprus a unit of the British Empire that has not been in the news for a long time is being offered full opportunities to join in the general progressive movement—equally political, economic and social—now astir from one end of the Empire to the other. On October 23rd the new Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Creech Jones, said:

"H. M. Government recently had under review the question of their future policy in regard to Cyprus with a view to seeking opportunities to establish a more liberal and progressive regime in the internal affairs of the island. With this object I propose to invite the Governor, Sir Charles Woolley, who is in full accord with this policy to call together a Consultative Assembly drawn from representative elements in the island to consider framing proposals for a constitutional reform, including the re-establishment of a Central Legislature. It is hoped that the result will be the creation of a Council which will bring representatives of the Cypriot people into full consultation with the Government in the conduct of their local affairs.

H. M. Government are also determined to press on with vigor the program of economic development and social welfare successfully initiated during the recent years. I have before me a systematic and detailed plan of development covering the next ten years. The plan deals with every aspect of the island's life and economy—agriculture, irrigation, forests, medical and education services, the expansion of ports, provision of tourist facilities and so on."

Mr. Jones announced the repeal of laws controlling certain aspects of the election of a new Archbishop which it is hoped will enable the Church of Cyprus to fill this long-standing vacancy. Finally he said the time had come to permit the return of persons deported for their part in the disturbances of 1931.

"H. M. Government earnestly hopes that these measures will inaugurate a new and happier era in relations between this country and the people of Cyprus and that they will now whole-heartedly join in the task of developing the island's resources and bettering their own conditions."

Cyprus, with a mixed population, mainly Greek and Turkish, was peacefully transferred to British administration by Turkey nearly 70 years ago at the time of the last Russo-Turkish war. For 50 years it enjoyed partially representative institutions but these had to be suspended as a result of riots 15 years ago.

The fact that Britain is now helping to finance long-term development while giving another opportunity for constitutional growth shows that Cyprus is regarded in London with as much interest as any other part of the Empire.

Lord Winster, until recently United Kingdom Minister of Civil Aviation, was recently appointed to succeed Sir Charles Woolley as Governor.

Ushers

The church usher meets his dilemma anew each Sunday morning. Usually it is also his "Waterloo," according to E. M. Hosman of the University of Omaha, who conducts the only school for church ushers in the world, says the Canadian Churchman.

Mr. Hosman, director of the School of Adult Education, instituted the course for church ushers five years ago after a nation-wide correspondence with leading churches of many denominations. In both the class and correspondence courses, students unfailingly are presented with the "end seat" church goer. There are two schools of thought about the "end-of-the pew sitter." One school, according to Mr. Hosman, holds that if a worshipper comes to church early enough to get his favorite seat in the pew on the aisle, he is entitled to it. In the other school there is a different situation. It is of the opinion that the end seat should be reserved for the last one in.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

DO MEN LIKE WOMEN?

"Do men like women?" followed then,
With: "Do the women like the men?"
And foolish, howsoever wise,
Would be the person who replies,
Admitting either sex is not
An altogether perfect lot.

In every group of males appears
The shatterer of his fellows' ears;
The party spoiler, and the fool
Who breaks behavior's every rule,
And thinks whatever wrong is done
Excusable if labeled "fun."

In every group of women fair
You'll find the gigglers always there;
The critics of their sisters' hats;
The gossips spoken of as "cats."
But this is true of every one:
Her love some man depends upon.

Some woman loves that lusty lout
Who shames her when he starts to shout.
Some man adores that giggler gay
And will unto his final day.
Faults in both sexes? That is true
But like each other? Sure, we do!

40 YEARS AGO

NOV. 7TH., 1906.

Mayor Charles N. Sulman has decided to seek re-election for the year 1917.

Shortly before one o'clock this morning fire was discovered in a barn adjoining the large barn and stables in connection with the Windsor Hotel and before the blaze could be checked to a nearby house. The fire was discovered first in a barn owned by Mr. H. Howie, Everett Street. When the fire brigade arrived the Howie barn was all ablaze and the hotel barn had caught fire. There is nothing left but the bare walls of these buildings. The summer kitchen was attached to a brick house occupied by Mrs. Campbell, Coleman Street. A horse was removed from Mr. Howie's barn, but he lost a new buggy and harness. In the hotel barn there were three horses; two belonged to Mr. Lee Ketcheson, the proprietor of the hotel, and the third horse was being stabled for the night. These horses were removed to safety. Mr. Ketcheson, however, lost two sulkies, harness, grain and numerous articles of considerable value. The stables belonged to the estate of the late Dr. B. S. Willson. The cause of the fire is unknown.

50 YEARS AGO

No General Full Holiday Scheduled For Remembrance

By The Canadian Press

All Canadians will pause to honor war dead next Monday but only some communities and certain groups of workers are to mark Remembrance Day with a full holiday, a Canadian Press survey today revealed.

This 28th anniversary of the 1918 armistice is a statutory holiday and that means all government offices, banks and schools will close. But it requires a provincial or municipal proclamation for general observance in a province or a city—a step taken in only a few areas.

As a result most business houses and factories in Ontario and Quebec plan to operate as usual Monday except that they will observe the traditional two minutes' silence at 11 a.m. and the majority will give employees time off to attend cenotaph services.

British Columbia, Alberta and New Brunswick declared Remembrance Day a provincial holiday. By civic proclamation the day will be marked as a holiday in London, Ont., Belleville, Kitchener, Winnipeg and Regina and other Saskatchewan cities.

Canada's principal ceremony of the day is to be in Ottawa, where Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and diplomatic representatives will place wreaths on a temporary cenotaph on Parliament Hill. A massed Royal Canadian Mounted Police Band and an R.C.A.F. Band will play and a choir is to sing.

Government offices, banks, the stock exchange and curb market, change, produce market, stockchange, produce markets and stokbrokers will all be closed in Montreal, but livestock markets plan to open along with most stores. Religion services will precede cenotaph ceremonies.

Port Arthur proclaimed a half-holiday to permit citizens to attend church and cenotaph services. Indications were stores and industries would fall in line with the proclamation.

Two of the nine industrial plants in Woodstock plan to close, the others to operate. Majority of stores will close. Retail merchants in Guelph voted to observe the holiday but many industrial plants there will operate.

Crude Rubber Price is Reduced To 22.63c, Pound

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Canadian rubber control has reduced the price of crude rubber to Canadian manufacturers from 24.91 to 22.63 cents a pound it was learned today.

Government sources said the reduction was made possible by the fact the United States government recently purchased 200,000 tons of crude rubber from Malaya at a reduced price of approximately 20.25 cents a pound. Shipping and other charges bring the price up to 22.63 cents in Canada.

The new price is based on the top grade known as No. 1 smoke-sheet.

This block purchase by the United States is being allocated to the countries which are members of the combined rubber committee. Canada is a member of the committee, which last year took over the work of Wartime Agencies which handled rubber allocation.

Last week Reconstruction Minister Howe announced the price of synthetic rubber type GRS (Buna-S) and butyl had been reduced from 20.35 cents to 18.5 cents a pound. These are the types of synthetic rubber used mainly for automobile tires and inner tubes.

ON THE TOBOGGAN

Life, like time, constantly changes, never stands still. Growth, development, building and repear of wear and tear go on constantly from the moment of conception until the moment of maturity. After that moment or instant, attainment of full maturity—around forty, let us say, decline or degeneration begins, no further growth or development can be expected, and in short we begin to die. Some of us die (decline, degenerate, age) rapidly, some slowly. As with plants, it depends on the state of nutrition, among other things. Lest you infer that my notion of life and death is too narrow, let me add here that some of the other things that contribute to premature aging, short life, rapid decline or degeneration in my opinion are (1) use of alcohol even in so-called "moderation" in the period of growth and development, (2) overeating, (3) repressed or unexpressed emotions. In due course we'll consider these other causes of early breakdown.

These causes or contributing factors, it is only fair to say, are all theoretical. Nobody knows a specific cause of premature hardening of the arteries, premature aging, decline, degeneration, breakdown. Some physicians still accept as the most likely causes the factors assigned by Osler, namely, (1) hypertension, (2) involution process accompanying wear and tear, (3) chronic intoxications—alcohol, lead, gout, diabetes, (4) syphilis, (5) overeating, (6) stress and strain of modern high-pressure life, (7) overwork of the muscles and (8) renal disease (nephritis, Bright's disease).

In numerous talks about this overall subject of vite I have urged upon readers irrespective of age the importance of getting a suitable ration of iodine every day or every week the year around. That is the Prophylactic against premature aging.

Now I urge every mature adult —of, say, forty—to begin, if he or she has not already begun taking the Corrective for the insidious earliest manifestations of decline, a daily vitamin and mineral supplement for the regular refined (and therefore vitamin-poor, mineral-poor) diet—to provide reasonable amounts of vitamin B complex, particularly thiamine (B1) and riboflavin (B2), vitamin D, calcium, phosphorus—and for convenience it may include also the daily ration of iodine.

Deficiency of these essentials, not just in the days or weeks just past but over a period of many years, is in my opinion (if the opinion of a one-horse-and-buggy doc interests you at all) the chief cause of early decline.

While it can do no harm to "try" taking such a supplement for a month or two, one should bear in mind that it is not medicine, but food, or food accessories that are essential for good nutrition, and so one must take the supplement daily the year around in order to retard as long as possible the cold gradations of decay. Further details about this are given in the pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks" available on written request (no clipping, please) if you provide a stamped self-addressed envelope.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What does Kentucky mean?

"Kentucky" was applied to a vague trans-mountain region, roughly corresponding to the territory now comprising the Commonwealth of Kentucky, long before it was thoroughly explored by the English and Americans.

The exact meaning of the name can probably never be ascertained beyond question.

Kentucky was "discovered" and first explored in 1767 by a hunter named John Finley and several companions. In the earliest reports the Kentucky River was often called the Louisa, and Robert Henderson called his settlement Transylvanai, but these names were gradually dropped and it may be said in a general way that both the region and the river were popularly known as Kentucky from the beginning of their recorded history. It seems probable that the river took its name from the country rather than the country from the river.

In 1776 Virginia organized this part of her domain as the County of Kentucky. Later when Virginia divided the original County of Kentucky into three counties the name was abandoned officially, but in 1783 these three counties were constituted the "District of Kentucky" and the popular name again became the official one.

Several theories have been advanced as to the literal significance of the Indian name, the original form of which is generally rendered "Kenta-teh."

Some authorities hold that it is a Cherokee (Iroquoian) word meaning "at the prairies" or "at the barrens" and was suggested by the numerous breaks or open stretches in the heavier forests. The Iroquois root "ken-ta" signifies "level" or "flat" and "Ken-to-yenton-ga" in Iroquois means "level country" or "flat country." "Kenta-ke" means "meadow land" or prairie.

Others have attempted to connect the term with Creek "ikana," land.

Still others suppose the term to be an Iroquoian (perhaps Wyandot) word signifying "tomorrow" or "land of tomorrow."

Although the name of the State, as well as that of its chief river, is of Indian origin, and it is bounded on the west and north by great rivers bearing aboriginal names, Kentucky differs from most other States in that comparatively few of its place names are traceable to Indian languages. Most of them were taken from the early explorers and pioneers, from the natural peculiarities of the particular locality, or from some event that occurred in the vicinity. This is believed to be owing to the fact that, while many tribes hunted, fought and roamed in the region, very few Indians actually made it their place of permanent abode.

Expects Riding Redistribution In Ontario

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP)—The Telegram reported Wednesday it has learned that a redistribution of electoral ridings in the province is almost certain to be made before the next provincial general election. The last redistribution was in 1933 when the number of legislature seats was reduced from 112 to 90. If the government completes its full five-year term, the next election would be in 1950.

The usual practice is to have a redistribution every 10 years, after a federal census but there has been none in the 40s due to the war.

Neither Attorney - General Blackwell nor chief election officer Alex Lewis could be reached for comment.

Newfoundland Battles High Living Costs

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 7 —(CP) —Newfoundlanders, like Canadians, are complaining these days about the high cost of living and some are calling for government action to halt the rise and bring about reductions particularly in the prices of foods and clothing.

A financial and economic report on Newfoundland, made to the British Dominions Office a few years ago, said that the cost of living index then showed that 1946 prices were 63 per cent higher than those of 1938.

"The index, however, is not compiled on up-to-date family budgets, and certainly understates the true increase in prices," said the report. "Furthermore, owing to the drastic reduction of supplies from the United Kingdom wartime imports came almost entirely from the United States and Canada, and Newfoundland being neither eligible for the domestic subsidiaries of these countries nor in a position to bargain from bulk purchasing, was forced to accept uncontrolled prices."

Increased freight and transportation costs, import duties and mark ups of Newfoundland merchants also tended to increase the prices to the consumer.

The report said that increased wages had also contributed to the increase in the cost of household needs. Wages in the pulp industry were estimated to have risen 60 per cent and in the mining industry about 50 per cent. The wage rates of miscellaneous technical labor and longshoremen in St. John's rose between 60 and 70 per cent. Returns to fishermen also increased but there are no accurate figures to indicate the extent of the rise.

W. G. Dawe, secretary of the Newfoundland Protective Association of Shop and Office Employees, recently compiled a list of food prices which he said showed that the cost-of-living had risen as much as 113.23 per cent since 1939.

Price Comparisons.

Following are 1946 prices on some of the items he included in his list with 1939 prices bracketed: rolled oats (per pound .10 (.06), flour (98 pounds) 6.80 (2.00), table butter .80 (.43), beans (per pound) .19 (.05), rice (per pound) .16 (.07), sugar (per pound) .13½ (.06), tea (per pound), .80 (.50), cheese (per pound) .52 (.23), fresh beef (per pound) .60 (.30), pork and beans (per tin) .27 (.10), bacon (per pound) .75 (.39), salmon (per tin) .50 (.25), lobster ((per tin) 1.20 (.40), apples (per dozen) .70 (.39), oranges (per dozen) .40 (.28), soft coal (per ton) 22.00 (11.70).

Not included in the list was the price of fresh pasteurized milk which sells to the consumer for about 28 cents a quart. Most of the milk used on the island is canned condensed milk, much of it imported. It sold for 11 cents a tin in 1939 and now is up to 18 cents. Eggs bring anywhere from 90 to 95 cents a dozen.

There are no import duties on pork, beef, flour and rolled oats, but most other foods are subject to tariffs. The government has given no indication that it plans to remove duties from all foods. There appears little it can do to control the prices of goods exported to Newfoundland.

In the field of clothing the picture is much the same as in the case of foods. Low quality clothing is selling at prices in some cases higher than was paid for first quality material before the war. Use of the low quality goods has necessitated frequent replacements and brought further demands for action in the reduction of prices.

Urges Higher Status For Domestic Worker

Melbourne, Australia, (CP)— An improved status for the domestic worker is the aim of a Melbourne woman, Miss Lilian Foster who was for many years superintendent of welfare and employment for the New Settlers League of Victoria.

She believes that more girls and women would choose domestic employment if they could take a course of training at a special hostel, and afterwards receive a diploma which would entitle them to good wages and smart uniforms.

Miss Foster also advocates the establishment of a hostel which would act as a training ground for domestic workers from overseas. During her work with the New Settlers' League she arranged marriages, divorces, compensation for accidents, and practically every kind of welfare service, in addition to securing suitable jobs for the settlers.

During the First Great War Miss Foster went to France as superintendent of nurses' homes for Allied hospitals. Invalided to England, she worked for the Australian Red Cross in First London General Hospital. She returned to France as Comandant of a V. A. D. unit and was mentioned in dispatches by Field Marshall Haig. Later, she worked among refugees in Constantinople, Lemos, and Toulsa (Asia Minor).

Two Dogs, But One Was a Dummy

(By Joe Laurie Jr. in the New York Times)

During my old vaudeville days I was on a bill with a dog act. When the curtain went up it showed a lot of dogs sitting on stools. On one side of the stage was a small platform on which a little white fox terrier stood motionless for the duration of the act.

When the act finished, the curtain came down and almost immediately went up again for a bow. All the dogs were offstage except the one on the pedestal. The owner took his bow, then, looking at the little white fox terrier on the pedestal, said, "Come on, Danny, the act is over". The dog shook himself and ran to his master, while the audience applauded like mad for his wonderful trick of not moving a muscle for 15 minutes.

The gimmick? Sure. During the act, the trainer had on the pedestal a stuffed dog that resembled the little white fox terrier in every detail. When the curtain came down, he would quickly replace the stuffed dog with the live fox terrier, which would pose in the exact position, but would have to hold that pose for less than a minute.

I remember the monkey which had an assortment of colored balls placed in front of him. There were red, blue, green purple and white balls and one gold ball. Time after time he would always pick out the gold ball and never touch the others. But, of course, there was a gimmick. When the monkey was trained for the trick, all the balls were heated except the gold ball. That was always cold. He never forgot it. Afterward, when all the balls were cold, he would just touch the gold one.

Many sharpshooting and knife-throwing acts worked on the level, but there were quite a few that did it the easy way, with the gimmick. You have seen entertainers place crackers or clay pipes on a frame and shoot every one of them without a miss. Many times, they used blanks. A confederate offstage pulled a string that was connected with the frame the targets were on and would break the cracker or clay pipe.

With the knife thrower, it was a case of the hand being quicker than the eye. The thrower would have a handful of knives, and make a motion as if he were throwing one at the beautiful lady assistant who was standing up against a large board. A knife would appear quivering right near her body. It was done by having the little lady press a button and release the knives from the board where they were hidden.

Everyone of course, was watching the lady, to see whether the knife would hit her head or body. Therefore, no one noticed that the knife thrower was only going through the motions of throwing. Actually, the knife never left his hand.

One very old gimmick was used by high pitchmen with a wagon show. They would make their pitch about the wonderful properties of the soap they were selling—it would not only cure baldness, dandruff and seven-year itch, but would also take the stains out of fine linens without hurting the fabric. "And to prove, I am not making any wild statements, I will show you ladies and gents by an actual experiment the great qualities of this soap."

They would then borrow a handkerchief from someone in the crowd and pick out a boy in the audience. They would tell him to go under the wagon and put some of that dirty black axle grease on the handkerchief.

After the boy had done as he was told, the pitchmen would look at the handkerchief very sadly, then smile and tell the owner not to worry, because the great soap would wash it clean. They dipped the handkerchief in a basin of water, rubbed it with the soap, and it came out white. Of course, the axle grease under the wagon was just plain soap darkened to look like grease.

WEDDINGS

BATEMAN—MOORE

At high noon on Wednesday, October 30, St. Peter's Presbyterian church, Madoc, was the scene of an attractive Autumn wedding, when, in a setting of Autumn flowers and ferns, Miss Doris Elizabeth Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Moore, became the bride of Mr. Scott McLeod Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bateman, of Tweed, with Rev. Mr. Murdock officiating.

Entering the church with her father to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Marion Robertson, the bride made a charming picture in a gown of white brocaded satin, with fingertip veil held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore a strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of pink roses and bouvardia and a lace trimmed handkerchief made by her great-grandmother.

Mrs. Angus MacKillican, of Tweed, the bride's only sister, was her matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of candy-pink silk velvet with a slight train. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a matching Juliet cap, trimmed with gold sequins, and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and button 'mums.

The groom's sister, Miss Margaret Bateman, was the bridesmaid. Her gown similar to that worn by Mrs. MacKillican, was of lime green silk velvet. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and 'mums.

Mr. Don Bateman performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Wilbur Bateman and Mr. Angus MacKillican.

Before the ceremony, Mr. Douglas Blue sang "O. Perfect Love", and during the signing of the register he sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother received in a gown of gold crepe, with a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by Mrs. W. E. Bateman wearing a poudre blue crepe gown, and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling the bride donned a melon-pink wool dress, with brown accessories and an olive green top coat. Her corsage was pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were from Orillia, Toronto, London and Belleville.

LANCASTER—CARTER

A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized Saturday afternoon, in the Avenue Road Church of the Nazarene, Toronto, when Miss Grace Mary Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Carter, Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Francis John Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lancaster of Belleville. Rev. Charles B. Templeton officiated, and the soloist for the occasion was Miss Mary Bousum, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a floor-length white satin gown, with veil, and carrying a cascade of red roses, bouvardia and white baby 'mums.

Her attendants were Miss Jean Carter, her sister, and Miss Rita Lancaster, the groom's sister, similarly gowned in floor-length dresses of blue and pink taffeta with sweetheart lace hats of matching shades.

Mr. Ed. Stiver, of Belleville, was the groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Harry and William Creswell, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. H. Cresswell, Roxborough Street, where the bride's mother received in a black lace gown, with a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a poudre blue wool dress with a corsage of pink roses and carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster will later reside in Belleville.

Hardy and Becoming Coats

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THESE LITTLE girls both wear good gray flannel coats, cut with easy flared skirts and smoothly buttoned tops, which flatter little figures besides leaving room for comfort and activity.

Turn down collars and flapped pockets are good details; the Tyrolean type hats in matching gray can be had to complete the outfit, along with leggings in the smaller size range.

Family Honored By Many Friends At Shannonville

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, near Shannonville, was the scene of a large and pleasant gathering on Saturday evening, when friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Shetler, who have recently moved to Foxboro, presented them with a beautiful tri-light lamp; and a fountain pen and pencil set to their son, Gilbert.

The address was read by Mrs. W. D. Robertson expressing the good wishes of the community, the presentation being made by Mrs. Sam Elliott and Mrs. K. R. Vivian.

The hostess and her assistants served delicious refreshments, bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

The October meeting of Wallbridge W.I., was held at Mrs. Hugh Gray's home on October 30th., with 17 ladies present.

With Mrs. White at the piano, the meeting opened by singing the Club Ode, followed by repeating The Lord's Prayer in unison.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Correspondence was read and discussed.

Notice was read of the Health Lecture demonstration to be held jointly with Uniondale at the home of Mrs. Burkett in Nov. A committee was appointed to select the menu and canvass, the members for their donations.

Cards were filled out for the Blue Cross Hospital Plan and it is now well underway in the Club.

The president then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Adair, a V.O.N. representative. She gave a very enlightening and instructive talk on the general work of the V.O.N. extent of coverage, and how the order and County Health Unit co-operate. Mrs. Sine thanked Miss Adair for so kindly giving the Club a part of her valuable time.

It was decided to send the $1 per member toward the Adelaide Hoodless Scholarship Fund. This was followed by a discussion re an instructive sight-seeing tour to Peterborough. Those present were unanimously in favor.

Membershp fees were paid by two members and collection amounted to $2.20.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. C. Sine expressing appreciation to Mrs. Gray for her kindness in opening her home. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies in charge.

ROSSMORE LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid of this community met at the home of Mrs. J. L. Gerow, on Tuesday last, to celebrate her birthday. More than twenty members and visitors were present. Mrs. Root the president, was in charge. Mrs. C. Reddick read the report of the previous meeting.

Several items of business were discussed and two new members were welcomed. A short address was read to Mrs. Gerow, who has long been a very faithful member and Mrs. F. Belnap presented her with a birthday gift. Mrs. Gerow replied in a few well chosen words.

Sumptuous refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. A. C. Alyea and Mrs. E. Anderson. All were glad to welcome the minister, Mr. Graham and his sister,

A social half hour was enjoyed and the meeting closed with those present expressing best wishes for many happy returns of Mrs. Gerow's birthday.

PINE GROVE W. I.

The October meeting of Pine Grove W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. A. Tanner on Oct. 31, with 13 members and five visitors present.

Mrs. Coulter, president, opened the meeting and the roll call was answered by many helpful suggestions on how the Institute can help improve rural schools.

A motion was approved to apply for legislative grant.

It was decided to hold a social at the school house on Nov. 15 and Mesdames Coulter, Tanner, Ross and Detlor were appointed as a committee.

A card of thanks was read from Mrs. J. Frederick, thanking the Institute for the floral offering and letter of sympathy sent during her recent bereavement.

It was decided to take some sewing from C.A.S. to help them in their welfare work.

Reports of Area convention were given to the delegates, Mrs. Finkle and Mrs. Heasman.

"Up to the minute and local current events" were given by Mrs. R. Vanderwater.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Marshall of the C.A.S., gave a splendid talk on the work being done by her Society giving many interesting phases of her contacts with the unfortunate and needy cases.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the social committee.

Golden Wedding Observed By Belleville Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cory, Charles Street, entertained about 30 relatives and friends on the evening of November 4, for their 50th wedding anniversary. The table was centred with a wedding cake and the rooms were pretty with gold and bronze chrysanthemums. The couple received many lovely gifts each marked with the traditional bit of gold. After opening the gifts the "bride and groom" expressed appreciation for the kindness of their friends.

During the evening their granddaughter, Marlyn Spencer, of Frankford, contributed a number of selections on her piano accordion for the enjoyment of the guests.

Refreshments were served by the three daughters and Rev. J. Grant Sparling proposed a toast to the "bride and groom" to which Mayor H. R. Cory, of Trenton, very capably replied.

Guests were present from Trenton, Kingston, Frankford and Consecon.

"ENOUGH FOR A BEATING"

Portland, Ore., Nov. 7 (AP) — A motorist, appearing before Municipal Judge John B. Seabrook, glumly admitted that he disregarded a traffic signal. The Judge, a Republican in a cheery mood, asked what he thought of the election.

The motorist was brief: "I'm a Democrat."

"I guess you got enough of a beating Tuesday," declared the judge. "Sentence suspended."

New Soapless VEL
Cleans Without Suds
by Frances Thompson
noted homemaking authority

Most women have always looked to the suds in soap for its cleaning power. Now, however, a new and revolutionary soapless cleaner has been discovered which cleans without depending upon suds. At the cost of over one million dollars soapless VEL has been perfected.

NO SUDS REQUIRED

Soapless VEL makes plenty of suds, but the suds are unnecessary to the cleaning action. In fact VEL cleaning power continues long after the suds dissolve. Another noticeable difference from soap is in the action of VEL on water. Soap combines with water to make a cloudy milky-white solution. When VEL suds dissolve, the water is left as clear as soft water in a rain barrel. VEL makes the water act soft, too. As a result you plainly see how much grease and grime VEL removes.

SURPRISINGLY LITTLE VEL NEEDED

Using too much VEL may give you disappointing results. It's surprising how little you need. A teaspoonful or two of VEL is usually plenty for a dishpanful of water. You'll be delighted to see how sparkling clean VEL leaves glassware and dishes : : : and how VEL leaves no soap scum on your dishpan.

"VEL" is a registered trademark of the COLGATE-PALMOLIVE-PEET CO. LTD.

PICTON

George Hepburn Sustains Broken Hip in Contest

Picton, Nov. 7. — George Hepburn, Jr., who suffered a broken hip during a rugby game in Belleville on Friday was removed from hospital there to Prince Edward County Hospital here yesterday. His leg has been placed in a cast. He was but one of five local players hurt in the intercollegiate game with St. Mike's. Douglas Manlow was sent to Belleville hospital for three days suffering from concussion but is now at home.

Pete Wright received a blow on the head that caused severe concussion for 24 hours. Ronald Colliver had a deep gash over the eye, several stitches being needed to close the wound. Bill Wensley suffered a severe bruise on the temple.

Local fans expressed the opinion that the injuries were not due to excessive roughness by St. Mike's players, but to the fact that the local boys are much lighter and unable to withstand the tackling.

Monday, November 11th., will be observed as a civic holiday in Picton. Acting on the request of the business men's committee of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Mayor G. N. McKibbon has issued a proclamation to that effect.

Thursday, December 26th., Boxing Day, will also be a holiday here.

Fire Damages Club.

Fire Tuesday afternoon did considerable damage to a large frame building on the grounds of Rickarton Castle. The upper storey, devoted to apartments was damaged by smoke. The first storey, club rooms for the International Yacht Club, suffered from fire, water and smoke. The outbreak is believed due to defective wiring. Damage will amount to several hundred dollars. Prompt arrival of firemen prevented total destruction of the building erected during the summer.

At the sessions of the High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters in Ottawa last weekend, Wm. Walters was appointed to the Appeals and Petitions Committee. Another member of the Picton Court, Joe Pair, was appointed Senior Beedle for the High Court and also appointed to the Juvenile Committee.

Mrs. J. H. Cryan suffered a stroke at her home here this week. Her daughter, Miss Annie Cryan, Reg. N., Belleville, is with her.

There was a good response to the salvage drive. Members of the Rotary Club were in charge and proceeds will be used to promote juvenile hockey.

Due to lack of a quorum, the council meeting set for Tuesday night was adjourned indefinitely. Illness and absence from town were responsible for members' non-attendance.

CANADIAN AIRMAN HONORED

Sherman M. Fairchild, LEFT, chairman of the board, Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corporation, New York, presents the Col. Thomas L. Thurlow navigation award to Wing Commander K. C. Maclure, Royal Canadian Air Force, "For the outstanding contribution to the science of navigation for the year 1945." Mr. Fairchild founded the award in memory of the late Col. Thurlow, internationally-known U. S. army navigation authority, and the presentation was made at a joint meeting of the Institute of Navigation and the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences in Washington. Commander Maclure's contributions to the science of navigation include a new system of measuring direction, using the Greenwich Meridian as the datum; fixing position and the production of a polar astrograph, and a system of course checking by means of an astro compass and polar astrograph.

Mohawk Reserve

Mohawk Reserve — A very enjoyable Hallowe'en Social was sponsored by the Guild Thursday. The prizes for the best Hallowe'en costumes were won by Mrs. B. Taylor, Buffalo, N.Y., and her sister, Mrs. Wm. J. Brant. For the best dressed couple, the prizes were awarded to Mrs. Percy Maracle and Mrs. Harold Maracle. For the worst dressed couple, Harold Maracle and Raymond Green were the winners. The most comic costumes were worn by Mrs. Lydia Fitzgerald and Miss Shirley Marion. The door prize was won by Jack Hill.

Junior Red Cross

The Junior Red Cross of the Eastern School held a delightful Hallowe'en party Thursday afternoon. The chairman for the program was the president, Miss Ruby Hill. During the past few weeks the pupils made blocks for a quilt, which was later quilted by their parents and friends. The first prize for the best block was won by Eileen Doreen, a pair of salt and pepper shakers. Olive Green secured the second prize, a glass bowl. Both prizes were given by Mrs. Benson Brant. After the program, refreshments were served. The Junior Red Cross has been very active this year. They sent a contribution to the Navy League of Canada, and have sent the quilts and two crib quilts to a pen pal in Holland. Money for these was raised by collections at their meetings, sale of waste paper, and concerts. The officers of the society are Miss Ruby Hill, president; Miss Shirley Maracle, secretary, and Clarence Brant, treasurer. Honorary presidents are Rev. Rural Dean Pringle, Mr. A. D. Moore, Mrs. Benson Brant and Mrs. Abel Green.

White's Church To Celebrate 105th Anniversary

White's Church, part of the Bayside pastoral charge, will observe its 105th anniversary with special services on Sunday, Nov. 10. The interior of the church has been recently redecorated and will present a pleasing appearance. The history of this church began when the old pioneers, Captain Meyers, William Ketcheson, George Smith, Ruben White and others manifested a real interest in the moral and spiritual welfare of the community. Early history tells of a travelling missionary named Rev. John Black paying occasional visits to the neighborhood seeking to establish the church. He was succeeded by the Rev. W. E. Norman who was known as the "Father of the Parish." He died at Trenton, August 9th., 1890, at the age of 96, after serving the church for fifty-four years.

One of the founders of White's Church, Ruben White, came from one of the oldest American families with an interesting historical background. Some of his descendants are still to be found in the Trenton district.

Official Board.

The church, affectionately known as White's Church, is rendering a worthwhile service to the community. The official board consists of Elders Clifton Rush, W. Jeffery, G. Saylor and B. Sarles; Stewards C. Rush, secretary treasurer, H. S. DeMille, W. Jones, F. Sandercock and C. Jeffery.

The Rev. F. G. Joblin, a former pastor on the circuit, has been secured as guest speaker for the anniversary services. He will preach both morning and evening. Mr. Joblin is well known to the older members of the congregation and is one who is highly esteemed by all. It is anticipated many of his old friends outside the bounds of the congregation will want to hear him. He is a man who has made a splendid contribution to the church. Three of his sons are now ministers in the United Church and are holding responsible pastorates. The church will be decorated and the choir will render special music. A special thank offering will be taken for the general upkeep of the church.

Aussies Produce "Ersatz" Clothes

Sydney, Australia, —(CP)— Australian mannequins are modelling "ersatz" clothes and demonstrating the latest scientific aids to beauty, at the Chemical Exposition at present being held in the Sydney Town Hall.

In the "chemical fashion show" a group of beautiful mannequins displays attractive, up-to-the-minute bathing suits, evening frocks, street dresses, rain coats materials all owing their existence to chemistry..

Coal, casein from milk, oxygen nitrogen and hydrogen and various organic acids for dyes all play their part in the production of the materials. There are brief swim-suits of plastic and rayon, so cleverly woven that it looks like wool or linen, plastic raincoats with nylon umbrellas, plastic shoes and brilliantly-lighted gowns of acetate rayon.

Women visitors to the exposition have been especially attracted by a completely-equipped working laboratory, staffed by the food preservation division of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research. Qualified scientists analyse various types of food while the public looks on.

Births Increase In Netherlands

New York, (CP)—Birth rates for The Netherlands have been increasing sharply in the last year, The Netherlands Information Bureaus here reports. The current rate of 35.4 per thousand compares with 20.1 per thousand before the war and reflects a large increase in the number of marriages.

The bureau says this birth rate never before was approached in the country. The famine which ravaged the country immediately after the war had its effect in a very low birth rate in large cities, which reported a rate of 14.8 for January. 1946 but that rate has been climbing until the latest report from the large cities shows a rate of 38.1 per thousand.

The country also reports a low death rate, although statistics suggest that many premature deaths among older people during the famine may be partly responsible for the better showing now.

Wonder Flower Blooming

New Delhi (CP)—Strobilanthes Kunthianus, A remarkable plant which bursts into flower once in 12 years and covers the hillsides of South India with a carpet of blue, now is in full bloom. There are 46 species of Strobilanthes in South India and all seem to have different flowering periods, ranging from one year to 30 years.

The man into whose custody the treasures first were placed—Victor Podoski, Polish Consul-General who was succeeded by Mr. Babinski — is in Ottawa but said he knew nothing about them.

Dr. Fiderkiewicz said: "I want it made clear that no responsibility rests on Mr. Podoski. He is not in this at all."

All the treasures were stored first in a building at the Central Experimental Farm on the northwest fringe of Ottawa. The transfer in 1945 to the bank, convent and church was made "presumably" at Mr. Babinski's order, Dr. Fiderkiewicz said.

At that time, just after the change in Polish governments, Mr. Babinski had no official status, the minister added.

Presented Receipt

Rev. Thomas Pelletier, Rector of the Redemptorist Congregation at Ste. Anne de Beaupre, said 20 trunks of "tapestry" stored there were removed last May or June by an unidentified person who presented a receipt and gave a password. He did not say the password was the "virgin" expression given by the visitor to the Ottawa convent.

Father Pelletier said the treasures were kept at Ste. Anne at the request of Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec. In New York a source close to the cardinal, in hospital suffering a recurrence of a heart attack, said: "I have no information on that story."

Dr. Fiderkiewicz said he had received a letter from Cardinal Villeneuve saying he did not know the whereabouts of the treasures."

The "Czestohova" of the "virgin" password is an ancient Polish city famed for its shrines.

Beyond Monetary Value

Dr. S. Swierz-Saleski, curator of the Wawel Museum at Krakow and an attache at the Legation, said the stored treasures were beyond monetary value. He described them as "part of the soul" of Poland and as belonging to the Polish people.

The ornate Goeblin tapestries had been presented to the nation by King Sigismund Augustus late in the 16th century after being made at his royal command.

It was Dr. Swierz-Zaleski who guarded the treasures as they were secreted to Canada by way of Bohemia, France and Britain. He said one of his fears is that the tapestries will be damaged if not inspected and aired periodically.

Dr. Fiderkiewicz told newspapermen that if the treasures are recovered he intends to display them in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto.

Council Reconsiders Chief's Dismissal

Port Dalhousie, Ont., Nov. 6. (CP)—The council of this village four miles north of St. Catharines voted 4 to 1 last night to consider the re-instatement of Police Chief D. F. Robinson.

Council recently dismissed him, effective Nov. 15.

The decision to reconsider was taken at a stormy meeting attended by more than 100 ratepayers and members of the local Canadian Legion branch. Charles Fox, spokesman for the Legion members, presented a petition bearing 350 signatures and protesting "any change in our present police system."

Reeve Robert Johnston, warden of Lincoln County, voted against the plan to reconsider and said he stood by his earlier decision to dismiss the chief. The reinstatement is to be considered at an open meeting of ratepayers shortly.

Ray Mann, of Brantford, also appeared for Canadian Legion men, and said the chief was given no opportunity to defend himself. Chief Robinson was a former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, served in the war and was appointed Chief June 2, 1945.

Since his dismissal was ordered, council entered into negotiations with Provincial Police to take over village police duties.

VERDUN OUTSCORED

Verdun, Que., Nov. 6 (CP) — Lachine Rapids outscored Verdun Eagles 6-3, in a Provincial Hockey League fixture here last night in a game that see-sawed back and forth until the Rapides salted away the game by scoring four times in the final session.

The Eagles took the lead in the first period when Boucier scored the only goal of the frame but in the middle session, Rapides came from behind to take the lead on a pair of tallies. Not to be outdone, Verdun again took the lead on a brace of goals.

The final period was Lachine all the way, however.

BRITAIN ROUSED OVER REPORT ON HOMELESS WAIFS

Government Action Expected as Result of Probe Into Conditions in Institutions and Foster Homes

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—Few official reports have created more stir in Britain than that of a committee under Miss Myra Curtis which looked into the care of homeless children and recommended widespread changes in institutions and foster homes.

Immediate governmental action is forecast on the report, which runs to 100,000 words and goes in detail into the plight of Britain's 125,000 children who for one reason or another lack normal homes.

Out of it emerges a picture, not so much of adult cruelty, but indifference to the physical and emotional feelings of children. Committee members said many of the homes they visited were "mediocre", a few were excellent, but some were definitely of "bad standard". It was existence of the latter which shocked the public.

Here are some examples of the report's findings::

Workhouses: In the majority of public assistance institutions the general care of chidren was of poor standard. . . Babies remained in their cots day in and day out, gazing at the ceiling, and toddlers played on the floor, often unchanged and unkempt, with any bits and pieces which they could find.

Older children were turned out to play in asphalt yards surrounded by high walls, and were unprovided with schooling or occupation.

Children's Homes: In few homes was there any awareness of the misery, bewilderment and fear of the newly-admitted child. Too often, after questioning by officials, his clothes were taken off and often carelessly tossed aside (although he may have known he was dressed in his best for the occasion), he was given a bath, dressed in new clothes in pushed in with a group of children.

Nursery Schools: In one nursery school the children looked poorly and uncared for, the nose of one was bleeding and she was crying with fright; a second was crying with misery and was blue with cold. She had been admitted only two days before and had for a short time been locked into some room and forgotten.

Religious Homes: Teen-age girls in certain homes often were employed many hours a day on such work as laundry, which earned the institution a handsome profit, and for which they received little or no reimbursement in the form of pocket money.

Sanatoria: The committee found 22 children in one sanitorium housed in decayed wooden huts condemned before the war as "rat ridden and unsafe".

The report contained many other examples of suffering through neglect, and wound up by recommending closed supervision by authorities over a wider number of children.

It also urged improvements in institutional life, providing children with more sympathetic cade and education than they now receive, and changes in the existing rules for adoption and foster homes, to insure greater protection.

Horrified Crowd Sees Despondent Man Leap to Death

Vancouver, Nov. 7 (CP)— Police said today it was apparent that despondency over failure to get overseas during the war caused a 23-year-old army veteran to balance for five minutes on a fourth-storey Abbott Street hotel window ledge yesterday and then jump to his death after other unsuccessful attempts at suicide.

While more than 100 watched in the street below, Stanley E. Eiseman of High River, Alta., sat on the eldge, drenched in blood from a slashed throat. Then as a police constable grabbed him, he jumped to his death, almost pulling the constable with him.

Eiseman enlisted in Calgary early in the war and was discharged there in June, 1942, because of an asthmatic condition.

Constable Joe Cotter smashed down the door to Eiseman's room, grabbed him by an arm as he jumped and was almost pulled through the window himself. The constable's arm was skinned against the window sill.

"I couldn't hold him," said the constable, who broke down one door in the hotel before getting into the right room after seeing Eiseman standing on the sill.

Spattered With Blood

The room was spattered with blood and a bloody razor was found on the floor. Police said knotted neckties found in the room indicated the ex-army man had also tried to hang himself. On a dingy table was a rambling note: "Think of mother and dad.. sorry I haven't time to finish this.."

One woman fainted as Eiseman's body hit the sidewalk.

William Worobec who witnessed the plunge said Eiseman "pulled" a white cloth over his eyes. It looked like a dish towel. When the policeman grabbed him he swung around and fell backwards. He hit an electric wire and one shoe came off.

"Women were screaming.

"His head hit first—a woman in the crowd fainted."

Eiseman was dead on arrival at hospital and police said his throat had been slashed.

A brother lives at the same hotel but was at work at the time of Eiseman's death-plunge.

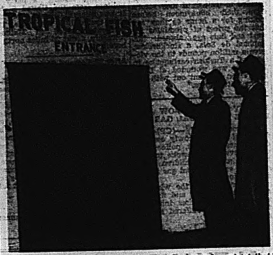
Old sleeping quarters of Don Sutton, R.C.A.F. veteran, now occupied by a bull from British Columbia, are pointed out to Walter Scott, another veteran when the air force used the Coliseum row upon row of bunks replaced stalls.

Thousands of servicemen returning from overseas were paraded into the horse show ring to meet their relatives, sweethearts and friends for the first time in years. Now it is being prepared to receive the horses again.

Airforce veterans recall memories of their former sleeping quarters as they watch new occupant, a Yorkshire sow, scramble through the straw.



"Well, well! The sergeants' mess hasn't changed much at that," the two veterans jokingly agreed.

Hangman's Life Not Happy

(By Robert Fleming in Milwaukee Journal)

"The ancient and honorable profession of hangman" once again has been caught by the spotlight of history with the execution of 10 Nazi leaders. In a small gymnasium of the Nuernberg prison stout ropes brought infamous death to the foremost exponents of Adolf Hitler's master race belief.

An American master sergeant has said that he was the hangman for the Nazi war criminals, and the London Sunday Times recently reported the Pierrepont, official British executione,r had been "entrusted" with the duty of carrying out the death sentences. The sergeant sought to conceal his home town to shield his family, and the actual identity of Pierrepoint has long been kept from Britons.

But through the years, the hangman's identity has not always been a secret. Like Pierrepoint, some have used assumed names to keep their daily lives out of the shadow of the gallows, but others have publicly paraded their identity, considered it an "honorable profession," and attained great wealth as well as dubious distinction.

Hanging as legal (and lethal) punishment began in Britain in the twelfth century, apparently being brought from Germany by the Anglo-Saxons Henry I used it as punishment for thieves, and Henry II added homicide to the crimes to be paid for by hanging. The first recorded victim of importance was William Marice, son of a British nobleman, hanged for piracy in 1241.

There were other early crimes that called for activity by the hangman. In 1279 a parade of 280 Jews went to the gallows for clipping gold from the edges of coins, and later the mayor and a gatetender of Exeter were hanged because a murderer escaped when the gate was left unlocked overnight.

• • •

In time, however, the class distinctions of the middle ages had their effect on capital punishment, and beheading replaced hanging for the "upper classes." Thus it was that Jack Ketch, perhaps the most famous of all executioners, used both the rope and the ax. His name has come down through the years because it is borne by the hangman in "Punch and Judy," best known of all puppet shows. Punch was a "jolly good fellow," but he wasn't a nobleman, so Jack Ketch sought to hang him, only to be fooled into dying in his own noose.

The actual Jack Ketch was official British hangman late in the seventeenth century. He assumed his duties in 1662, though writers of the period paid little heed to him until Dec. 2, 1678, when a broadside's illustration revealed Ketch offering a rope and a hatchet as a cure for "traitorous disease or popish contagion."

Best known of Ketch's official acts was the execution of James Scott, duke of Monmouth on July 15, 1685. Monmouth was the son of Charles II, born to Lucy Walters, Charles' mistress during his exile to The Hague, and became known as "The Protestant duke". After James II had taken the throne, Monmouth led a futile insurrection was captured and sentenced to die.

Monmouth tried to evade Jack Ketch by offering to become a Catholic, but the offer was rejected, and on a Wednesday morning Monmouth stalked from his cell to the gallows. Because of his rank, he was to die under the ax.

"Here are six guineas for you," Monmouth said to Ketch. "Do not hack me as you did my Lord Russell. I have heard that you struck him three or four times. My servant will give you more gold if you do the work well."

Ketch, it is recorded, was unnerved by the reference to Russell's execution. His first blow barely wounded Monmouth, who rose to his feet and looked reproachfully at Ketch before kneeling again at the block. Twice more Ketch swung the ax, but Monmouth continued to move. The headsman threw down the ax and said he could not go on, but orders from the sheriff and angry shouts from the attending mob sent him back to his gruesome task. Ketch swung his ax a fourth and a fifth time, and then used a knife to sever completely the condemned man's head.

But executioners were not always so clumsy, though it is recorded that one victim, De Thou, was struck 11 times. In contrast, with the gulliotine in use, 21 French Girondists were beheaded in 32 minutes. "As practice made perfect, these figures were far outdistanced," commended Agnes Repplier, American essayist of the early twentieth century, in pointing out that "the highest record reached was 63 recapitations in 45 minutes."

Hangmen, in the days when they had ghoulish distinction, had certain rights that brought them considerable wealth. For example, at the time if any man committed suicide, the hangman was entitled to all of the deceased's property which he could reach while standing on the body and reaching out with his long sword. The clothing, jewelry and other apparel which a man wore to his appointment with death often became executioner's property. And, as in Monmouth's case, there were sometimes fees from victims who wanted especially efficient service in their final moments of life.

In both England and France, in past centuries, sons followed fathers in office. The men of the Sanson family were France's headsmen for nine generations. They claimed that they were betrayed into the profession by love The first of the Sansons married the daughter of the executioner who had no sons, so the son-in-law had to take up the ax. The official position was a bequest through nearly 200 years, and in 1726, when Charles Sanson died, the post of headsman went to his son, Jean Baptiste, though the boy was only seven years old.

An assistant was appointed for the child, but until he became old enough to handle the ax himself, the young Sanson stood on the scaffold at each execution to give it official sanction.

One of the Sansons claimed he bodly encouraged Marie Antoinette with a whispered "Have courage, madame," as she left the cart that carried her to the guillotine. People who knew her said that the daughter of the Caesars stood in little need of such counsel.

A Sanson assistant named Legros held aloft the severed head of Charlotte Corday, the youthful assassin of the revolutionist Marat, and slapped the fair cheek so soundly that it blushed.

There were hangmen's rules of etiquette and protocol, too. When the Duke of Hamilton, the Earl of Holland and Lord Capel went to the British headsman together. they were told they must die in order of their rank. And when Lord Capel sought to speak his last words without removing his hat, he was told that right might be his in parliament, but that the scaffold deserves greater courtesy.

The Earl of Kilmarnock offered precedence to Lord Balmerino in recognition of the latter's fame as a soldier, but the headsmen rejected the suggestion. Lord Balmerina showed no hard feelings; he gave the headsman three guineas as a gesture of good will. And the doomed Archbishop Laud took time at the foot of the gallows steps to argue theology briefly with Sir John Clotsworthy who wanted some information before it was too late.

Public executions, Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote, were "a satisfaction to all parties—the public is gratified by a procession, and the criminal supported by it." And Voltaire wrote, "Nothing is so disagreeable as to be obscurely hanged". In the nations of both men, large throngs were common when men were executed. Women, of course, drew even greater crowds.

Centenary

Centenary—The 78th anniversary United Church was observed on Sunday Nov. 3rd. and was one of the most inspiring and successful ever held.

The church, beautifully decorated for the occasion, with well arranged array of flowers, potted plants and evergreens, was filled to capacity both morning and evening with members, and friends from the surrounding district.

The guest speaker was Rev. A. L. Shorten, of Foxboro United Church, who is a young man of outstanding ability, and his message was a challenge to all workers in the service of the Master.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Dave Thrasher and pianist Miss Eleanor Roblin, rendered special music the solo parts being taken by Mrs. P. Sutherland, Miss Shirley Hall, Anita Calvert and the Misses Ray The guest soloist in the morning was Miss V. Fox of Belleville and in the evening Mr. Bill Colclough with Mr. W. Houston as accompanist.

Quebec Will Not Allow Newspapers To Own Paper Mills

Quebec, Nov. 7—(CP)—Premier Duplessis in a dinner address last night to delegates of the Quebec Forestry Engineers Association's Convention here, said that his government would not allow newspaper owners or publishers to secure in the province forestry concessions or cutting permits or would they be permitted to own paper mills.

"If we were to allow newspaper owners and publishers to have wood limits or to own paper mills, it would not help the upkeep of freedom of speech and of the press in the province but would hamper it by giving owners-publishers the possibility of controlling the paper industry and the newsprint markets."

The premier said that the province would not concede to "speculators in the province or from outside" wood limits which would serve to obstruct the conducting of fair competition in Quebec.

"There are a number of firms which need new concessions, and they shall get them; but I say beware to those who speculate on limits to be given certain companies because the government will not allow the province's forests to serve foreign interests." Quebec forests were an asset to its people and would have to be kept as such if they were to serve future generations, he said.

The province wanted to co-operate with the rest of Canada and the exports in newsprint and newsprint raw materials showed its good will. But it expected to receive co-operation in return. "Co-operation was not a one-way street," the premier added.

DEWEY RE-ELECTED AS GOVERNOR OF N.Y.

Thomas E. Dewey, Republican governor of New York, was returned to office by the greatest margin ever given a Republican candidate for the governorship, and as a result becomes a leading contender for the 1948 presidential nomination. Opposing Governor Dewey, shown here with his wife as he signed the register at the polling station in New York, was Democratic U. S. Senator James M. Mead.

Shadow of Mount Forces D.S. Time On Desert Town

Palm Springs, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP)—Lofty Mount San Jacinto 11,000 feet above sea level, casts an afternoon shadow over their desert community so the city council last night passed an ordinance establishing daylight saving time, effective Nov. 17.

The sun goes down about 3 p.m. during the winter months, because of the mountain's shadow, but the ordinance will save one hour's sunlight. The new "sun time" will be effective for 120 days.

Brantford, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Attendance officer, not "truant officer" is the title by which 87-year-old William Eastcott prefers to be known. Still going strong after 23 years in the position, he says his job is for the welfare of the school children of Brantford township.

HORSE JUMPS OUT OF DITCH INTO PATH OF AUTOMOBILE

Simcoe, Nov. 7 —(CP)— When a horse jumped out of a ditch on the highway near here Wednesday and ran into the path of an automobile, the animal was killed and the car damaged to the extent of $400.

Norfolk County Terrorized By Two Armed Men

Simcoe, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Two armed men, said to be about 20 years old, have terrorized the folk of Norfolk county, police officials here said last night. The pair have attacked two victims violently in two nights and are the object of a country-wide police search.

The victims — 65-year-old Mrs. Cecilia Culver of the village of Colborne and Harry Lichach, 40, of Charlotteville township — reported they were slugged by two men whose descriptions tallied in both cases. Their violence netted the men $35 which they got from Lichack, a tobacco farmer.

Though they beat Mrs. Culver over the head, she managed to scream and scare the duo away before they could rob her house. She suffered two deep head gashes.

Lichach said he picked the pair up Sunday night near his home believing they were hitchhikers. They slugged him and while he was unconscious drove him to a point some 18 miles from his home where they wrecked the car in a ditch causing about $400 damage.

Mrs. Culver said one of the men had asked for water for the radiator of his car and as she turned to get it, he hit her. Police believe the men are travelling in a stolen car. They are decsribed as being average height and build, one fair and the other dark.

Urges Wider Role For Modern Woman

Montreal, (CP)—Roman Catholic women are called upon "with greater urgency than ever before to take part in the public life of our country," Rev. Allen MacInnes, profesor of philosophy and theology of Holy Rosary Scholasticate, Ottawa, said in an address to the Catholic Women's League here.

"The sphere of action proper to women is in the home and family," said Father MacInnes.

"But social and political conditions in the present world are such as to threaten the security of the home and the family. Women, then, must strive by concerted action to restore the conditions in which real homes are posible.

'By nature and character women are better suited than men to tackle such problems where tact, refined moral perception and delicacy are required."

Father MacInnes partially quoted an address of Pope Pius XII in which he appealed to Catholic women to take their part in public life and social affairs. It read in part:

"..Catholic women and youth, the hour has struck, public life needs you. In vain would we preach the return of women to the home as long as conditions remain which keep her out of the home..Every woman has the strict duty of conscience to fight the evils which menace the home."

Film Stars Stage Mannequin Parade

London, —(CP)—A mannequin parade, featuring 150 of the most beautiful screen stars and models in the country, was the midnight highlight of a ball, sponsored by the Guild of British Creative designers, held recently at London's Albert Hall.

Prices for tickets and seating accommodation varied from $277 for a logia box of eight tickets to $2 for admission to a seat in the balcony, and proceeds went to the three principal charities of the textile industry.

The Albert Hall scene was televised for the first time, and to light the largest interior ever televised 350 Kilowatts of light were required a battery of arc camps throwing light from the top gallery.

The ball itself was broadcast in the evening television program, but for the midnight fashion parade a preview was shot in the basement of the hall, where a studio was installed.

Fashion houses were left with an acute shortage of mannequins during the week of the ball, as nearly every "named" model was kept busy with the rehearsals for some days before the show.

Twenty-five leading designers showed fashions for home and export markets in the high-speed parade, with six fashions a minute circulating in the light-flooded arena.

Wedded at Double Ceremony Both Sue or FDivorce

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP)— Two brothers who married two sisters at a double wedding ceremony in the county building Oct. 19 yesterday sued their wives simultaneously for divorces, both charging bigamy. The brothers, Arthur W. Paulson, 23, and John D. Paulson, 25, both machine shop workers, charged in their suits filed in Superior Court that their wives, Lillian, 19, and Helen, 20, were married to other men at the time of the ceremony.

MARRIED IN LONDON

The millionaire, Lt. Raphael de Sola, and his bride, the former Miss Elizabeth Medas of Hampstead, London, are shown leaving the synagogue after the wedding ceremony. The couple have decided to wait until they return from their honeymoon before looking for a home as they say that the prices of premiums for west end flats are absurd. Mr. Raphael de Sola, a stockbroker, gave a million pounds to the victims of a Turkish earthquake in 1940. He was wounded at Dunkirk when he went out with one of the "little ships."

FAMILY HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM COAL GAS

Windsor, Nov. 7 —(CP)— A family of four narrowly escaped death Tuesday night, police said, when Novw Sitler awoke to find his wife and two children overcome by escaping coal gas fumes from a stove.

He threw open the windows and called police and firemen who gave the victims inhalator treatment. None suffered serious after-effects.

Little Hope Held For Injured Man

Hamilton, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Little hope is held by hospital officials for the recovery of a 41-year-old man who gave his name as Hubert Fontain and was found wandering on the corridors of Hamilton General Hospital early Wednesday in a dazed condition and with a stab wound in his back. He is suffering from peritonitis from the wound.

Hamilton police said they are checking on the possibility he might be the 42-year-old Charles Fontain who left hospital at nearby Simcoe early Monday after being taken there for treatment. A search has been carried on for this man since.

The man in hospital here said he was attacked in a bottling establishment here Sunday night and robbed of $108. He could not recall where he had been in the interval.

ARRESTED AFTER SHOOTING

Havelock, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Carl Gillman, 45, of Rittman, O., was arrested near here last night on a charge of criminal negligence in connection with the shooting Tuesday of Sydney Hoard, 36, a guide. Gillman, member of a hunting party, was taken to Peterboro.

Hoard died soon after he was shot while leading a party of hunters from the United States. It was alleged Gillman fired the shot that killed the guide. The accident occurred in Methuen township, about 25 miles north of here.

After 28 Years of Service Tanker to Be Scrapped

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)— After 28 years of service, on every ocean, six of them during the past war with highly inflammable cargoes through submarine-infested waters, the Trontolite, an Imperial Oil tanker will be scrapped, the company announced today. Crew members called her "The Lucky Ship" as time after time she narrowly missed enemy attack including one voyage when her propellor was damaged by ice and she was unable to sail at full speed.

Better Treatment For Policemen, Roebuck's Plea

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Senator Arthur Roebuck echoed the sentiments of Gilbert and Sullivan's famed lyric, "a policeman's lot is not a happy one!"

Speaking at a Toronto Police Association banquet last night Senator Roebuck took time to rbemoan the fate of the poor policeman who, he said, should receive better treatment than the average worker. The policeman's pay and long hours are manifestly unfair.

Too, police officers should receive medical treatment and time off when ill at the city's expense, Mr. Roebuck concluded.

HAVING LONG RECESS

Chatham, Nov. 7 —(CP)— The Chatham Board of Trade Tuesday night passed a resolution suggesting to all merchants that their staffs be given a recess from 10:30 a.m. to noon Nov. 11 to permit them to attend memorial services at the cenotaph here.

Board members said they believed attendance would be larger at the services if the city did not observe a general Remembrance Day holiday.

Says U.S. Strikes Threaten Peace Of World

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)— Eugene Meyer, President of the World Bank, declared today that United States strikes are threatening the world with economic starvation and thereby endangering the peace.

Mr. Meyer called present American labor relations "disastrous".

Citing mining and factory production losses and stressing the potential effects on "a fresh stoppage of work threatened in the coal mines," Meyer asserted in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science:

"I say emphatically that the crucial importance of continuous full production for our own welfare and for that of mankind the world over cannot be exaggerated.

"We Americans who but recently showed our sympathy for the people of the world by sharing the products of our fields must now become aware that this the winning of the peace . . . economic starvation threatens

"If we had not had many of these stoppages of production, we could have helped the rest of the world by self-rationing."

Cheaper Electrical Appliances Will Be Available Soon

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—Cheaper imported household electrical appliances, ranging from radios to kettles, soon will be available on the Canadian market, the Price Board said today. This will result through adjustment of ceiling prices on 25 imported items.

Last July new mark-ups were set for 600 items of metal goods, but household electrical appliances were not included. This now is being extended to appliances and until retailers make application and receive their new price—approximately 10 per cent lower—no imported appliances may be sold.

The appliances include: Radios, phonographs, percolators, washing machines, stoves, toasters, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators, waffle irons, heaters, grills, chafing dishes, deep freeze units, heating pads and blankets, irons, juice extractors, kettles and hot plates.

Many-Colored Heels For London Belles

London — (CP)— Suburban Cinderellas are more likely to leave colored heels behind them at midnight than glass slippers this season.

The latest fashion, introduced by a shoestore in the suburb of Burnt Oak, Edgware, is interchangeable to match each dance frock.

Thrifty women, who feel one warm white coat is worth three pairs of evening shoes, will still be able to get a bit of glamor by experimenting with three-pairs of heels to one dance slipper bargains, and may even try a harlequin effect with one heel red and the other blue.

THREE MEN RELEASED

Rawalpindi, Nov. 7 (Reuters)—After serving three years of a 40-year jail sentence for being "enemy agents," Ganga Singh, Sohau Signh and Sadhu Signh were released here today by order of the Indian interim government. The men parachuted into Bengal in October, 1943, as messengers of the late Subhas Chandra Bose, the Indian National army leader.

Officials and Salesmen of Brown Bread Co. Attend Banquet Here; $30,000 Distributing Plant Opened Commemorating the official opening of the company's new $30,000 distributing plant at 164 East Moira Street, Belleville district salesmen of the Canada Bread Company were hosts to fellow salesmen and company officials at a banquet held in the new building on Wednesday evening.

Special guests at the function were salesmen of the Oshawa and Peterborough districts with some 77 in all being in attendance. Company officials present were Mr. A. V. Loftus, general manager, Toronto; assistant general manager, W. Antliffe, cake factory manager, Gordon Prowse, Toronto, and manager of the bread division, Edward Cross, also of Toronto.

The out-of-town guests were taken on an inspection tour of the new distributing centre and later were entertained by a troupe of dancers, singers and magicians from Toronto under the direction of Ken. Butler.

Members of Christ Church Ladies Guild, under Mrs. Theobald, catered to the guests.

Brief addresses were given by officials and it was pointed out that the company branch here had increased its business five times since it began operations in this district nine years ago.

The guests were formally welcomed by Mr. George Meades, local manager of the company.

Chairman of the occasion was Mr. J. F. Holloway, manager of the Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough districts.

No Truth in Talk of Using Cariboo for Dinner Tables

Winnipeg, Nov. 7 (CP)—C. W. Malaher, acting director, games and fisheries branch of the Manitoba Government said today talk of capturing 100,000 head of caribou for a 1,000,000 pound animal meat supply is "absolute bunk."

"Barren land caribou in the truly northern economy are a vital necessity. If they do not follow their normal course of migration, it sometimes brings starvation to people who depend on the herds for food," he said.

Meanwhile, the migration of elk from Riding Mountain National Park to farmlands in surrounding districts, has ended, Otto Heaslip, park superintendent, said.

The animals were reported last week to be trampling unthreshed grain fields near Russell and Angusville in the northwestern section of the province.

Mr. Heaslip said the migration was a natural move on the part of the animals and was not due to increased pressure from wolves, shortage of feed in the park area or overcrowding.

"We had 20 inches of snow here early in October and this started the herd moving into the lower country," he said.

It is not known whether fewer animals returned to the parks than left. No one will admit shooting any of the animals but butchers in the area report they are selling little fresh meat. One meat packing traveller said he had never sold "as little" meat in the district as he had in the past week.

It was reported some farmers were considering sending a protest to Resources Minister Glen, complaining about "government wards" damaging their crops.

'MAID OF MIST' RECORD

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 7 — (CP) — The Maid of the Mist, world-famous Niagara River cruise ship plying the lower river at the base of the cataract, today broke a 61-year record for the longest season in operation. The little steamer never before sailed after Nov. 6. It is estimated that nearly 500,000 persons from all parts of the world, are carried each season on the vessel to view the cataracts from below.

CHEMICAL INVESTIGATION

Dublin, Nov. 7 (Reuters)—The Eire government decided to appropriate £500,000 ($2,000,000) to enable the Irish Industrial Alcohol Company to investigate the practicability of manufacuring industrial chemicals in Eire, Sean Lemass, Ministry for Industry and Commerce told the dail (parliament) last night.

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP) — President Truman has appointed Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt a member of the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Glad He Did It Says Reeve

Strathroy, Nov. 7 (CP)— In effect, Reeve MacKinlay said "I did it and I'm glad" when criticized by fellow councillors for sending the town's fire truck to welcome home the victorious Strathroy baseball team from a recent game. Councillor McDonald's suggestion to avoid a repetition of the occurrence—a municipal band.

Heavier Christmas Parcels May Be Sent to U.K. Kin

Ottawa, Nov. 7 —(CP)— A brighter Christmas for the overseas relatives and friends of Canadians is envisaged by Canadian postoffice authorities, who announced today that this year heavier gift parcels may be mailed. In addition the specially reduced postage rates still apply to mail for the armed services.

The public is urged to mail Christmas parcels for overseas as early as possible. For letters and parcels to the Continent Nov. 18 is the closing date. Parcels to the United Kingdom should be sent by Nov. 25, and letters by Dec. 2.

Gift parcels weighing up to 20 pounds now may be sent to individuals in the United Kingdom. There no longer is any restriction on the quantity of any one food which may be sent in such a parcel, and these parcels no longer are restricted to one a month from a sender to the same addressee. The articles are subject to British customs regulations.

Total value of the contents of parcels sent either to the United Kingdom or other countries without an export permit must not exceed $25.

Postal officials urge mailers to pack parcels firmly in strong corrugated containers, wrapped in several folds of thick wrapping paper and tied with strong twine.

HEN MUST BE PROUD

Sudbury, Nov. 7 (CP)—A hen with a conscience on a farm at nearby Hanmer, after producing an egg the size of a pecan-nut, went back for another try. The following day even the hen was surprised at the size of the result of her efforts—an oversize egg as big as two normal ones.

Fined For Knocking Over Mail-Boxes on Hallowe'en

London, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP) — Aftermath of Hallowe'en was the plight of two Westminster county youths, Delbert Fisher and Oscar Genttner, who paid $50 and costs yesterday for knocking over 25 rural mail-boxes on the festive night.

Certain 1946 Used Cars Rate Higher Prices

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Prices Board announced today any one selling a used 1946 model car which was delivered new to a dealer on or after Oct. 1 may ask the maximum price allowed for a used 1947 model.

Board officials said the ruling was made because manufacturers still were producing 1946 model cars in what normally would be the 1947 model year, which began Oct. 1.

The ruling does not apply to sales of used model cars which were delivered new to a dealer prior to Oct. 1.

Nova Scotia Stamp Sells for $360

London, Nov. 7 (Reuters) — A rare Nova Scotia one-shilling (20 cents) stamp brought £90 ($360) at a dealers' auction here yesterday.

The stamp, printed in 1851, incorporated the Royal Crown and heraldic flowers of the United Kingdom.

Looking at Bank Of Gravel Youth Is Crushed to Death

Regina, Nov. 7 (CP)— James Vancha, 20-year-old Regina youth who looked up at the 50-foot overhanging bank of a gravel pit and said: "Gosh! but that sure would bury a fellow deep," was crushed to death a moment later yesterday when the bank collapsed upon him.

Vancha, who was hauling gravel from a pit at Pilot Butte, 10 miles east of here, was waiting to have a tire of his truck repaired when workmen warned him he was standing in a dangerous spot. As they spoke a small slide buried the ground about him ankle-deep. Before he could move an estimated 100 tons roared down.

His body was recovered 40 minutes later.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE FIRST LECTURE FOR THOSE WHO MISSED IT.

HIROHITO, MERE MAN NOW, PROMULGATES JAPAN'S NEW "NO WAR" CONSTITUTION

Japan's new constitution, outlawing war as an instrument of national policy and placing sovereignty in the people, was promulgated by Emperor Hirohito who may be seen in circle at LEFT, hat in hand, with a flying wedge of cops in front of him. Before he renounced his "divinity" Hirohito could walk the streets unguarded. None would dare approach his sacred person. The Japanese turned out en masse to celebrate the coming of the "new Japan." At RIGHT is a view of part of the crowd of celebrants.

HELICOPTER LANDS ON POSTAGE STAMP

A navy helicopter, piloted by Commander C. E. Houston, is shown after making a perfect three-point landing on a huge replica of a five-cent airmail stamp at Yonkers, N.Y. The commander hands a sack of U. S. mail to Yonkers Postmaster William Cronin. The occasion was arranged for the celebration of national airmail week and Yonkers' 300th anniversary.

Sales were few when the flue-cured tobacco market opened in Norfolk County yesterday, because cautious growers hesitated at selling on the first day and missing possible chances of higher offers, but squads of buyers toured the area seeking to pick up Norfolk's part of Western Ontario's $35,000,000 crop. On the left is shown the beginning of the buying process, with D. E. Kearney, a buyer, of Montreal, talking the market over with Cyriel Bahula before making an offer. A sale was made just before the picture in the centre was made. Karl Pusman, on the left, is shown signing on the dotted line after accepting the offer of J. Robertson, Leamington, right. It was Mr. Pusman's first crop on a farm he bought this year and he was pleased with a price of 37 cents a pound. On the right, Gustaaf Arnou, one of the few district growers who had started stripping his crop, is shown adding another bale of leaf to a growing pile.

"BIG FOUR" FOREIGN MINISTERS OPEN HISTORIC MEETING

This historic meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers, presaging a possible new era of peace for the world, is pictured at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, at the start of their sessions on the eastern European treaties and Germany. Standing before the flags of the four nations are, LEFT to RIGHT, French Deputy Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville; British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin; Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, and U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. By some mischance, Mr. Byrnes is assigned (in the picture) the seat of the representative of the U. S. S. R.

CROWDS CLAMOR FOR SIGHT OF ROYALTY AT GALA FILM SHOW

Their Majesties the King and Queen attended the first royal gala film show at the Empire Theatre, Leicester Square, London. After seeing the film, "A Matter of Life and Death," Their Majesties were entertained to a stage show by more than 40 "big names" of the British and American film world. Crowds gathered outside the theatre 10 hours before the show was due to start and hundreds of police were on duty to control the crowds and to prevent mobbing of the stars. Their Majesties the King and Queen, followed by Princess Elizabeth, are seen in this informal scene surrounded by guests in the foyer of the theatre on arrival for the show.

ESTONIANS DANCE SONG OF JOY AND HAPPINESS

Following President Truman's announcement that the 48 refugees, 47 Estonians and one Finn who landed in Miami, Fla., in small boats after braving the dangers of the Atlantic, would definitely not be deported and would in "due course be given immigration visas, which will enable them to remain in this country," the refugees break out in song and dance to celebrate the occasion. They are dancing, here, to the tune of their native song, "The Tuljak," a song of joy and happiness.

NEHRU JOINS IN PLEA FOR PEACE THROUGHOUT INDIA

Violence flared in Bombay as two Hindoo and two Moslem leaders of India's interim government appealed jointly for restoration of peace throughout India. The four issuing the call for an end to the Moslem-Hindoo disorders were Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the predominantly Hindoo All-India Congress; Sardar Vallabhai Patel, Congress leader; Liaquat Ali Khan, Moslem league secretary, and Sardar Abdur Rab Nishtar, league official. HALF-MILLION DOLLAR BLAZE DESTROYS CANNING PLANT

Florida's citrus industry suffered a severe blow when a fire destroyed the $500,000 canning plant of the Bordo Products Co. at Winter Haven, Fla., recently. This view, taken from the air, was made at the height of the blaze, showing columns of thick, black smoke rising from the ruins of the plant. One man was fatally burned in the fire. Bordo's is one of Florida's largest canning plants. Nine hundred employees were without jobs because of the blaze.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Forget About "Love" and Just be Friendly With Both "Perplexed"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 years old and deeply in love with a boy now in the service. I went steady with him for a year and nine months. I know he loved me, but now that he is in the service I don't know if he still loves me. He has been in service seven months and last month he wrote saying that it was better to break up. The reason he said was because he had been told I had been stepping out on him. Well, I did go out on a date once with a friend of mine, on friendly terms of course, but I still love the other one and wish he'd take me back. We still write to each other on friendly terms.

There is a sailor who loves me very much. He came on a furlough not long ago and I went out with him. He asked me to be his girl, but I don't love him. Should I try to forget the one I love and try to learn to love the sailor?

Perplexed

Don't try to "learn to love" anybody right now, "Perplexed". You're only confusing yourself more with so much talk about "love". You'll get along much better if you just make up your mind you'll stick to the "friendly terms" basis with all the boys for awhile, without worrying about whether you ":love' any of them or not.

Your boy friend in the service ought to realize that it's fair for you to go out and have a good time with other boys while he's away. Perhaps he felt bad because he heard about your going out from somebody else. Tell him frankly in your letters about what you're doing and he'll probably feel all right about it.

You'd be Silly to Elope With This Girl, Sailor!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About three weeks ago I met a very nice young lady. After a few dances and dates we fell extremely in love with each other. I asked her to marry me and she said yes, but because of my being a sailor, her Dad wouldn' let her marry me.

She is willing to elope, but I'm afraid to, as her father would probably make her leave home. I ship out in a month and wish you would let me know what to do.

C. E. A.

The only sensible thing for you to do, Sailor, is to let things ride until you've known this girl much longer. I certainly don't blame her Dad for not wanting her to marry a man she's only known about three weeks. I rather doubt whether his objections are based solely on the fact that you're a sailor. It's much more likely that he feels a marriage based on nothing more substantial than "a few dances and dates" would be risky business. I certanly think so myself. I think you'd be a sorry couple in a short time if you did anything as foolish as eloping.

I'm sure this girl's father won't object to your corresponding with her while you're away, and coming to see her when you get back. And if, after a reasonable length of time, you both still think you want to get married, and you have solid and substantial plans for taking care of a wife, he would doubtless be quite willing to take the thing seriously. As things stand now, he is only showing good sound sense in opposing any such get-married-quick scheme as you two impulsive young people have in mind.

Should She Take This Alcoholic Husband Back?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married 12 years and have four boys.

All week long my husband would be sober, until pay day. Then he would get drunk and go right through his week's pay unless I met him every week to get it from him. This went on for 11 years.

Now I have gotten a legal separation, but people say I'm crazy, as my husband says he will prove to me that he will act right, and he says he really has seen the light. He is getting exra money, and he says if he wasn't going to act right, he didn't even have to tell me this.

So do you think I'm right for not taking him back, as people say four boys need a father, and a mother can't manage them?

"C. H."

Has your husband been behaving himself for any length of time, "C. H.", so that you have any reason to believe he has really changed and will do better in the future? I think you should not go back to him until he has stayed sober and acted right toward you for a sufficiently long period to convince you that he is a different man. Since you have a legal separation, it would be foolish to take up life with him again on the evidence of a mere week or so, for, if you have no better proof of a changed situation than that, you might have to go through more trouble to get away from him again.

Why not set a definite time limit—say six months or so—and tell him that if he carries his change of heart through that period, you will give him another chance? If he's not willing to do that, you'll know it wouldn't have lasted long anyhow.

Prettying Up the Eyelashes

By HELEN FOLLETT

DEMOUNTABLE eyelashes are fun for special occasions, but do not fancy that you can put them on yourself. It takes a beauty specialist to turn this pulchritude trick. Silky fuzzers are placed among the home grown shafts, then clipped to the right length.

For daily living, it is better to produce a fine crop of winkers of your own. It can be done. Apply mineral oil night and morning, frictioning it lightly into the lids. You'll be surprised.

Deeper Coloring

To give deeper coloring, use a bit of mascara. If you like it in solid form, dip the brush in water, shake off the surplus, pass the brush over the coloring agent groom the lashes upward to give them a tilt. No mascara on the lower lid, if you please You might possibly shed a pearly tear and then how would you look, with muddy streams flowing down your cheeks?

Anyhow, it isn't necessary. You'll look lovely and provocative with just the upper fuzzers treated.

A thin film of eye shadow coming down close to the lashes, extending only to the far terminals of the forehead scimitars, will fix you up pretty for the merry evening.

Keep Well

The best way to keep the eyes bright—sparkling eyes head the list of good looks items—is to keep well and strong, to get plenty of sleep, to eat wisely so you won't have tummy upsets, to cultivate an animated mind.

Women who love to laugh, who have a keen sense of humor, have interesting eyes. Shape and color won't matter so much if the eyes send forth pleasant messages. A jolly nature not only brings radiance to the face, but oils the wheels of life, makes the going easier.

GOOD MANNERS

Only Friends of Bride-to-be Invited to Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be my cousin's maid of honor, and three weeks or so before the wedding I would like to give a shower in her honor. Mother and I are disagreeing as to whom to invite. I think I should invite only friends of the bride-to-be, but Mother thinks I should invite my friends also, that is, girls who have never met my cousin. What is correct.

Pam

You are right about this. Friends of the bride-to-be should be the only ones invited to a shower. A shower invitation carries with it the request that a guest bring a gift, and it is not proper that someone who does not know the guest of honor be requested to bring a gift to her.

Dispensing With an Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My daughter is planning to be married, but she is not going to receive an engagement, ring, because they have decided to use the money toward furnishing their home. Could such an engagement (that is, when there is no engagement ring) be announced, and if so in what way? Also, under these circumstances would bridal showers be proper?

2. My daughter and her fiance are of different faiths, and they are to be married in his church. She is to wear a suit. Would a reception after the ceremony be proper in this case ,and if so, what plans should we make?.

Reader

1| An engagement ring is not at all a "must" in announcing an engagement, and the announcement of your daughter's engagement may be made in any of the ways correct for making this announcement when there is to be an engagement ring. The simplest way is for your daughter and her fiance to tell their relatives and friends and to write notes to those who live at a distance: after which you and your husband may if you wish (it's not necessary) send an announcement of the engagement to the newspapers. You and your husband may give an engagement- announcement party (this also isn't necessary). And yes, indeed, bridal showers may be given for your daughter. As a matter of fact, all the engagement-procedure is the same as if your daughter had an engagement ring.

2. Yes, it would be correct to have an informal reception after the ceremony: at your house, if possible, and if not, in a hotel suit or assembly rooms.

When Several Children Send Invitations to Golden Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father are to celebrate their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary next month. We are a large family, all married, and in moderate circumstances. We would like to celebrate this occasion with Open House. Should we send invitations, or just announce it in the church and lodge?

E. D.

This Golden Wedding is such an important and significant occasion that I suggest you send special invitations to all relatives and friends of your mother and father. When the invitations are to be sent out, as in this case, by several children, this is a practical form to use:

In honor of the Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Robbins their sons and daughters request the pleasure of your company on Tuesday, the first of December at four o'clock
Two Home Place

Please reply to (name and address of the one selected to receive the replies)

These invitations may be engraved, or printed, or written by hand on large, plain white cards, and they may appropriately be stamped or written with gold ink. Besides sending these invitations the event may also be announced in the church and lodge| These invitations, besides being a golden prologue to the party, will be cherished souvenirs of the party.

BEAUTY

Fingernails Respond to Care

Do not fancy that when you flick the polish on your fingernails you are doing your full duty by them. The nails are subject to change, the same as any other part of the human composition. They can become brittle. They can collect hangnails. They can lose natural coloring. They respond to petting. Surely any good-looks quester can spare a little for their well-being.

The little pink shells that protect and ornament the fingers are ambitious growers. Within a week or ten days they are ready for reshaping. The new structure pushes forth in overlapping scales, so tiny that they form a satin-smooth surface. They emerge from the matrix, which is a soft substance hidden away under the flesh at the nail base. Care must be taken that the matrix is not injured. An injury may mean that the new growth will have ridges, be unsightly.

Even the orangewood stick, when used there, should be employed gently, the flesh lifted, rather than forced back. It is necessary to keep the cuticle free so it will not creep up on the nail and thicken, finally breaking into shreds. Hangnails are painful and invite infection, and an infected nail is a danger.

Before lifting the cuticle, the flesh should be softened by a warm, soapy scrubbing with a small brush. Rinse the suds away; dry and apply a cuticle cream. If no cream is at hand, mineral or olive oil can be substituted. The flesh then is soft, in condition for treatment.

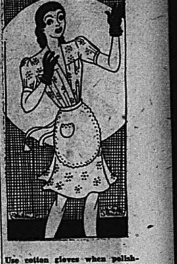
Fingernails are colorless and transparent. The color is supplied by the blood vessels in the underlying flesh. Rosy talons signify good circulation, are inclined to be in a healthy, normal condition. If they are pale, it is a wise idea to friction them for a few minutes every night after an application of cream. Cream will not disturb the polish, so do not worry. You can put cream on polish with no bad results. But don't put polish on an oiled surface; it won't stick worth a cent.

Brittle nails may be due to a diet deficiency. Not enough calcium, possibly. The human machine needs calcium, especially for the health of the teeth; that is why every adult should drink plenty of milk.

Protect the pretty sheaths against dirt and grime that will, in time, cause them to lose the delicate appearance that is their chief charm. Use cotton gloves when polishing furniture or silverware. Have a fresh dust cloth on hand once a week. Don't forget that hands and fingernails sometimes grow old before faces. Be good to them and they'll look good to you.

PASS THE BLOTTER

Coffee or tea stains on tablecloths will not stain if blotted immediately.



Use cotton gloves when polishing furniture, or silverware

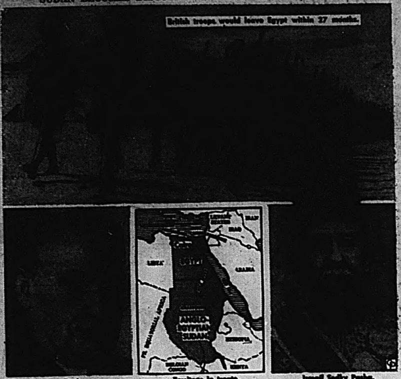
SUDAN BECOMES DISCUSSION POINT IN NEW EGYPT PACT



British troops would leave Egypt within 27 months.

Bevin — Territory in treaty. — Ismail Sedky Pasha.

Delays in finalizing the new treaty between Great Britain and Egypt, which calls for withdrawal of British troops from Egypt, are said to be caused by wrangling over status of the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan. An announcement by Egyptian Premier Ismail Sedky Pasha that his country would be given control of the Soudan was quickly denied by London where British administration of this vast territory is considered essential in new defence plans which will link Nigeria, the Soudan and Kenya in a belt to replace Egyptian bases for defence of the Suez Canal and Britain's Near East interests. Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin recently discussed the new pact with Ismail Sedky Pasha in London.

Rawdon

64th Anniversary

Rawdon (Special)—Springbrook United Church celebrated its 64th anniversary with Rev. A. W. Harding of Eganville, a former pastor as guest minister. In the morning he chose as his theme "Loyalty to Your Church" and at the evening service he based his message on "Service".

Large crowds of worshippers attended both services and the Thankoffering was five hundred and sixty dollars.

At the morning service a beautifully bound pulpit Bible was presented to the church in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thompson who were faithful members of the congregation for many years.

The Bible, which is replaced, had been in use for thirty-eight years and was the gift of Mr. T. . Thompson at the time of the .5th anniversary of the dedication of the church.

The altar was banked with ollages and mums.

The choir, under the able direction of Mrs. Jonn McKeown rendered several anthems and Mrs. George Williams contributed a soprano solo during the morning service. The day was ideal and a large number of relatives and friends of the congregation attended and were entertained in different homes of the community.

Frankford

Frankford (Special) — The Frankford United Church held anniversary services on Sunday, Nov. 3rd. Mr. Morley Clark, a former Frankford boy, who is studying for the ministry, was the guest speaker for the day. He delivered two very inspiring sermons. His subject for the morning was "The New Government." In the evening he chose "The Churches' One Foundation" as his topic.

Special music by the choir and the male quartette comprised of A. Southworth, H. Slingerland, F. Ketcheson and E. Wallace with Mr. J. Salmers organist and choir leader at the organ, contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the services. During the morning service a baptismal Font, donated by the Young People's Society was dedicated in a short service conducted by the pastor Rev. H. H. Lackey.

Hallowe'en Party

The students of Batawa and Frankford took a keen interest in the Kinsmen shell-out project which ended on Hallowe'en night with a party in the school at Frankford when each child attending was given a treat in keeping with the spirit of the day. The Frankford Chamber of Commerce donated special prizes for the costume parade. Those winning prizes are as follows. fancy dress boy, Richard Pierce; fancy dress girl, Lois Smith; comic boy, Douglas Armstrong; comic girl, Marilyn Spencer; original girl, Sandra MacDonald; original boy, Arthur Rogers; youngest girl, Cheryl Kemp, 22 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kemp; youngest boy, Peter Horcica, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horcica 2 years and 5 months; best dressed couple, Donald Kidd and Helen Acker.

The judges who had the task of picking these winners from the numerous costumes were Miss Palmer, Mrs T. Armstrong anc Mr. J. Day.

Prizes were also given for the sale of the Kinsmen tickets. Billy Carter won first prize, John Bennett second and Marjorie Lockwood third.

The Bata Company provided a free movie show for the kiddies and also bus transportation for the Batawa children to Frankford. Those in charge of arrangements included Kinsmen Art Duncan, JJames Day, D. Briscos, Alex Shestowsky, the members of the Frankford and Batawa school staffs and the Batawa Shoe Company.

FANS THINK BLUE BOMBERS IMPORTS ARE REAL SMART

This Year's Edition Not to be Dismissed Lightly Say Experts

By JACK VICKERY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Nov. 6. (CP)—There aren't as many as in other years and their names—so far at least—may not be bywords in Canadian Rugby but Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Western Canada Football Champions, have their share of United States imports.

And if you ask some of the veteran Bombers who have played beside imports of past seasons and the 1946 crop—Wally Dobler, Bill Ordway, Don Hiney and Martin (Butch) Gainor, the latter making a second debut in the Bombers' Blue and Gold—this year's edition is not to be dismissed lightly.

Dobler came here from Curtis Bay Cutters, Hiney and Ordway from North Dakota's 'Varsity squad and Gainor from a line-coach job under est.

There are plenty of western fans who will back Dobler against such former passing aces as Russ Rebholz and Art Stevenson. Many of them think he can match pass for pass with Argos' Joe Krol and that's no mean compliment.

Winnipeg, in title-years, has always had solid quarter-backing. Bob Fritz, former Concordia star, led the 1935 squad to victory and although Dobler is not the plunging type of Fritz; his passing, kicking and open field running leaves little to be desired.

Ordway, at blocking back was assigned to the difficult task of "tagging" Calgary's stellar end, Hal Harrison, in the Western play-offs. Ordway is a sure tackler and solid blocker.

Hiney, at 24, the youngest import, has played at quarter, half, and although only 155-pounds, fills in at fullback.

Butch Gainor's record speaks for itself. As Dobler will lead the offensive, so Gainor will head the defensive power at tackle. Bombers have been consistently strong in the middle of the line, having Bert Oja and Herb Peschel, two former American stars, holding this spot in the West's first victory since 1935.

Manager of Cards To be Welcomed By Houston Fans

By The Canadian Press

They're going to make it a great occasion today in Houston, Texas, when 46-year-old Eddie Dyer, local boy who made good as manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, comes home. Today has been proclaimed Eddie Dyer day in Houston and about 600 Texans—baseball cronies and other friends including Texas Governors-elect Beauford Jester— will gather at a dinner to extoll the popular mentor.

Eddie said yesterday the whole thing is a "thrilling climax" to his first year as manager of the Cards.

The exclusive Jockey Club, in a report published in the current New York issue of the Racing Calendar, gives notice it has ceased to recognize the German Stud Book and will not register horses purchased or requisitioned by the U.S. army from German individuals and war authorities.

Statistics compiled in the United States show that there have been 15 football deaths so far this season. Two have occurred in college football, two on sandlots, two on athletic club teams and nine in high schools.

An overtime goal last night by Paul Rheault gave Regina Capitals a 3-2 win over Edmonton Flyers in a Western Canada Senior Hockey League game.

At Sydney, Australia, Adrian Quist, Jack Bromwich, Dinny Pails and J. Brodie yesterday reached the semi-final round of the New South Wales tennis tournament.

Dutch Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., led at the halfway mark of the 45th annual North and South Open Golf Tournament at Pinehurst, N.C., yesterday. His four-under-par 68 enables him to post a total of 140 and take a one-strike margin over veteran Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N.Y.

What's Doing in Sport

By JIM McCURDY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Promoters of junior hockey on Canada's west coast are wearing long faces these days — and with apparent good reason.

For the last three years enthusiastic sportsmen here have dug deep to get the kids started but obstacles kept cropping up and more so this year than before. Now it's reached the point where doubts are being expressed if the coast's five-year junior set-up may survive the season.

Crowds, or rather, the lack of them, is the big headache. The first game in usually sports-minded Vancouver produced a meagre 300 fans. In New Westminster, they play collection-on-Sunday affairs but the amount is far from sufficient to meet expenses. Only in Nanaimo does the game pay, probably because there is no senior hockey played. Two thousand fans turned out there last time.

Two teams in the loop are homeless. The University of British Columbia splits its home games between Vancouver and New Westminster for lack of a rink of its own, while the Victoria club only plays on the road. The Victoria rink burned down in 1943.

Johnny Clark, one time goal tender for the Vancouver Lions and the Detroit Red Wings, has given freely of his time to Vancouver juniors besides coaching several juvenile and midget teams. Harry Porter, secretary of the league, has also been untiring in efforts to get the youngsters going here.

What's Doing in Sport

In Nanaimo, arena-manager Nat Bevis and Dr. Larry Giovando, prominent in western Canadian horse racing circles, have done a lot to help make the juniors.

In New Westminster, it is such men as Eldon Seeney, local commissioner of the junior league, and Doug Grimston, president of the B. C. Amateur Hockey Association, who have kept up the fight.

The U.B.C. entry, backed by Alma Mater funds, is coached by Frank Frederickson, while the Victoria Club is still an unknown quantity.

When the question of putting forth a representative in the Memorial Cup chase comes up, the league officials feel that they will have a club to give the eastern teams a battle next season.

Regina, Nov. 7 —(CP)— The sight of a professional hockey player dashing about a tennis court gladdens the hearts of the Saskatchewan Tennis Association to a point where it is pressing the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association for a revision of its "mildewed" rules banning professionals from amateur tennis tournaments.

Hopes of a favorable reply from the C.L.T.A. are not high, however, as the Dominion body recently expressed unhappiness over the visit of Don McDiarmid, Canada's No. 1 tennis man, to these parts for an exhibition series last month. The C.L.T.A. didn't hear about the event until it was over.

The Regina Tennis Club has replied to a query about McDiarmid's expenses on the trip but the C.L.T.A. is still silent.

The rule-changing thrust of the Saskatchewan group stems from the situation which prevailed during the 1941 provincial tourney when Bill Cairns, then making winter money with St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League, teamed with an amateur to take the Saskatchewan doubles championship. Cairns now plays with the Saskatoon Elks of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

The C.L.T.A. could not have heard of the event for no one involved has yet been "branded" a professional.

The only Canada-United States amateur basketball league got under way at Moose Jaw- Sask., last week when the Regina Army and Navy Vets defeated Moose Jaw Jesters 29-18. The picture becomes international next week-end when the Peerless, (Montana) Pirates arrive to jostle with the Jesters.

The five-team International-City League which also includes Plentywood and Scoby, Montana, was formed this year. The Saskatchewan teams have made exhibition forays into Montana in previous years.

The league executives are mulling the possibility of swinging into the big-time with an international play-off with teams of the professional international groups of the West Coast and the 11-team Basketball Association of America in the East.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 7 (CP)— Three years ago a navy office on Midway Island, tinkering with the dials of a short-wave radio set, heard an announcer intone the melancholy words: "Army 59 Notre Dame 0." . . . This week, trading officer's braid for football moleskins, Francis William Leahy has a coach's seat on the sidelines as the new Notre Dame team bids for revenge against a reasonable facsimile of the club that trounced the Irish so humiliatintly in 1944 . . . Painstaking, 38-year-old Leahy, once a Notre Dame star himself, always came up a winner against the Cadets in his pre-war regime at South Bend (after Elmer Layden and Knute Rochne))but this time the experts agree it may be different.

Old Vs. New

The issue, which will be disputed before 78,000 wild-eyed fans in Yankee Stadium Saturday, boils down to this: Can Notre Dame's "retreads" young players whose careers were abridged by the war, muster enough collective strength to hold an Irish team that has been playing as a unit for three years? Can they, for instance, throw a noose around Glenn (Junior) Davis and Felix (Doc) Blanchardt?

Hold Out For a Yacht

Whatever happens, it should be a football thriller . . . Tickets are so scarce that Johnny Lukack, Notre Dame's name player, can't scare up a ducat for his kid brother . . . Brokers and agencies are advertising in the newspapers but they're not selling, they're buying . . .or trying to buy . . . One fanatic offered an automobile or an apartment to get a look-in at this clash between the might of the mid-west and the elite of the east.

No Chance For Western Mustangs

Though the United States college championship almost certainly hinges on this game— which army coach Earl (Red) Blaik insists is the most important in gridiron history—there aren't any play-offs here as in Canada . . . The colleges play in and out of their own leagues—"conferences," they call 'em—and the team with the season's best performance comes out on top.

Sock Exchange

Dan (N. Y. Daily Mirror) Parker, a sharp customer at "in-fighting" in any league, threw a couple of mean left jabs at the management of a local arena . . . The preliminary bouts ended at 9:25 p.m. because of a couple of swift knockouts, says Parker, but the main bout didn't go on until after 10 p.m. because of the management's radio commitments. So the customers sat waiting half an hour.

RAY ROBINSON K.O'S LEVINE IN TENTH ROUND

Unofficial King of Welters Flattened for Nine Before Winning

By FRITZ HOWELL

Cleveland, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, unofficial king of the welters, today had a sore hand, an aching jaw, something more than $12,500, and his 49th kayo victory in 75 professional fights.

He flattened Artie Levine, Brooklyn middleweight, in 2:41 of the 10th round at the Arena last night before a crowd of 12,102.

The New York Negro dug himself out of the resin after being floored for a nine count in the fourth stanza by a left hook to the jaw, weathered a couple of other flurries, and then battered his foe into helplessness with only 19 seconds to go.

It was Levine's first knockout defeat in 60 professional bouts.

In the torrid fourth he crossed a right to Robinson's jaw, and the New Yorker sagged into his own corner, covering up in a deep crouch. As the Negro straightened up to fight his way out, Artie's left snakes over to the point of Robinson's jaw.

Ray hit the deck head first and staggered up, still groggy, at the nine count. But as Levine dashed in for the kill, Referee Jackie Davis pushed him away.

About 18 or 20 seconds elapsed from the time Robinson went down, but that was ample time for Robinson's head to clear.

In the 10th, Robinson jolted his left to Levine's midsection, and backed him against the ropes. Levine, helpless from the body blow, grabbed the top strand and refused to do down as Robinson rained rights and lefts to his head. Levine finally sank to the lower rope and was counted out.

Robinson, at 150, gave away 9 1/4 pounds to Levine.

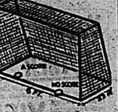
RINK EQUIPMENT

Rinks must install regulation goal nets. One type of official C.A.H.A. goal net (shown in the drawing appended) has a covered top extending 17 inches from the goal post to the back bar on a line, and extending at the base along the ice 22 inches from the goal post.

Note: Another type of goal net adopted as official by the National Hockey League and also recognized as a regulation net by the C.A.H.A. is the "Art Ross" net.



GOAL — HOW SCORED

(b) A goal shall be scored if the puck is put into the goal in any way by a player of the defending side.

(c) If an attacking player kicks the puck and it is deflected into the net by any player of the defending side, except the goalkeeper, the goal shall be allowed.

(d) If the puck shall have been deflected into the goal from the shot of an attacking player by striking any part of the person of a player of the same side, a goal shall be allowed, but the goal shall not be allowed if the puck has been kicked, thrown or otherwise deliberately directed into the goal by any means other than a stick.

(e) Should a player propel a puck into the goal crease of the opponent club and the puck should become loose and available to another player of the attacking side, the puck shall be considered in the crease legally and any goal scored on the play shall be a legal goal.

Mogard Decisions Ainsworth In Special Bout of Boxing Card Sponsored by Optimists

One of the Best Shows Given at the Hume Arena This Season

By C. D. T.

Under the auspices of the Optimist Club boxing has become a major sport in this city due to the splendid card that was presented to a near capacity crowd at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night. The bouts were well matched, there were no delays between bouts and the boxers showed their best wares. Seven bouts were presented, the special attraction being the meeting of Don Mogard of Toronto with Tiny Ainsworth of Cobourg and Mogard was given the nod in one of the fastest, cleanest and hardest-hitting scraps that has been seen in this city in a long time. The bout was strictly class and many a Toronto promoter would have been pleased to have it as a main attraction for Massey Hall.

In the main bout of the evening Tony Acerra from this city earned a draw with hard hitting Keith Prosser of London, a lad who made Acerra say "Uncle" at their last meeting. In the special attraction Mogard carried the fight to Ainsworth, had more punching power and was able to move a little faster in close quarters. Both boys can hit but Mogard saved his hardest punches for the infighting. Ainsworth had reach and height on Mogard but was able to come in under a tantalizing left to hook and jab his way to victory. There was not a semblance of a knockdown excepting in the third round, when Ainsworth showed his best and rocked Mogard with a couple that had him hanging on but he weathered the storm to come back and beat out a decision.

Crowd on Edge

Several flurries had the crowd on the edge of their seats but Mogard seemed to have the "little" more when the going got tough. He appeared to be in better condition than his opponent but both were tired boys at the end of the fifth round. Acerra was up against a boy who held a knockout over him but he fought a steady, game fight and once appeared to be in. Acerra did not have the speed of his opponent but hit harder punches at long range. He flicked a left jab that had Prosser cagey and when he was rocked a couple of times did not take too many liberties being content to let Acerra carry the fight to him. His counter punching was excellent and had the claret running from Acerra's nose toward the end.

In the semi-final joust the referee stopped the fight in the third round when Dafoe was bleeding profusely from a cut lip. Cardinal of Oshawa took a count of nine in the first round, when Dafoe landed with a stiff right to the stomach but from there in he was always on top. He had reach and height on Dafoe and stood straighter and his punches carried more weight. Dafoe was inclined to crouch and in so doing lost track of his adversary and when straightening up was generally caught flush on the button with a punching right or left. Referee Miles awarded the fight to Cardinal at the start of the third when he considered Dafoe not in shape to continue and it went into the records as a technical knock out.

A Grudge Battle

Billy Graham of Toronto and Joe Wilson of Belleville had a grudge battle with Graham being declared the winner in three rounds. Wilson had a lethal left but was always pulling it and missed many opportunities to sink Graham's ship. At the midway mark of the contest the boys stood toe to toe and battled it out, but Graham had too much savvy especially in the infighting and the roughing along the route. The referee was criticized for allowing the boys to rough it so much and not break clean but neither was hurt to any extent in this type of milling.

Carl Clapper of this city did not have enough tricks for Ernie Majurie of Toronto and the Queen City Boy took the decision in three stanzas. Majurie had a great pull in the weights and used his height and reach to advantage. Clapper shook his opponent up with a couple of hard smashes to the midriff but did not have the reach to register on the target. Emmerson Charles of Cobourg eked out a decision over Mike Baker of Toronto but the margin was slim. Charles hit th ehardest but Baker had a little more experience and better footwork. Despite this advantage the Toronto boy could not make Charles back up and his aggressiveness probably won him the match.

Held to Draw

In the opening bout Art Duby of Belleville and Gus Rubicini of Toronto fought a draw in three rounds and it was a popular decision. As was said before the bouts were well handled and the Optimist Club with their matchmaker, Jack Devine, deserve a great deal of credit for the fine evening of entertainment, that was presented. The bouts were handled by Harry Miles as referee with Eddie Lee, Harry Robinson and Bert Wells as judges and Maurice Callaghan as Master of Ceremonies and announcer. Johnnie Lloyd handled the bell.

Minor Hockey To be Increased In Province

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 6—(CP)—Harold Luke of Oshawa, today confirmed reports of one of the most comprehensive programs for the advancement of minor hockey in Ontario that has been seen in some years.

Luke, president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, said the O.M.H.A. executive has decided to operate a midget C series, will consider operation of a juvenile D series for centres of 1,000 population or less if sufficient interest is shown between now and the annual meeting, and will definitely operate a bantam "C" series as soon as the bantam series has enough entries to warrant splitting up the "under-15" series.

A further step in the comprehensive expansion program that has seen the O.M.H.A. grow from four series and 78 teams four winters ago to eight (possibly 10) series and more than 200 teams is the decision to encourage "pee wee" hockey for lads under 12.

The Minor Association will present championship crests to the winning team in each pee wee town or city league in Ontario.

All that is necessary to qualify for these crests is to notify the O.M.H.A. that such a league is operating.

Last season the O.M.H.A. donated free hockey sticks to every new bantam team. This year, despite the stick shortage, president Luke announced that his organization will present free sticks, not only to new bantam entries, but to new midget teams.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Rapid Robert Feller, smokeball artist of the Cleveland Indians won't end his days selling apples on the street corner, or occupying a memory seat in a home for aged broken-down ball players. For Mr. Feller is a shrewd business man and that right flipper of his should be known as the Golden Arm.

• • •

As you know, Feller earned $80,000 for himself with the barnstorming tour which he personally conducted, and which recently ended here. He makes $50,000 per year as his regular salary. But here is a small item about Feller you do not know.

• • •

During the regular season, when the Cleveland team was playing in Washington, the Bureau of Standards had a gadget it uses for calculating the speed of bullets. Clark Griffith was prevailed upon to ask Feller to throw through the contraption—called a chronograph—and Griffith, owner of the Washington club, consented to put on the test before one of the Cleveland-Washington games.

• • •

Griffith didn't ask Feller if he would lend himself to the test. He took it for granted that Bob would cheerfully accept the assignment. So Griffith realizing that the idea was attractive from a crowd-pulling point of view, gave the scheduled test a generous splattering of publicity. Just before the test was to be made and with the chronograph set up at home plate, and Griffith Stadium packed, Griffith told Bob to go out and throw away at the instrument.

• • •

"I will," said Feller, "for one thousand dollars."

Griffith thought Feller was kidding. But Feller wasn't. He demanded and got $1,000 on the spot. He threw five pitches into the chronograph for the $1,000 fee.

Pete Beach's Albert College senior gridders won the Bay of Quinte southern section of the COSSA on the school gridiron yesterday afternoon defeating the B.C.I. squad by a 17-10 score. The college lads led by a score of 11-0 at the end of the first half which was featured by Johny Lill's 90 yard run for a touchdown. The Albert kids showed a clear superiority in the "croocial" game and will go on to meet the northern champions. The winners will play off with the winners of the Lakeshore group.

• • •

Albert has a well-balanced squad and should go places in the COSSA playdowns. They have showed excellent form thoughout the season under the fine coaching of Johnny Hayman, Western University basketball star and coach. Johnny has done a fine job with the college team and has whipped it into shape that does not augur so well for playdown opposition.

• • •

A late report today stated that Albert has been named champions of the Bay of Quinte section since it was learned that the northern group will not play off this year. Stirling and Marmora meet in the first game of the northern playoffs on Friday with the second of two home and home games to be played the following week.

• • •

John Shaw's Chess Club is attracting plenty of interest these Friday nights with eight or ten experienced players taking part in the weekly games. There is plenty of room for more players, according to John, while beginners will be made welcome and taught the rudiments of the pastime. Mr. Shaw has donated a handsome trophy to the club and present plans call for a tournament in the near future.

• • •

There was action par excellence at the Hume Arena last night where the Optimist Club of this city made its debut into the sports realm with one of the best boxing cards ever staged here. The bouts were excellently handled and a large crowd saw the fisticuffers in action. The Optimists have started off on the right foot, and their initial success last night is a bright augury for the future. The fights were clean, there was good matching and the fans got their moneys worth. Let's have more bouts like these. If the service clubmen hand out the same calibre of boxing fare to the faithful in the future they need not worry about the success of the venture.

Secretary Frank Feaver of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association has released the names of the softball champions of Ontario for 1946. Here they are: Senior A—Toronto Tip Tops; senior B—Toronto Firefighters; Inter. A—Sault Ste Marie Esquires; Inter. AA—Hamilton Rogers Bros.; Inter. B—New Toronto Canadian Legion; Inter. C—Meaford Fergusons; Junior A — Toronto Lizzies; Junior B—Orillia Clippers; Juvenile A — Toronto Fairview Aces; Juvenile B—Jordan-Vineland Lions.

The season just passed, according to Feaver was one of the most successful in the history of the association, with the largest number of affiliations in years. Requests for 1947 affiliation have already been received which bodes good for the success of the sport next year.

• • •

Any league, or association with two or more teams may, if so desired, affiliate directly with the OASA, he points out. Feaver also calls attention to the next annual meeting of the association which is being held on Friday April 4, 1947 at St. Catharines. The objective for the conclave is 100 voting delegates. It is quite likely the Belleville Softball Association will send two or more representatives to the annual get-together.

Vern "Jumbo" Goyer has been refused permission to play with the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts by the powers that be of the ORFU, according to the big fellow. He played one game this season with the Toronto Argonauts and received his official release from that organization. Later he joined forces with the Ghosts, but the moguls have decried "No football soap". The reason, no one appears to know. Goyer tried to make the team of the Trenton Flyers, the nearest ORFU squad, but they apparently had no spot for him.

Donald Dinnie was undoubtedly the greatest Scottish athlete ever known, and among Scots his fame in that line is as firmly established as that of Robert Burns is among poets. Born at Aboyne, a village in Aberdeenshire, in 1837, he was noted from boyhood for his enormous strength. He took part in Scottish games when in his teens and surpassed all-comers. He remained in the forefront for nearly 50 years, touring Canada and the United States on several occasions, and during his career he won 10,000 medals and cups, besides a small fortune in cash prizes.

• • •

He threw the hammers, tossed stones and 56-pound weights, wrestled and despite his weight, was a fine jumper. He was also the greatest caber thrower ever known.

• • •

On one occasion he was at the famous Braemar gathering, near Balmoral Castle, in the role of a spectator. Several men gave a special display at tossing the caber for the benefit of the Prince of Wales, but failed to turn the huge trunk of a tree over. Enraged at their incapacity, Dinnie rushed out onto the field, lifted the caber and threw it over as if it had been hurled by a tornado.

• • •

It was at this gathering on one occasion that an old woman asked a neighbor: "Which of those men is Donald Dinnie?" On him being pointed out to her she said: "I've walked many a mile this day to see Dinnie. Noo, I'm satisfied and I'll die happy." Such was the hero-worship of Donald Dinnie. N

LACHINE RAPIDES SQUEEZE WIN

Lachie, Que., Nov. 7. (CP)—Lachine Rapides squeezed out a 8-7 win over Verdun Eagles in a Provincial Hockey League game here last night.

Andy Perron paced the Rapides with three tallies while teammate Smiley Meronek nicked a pair and Bernard Vinet, Les Ramsay and Don Maher sniped one each. Conrad Bourcier and Gerry Gagnon sank two goals apiece while other Eagle scorers were tiny Tamminen, Reed and Baillargeon.

The Eagles held the advantage in the first stanza when their forwards freewheeled around the Lachine nets. Vinet opened the scoring for Lachine after 28 seconds of play, but the visitors came back to Nick two goals before the period ended on efforts by Conrad Bourcier and Jerry Gagnon.

Smiley Meronek tallied early in the middle session for the Rapides and Verdun replied with another goal by Bourcier. The home team tied the score late in the period when Les Ramsay picked up McCurry's pass to rifle a shot past Paul Lessard in the Eagle's nets.

The penalty-studded third period was the most productive with Lachine scoring five goals and Verdun four. Smiley Meronek sank the tying goal at the 15-minute mark and teammate Andy Perron gave the Rapides the game two minutes later when he scored on Bobby Morin's pass

TORONTO TEAMS TIED FOR FIRST IN JUNIOR LOOP

St. Michael's Defeat Stratford and Young Rangers Take Falcons of St. Catharines

(By The Canadian Press)

Well out in front of the pack, two Toronto teams — St. Michael's Majors and Young Rangers — were tied in first place of the Ontario Hockey Association's junior "A" series today. Playing a double bill before more than 5,000 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens last night, both Toronto squads scored decisive victories and gave the home city folks something to shout about.

Meanwhile at Hamilton another tie developed. This time it was a second place hook-up between Hamilton Patricias and their city rivals, the Tigers. The Pats went to town 6-2 over Stratford Indians in a senior O.H.A. tilt last night.

The Majors with two previous wins to their credit, made it 7-1 over Stratford Kroehlers on top of a 7-2 win over the same team in Stratford Monday night. Rangers defeated St. Catharines Falcons for the second time, making it 5-0 last night after their 8-7 squeeze-out in St. Kitts last Saturday.

Both teams now have 8 points — St. Mikes having participated in one four-point game against Windsor last weekend as well as two regular two-point tilts, and Rangers having played 2 games both for four points.

St. Mikes Show Form

It was the first junior hockey of the season at the Gardens and St. Mike's showed the championship form with two tallies in the first period; one in the second and four in the last. Montreal's Fleming Mackell and Rudy Migay tallied twice each for the Majors while Don McLellan, Bob Paul and Les Costello nabbed the others. Robertson beat Howie Harvey in St. Mike's nets in the third stanza for the only Kroehler tally.

Young Rangers opened all the stops in the last period of the nightcap and came up with four goals. They managed to get a singleton in the first stanza on Harry Tidherney's effort at 19:45. Then a slow second period was followed by some lively hockey in which Billy Ringer, Gord Cruickshank, Hugh Bolton and George Drysdale tallied in that order while goalie Don Irons earned a shutout.

The Pats looked impressive in their win over the Indians as Ken McNaught completed a hat trick, scoring once in each period. There was some sensational goaltending on both sides, but Tommy Smelle, Comfort and Gluck added Pat goals to assure the victory. Zuk and Phillips were the Stratford scorers.

On Friday two senior games are slated: Toronto Staffords at Owen Sound and Tigers vs. Pats at Hamilton. Young Rangers meet Barrie in a four-point junior tilt that night.

Minneapolis Millers Defeat Tulsa Oilers

(By The Canadian Press)

Minneapolis Millers defeated Tulsa Oilers 5-3 last night and Houston and Dallas settled for a 2-all tie in the United States Hockey League.

Moe White of Houston scored the only first period goal against Dallas. Gerry Bellamare and Squee Allen gave Dallas a brief one-goal lead with two markers in the second, but Adams tied the count again for Houston and the game went into a scoreless third frame.

Minneapolis ran its string of defeatless games to seven by downing the Oilers in a third-period spurt. Forgie and Gasparini gave Millers a first-period advantage and Kelly, Malnyk and Lane counted the other three. May and Taylor scored for Oilers in the second frame and Ubriaco scored their final counter in the third.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert should be thankful for a run of hard luck he had. A flock of his finesses once went wrong. He got mad and learned the strip-and-endplays. Now, he avoids taking so many losing finesses.

With a finesse staring you in the face, look first for a strip-end. It is usually there in some form if you can find it and have the time and material to develop the necessary steps.

This requires the exhausting of suits. It requires throwing an opponent into the lead for a return that you desire. It needs some information as to which opponent can be thrown into the lead.

In planning such a stunt, you know the hand from which you need the return lead. Can you force that hand to take a trick? In most cases you know this ahead of time. Like in this deal:

NORTH
♠K 6 4 2
♥9 6 5 3 2
♦A
♣A K 4

WEST
♠Q 10 9
♥Q 10 8
♦J 10 9 5 3
♣10 8

EAST
♠8 7 5
♥J
♦Q 8 6 4
♣J 9 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠A J 3
♥A K 7 4
♦K 7 2
♣Q 6 2

As declarer, you are south in a contract of six hearts. The lead from west is a diamond. This does not give you much information. At least none that will do you much good for planning.

Dummy ace wins the first trick and you take two trump rounds with ace and king of hearts. When east shows out, you know west has the trump queen. You know you can enter west with a trump.

To save your contract, you must must not lose a spade trick. To make sure of this, you must get a spade lead from west toward your south A J. So, you look for relief by a strip-end.

First strip. Take the diamond king and trump a diamond. These plays clean your slate in that suit. Then take three clubs. West may trump the third club. If not, lead a trump.

In either case, you are clean in clubs and diamonds when west is in the lead with his trump queen. He must lead a diamond or a spade. You have him on the hip.

An opponent must bow to a strip-end; and how!

Rawdon

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Rawdon (Special)—On Thursday afternoon Miss Audrey Robson and the pupils of the Allan school entertained twenty adults at a special Hallowe'en party. The school was nicely decorated with witches, goblins, black cats etc.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver played a march while the pupils in costume paraded. The prize winners were: original costume—Eleanor Smith as a milkmaid; comical costume (tramp)—Ray Sharp; small child, (cat)—Ina Scott.

The judges were: Mrs. F. Spencer, Mrs. S. Demorest and Miss Doris Sine.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presided and the following program was given by the fourteen pupils:

A Hallowe'en chorus; recitation "A Safe Plan" by Ina Scott; recitation 'Nothing to be Afraid Of' by Walter Wrightman; grades one, two and four delighted all present with a song; grade seven gave a dialogue entitled "Which". This was a choice between doing mean things on Hallowe'en or having fun at a group party. The juniors contributed an exercise—"In Jack-o-Lantern Row"; George Scott recited "If You Don't Watch Out"; Miss Betty McConnell contributed a piano solo which was followed by an exercise entitled "Jolly Hallowe'en"; The school sang a musical dialogue; Lola McConnell gave a recitation "Jack-o-Lantern". The program closed with the pupils rendering "O Canada". The accompanists were Shirley McKeown, Ruth Linn and Betty McConnell.

All enjoyed a number of games with Marguerite McMullen winning the apple eating contest.

Little Benny's Note Book

Mrs. Mansions came to see ma again this afternoon to talk about their class reunion, ma being Chairman of the Committy, and after supper she said to pop, William, I've hit on quite a novelty for the class reunion. As Chairman of the Committy I was determined to lift the reunion out of the old hum drum rut and give the gerls something to talk about. Naturelly there's no excaping from the same old speeches and school songs, but at least there's a chance for novelty in the dinner menu, and that's where the big serprise will come in, she said.

If you give them all a big juicy steak they'll be plenty serprised, pop said, and ma said, Now William dont mention the impossible. I've got the menu all made out, I'll read it to you, she said.

Which she did, being Oyster cocktail, Olives and cellery, Bisk of tomata soop, Creem chickin and shoestring potatoes, Salad; Strawberry shortcake, Coffee, Salted Nuts and candy.

But yee gods, that sounds like a carbon copy of all the class banquet menus since the beginning of higher education, pop said, and ma said, But William, that's just it, you can imagine their dissappointed faces falling when they read the same old story on their menu cards, and then low and behold the waiters will bring in an old fashion Dutch supper of sourkraut and frankferters and big steins full of gingerale for those that do. Dont you think that'll be a real novelty, William? ma said.

To say the least, pop said, and ma said, Then you mean you think it's a good idea.

I'll go as far as to say it's an idea, pop said.

Saying it in back of the sporting page.

Losing Fight With Six Beaver

Dixon, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP)— Farmers in one section of Lee County put in a call for help from the State Department of Conservation after waging a losing fight with six busy beaver. The beaver first dammed up drain pipes, laid to carry off excess rainfall. After the farmers unstopped the pipes the beaver moved to another point and dammed an entire drainage ditch and water backed up for a mile. The Conservation Department assigned a crew to trap the beaver.

General Duty Nurse

By Lucy Agnes Hancock

CHAPTER 3

The patient in 415 was suffering from biliary diabetes and was now in a critical condition. His skin was yellow as saffron and he was weak and inordinately depressed. He had been in the hospital six weeks and already three nurses had been on the case succeeding each other at two-week intervals. The three girls met in Sally Maynard's room one afternoon following the first night of her handling of the case. Sally who had slept until 3 was dressing to go out for a walk before dinner.

Norma Holden sat stiffly on the window seat. Her mouth was sullen and her eyes stormy. Somehow in spite of the girl's obvious enmity for Sally Maynard, she persisted in haunting her presence.

"Don't try to tell us you don't mind 415, Sally Maynard," Dora cried. "Even if you say so I wouldn't believe you. Nobody could possibly endure much less enjoy that old reprobate."

"I don't understand how you got it, Maynard," Norma broke in, her tone bitter. "Yours are mostly hand-picked cases. It's the rest of us who draw the untouchables."

Margaret Adams saw Sally's face change as Norma talked and admired the girls self control.

"Mr. Fowler isn't an easy case,' she replied. "But the man is suffering and terribly uncomfortable. It seems to me that when we, who are nurses and particularly well, realize something of what the patient is enduring, it should make us forget the unpleasant phases— make us eager to help him."

"Spoken like a true follower of Nightengale," jeered Norma, getting to her feet. "I'll leave you disciples of the noble Flossie to your devotions and go some place where the air is less rarefied. 'Bye. See you at dinner." The door closed after her and the remaining three stared silently at each other for a long moment before Dora Bronson spoke.

"Don't mind Holden, girls," she advised evenly. "She's got a bad case of internitis. She's gone completely goofy over our irresistible Doctor Hildaire and I say devoutly: 'God help her!' She hasn't as much chance there as a mushroom in one of Mrs. Billing's ragouts or whatever she calls them. And while we're on the subject of food," she went on "my stomack is empty. Let's go out somewhere and eat."

"Let's go to Lowe's," Sally said "We'll have time to make it there and back before 7."

"These weekly binges sort of make up for the routine meals we get here, don't they?" Margaret Adams said. "Here I eat because I have to—not because I really enjoy eating. See what I mean?"

Dora's roguish eyes surveyed the ample waist of the older nurse and she grinned. "You look well nourished, Maggie," she said.

"I'm not really overweight for my height," Margaret countered. "Maybe five pounds or so, but I need every one of them the way I work."

"You're just right," Dora said contritely and laughed. "There we go again—admiring each other, and I don't think it's good for us. Makes us self-satisfied and insular."

"Speaking of self satisfaction, girls," Margaret said. Have you noticed Doctor Hallock lately? What's become of his complacency? The man looks worried and almost unhappy. I wonder what's happened." Her eyes searched the lovely face of Sally Maynard for a moment before the girl hastily turned to search for something in her desk. She had been avoiding Doctor Hallock since the day he had taken such unfair advantage of her.

"I had'nt noticed," Dora said, in reply to Margaret's remarks. "Maybe it's Holden. You know she's mad about him and somehow I can't see him falling for her. Can you?"

Margaret shook her head. Sally made no comment and continued her search. At last she said, her face still averted: "Run along. I'll be with you just as soon as I find that letter."

Instantly alert, Dora asked, "It couldn't by any chance be from Blair, could it Sally?"

"Blair is dead," Sally replied and thought: Now I suppose I'll have to tell more lies.

"You're not sure," Dora pointed out. "Missing doesn't necessarily mean dead. He may be a prisoner somewhere."

"And who is this Blair, if I may be so bold without offence?" Margaret demanded, looking from Dora's inquisitive face to Sally's bent figure.

Dora clapped her hand to her mouth. "Gosh, Sally!" she cried "I'm sorry. But why don't you tell Maggie, too?"

"There's realy nothing to tell," Sally replied, coming up for air and minus the letter for which she had been, ostensibly, searching. "A man I know was lost in the Pacific area at the beginning of the war. Nothing has been heard of him since. That's all."

"All!" cried Dora. "You left out the best part—the only part that counts. They were lovers, Maggie. She was practically engaged to this Blair—something or other. Anyway, he went to war and never came back. And in consequence, our Sally intends devoting her bruised and broken life to good works."

Margaret was watching Sally in wonder. So that was the explanation of her aloofness. A dead lover. Well, it made sense, in a way. "I wonder if that's what ails Hallock," she asked herself.

The walk was invigorating and the three girls reached the popular restaurant before the rush hour. The waiter seated them at a table near a group of windows facing the street and took their orders. Sally, who sat with her back to the room, heard Margaret gasp then smile a greeting and looked up to see Doctor Carolyn Bacon, Lintonville's only woman physician, enter with Doctor Hallock,

The newcomers spotted them at once and came over to speak.

"Having fun?" the young physician asked, her smiling eyes on Sally.

"We just got here," Margaret explained.

"Not much fun while we're still starving," Dora said. Sally said nothing. She smiled at Doctor Bacon, avoiding the young interne.

"This is certainly an unexpected pleasure!" Doctor Hallock said beaming on them impartially. "I see you have a sizable table. Why not join them; Doctor? Mind if we do?" he asked somewhat belatedly. "Have you ordered? Why not let this be on me? I shall be only to happy—" as he drew out Doctor Bacon's chair then sat down beside Sally.

"Dutch!" Dora explained succinctly.

"But see here—" he began and Margaret interrupted to ask dryly:

"How long since internes had money to squander on three or four hungry females, Doctor Hallock? Fallen into a fortune lately?"

The young man shook his head.

"Not exactly," he replied. "But I'm solvent, and it isn't often I have the good fortune to catch my favorite doctor and three favorite nurses together at the right time. What are you having? I'll have the same. How about you, Doctor?" and at her shrug of indifference he turned to the hovering waiter and said: "Make that order five."

"I still say Dutch," Dora reiterated stubbornly. She wished it had been Bill Tyler instead of this Hallock the staff was so goofy over.

"And I say Dutch," Margaret seconded and turned to Sally who nodded and repeated:

"Of course it will be Dutch."

"Have a heart, girls!" Carolyn Bacon cried. "Can't you see the poor lamb has set his heart on treating you? You'll kindly notice I'm not objecting."

"That's all right. You're his guest. He invited you," Dora pointed out. "With us—it's Dutch."

"Dutch," said Margaret.

"Dutch it is," Sally agreed and for some reason felt sorry for the man whose pleasant face changed color. Carolyn Beach shook her head at the girls. But Dora wouldn't give in and Margaret sided with her. He turned to Sally and said quietly:

"Marcia Allison sent you her love Miss Maynard. She is looking splendid and, from her manner, is living in a blissful world of her own."

"Of course," Sally said and was glad when their dinner came. She wished with all her heart this man where somewhere else. When he moved his knee pressed hers and she felt the hot blood in her cheeks. Once or twice she saw the enquiring look on Margaret's face and noticed the smile of understanding or could it be sympathy in Carolyn Bacon's keen blue eyes? Was he remembering that stolen kiss, she wondered.

Doctor Bacon rose at last pleading an engagement and perforce the young man left with her, although she begged him not to. When they were out of earshot, Dora muttered: "He certainly had his nerve barging in on our party. Who does he think hes is anyway?"

"Oh, he did it to be friendly," Margaret soothed. "He considers himself one of the family."

Sally said nothing.

"I wonder if that will be a match," Margaret mused as they left the restaurant. "I heard he was rushing her."

"You did?" Dora asked, her blue eyes wide with interest. "That's news to me. Did you know that Sally?"

"I heard it," Sally said.

"But she must be years older than he is," Dora went on.

"What are a few years one way or the other?" Sally said. "Anyway I don't think Carolyn Bacon is thirty—and he must be nearly that.

Margaret sighed. "Lovely, isn't she? I wonder how she keeps her figure so trim and tylish," she spoke almost enviously.

Probably diets to a fare-you-well," Dora suggested. "They tell me one doesn't mind it after the first five years. The stomach has grown so small it doesn't crave much food. Imagine that! Not for me!"

"I don't think it takes five years," Sally pointed out glad of the change of subject. She didn't want to talk about Jim Hallock or Carolyn Bacon either and certainly not as posible lovers. Somehow the "binge" that had begun so auspiciously had soured. She was anxious to get back to the hospital and to work. She quickened her pace and the others followed her example.

Sally had gone up to the hospital roof for a moment's relaxation. She leaned against the wide parapet and stared at the vista of hill and lake spread out below.

A hand on her arm brought her around with a start. The roof was deserted.

"Why have you been avoiding me lately, Sally?" Doctor Hallock demanded quietly. "Of course I respect your feeling regarding your dead fiance but you were young—very young then. You couldn't have really known what love was. And anyway, do you think he would want you to refuse to be friends with other men—to wrap yourself in memories and not face life? I very much doubt it. Don't be foolish, Sally. You're young. be happy."

"Please don't!" the girl cried trying desperately to keep back the tears of shame. Oh, why had she ever resorted to such subterfuge? And why couldn't people let her alone? "You don't understand—you can't know—"

STOMACH UPSET: FELT DIZZY HAD MANY SLEEPLESS NIGHTS
Gas, Heartburn, Indigestion Was Getting Worse From Day to Day. Often Couldn't Eat, Says This Woman. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.
"In the past year my stomach was in a very badly disordered condition and I don't know what I would have done had it not been for Syntona," said Mrs. Conrad Rahn, 174 King Street West, Hamilton, Ont., in a recent report.
"I got so that I couldn't eat, because even the lightest foods brought on suffering from gas and indigestion. My stomach would become bloated and I would belch up hot, sour liquids and feel sick and nauseated. Gas pains and spells of heartburn followed almost every meal. Many days I got dizzy feelings with spots darting before my eyes. My tongue was always coated and I spent many a sleepless night due to my condition. I began to feel very tired and everything seemed such an effort to me.
"I had heard a lot about Syntona helping other people and finally I decided to try some and truly this medicine seemed to be made just for me. Almost from the first few days, I could tell that my food was digesting better. As I continued taking it, the gas and bloated condition cleared up, my food stopped souring in my stomach and I found I was able to go from one meal to the next without heartburn.
"Now I am able to eat regularly and I relish my meals once more. I am keeping free of dizzy spells and I sleep well at night. As a result of this you can imagine how much better I feel generally and I can truthfully say I think Syntona is a grand medicine."

MRS. CONRAD RAHN
Rely on Syntona, the pure herbal medicine which acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Drives excess acids and impurities from the system which often cause gas, indigestion, dizziness, nervous irritability and rheumatic aches and pains. Many people have said that soon after taking Syntona the whole system seems to take on new feelings of renewed strength and energy.
Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Twelve Contestants in Public Speaking Contest Will Seek District Honors

Winners in the public speaking contest sponsored by the South Hastings Educational Association will be decided at Queen Alexandra School on Friday evening when a total of twelve contestants, three each from Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Frankford schools, will compete for district honors.

Semi-finals in the public speaking contest were held in the various schools earlier this week with the winners being eligible for the finals competition in Belleville. Winner of the contest will be awarded the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater public speaking trophy, while second and third place winners will receive gold medals from the county warden. Additional prizes of books and cash will be awarded by the South Hastings Educational Association.

Other Awards.

In addition to the public speaking contest will be the presentation of the Warden's Medal to Miss Marjory Alford of Roslin for having the highest marks in entrance examination papers for the South Hastings district last summer. School ground improvement certificates by the Ontario Horticultural Society will also be presented to S. S. 5 Sidney, S. S. 20 Thurlow and S. S. 10 Tyendinaga, for showing the most improvement in their school grounds during the year.

President of the South Hastings Educational Association, Mr. Brooks Allen, of Marysville, will act as chairman for the evening's program when association officers for the new year will be elected. Two persons from each township will act as judges in the public speaking contest.

NO SUGGESTION

The Senate division stood at 51 Republicans and 42 Democrats, with the Democrats leading by comfortable, if not decisive, margins in three contests not yet settled.

Thus Mr. Truman presumably could not count on substanial minority support in both houses if he elects—as some of his advisers are certain to urge him to do—to enlarge and resubmit the legislative program which Republican-Democrat coalition hacked to pieces in the 79th Congress.

There was plenty of evidence that there is some dissatisfaction within the party on the score of Mr. Truman's leadership.

Immediate reaction abroad to the election results appeared to be a belief that the Republicans' return to power means a sharpening of differences between Russia and the United States.

FORMER

With a chuckle he added: "I only saw him (Dr. Swierz-Zaleski) about once a month when he came to me to be paid. Often Polkowski came with him."

Did Not Know Details

At the suggestion that it seemed likely he would be told details of the treasure and of passwords and receipts when he arrived here as minister, Dr. Babinski shrugged his shoulders again and said: "It was not that way."

He added: "I am not a cultural man and Dr. Swier-Saleski is. He appreciated the value of the treasures because he had been their custodian at the museum in Krakow and when they were brought to Canada. They were his responsibility."

A report that Polkowski now lived at the large, comfortable Babinski home in fashionable east-end Sandy Hill was not true, the former minister said. He had not seen Polkowski for some time. The house formerly was the Polish legation.

Dr. Babinski, once a professor at Warsaw University and Polish minister to Holland in 1939, said he had not been home since before the war. He did not wish to return as long as the country was administered by what he called a "puppet, Russian-dominated" government.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Individual stocks got back on their feet today although many market leaders continued to stumble.

Wednesday's reaction was extended at the start in relatively active dealings. There was a subsequent rally led by rails. Offerings again cropped up around mid-day and extreme advances running to two points or so were reduced or transformed into minus marks near the fourth hour.

Erratic movements of cotton and rayon futures which weakened and revived at intervals apparently inspired speculative and investment caution for shares.

Canadian stocks rallied at midday from yesterday's decline. McIntyre gained ½, Distillers Seagram ⅞ and Canadian Pacific ¼. Dome Mines slipped ⅜ and Hiram Walker was unchanged.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—The market was easy in the early stage and trading dull, giving turnover of only 755,000 shares for the first three hours. Index losses .11 to .62 were recorded for all four groups. The price tone improved in the early afternoon, trailing the stronger New York market.

Louvicourt, Regcourt, Osisko and Donalda were leaders in the early afternoon action.

The stronger base metals included Sherritt, Denison and Waite-Amulet. In the western oils Home and Calgary-Edmonton were down narrowly.

The utilities and steels displayed mild weakness and other industrial groups showed little change. Donnacona Paper and Great Lakes Paper dropped a point or more.

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Hull $20.25 delivered, unchanged at Brantford $20.35 delivered, unchanged at Stratford, to farmers $20.15, to truckers $20.30, in markets reporting early today.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Cattle prices were generally unchanged in trade on the livestock market here up to mid-session today. A few weighty steers brought $12-$13.50, butcher steers $11-$12, boners $8-$10, butcher cows $7.75-$10, canners downward to $5.50, fed yearlings $12-$14, stockers $9.50-$11.

Calves were steady $15-$16 choice with plain heavies downward to $10.

Lambs were steady at $14.50 - $14.75 good ewes and wethers with bucks $1 cwt. discount.

Sheep were steady $4-$8.50.

Hogs were steady, dressed, grade A $20.50, grade B1 $20.10, sows $18.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Nov. 7. (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

Eggs: Receipts up slightly, dealers buying cautiously, steady, wholesale to retail, A large 50, A medium 48, A pullet 45, B 45, C 34; country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free, A large 49 1-2 to 50, A medium 47, A pullet 43 1-2, B 43, C 30-31.

Butter: Prints, first grade 42, second grade 41, third grade 40; first grade solids 40, second grade solids 39, market firm, offerings light.

U. K. Not to Reduce Standard of Living

London, Nov. 7. (CP)— The British Press Association said today Britain has decided not to reduce the present standard of living at home to give more food to the Germans. The decision was reported as discussions began on Germany's threatened Winter famine.

Detroit Tie With Boston Bruins And Chicago Win Over Rangers Tighten Race in Major Loop

Bruins Draw Even With Leafs for First Place With Chicago in Third Spot

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In the words of Art Ross, taciturn manager of the bruising Boston Bruins, "We may not be winning many hockey games, but we certainly arent' losing many."

What Art's considered verdict when asked how he thought his Bruins looked shortly after they played their fourth draw of the young National Hockey League season at New York a week ago. A spot of dusting, and it was bright as new for use today.

The Bruins did the dusting themselves at Detroit last night by playing their fifth deadlock in eight starts against the Red Wings. The other two are victories and the eighth a loss. They gained the split on a third-period goal by Joe Carveth that ended the scoring at 3-3.

Coupled with Chicago Black Hawks' 6-2 triumph over New York Rangers meanwhile, the split in points at Detroit took another hitch in the standings, already tight as drumskin.

Bruins in Tie with Leafs

The Bruins now are in a 1st-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, each with nine points, while Detroit is in the cellar just three points behind. Chicago's victory hurdled them into a third-place tie with New York, with the champion Montreal Canadiens close behind in fourth position.

The only game tonight matches Chicago at Canadiens at Montreal and a Black Hawks victory in this way could establish possibly an N.H.L. precedent, lifting them all the way for a tie for last place to a tie for first in two nights.

The Canadiens, by the same token, are gunning for this one to better what they consider a far too humble position in life for Stanley Cup champions.

Although the Hawks may be jaded a little by the 500-mile scramble from Chicago to Montreal, their showing last night indicated a top-conditioned team. Playing before 16,504 loyal Chicagoans, they grabbed a 3-1 lead in the opening period and notched three straight tallies before Rangers replied.

The Pony Line — Doug and Max Bentley and Bill Mosienko — each tallied once while the other Chicago goals went to Eddie Wares, George Johnson and Pete Horeck. For Rangers, Brian Hextall opened the scoring at 4:41 of the first period and Neil Colville closed it at 18:05 of the last.

Come from Behind

The smallest hockey crowd of the year at Detroit's Olympia, 11,368 paid, saw the Bruins twice come from behind to tie the Wings, spotting them two goals at one stage.

Two players who joined their clubs in off-season trades figured prominently in the scoring foa each team. Billy Taylor, the league's leading scorer whom Detroit got from Toronto for Harry Watson, notched two goals for Wings. Carveth, who fired the final tying tally went to Boston from Detroit in a deal for Roy Conacher.

Herb Lindsay fired the other Detroit goal while Woody Dumart and Bep Guidolin completed the Boston scoring.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

By The Canadian Press

Billy (The Kid) Taylor, Detroit, who scored twice as Red Wings tied Boston Bruins 3-3.

ROCKETS ON WAY TO ESTABLISHING DOUBTFULRECORD

Only Won One Game and Have Had 83 Goals Scored Against Them

(By The Canadian Press)

Despite one of the finest goal tenders in the game, Nick Damore, Philadelphia Rockets of the American League are well on their way towards establishing a new loop record for most goals allowed in a single season.

The Rockets, who have won only one game and lost 10, have been scored on 83 times, an average of more than seven a game.

Damore was obtained from Hershey shortly after the start of the season and has been scored on 48 times in seven games. Maurice Courteau started the year in the nets for the Rockets and allowed 26 goals in three games but also kicked out 151 potential scores in the same number of tilts.

Hershey picked on the Rockets to move into undisputed possession of the Eastern leadership last night by romping to a 7-2 victory. The score would have been higher if it wasn't for Damore who cleared 48 bear shots.

The Bears scored in every period and thus broke their first place deadlock with the New Haven Ramblers, who were idle.

Pete Slobodian scored twice for the Bears, while Ferd Flamon, Jack McGill, Gordon Bruce, Lloyd Gronsdahl and Paul Ronty all scored once. Roland Foroet and Leo Richard counted for the Rockets.

In the Eastern Division Cleveland Barons downed Providence Reds 6-3.

The Barons tallied twice in each period with Johnny Holota clinching the decision by counting twice in the final session.

Pete Bessone, Billy McComb and Johnny Chad gave the Reds a 3-2 advantage at the end of the opener with Roger Gagne and Lou Trudel scoring for the Barons. Pete Leswick and Bobby Walton scored for Barons in he second frame.

Pittsburgh's Hornets remained a point behind the Barons by trimming Springfield Indians 5-2, in the loop's other game. Wally Wilson ended the Pittsburgh scoring with his 10th goal of the season with less than six minutes to go.

Other Hornet tallies were made by Armand Lemieux, Mel Hill, Jerry Langelle and Dutch Hillier. For the Indians Paul Courteau and Bill Summerhill counted.

ALBERT COLLEGE SENIORS TAKE QUINTE TITLE

Defeat B.C.I. 17-10 in One of the Best Games of the Season

Albert College Seniors won the Bay of Quinte Senior Rugby Championship when they took Belleville Collegiate by a score of 17 to 10, on the Albert College field.

B.C.I. won the toss and kicked off to Albert, Geoff Scott taking the ball and being held in his tracks, two stabs at the line netted no gain at all, and Albert kicked to B.C.I. who received it on their 45 yard line. B.C.I. had no luck on ground plays, and kicked to Merkley who recovered the ball on Albert's 20 yard line. On the first play of the series, John Lill took a lateral pass from Merkley and swept around the left end of the line, going 90 yards for an unconverted touchdown. Play continued very even until near the end of the quarter when on a kick by Scott to Spafford of B.C.I. the ball was fumbled, Zanchin, Albert's end, recovered the ball 10 yards out, and after juggling the ball behind his back for seconds, went across the line for a second touchdown, which was cconverted by John Merkley. During the second quarter, Spafford and Bush of B.C.I. along with Diamond combined for some good gains, but were held off the score sheet by tight defensive play in pay territory. The half ended Albert College 11, Belleville C.I. 0.

Albert Kicks Off

Albert started the second half by kicking off and after play had continued around centre field for some time, Albert put on a drive, and on a series of sweeps arouna the ends Lill and McCullough carried the ball to the B.C.I. 12 yard line from where McCullough went across standing up for Alberts third touchdown which was converted by John Merkley. Albert 17, Belleville C.I. 0. The collegiate team opened up with everything they had, nice plays by Kelleher, Diamond and Spafford, got the ball down to the Albert 25 yard line, from where Spafford tossed a nice pass to Carefoot for an unconverted touchdown The quarter ended with the score Albert 17, B.C.I. 5.

The fourth quarter started slowly with B.C.I. kicking off to Albert, line plays gained no ground for either team and the ball was kicked back and forth, Albert had it on their own 25 yard line, from where Merkley attempted a forward pass which was intercepted by B.C.I., on successive runs by Spafford and plunges by Kelleher, the ball was advanced to the Albert 8-yard line, from where Spafford went over for a beautiful touchdown which completely outwitted the Albert defence. Kelleher faked marvellously, and had half the Albert team swarming around him, as Spafford crossed the line, the convert failed.

Lost the Ball

In the dying moments of the game, Belleville C.I. resorted to a series of forward passes, and lost the ball when attempting a pass for yards on a third down. After an exchange of kicks, B.C.I. got the ball on the Albert 40, on some smart line plunging and were helped by a series of penalties handed to Albert, the Albert line held, and two successive passes were knocked down, the whistle going with B.C.I. in possession on the Albert 25 yard line.

Lill, McCullough, Wiley, Scott, Cook and Zanchin stood out for Albert, although all who got on the field played stellar ball, the best on the field for B.C.I. were Spafford, Kelleher and Watkins. The game was well handled. Ted Early of Kingston, was referee, with G. Kelleher and Vern Goyer as the other two officials.

U.S. to Discontinue Most Controls On Wages, Prices

Expect Truman to Make Final Ruling Next Week

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP) —The administration is getting ready to junk virtually all remaining price and wage controls in the United States—and it was learned today that Paul Porter, head of the office of price administration plans to resign.

Only a final okay from President Truman was reported necessary to strip away all remaining price ceilings except those on rents, sugar, syrups and rice.

Many other wartime controls such as those on wages are expected to disappear at the same time.

Friends of Mr. Porter said he hopes the White House decision "would come quickly."

They added that as soon as it is announced Mr. Porter will go to the White House and offer his resignation.

One high government official told a reporter that Mr. Truman will make a final ruling in a day or so and probably announce it next week.

The consensus among agency officials who have been conferring the last two weeks with Reconversion Director John R. Steelman is that the time has come to junk nearly all of the control program, except for rents and sugar.

There is some opposition to this notably on the part of Housing Administrator Wilson W. Wyatt, but he and others who have favored a go-slow policy are reportedly prepared for a decision in the other direction.

Supporting indications that the decontrol announcement will be sweeping and sudden was word from one official familiar with the discussions that O.P.A. boss Paul Porter himself has abandoned his stand in favor of keeping most controls until supply and demand are in balance. Mr. Porter is understood to have swung around to the view that the quicker all controls are lifted, the better.

"We have reached a point where we have to make a grand sweep," said the official.

"The reason is that industries still under control naturally are going to hold back as long as they know that in any event removal of ceilings is not far off.

"This piecemeal removal of controls just won't do any more. We have got to act quickly."

Elimination of price ceilings in any industry automatically cancels wage controls.

If decontrol goes as far as some officials expect, only rents, sugar, syrup and rice may stay under ceilings. Clothing and textiles would be among items freed.

Lewis Secretly Bares Next Move To Representatives

Washington, Nov. 8 — (AP) — John L. Lewis secretly bared his next move in the soft coal dispute to his 30 district union presidents today and squared away for his personal showdown with Interior Secretary J. A. Krug.

No inkling of Lewis' strategy was permitted to leak out.

Speculation arose, however, that a compromise already might have been worked out. This was based on the fact that the district presidents, who gathered in Washington late yesterday, would pass on any settlement plan.

There also was conjecture that the fear of restrictive labor legislation by the new Republican-controlled Congress which meets Jan. 3 might sway Lewis toward a quick settlement without resorting to the strike weapon.

Lewis is expected to meet Mr. Krug Monday in their first face-to-face parley since the miners' boss expoded his new but unspecified wage demands Oct. 21.

Use of Title High Commissioner May be Changed

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP)—Use of the title High Commissioner for Canadian representatives to Commonwealth countries may be changed, Prime Minister Mackenzie King hinted yesterday.

Mr. King told a press conference the title led to some confusion as to status in the diplomatic staff and he suggested the word "representative" might be more suitable. He said some consideration had been given to making a change but no definite action would be taken until the proposal could be discussed with other Commonwealth countries. This would be done at the first opportunity.

The Prime Minister introduced the subject in the course of an announcement of a number of diplomatic changes. He said there was no definite relationship between the status of high commissioners and ambassadors. The post of high commissioner to London was, for example, probably as high as any of the ambassadorial posts.

In the diplomatic changes made today Gray Turgeon, Canadian Ambassador to Belgium, becomes a High Commissioner to Eire. Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, High Commissioner to Australia, becomes Ambassador to China.

Ad-Libbing Lines Brings Punishment To 15 Students

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 8—(AP)—Fifteen members of the senior class at Beverly Hills high school will have to forego the senior prom as a punishment for ad-libbing line into a senior class revue, it was disclosed today.

A conference of parents and school officials was scheduled today.

The punishment was announced by vice-principal Harry M. Alter, who said some parents had protested parts of the revue were "suggestive" and "risque." He said the script was approved by a faculty committee but that some lines were changed after the dress rehearsal.

Sons and daughters of many movie notables are students at the school, but Mr. Alter did not reveal the names of any involved.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Synopsis. The rain area which moved into Ontario yesterday has ended in all parts of the province except northeastern Ontario. The repression with which this rain is associated is centred over the White River region and it is expected to continue its northeastward movement to the vicinity of James Bay by this evening. Colder air is flowing into the Great Lakes region from the Prairie Provinces and the northwestern plains of the United States accompanied by cloudy weather with a few showers. In northwestern Ontario and Minnesota the showers change to snowflurries. Temperatures will be lower by 5 to 6 degrees than they were yesterday.

Development of First Synthetic Penicillin Announced by Assoc.

New York, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Development of the first synthetic penicillin, a chemical advance opening the way to new and different kinds of penicillin to combat diseases, was announced today in Science, journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The discovery also may lead ultimately to production of the drug in greater and cheaper amounts than can be grown by moulds in the natural process. The making of penicillin by artificial or chemical means has been sought for years.

The synthetic penicillin was developed at the Cornell University Medical College at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Centre by Drs. Vincent Du Vigneaud, Frederick H. Carpenter, Robert W. Hollet, Arthur H. Livermore and Julian R. Rachele. Their work synthesized penicillin after initial clues were found by the efforts of British and American chemists and numerous other laboratories during the war.

Through chemical reaction, they succeeded in making and isolating penicillin G, one of the four major known types of penicillin grown by the mould. This synthetic penicillin G is just as potent and exactly like the natural penicillin G.

The difference in the types of penicillin grown by moulds lie in changes made in one part of the penicillin molecule. But more changes can be made in different parts of the molecule through the synthetic process, Dr. Du Vigneaud explained.

This "opens the way to the synthesis of a series of entirely new and different penicillins which might be useful against diseases not affected by present kinds of penicillins," he said.

Some of the diseases against which present types of penicillin are not effective are malaria, the common cold, influenza, tuberculosis and infantile paralysis.

Only small amounts of synthetic penicillin have been produced so far, and much work remains to be done before the synthetic process can compete with the mould-growth methods of making the drug.

POLITICS SEEN CAUSE OF MISSING POLISH TREASURES

Disagreement Between Dead Govt.-in-Exile And Present Russia-Inclined Regime

By GEORGE RONALD

Ottawa, Nov. 8 (CP)—Disappearance of "millions of dollars worth" of Polish art treasures from hiding places here and in Ste. Anne De Beaupre, Que., was recognized as the result of political disagreement between supporters of the now defunct government-in-exile and the present Russia-inclined regime.

Still uncertain was the location of 32 of the 34 trunks of treasure sent to Canada for safe-keeping during the war. Two trunks were found undisturbed in the vaults of the Sparks Street branch of the Bank of Montreal here. But eight are missing from Ottawa's convent of the Precious Blood and 24 from the famous shrine at Ste. Anne.

The political origin of the loss was admitted freely by Dr. Alfred Fiderkiewiczn, Polish Minister to Canada, and by Poles who were members of the Legation staff under the "exile" government.

In Montreal, a Pole who said he was familiar with the missing treasures interjected a new suggestion in the parade of rumor and comment. "These are sacred treasures cared for by and presented to the church centuries ago," he said, adding that the tapestries, rugs, flags and other articles, all hundred of years old, now are in "safe hands."

"Our boys got the treasures in time before the pro-Russian Poles asked for them," he said. The man said he could not be identified because of fear of reprisals against relatives in Poland.

He denied the authenticity of the password "the holy virgin of Czestochowa" which Polish officials here said was used by "the man with a tumor behind his ear" to obtain the eight trunks from the Precious Blood convent.

The password was an invention of "the pro-Russian Poles who wanted to get this story across," he said.

Meanwhile, Joseph Polkowski, a Legation employee during the "exile" regime and identified by Dr. Fiderkiewicz as "the man with a tumor" told his story to The Canadian Press.

Cocker Spaniel "Hero of Week"

Toronto, Nov. 8— (CP)—Police today nominated "Snuffy," a 4-year-old cocker spaniel, as "hero of the week" after he had prevented a burglary and routed the intruder, chasing him several blocks.

The mild-mannered animal with the big brown eyes came on the scene to surprise a burglar who had broken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hershaw, removed one suitcase full of clothing from the hallway to the verandah and was returning for another.

He leaped at the burglar, barking until his owners heard the noise and came to investigate. The burglar fled and "Snuffy" was at his heels, barking and snapping.

"You would never dream 'Snuffy' could do what he did," Mr. Hershaw said. "Usually he is so quiet and timid."

Electrician's Helper, Cecil York, Instantly Killed Near Rednersville

Cecil York, 25-year-old electrician's helper, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington York, 189 Wellington Street, this city, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon while assisting in laying a power line on a farm 1½ miles east of Rednersville village.

York, a war veteran with nearly six years overseas service was electrocuted when a dead wire he was stretching contacted high tension wires running along the Rednersville road on the bay shore.

Employed with the Hibbard Electric of this city, York was assisting his electrician, George Keegan, to run a wire from a pumphouse on the bay shore to the house on the farm of Brigadier J. E. Genet.

The wire had been run from the pumphouse to the house and had been attached to three poles. Crossing the Rednersville road it had been placed under the high tension wires and over a telephone wire. Keegan was on a ladder at the corner of the Genet house preparing to install fixtures. He asked York to run down to the pumphouse and take up the slack of the line.

Standing on Ground

York did as he was told and standing in a wet muddy field, grasped the wire and pulled it. Then he gave it a hard jerk. As he did, the wire tightened and contacted two high tension wires. York shouted: "George, George" and fell to the ground a second later, dead.

Dr. Russell Scott, Belleville, hurried to the scene of the tragedy but life was extinct when he arrived. Coroner Dr. R.S. Thompson, Wellington, and Gordon Walmsley, Prince Edward County crown attorney, were also summoned and a preliminary inquest was ordered for this morning. Provincial Police Constable Sam Ervine investigated the tragedy.

The youthful veteran enlisted in the heavy artillery at the beginning of the war and served overseas for five years and eight months. He returned home this year and following his discharge became associated with the Hibbard Electric as an apprentice electrician. He was born in Tweed, Ont.

Entering civilian life he became a member of the Kingston Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Army Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada Branch No. 201, Belleville. He belonged to Christ Church congregation.

Surviving besides his parents are one brother, Calvin, at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Belleville and Mrs. Harold Carter, also of this city. The funeral notice appears elsewhere in this edition.

TWO TORONTO BROKERS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Charges Arise From Alleged Irregular Sales Practices on Toronto Exchange

Toronto, Nov. 8 —(CP)— A trial which arose from the spectacular climb of Habitant gold mine stock from 58 cents to $2.40 in a little more than a month last winter has ended with the conviction of Edwin M. Dempsey, president of Habitant Gold Mines Ltd. and a partner in the brokerage firm of Morgan, Dempsey and Company, on five charges.

A sessions court jury yesterday acquitted Kenneth L. Morgan, broker, of four charges but found him guilty on one of stealing $25,000. Wallace A. Dempsey, brother of Edwin Dempsey and field man at the Habitant mine in Northern Quebec, was found guilty on two charges of conspiracy.

The men on trial for the last nine days, will be sentenced Nov. 12th.

The charge came as the Ontario Securities Commission, headed by C. P. McTague, cracked down on irregular sales practices in Toronto's security markets and probed claims that some dealers had misrepresented stocks and used "high pressure" selling methods.

Evidence was that the accused, seeing the market for Habitant sagging, took an assay result for high-grade Kega Mine ore and represented it as having come from Habitant. Soon afterwards, the price of Habitant went up.

Charges of Theft.

The charges on which Edwin Dempsey was convicted were: Conspiracy to defraud the public,

Massey Criticizes Russian System

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 8 — (CP) — Vincent Massey, former Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain said last night that "the system under which our Soviet Allies live denies freedom to the individual and that is the cause of the wide gulf which exists today between Moscow and the west."

Speaking before a joint meeting of the men's and women's Canadian Clubs of Moose Jaw, Mr. Massey said that a generation ago "we were inclined to take freedom for granted — it is rather a shock to be forced to realize that it is a very live issue in the world today."

Mr. Massey said that if he were sketching a picture of Canada he would put in the following: "A constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (not the Hollywood vugarized version but the real thing); a beaver; some Canadian landscape painting; a village in French Canada; a bar of nickel, a pair of moccasins; a tube of insulin; a cake of maple sugar; the song 'Alouette'; a hockey stick; a roll of birchbark; a silver fox; a canoe; a grain elevator on the prairies; a boom of logs."

ALBERTA BATTLES MUD TO HARVEST SUGAR BEET CROP

70,000 Tons of Beets, Potential Source of 21 Million Tons of Sugar, in Ground

Lethbridge, Alta., Nov. 8—(CP) —Hundreds of workers toiled wearily in soft, muddy fields in Southern Alberta today to harvest some 70,000 tons of sugar beets — potential source of an estimated 21,000,000 pounds of sugar for strictly rationed Canadian housewives.

Farmers, high school students, German prisoners-of-war and Japanese evacuees from the Pacific coast have already harvested more than one-fifth of the 90,000 tons of beets buried under a 2-foot blanket of snow 2 weeks ago.

Before the storm struck it was estimated that the fields in the irrigation belt here would produce 385,000 tons of sugar beets, the equivalent of some 115,500,000 pounds of sugar. Last year Southern Alberta produced a record crop of 363,000 tons—more than 50 per cent of the total Canadian beet production.

A warm Chinook wind quickly melted the snow, turning the ground into fields of mud that prevented use of machinery to aid harvest operations.

Refinery companies encouraged the immediate harvest of the 90,000 tons of beets still in the ground by offering premium of 75 cents a ton to growers.

Workers Get $2.30 Ton

Farmers, offering a new high harvest wage of $2.30 a ton, recruited large numbers of workers to supplement working forces of Japanese evacuees and German POW's.

Farmers are hopeful that the remaining 70,000 tons of beets will be harvested before heavy frost harms the beets. They represent more than one-quarter of the 75,000,000 pounds of sugar annually consumed in Alberta.

With Canadian housewives purchasing about 1,000,000,000 pounds of sugar annually before wartime rationing was introduced, the sugar beet industry here plans further expansion.

Plans are already completed for the construction of a sugar refinery at Taber, Alta., to aid refineries at nearby Picture Butte and Raymond in processing the 1948 crop.

Beet growers, who expect to receive about $1,500,000 for this year's crop, plan to govern beet acreage expansion by the market for sugar.

Aside from Alberta, where sugar beets were first grown commercially in 1903, Canadian production is mainly centred around Southwestern Ontario. Small areas are also sown to beets in Quebec and Manitoba.

RECEIVES PRO OFFER

Vancouver, Nov. 8 (CP)—Jackie Whent, starry halfback of St. Andrews in the Lower Mainland Soccer League, has received an offer from Arsenal, first division team of the English Soccer League, Whent confirmed last night.

Whent played for Brighton in England when he was overseas during the war. He did not immediately announce a decision on acceptance of the English team's offer.

U.S. DELEGATION BACKS PROPOSAL FOR ADMITTANCE

Wants U.N. Security Council to Reconsider Application of Five Countries as Members

By ALEX SINGLETON

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 8 — (AP)—The United States delegation decided today to throw its weight behind a proposal asking the United Nations Security Council to reconsider the five countries rejected for U. N. membership and to oppose "coercive action" against Franco Spain in the Assembly.

There was no immediate indication what the United States position would be should the Council reopen the membership question, but on the basis of past arguments it was believed American delegate Herschel V. Johnson would call for the blanket entry of all five, including Soviet-sponsored Albania and Outer Mongolia.

If under that situation Russia should persist in vetoing the admission of Portugal, Eire and Trans-Jordan, it was anticipated that the United States then would return to its policy of voting against Albania and Outer Mongolia individually. Both those countries failed to muster the necessary seven of the 11 Council votes in the initial discussions.

Adheres to Stand.

On the Spanish question the United States delegation merely decided to adhere to its stand for condemnation of the world government but in opposition to any action such as world-wide break in relations.

Members of the United States delegation meanwhile were reported still working on a proposal concerning the much-debated question of the veto, but no concrete plan was anticipated before next week.

Poland originally asked for a severance of diplomatic relations with the Franco government and White Russia followed this yesterday with a demand that the membership institute economic sanctions against Madrid, including the suspension of communications by rail, sea, air, post and telegraph.

Goes to Full Debate

The Assembly's political committee now has before it a proposal calling for the Security Council to reconsider the rejected members and the issue will go to full debate before the Assembly itself.

Afghanistan, Iceland and Sweden have been approved and are expected to be formally admitted tomorrow.

During yesterday's committee discussions, the Russians noted that Portugal and Eire had not fought in the war against the Axis and cast doubts on the complete independence of Trans-jordan, formerly a British mandate. In his council vetoes, Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko explained his action only by saying that Russia had no diplomatic relations with the three countries. This reasoning was assailed by several countries with the argument that such opposition was not valid under the charter.

In other fields of U.N. activity, the take-it-or-leave it stand adopted by the United Nations in presenting its Pacific island trusteeship plan yesterday offered evidence of American determination to pursue its policy of patient firmness with Russia within the U. N. councils.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP)—Judgment was reserved yesterday by the Ontario Court of Appeal in the case of Albert Begin of Windsor who appealed his conviction last July 26 on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. Also reserved was judgment on the appeal against his sentence — six months determinate and three months indeterminate and a fine of $200 or three months.

G.B.S., Offered Job as Comedian's Gagman, Says He is Bit Too Old

London, Nov. 8—(CP)—George Bernard Shaw, offered a job as a comedian's gagman, said today it was "utterly unlikely" he would take it.

Raymond Bennett, 300-pound music hall artist, who made the offer in a letter, got a reply by postcard from the 90-year-old playwright.

"I am a bit too old," Shaw wrote.

"I have to thank you for the proposal in your letter," his postcard ran. "I have been a known comedy author for over 50 years. Yet you are the first variety comedian intelligent enough to see that I am rather good at monologue and back-chat, and to offer me a popular job.

"But I am a bit too old for it; and I am not at all sure that my name would help you. It would do just the opposite in many quarters, as I am blacklisted as a highbrow by the run of agents and bookers.

"However, I will bear you in mind, though I cannot promise you a date. I cannot help playing with the idea, though it is utterly unlikely that anything will come of it."

China Govt. Orders Cease Fire in Effort To Court Favor

Wants Representation At Assembly Meeting Tuesday

Nanking, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Chiang Kai-Shek today ordered all government troops to cease fire in a last-minute effort to win Communist attendance at Tuesday's scheduled opening of the National Assembly.

The order came at the height of almost uninterrupted, year-long government successes on China's far-flung civil war battlefields and appeared to represent a major concession by President Chiang.

There was no early comment from the Communists who, despite repeated military losses, stubbornly had declined to negotiate a truce except on their own terms: Restoration of all territory seibed by the government since the quickly ended January truce, and recognition of political agreements reached early in the year through Gen. Mashall's mediation.

Chiang's cease-fire order followed by only a few hours a two-day series of conferences with Gen. Marshall and the United States mbassador Leighton Stuart.

Steadfastly Refuses

The Communists steadfastly had refused to send delegates to the National Assembly, which is charged with revising and liberalizing China's constitution, unless their terms for peace first were met. China's minor parties, including the Democratic League and the Youth Party, also refused to participate in the ssembly while the country was torn internally.

The truce order came with surprising suddenness at almost the last minute that would permit Communist delegates to organize and come here from Yenan headquarters and elsewhere for the scheduled Tuesday opening of the Assembly.

Minor party leaders and top-ranking Independents who a month ago had lured Communist negotiator Chou En-Lai here from his "walkout" to Shanghai—only to see him cling unyielding to his party's demands—had conceded that "only a miracle" could effect a truce and insure a representative assembly.

Crush Opposition

It was issued as Chiang's troops crushed Communist opposition in much of China and found them victoriously encircling Russian occupied Dairen, fighting bitterly to capture Chefoo and Shantung Province, and apprdaching Antung on the Manchuria-Korean border.

There was a last minute effort to insure all party representation at the Assembly and came after weeks of hopeless deadlock as the Communists refused to negotiate on the government's terms.

The order followed a prolonged meeting at noon of National Assembly delegates. Chiang addressed them briefly.

The truce order would remove the main argument of the Communists, who have resisted all efforts to draw them into the National Assembly with a counter plea "it is useless to discuss peace and unity when fighting is continuing."

General Marshall, United States Envoy, met with Chiang repeatedly the last two days, indicating to observers that he was putting the pressure on the Generalissimo to come to a positive step to permit resumption of negotiations and to insure Communist participations in the Assembly.

APPEAL DISMISSED

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday dismissed an appeal by Elton P. Getson and Leo H. Syrja against their conviction at Port Arthur last June 26 on charges of unlawful assault. Also dismissed were their appeals against the sentences — two years and 3 months each in prison.

Canadian Dollar Again Declines In United States

New York, Nov. 8. (AP)—The Canadian dollar today touched a post-revaluation low when it was quoted at a discount of 5 1-8 per cent, or 94.87 1-2 cents, a decline of 1-8 of a cent from yesterday's close.

Banking authorities said there was no official explanation for this downward trend in the currency, but the decline coincided with rumors that a further revaluation was in store.

On July 5, the Canadian Government decided to strengthen its own price-control structure by pegging its dollar at par with the United States dollar.

Despite Canada's revaluation, the Canadian dollar consistently has been quoted at a discount in the New York "free" money market which is extremely sensitive to buying and selling pressure.

Some dealers said today that Canadian investors in American markets receive bigger dividends if there is a discount on the Canadian dollar in terms of United States funds and that this fact accounts in part for the present situation.

Canadian dollars sold in Buffalo yesterday at a discount of 5 1-2 per cent. This was said here probably to be the result of the greater number of Canadian cheques being cashed in that border city than in New York, the principal money market.

Movements in the free market do not affect prices paid for United States goods imported by Canada, which are paid for at the Canadian government's fixed rate.

Caused by Two Factors

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP) — The downward trend in the price of the Canadian dollar in the New York market may be caused by two factors, officials here say — rumors that Canada may further revalue the dollar, placing it at a discount with the United States dollar, and the lessening demand from Americans wishing to visit Canada.

On the New York market today the Canadian dollar was quoted at a discount of 5 1/8 per cent, or 94.87 1/2 cents, a decline of 1/8 of a cent from yesterday.

It is explained here that the Canadian dollars offered for sale in New York must be dollars owned by Americans and can only be sold to Americans. The uses to which they can be put are limited.

The Foreign Exchange Control Board here insists that all goods exported from this country to United States must be paid for in United States funds. These funds are turned over to the Board at par and Canadians needing United States currency get it from the Board also at par.

The price of Canadian dollars in New York, therefore, may be considerably lower than would be the case if there was no currency control in this country and Americans could use them to pay for goods imported from Canada, since the price is fixed by supply and demand.

As it stands one of the few uses Canadian dollars bought in New York can be put to is tourist traffic. Persons coming to Canada can use them for their expenses after they cross the border. The tourist traffic is much lower now than during the summer.

The government has taken the view that exchange control must be continued for the present in order to insure sufficient American dollars to pay for Canadian purchases in that country, to pay earnings on American investments in Canada and to restrict the movement of capital outside the country.

JACK ZUFELT BUYS PORT HOPE STUDIO

Graduate of the New York School of Photography and with one year's experience with a studio firm in Peterborough, Mr. Jack Zufelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Zufelt, Octavia Street, has entered into business for himself with the purchase of a studio in Port Hope. Mr. Zufelt assumed operation of his new business this week.

Former student of Belleville Collegiate Mr. Zufelt took an active interest in amateur photography during his school years, a hobby which ultimately was decided on as a life vocation. He served for a time with the R.C.A.F. and following discharge decided on the New York course in photography.

PARTIAL SUN ECLIPSE ON NOVEMBER 23rd

Local amateur astronomers will be hoping for cloudless skies on November 23 when a partial eclipse of the sun is to take place. In Canada the eclipse will be approximately 50 per cent total, and in this section of Ontario will commence at 10:42 a.m., reaching its maximum a few minutes past noon. The eclipse will begin at the top rim of the sun, the moon then sweeping across to the left edge, where the eclipse will disappear.

Although interesting to laymen, the partial eclipse will have but little scientific value, according to officials at the David Dunlap Observatory, Toronto.

Will Visit Canada To Interview Pilots

London, Nov. 8 — (CP Cable) —A three-man selection board of K. L. M., Royal Dutch Airlines, will visit Canada early in December to interview former R.C.A.F. pilots in the company's program for additional flying personnel, the company announced today.

Dr. K. M. Slotboom, chief medical officer, Capt. A. A. A. Viruly, chief pilot, and H.H.H. Fuchs, operations chief, who make up the committee, recently interviewed more than 50 R. A. F. bomber and fighter pilots here but they have not announced their selections yet.

Saturday is Poppy Day; Be Generous as Possible In Donations to Good Cause

Tomorrow is Poppy Day. The blood-red symbols of Remembrance will be offered for sale by those young and old veterans of two world holocausts of war, aided by members of Women's Auxiliaries of the Canadian Legion, and the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada Branch.

It is fitting that every resident of the city wear on his or her coat, the emblem of memory; a tribute to those who "went west" and a reminder that those who were left behind or came back have not forgotten.

All over Europe the poppies are growing "between the crosses row on row," that mark the last resting place of close to 100,000 young Canadians who fell in battle in two world wars.

Canadian fighting men of the recent war, nearly 40,000 all told, lie buried in every quarter of the globe — from Iceland to Ceylon, from Jamaica to the Baltic, in the Near East and the Far East, on tropic isles and high in mountain fastnesses. Many know no grave but the seas plumbed by their shattered ships, the waves parted by their planes in that last screaming dive.

It is estimated that 4,000,000 poppies will be worn by Canadians in honor of those who paid the supreme sacrifice. So it behooves every resident of this city to give a little to the memory of gallant Canadians who gave their all.

"At the going down of the sun and in the morning, we will remember them."

Buy a Poppy tomorrow, and remember.

Membership Drive by C. of C. Will Be Directed to Include Employees Of Firms as Well as Business Heads

A special drive for membership which will include not only merchants, industry and the professions, but employees of firms as well, will shortly be inaugurated by the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced at the directors' luncheon on Thursday.

A new scale of membership fees, drawn up by Chamber of Commerce Manager Jack Badgley and Membership Chairman Thos. Tucker, was placed before the board for approval, and received the unanimous endorsation of that body. The new scale is similar to that being utilized generally by Chambers of Commerce all over the Dominion.

Graduated Fee Scale.

Under the new scale large business firms holding a sustaining membership, will pay annual dues of $50. Business firms and well-established professional men will pay a basic rate of $25 annually while individual members not actively engaged in business, younger professional men and employees will be assessed $10 yearly. The latter scale also may apply to small businesses.

During the years, it was pointed out, only a certain percentage of the population of a city supports the Chamber of Commerce. Throughout the Chamber of Commerce movement the basic $25 annual dues is being adopted, having proved beneficial in every case to the various organization.

A negligible few have discontinued membership, it was stated, because of the increase in dues, but in most cases, these have rejoined upon witnessing the greater efficiency and stronger organization.

Publicity Campaign.

Plans for the membership drive include radio and press advertising as well as personal contact of potential members. It is expected the drive will get under way this month.

Mr. Tucker speaking to the recommendation for the new scale of membership fees pointed out that in order to make the drive a success something of a definite concrete nature should be offered those approached.

"If we have a definite bill of goods to sell, we shall have no trouble," he said.

Housing, he went on, is one of the most important and most serious problems of the present day being side-stepped by almost every one. If the Chamber had something concrete along housing lines to offer, it would help a lot. Lack of housing here and everywhere is a deterrent to business and industry locating in municipalities.

150 Homes Being Built.

President Lorne McDougall pointed out that 150 homes are being built in Belleville but are being held up through lack of material. 500 homes had actually been built in the city during the war years.

Discussing the suggestion of the Junior Board of Trade that merchants of the city pay for 50 per cent of the operating costs of its parking service, President McDougall suggested that the Chamber of Commerce assume this cost, and that it be included in the new scale of membership fees.

Director Jack McIntosh was of the opinion that merchants between Victoria Avenue and Bridge Street should bear this cost. It was not fair, he said, for the small merchants operating outside of the main business sections to pay part of downtown parking costs. The matter was tabled for the time being.

Riggs Motor Sales Display Room Locale of Empire Dairy Show

Riggs Motor Sales display room on Pinnacle Street will be the locale of the British Empire Dairy Show which is scheduled to be held in conjunction with the 19th annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association on December 3rd and 4th.

In former years the cheese show has been held in the market room at the city hall but the new location will result in considerable saving in costs of decoration, according to show's honorary president J. L. Irwin.

With the show still four weeks away, already entries are beginning to come in according to exhibition officials with cheese makers from the province of Quebec again showing considerable interest in the show. It is expected about 200 cheese will be on exhibition, the total prize list this year amounting to $1,510, an increase of over $100 over that of last year.

Ranking federal dairy officials will be on hand for the cheese makers' convention scheduled to be held at the Quinte Hotel with W. C. Cameron, Chief Dairy Products, grading and inspection services, scheduled to speak on Tuesday evening, the first day of the convention, giving highlights of his recent trip to the United Kingdom.

Other Speakers

Other speakers on the opening day of the convention are H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative; Frank Robinson, Kemptville, chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario, and Dr. A. L. Gibson, Superintendent, Eastern Ontario Dairy School at Guelph. Addresses of welcome will be given by Mayor Frank S. Follwell and Warden of the County James Nickle of Madoc.

Speakers at the Wednesday sessons of the convention will include W. O. Coone, President of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association; C. E. Lackner, director of dairying, Toronto; W. H. Sproule, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; J. M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for Western and Ceitral Ontario; E. G. Hood, dairy research science service, Ottawa; Thos. J. Hicks, senior dairy produce grader, Montreal, who will report on 1946 grading and give comments on the dairy show, and J. F. Singleton, Associate Director of Marketing Services, Dairy Products, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Committee Recommendations:

Council to Seek Authority To Build Incinerator in City

City council will proceed immediately in an effort to obtain from the Municipal Board authorization for the erection of an incinerator in the city, it was decided by a recommendation passed at the regular committee meeting of council held Thursday evening.

The erection of an incinerator had been recommended by the local Board of Health some months ago, the action of council last evening voicing approval of the recommendation submitted by the Board.

The need for industrial sites in the city came up for considerable discussion by council with members recommending that the ratepayers be asked in the form of a question at the next municipal election if they would be in favor of the city purchasing industrial sites at a cost not to exceed $25,000.

Want Survey Completed

Councillors also decided to petition the provincial minister of planning and development to complete the survey of the Moira River watershed during the next year, while it was also decided to petition the minister of public works to call a meeting of the municipalities in the Moira River Watershed for the purpose of setting up an authority to govern the said watershed. This latter resolution will be forwarded to the county clerk to be passed on to the provincial minister of public works.

Asks Less Whistling

Blowing of train whistles also came up for discussion with council recommending that the city solicitor prepare an anti-noise by-law based on by-laws approved in Kitchener and at St. Catharines. The suggested by-law would have regard particularly to the stopping of train whistles inside the city limits except when absolutely necessary as a danger signal, and would also apply to use of sound trucks for advertising purposes.

To Re-imburse Club

The Belleville Flying Club will be re-imbursed by the city for cost of improvements at the flying field west of the city, it was decided by council. Payment will be made to the Flying Club as soon as the property is deeded over to the city by the present owner. A limitation of $5,000 was placed on the re-imbursement to the Flying Club.

The name of Victoria Street, running from Station Street to Emily Street, will be changed to Oak Street, it was decided by council members. Council also ratified the purchase of two International four wheel tractors with sidewalk snowplows, providing these are approved by the local department of public works. Upper Canada News was granted permission to erect private gasoline pumps at their property on Moira Street. Council also authorized the repair of the retaining wall on the south side of Campbell Street between Pinnacle and Church and tenders will be called for the work.

To Sell Lots

The east and west halves of Lot No. 1 on the north east corner of Emily Street were recommended sold to Donald Brown and Edward Branton, while Lot No. 6 on the west side of Dufferin was recommended sold to Mrs. D. B. Levick. An additional light was recommended for Ridley Street between Greer and Geddes.

Bridge St. Church Men's Club Holds Monthly Meeting

Members of the Bridge Street United Church Men's Club held an enjoyable monthly dinner meeting on Wednesday night with seventy-five being in attendance.

Guest speaker of the evening was the Rev. E. M. Cadigan, minister of Marmora United Church, who spoke on the subject "We Are All Salesmen."

Mr. Cadigan referred to the church as the "firm we all work for. Our Saviour as the "Head of the Firm" and man's duties to the church and mankind as the "goods we carry." His address was a sharp challenge to each individual that he realize his responsibilities in his daily contacts with the church and his fellow man.

Ray Grant, president of the club officiated in the chair during the business session of the meeting and later handed over the chairmanship of the evening to Mr. Morley Linscott. Three vocal solos by John Deacon accompanied at the piano by S. Alec Gordon formed a highly entertaining musical part of the dinner, which was served by members of the Woman's Association of the church.

The guest speaker was introduced by the Rev. Don Amos, while appreciation of the address was expressed on behalf of the club by Mr. W. J. Morrison. Announcement was made of another meeting to be held in approximately three weeks time.

Death Accidental Jury's Verdict

Picton, Nov. 8—'According to the evidence, we are unable to place blame on any one person', a coroner's jury reported following an inquest into the death of Mrs. Walter Leavitt of Cherry Valley. Coroner Dr. D. S. Lighthall presided at Cherry Valley hall with Crown Attorney G. T. Walmsley K.C., for the Crown. Evidence was given by Dr. J. H. Walmsley as to injuries sustained by Mrs. Leavitt; George Dulmage and Harvey Ostrander as to speed of the Leavitt car and condition of the weather, and Walter Leavitt, driver of the car.

Mr. Leavitt stated that he had lost control of the car in making too wide a turn and the front wheel had gone off the edge of the pavement. Mrs. Leavitt was thrown from the car and was injured when it fell on her.

The jury was composed of Manly Flake, Stinson Hyatt, Bruce Jackson, G. Wood, Norman Fennell.

The inquest was postponed a day until Leavitt returned from Halifax where he accompanied the body of his wife for burial. They had been married nine months.

Says Export Of Cows Improves Milk Production

Brantford, Nov. 8 —(CP)— If the profitable United States market where farmers can dispose of surplus milk cows is taken away from them, it will be much more difficult for them to maintain levels of milk production in the Dominion, George M. Clemons, secretary-manager of of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada said yesterday.

Mr. Clemons was commenting on a statement by Ontario Agriculture Minister Kennedy that if export of Ontario milk cows to the U. S. continues at the present rate, the dairy industry in the province would be dealt a severe blow.

Mr. Clemons said farmers "can take care of only so many milk cows" because of the present farm labor shortage and that the U. S. market does not receive any cows other than those considered surplus by the farmers.

Dominion Department of Agriculture statistics show the export of milk cows helps rather than hinders milk production, Mr. Clemons declared, adding that "breeders of purebred cattle breed with idea of exporting cattle over and above the maximum they can take care of on their farms."

IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, P.O. Wallace E. Anderson, killed in England, November 8th., 1944.

It's lonesome here without you, Wallace,
There is such a vacant space.
For we never hear your footsteps
Or see your smiling face.
As we loved you, so we miss you,
In our memory you are near,
Loved, remembered, longed for always Bringing many a silent tear.

—Never forgotten but forever held lovingly within our thoughts, Mum and Dad, and Brothers.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Gerald Roy Clark and family wish to express their heartfelt thanks and appreciation to the many relatives, friends and firemen, with special thanks to Rev. C. A. Perkins of Holloway St. United Church for all their kindness and sympathy and for the beautiful floral remembrances during their recent bereavement in the loss of a dear wife and mother.

Demand for Accommodation Continues Unbated in City

The light-housekeeping situation in Belleville is still a vital problem and no immediate alleviation is in sight, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, secretary of the City Rooms Registry stated in her monthly report today.

The situation is being aggravated, Mrs. Kerr pointed out, by the recent edict of the Royal Canadian Air Force that its members must have their wives and families with them within sixty days of their postings, or their subsistance allowances are forfeited.

Applications for light-housekeeping rooms amounted to 120 during the month of October and this number represented approximately 299 persons. Thirty-one, over-night placements were made with sixty-seven war veterans applying for room. Upwards of 550 people were in the registry office on business and roughly 334 telephone calls were made.

Applications from people about to be evicted featured the month's activities, Mrs. Kerr said, while members of the RCAF crowded the office at times desperately trying to get rooms.

Some tourist homes are being utilized in an effort to alleviate the congestion of applications. People going south are urged to rent their homes under the new six-months lease regulations. Some residents who go south for the winter months are reticent about renting their homes under the idea that tenants must remain for a period of six months. Under the new under-six-months lease regulations, this problem is done away with.

Mrs. Kerr's office number is 2738 and she respectfully requests potential applicants to see her or phone her there instead of at her home. The registry office is in the Y.M.C.A.

Grants May be Extended To Smaller Hospitals

Southampton, Ont., Nov. 8 — (CP)— Ontario Health Minister Kelley said here that grants should be extended to smaller hospitals in Ontario.

Speaking at a meeting of Southampton, Port Elgin, Paisley, and Allenford-Tara Rotary clubs, he said he was not stating government policy but rural members of the legislature would have to get behind the move for greater financial assistance if such a policy was to be brought into being.

The Minister earlier visited the Saugeen Memorial Hospital here and said he thought it was ideal. The hospital is being established in a former tourist home.

Winnipeg Youth Acquitted Of Murder Charge

Winnipeg, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Telesphore St. Cyr, French-speaking farm youth from St. Eustache, Man., today was acquitted of a murder charge by an Assize Court jury who deliberated less than an hour. He had been charged with shooting his uncle, Modest St. Cyr, in a stubble field last Sept. 13.

Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart began his charge to the jury at 10 a.m. C.S.T. (11 a.m. E.S.T.) and the verdict was returned shortly before 11 a.m. C.S.T. (12 noon E.S.T.)

Today's verdict ends the fifth and final murder trial of the Assizes which opened Oct. 8. Three persons, including one woman, were found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. A second woman was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to 7 years' imprisonment.

Defence counsel said that Telesphore had intended only to frighten Modest when he fired the fatal shot.

Modest, the defence claimed, had come in a drunken rage to the granary the St. Cyr's call home, attempted to attack Telesphore's sister, Margaret, terrorized the family and then pursued Telesphore and Margaret across the fields in his buggy when they ran to summon help.

It was during this chase that the shot was fired by Telesphore. The prosecution derided his story of shooting to frighten Modest. He shot, they claimed, to kill and pointed to the fact the bullet had entered Modest's chest horizontally although Telesphore had testified Modest was standing in the buggy when he fired the shot in the air.

Throughout the defence emphasized what was termed Modest's "vicious character." The last witness called was the clerk of the Provincial Police court who said that only the day before he was shot Modest had been fined $10 for fighting.

Allan Mills

Allan's Mills — Miss Marjorie Bateman, Miss Jean Anderson, spent the weekend with friends in Peterboro.

Presentation to Newlyweds.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomson was filled to capacity on Friday evening with friends and neighbors who gathered in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thomson. Mr. Wilfred Spencer acted as chairman and the address was read by Mr. Lawrence Meiklejohn. The bride and groom were presented with a studio couch from the community and many other beautiful gifts.

The groom thanked the friends for the lovely gifts. Refreshments were served by the ladies and a very enjoyable evening spent.

Mrs. Wellman, Chas. and Faye, visited Mr. and Mrs. McFaul of Spry Settlement on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wellman entertained Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt and Mr. Don McKeown on Sunday.

Mrs. T. M. Reid is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. R. Green of Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Collins, Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Grills, Campbellford, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt called on Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Reid on Sunday.

Mrs. R. Morton is spending a few days with Mrs. John Morton.

Mrs. E. Huble and family, Campbellford, visited Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt on Sunday.

The funeral of the late Joseph McComb was largely attended by friends and relatives on Saturday afternoon at St. Marks Anglican Church. Rev. J. R. Brownlie was in charge of service. Interment was made in 12th line cemetery.

The sympathy of this community is extended to the bereaved family.

"Red Poppies For Remembrance", Buy One Saturday—And Remember

That little red poppy which makes its annual debut on November 11th, that little flower of lacquered muslin and silk has an intriguing background.

Manufactured in Montreal and Toronto at Vetcraft shops the work is done by the skilled hands of disabled veterans who are unable through their disabilities to compete on the commercial market. Some work in the shops while others too handicapped to leave their homes do the job propped up in bed.

A simple looking thing that poppy but each individual one is shaped and produced by skilled workmen.

Said one old sweat of nigh three score years, "There was a time when I hated the sight of that Flanders poppy, we saw 'em when they were real, but to us they represented a graveyard flower. Now, bless 'em, they are the means of my livelihood."

And this is true. To quite a number of ex-servicemen this is the only form of income. The horrors of war reach far into the years and the body and brain of man can stand only so much punishment.

Many of the veterans discharged apparently physically fit in 1919 began to crack up in later years. That Jerrie "whiz bang" which exploded so close to Mons, it didn't seem to do much damage then. Those nights of sleeping in bone-chilling mud, a tot of rum seemed to fix up things at the time. But as time and age crept on it took its toll. It wasn't a thing that one could pin down and prove for a pension, but it was there just the same.

And so in 1923 under the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment set-up the first Vetcraft shop bloomed and blossomed forth poppies, so that the people of Canada could contribute and help these men and their dependents.

During the depression years the demand upon the Canadian Legion from destitute veteran families for assistance became terrific. The sale of poppies in these trying 30's naturally suffered but somehow the Legion carried on and many a family managed to see it through due to the Poppy Fund.

During the war years the Vetcraft plants found that they too were caught in the shortage material. Precious rubber used for our mechanized armies became unobtainable and so the windshield poppy which depended on a rubber suction centre disappeared. Now things are brightening up and this year the familiar large poppy will be found on thousands of auto windows throughout Canada.

Greatest thrill that the workers in the Toronto shop got was in the making of a special wreath for the King and Queen during their visit to Canada in 1939. Said Tommy, "Everybody in the shop had a hand in it and it was made especially from oak leaves which is the way they make them in Great Britain. We were certainly proud of that one." And so that its memory may linger for posterity, a large colored photograph of the wreath hangs in a frame in a place of honor in their office.

In the Montreal factory on Pine Street West P. J. Bush, who hails 72 active years and is affectionately known by the veterans as "P.J.", has been supervising the job for 16 years. Belying his age P. J. said, "I get down here every summer and winter and I hope to keep on doing so, but just in case one of these days I shouldn't be able to make it," and he shrugged his broad shoulders suggestively, "I have with me a young fellow that I'm breaking in and he'll carry on."

Appreciating that the cost of living has risen considerably the veterans in both plants were recently given an increase in wages.

Meantime the plants maintain their all year round schedule and while all the orders are filled for the 1946 delivery they are now busy making others for 1947. In 1945 nearly 4,500,000 poppies were sold and this year in anticipation of still greater sales they have stepped up production by twenty per cent.

Operated under the supervision of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the Vetcraft shops play a large part in maintaining needy cases. The Canadian Legion while undertaking no responsibility in the financing of these shops nevertheless has been entrusted with the business end of poppy sales. The sales of these poppies go only toward taking care of those destitute, irrespective of whether they are Legion members or not, and all work is voluntary in this respect without any remuneration.

Not Governmental Matter Says King

Ottawa, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King today told a press conference the question of the missing Polish art treasures was not a governmental matter as the treasures were kept in Canada in private custody.

Mr. King was commenting on statements made here last night by Polish legation authorities that 136 pieces of Polish art treasures which had been kept in Canada during the war now were missing.

The Prime Minister said the Canadian government had received no request from Poland or the legation here for assistance in locating the art works.

L. B. Pearson, under-secretary of state who attended the press conference, interjected that some Polish art treasures had been kept in Canadian government property during the war but had since been returned.

Mr. King added that Canada had kept $17,000,000 gold bullion for Poland and this also had gone back to Poland.

"The government has no control over these possessions," said Mr. King in reference to the art treasures.

Mr. Pearson said that when the Polish treasures came to Canada the Dominion government was aware that they were entering this country but was not concerned with their custody. Some "leaway" had been given to their entry. However, the matter was one of "private property."

POLITICS SEEN

Trunks Intact

He said his only visits to the Ottawa convent and the Ste. Anne shrine were in company with Dr. Stanislaus Swierz-Zaleski, cultural attache at the Embassy. On all those occasions the trunks had been intact. Polkowski, who has a growth behind his right ear, said Mr. Swierz-Zaleski, an official custodian, was "fully responsible" for the treasures.

Polkowski, acknowledging his sympathy for the previous government, said: "This is nothing but politics." Dr. Fiderkiewicz admitted "politics is behind all this." And Dram Waclaw Babinski, Dr. Fiderkiewicz' predecessor as minister, openly branded the present government as "puppet and Russian-dominated."

No Idea of Description.

Polkowski's denial that he was at the Precious Blood Convent when the eight trunks were removed was partially substantiated by the Mother Superior of the convent. She told The Canadian Press she had no idea of the description of "the men" who deposited or took away the treasures.

Further complicating the picture were reports from Roman Catholic clergymen in Quebec where Cardinal Villeneuve's palace is located. One official, described by the Toronto Daily Star as "in the palace..." was reported to have said "the whole of the Polish treasure is definitely safe; but at the present moment it is lost to the present government of Poland."

A second dispatch said Msgr. Omer Plante, auxiliary bishop at the palace, had declared that the cardinal dealt personally with the hiding of the 24 trunks in the Ste. Anne De Beaupre shrine.

When he released details of the missing treasure, Dr. Fiderkiewicz said the cardinal had written that he did not know the whereabouts of the treasures.

Another report, later denied, came from an unidentified priest at the Redemptorist Seminary at Aylmer, Que. He said three wooden, metal-bound chests, believed to contain Polish tapestries, had been stored in the seminary since last spring. Later a man who said he was Father Routhier told The Canadian Press the seminary had no knowledge of the treasures.

TWO TORONTO

conspiracy to affect the market price of Habitant shares, two charges of issuing false information as a promoter, and theft of $25,000 from the treasury of Habitant Gold Mines. Morgan, similarly charged, was found guilty only on the theft charge. Wallace Dempsey was convicted on the same two conspiracy counts as his brother.

Crown witness Clifford Mackenzie, former office manager of Morgan, Dempsey and Company, told the court he had heard Kenneth Morgan and Edwin Dempsey in Toronto plotting with Wallace Dempsey at the mine to have Kega ore represented as Habitant ore in assays.

Lengthy Charge.

Referring to the telephone call, Judge Ambrose Shea said in his charge to the jury:

"The whole proof of conspiracy seems to hinge upon it. If you find that it did not take place, the proof is weakened. It may be that Mackenzie was antagonistic to Edwin Dempsey and Kenneth Morgan and built on his story to make it bad-sounding."

Judge Shea said there was no evidence that Morgan was a promoter of Habitant and asked the jury to acquit him on the two charges of making, circulating or concurring in false statements to defraud Habitant shareholders. However, Edwin Dempsey, a director of the company, was a promoter, the Judge ruled, adding that there was little evidence against Wallace Dempsey other than the alleged telephone call.

The charges were the first criminal prosecutions recommended by the securities commission. The commission suspended the firm's licence after launching an investigation of the sharp fluctuations in Habitant mine shares.

Poppy Day and Remembrance Day

The coming weekend will be rich in memories for the people of this land and other lands in the blessings of victory in the two most devastating wars of human history for these victories were bought at a great sacrifice made by those who served and whose names and deeds are not forgotten. The three days, Saturday, Sunday and Monday become a period of rededication of all the people to the cause for which so much was done by those who fought in the various branches of the armed forces. The events which these days mark brought unusual burdens as well as blessings and they have changed the course of history and will leave their impression upon all future time.

It is fitting that this period of the year should be marked with the solemnity which underlies the observance which stresses the great fact that we are our brother's keeper. To the glory of the Allies and United Nations they have proven this great fact in their sharing of burdens. The youth of the nations have twice borne the full brunt of conflicts which called for a devotion which the world cannot forget and the lessons of those two periods, the years of the two World Wars, remain with us and indelibly impress their message upon the hearts of all civilization. We cannot forget the trials and sacrifices made for all that we have and are. And the world does not want to forget for in remembrance lies man's recognition of his duty and the chief hope that the world can be and will be brought to a state of peace that cannot be broken. We are under the most solemn obligation never to forget the deeds of our heroes and defenders. Only in that way now does the world feel that security lies.

Two Great Wars have left pressing obligations which their generations and those generations to come must bear and remember. They have to remember what the youth of Allied lands endured and what they gave in devotion in the war of 1914-1918 and again in 1939-1945 to provide mankind the opportunity to mould and build a civilization that will make war impossible. They have to help heal the wounds and alleviate the sufferings of those who served in these two conflicts which have placed upon this generation a burden heavier and a responsibility greater than ever before rested upon a civilization. Mankind must remember the sacrifices and feel the sense of debt to those who bought the privilege of liberty by their devoted service and sacrifice. Those who served have borne in their bodies and minds the great burden of humanity which is called upon to strive towards the great goal of making war impossible forever. We must remember those who died and must help all agencies which seek to soften the afflictions which have come out of these two wars and at the same time never forget the great task that must be done and the goal the world seeks, security from the menace of future conflict.

Now for a second time humanity is striving to hammer out an armor that war never again may pierce, a defence against the possibility of strife and the building of a structure of peace that will withstand every shock.

At this time memories rush in of those who gave their lives, both men and women, with devotion to the maintenance of freedom. These remembered ones have hallowed and blest this land and the lands of the Allied and United Nations with their sacrifice and though they are silent call those who remain to continued devotion to their King and Country and the cause of world brotherhood.

Poppy Day will always have an irresistable appeal which all will heed for the cause is worthy of the help of everyone. On Saturday let the answer to that call be wholehearted for what it means in inspiration, in comfort and in alleviation of distress to veterans or their families. Let the answer be practical co-operation and help to this just cause of the veterans' organizations which have performed devoted service.

The people of the Belleville district will not forget the memory and the deeds of those who served so faithfully and well in two great times of grave danger and will buy poppies in memory of those who fell or suffered wounds and will remember the living members of the veterans' organizations in army, navy and air force. Sunday too will be a day of consecration and prayer and meditation in the homes and churches and on Monday official ceremonies will take place at the cenotaph. The time is hallowed by precious memories of sacrifice and by hope for an enduring peace.

Cold Water to Heat Houses

Nearly a century ago Lord Kelvin suggested that any mechanical refrigerator could be reversed in operation and that in this way the heat in air or in cold water could be extracted and used to warm a house in winter. Engineers did virtually nothing with the "heat pump," as Kelvin's reverse-cycle refrigerator was called. Now comes the Chattanooga Electric Power Board with the announcement that it will use the principle to heat five experimental houses with nothing but well water which has a temperature of about 58 degrees F.

To an engineer there is nothing paradoxical in all this. Every electric kitchen refrigerator can either heat or cool. Within a coil is a liquid with a low boiling point. As it evaporates and expands it absorbs heat from its surroundings—air, meat, milk butter. An electrically driven compressor squeezes the gas back into a liquid, and in so doing heats it. Save the heat given off in the process of cooling air and send it through the house, and all the rooms can be warmed. The efficiency of such a system is far greater than that of any steam radiator. Use the heat now generated and wasted in a refrigerator and the load of the local power company will be more uniformly distributed through the year.

The rising demand for electric current has forced the Chattanooga Electric Power Board to consider Kelvin's old principle seriously. The Board's experiment will be watched by every central station company and every municipality. If it succeeds, as it should, home air-conditioning ought to boom. Moreover, the principle ought to work just as well, though not with equal efficiency, in the Arctic as well as in the tropics. In fact, the Russians drew up some grandiose schemes to make use of the heat in Arctic water, and Georges Claude, a French engineer, actually drove a steam turbine with heat extracted from deep ocean water as cold as that which Chattanooga will use. There is heat in everything—even in a block of ice. It is about time that we made more of it.

—New York Times.

The Origin of "Liberal"

The word "liberal" in the sense of generous or open-hearted was used five hundred years before anyone thought of giving it a political meaning. Its purely political meaning was acquired in rather a curious way, as Alan Bullock, fellow of New College, Oxford, recently explained in a BBC talk. In Spain, Napoleon's invasion was followed by a bitter civil war which lasted, off and on, for thirty years. It is from the name of one of the parties in that civil war—the Liberales—that the political meaning of the word comes. The first time it was used in England in that sense was in 1816—the year after Waterloo—by Southey writing in the Quarterly Review. Southey used it as a Spanish word, written deliberately in italics, to refer to English reformers of the time, and the name stuck.

PARTING FROM PUPPIES

Now has come the time for tears—
When the smiling friend appears
To select from all the rest
Puppy that he thinks the best.
"Took the nicest one!" they say,
As he proudly goes away.

Mother tells them when they weep:
"All of them we couldn't keep.
You remember, children, when
They were born I told you then,
By and by would come the day
When they'd have to go away."

Now, as one by one, they leave,
It is sad to see them grieve.
"He took Baby!" Ellen cries.
"He took little Dreamy Eyes!"
"He took Eddie," saying he Liked the one they'd named for me.

That's the worst of puppies small.
Children want to keep them all!

Regulations Announced For Entry to States

Under regulations now in effect any Canadian citizen desiring to enter the United States for a period not exceeding six months may do so by presenting proof of Canadian citizenship to immigration officers at the border point of entry, it has been announced. The six months limit is either for business or pleasure purposes.

The term Canadian citizen applies to native born and naturalized citizens and British subjects considered Canadian under the Canadian Immigration Act if domiciled in Canada for at least five years.

Documents Required.

Satisfactory evidence of Canadian citizenship would comprise Canadian or British passports whether valid or expired, United States non-resident alien's border crossing identification cards issued subsequent to November 13th., 1941, Canadian or British birth or baptismal certificates and Canadian certificates of naturalization.

British subjects considered Canadian because of five or more years residence in Canada will be required to present evidence of length of domicile in addition to evidence of the place of birth.

Cannot Take Employment.

It is pointed out, however, that applicants for admission will not be permitted to accept gainful employment in the United States and they will also be required to present letters or other documents to show they have a permanent domicile in Canada which they have no intention of abandoning. They should be prepared to show that they have sufficient funds to cover their stay in the United States.

British subjects who have been legally admitted to Canada, but who have not acquired the status of Canadians because of less than five years residence in the Dominion may enter the United States from Canada for business or pleasure for a period not exceeding 29 days by presenting proof of nationality and legal admission to Canada for residence. For a visit of longer than 29 days they will be required to obtain a United States visitor's (nonimmigrant) visa. Application for such visa may be made to any American Consulate in Canada.

Unexpected Russian Moves Keep U.N. General Assembly on the Qui Vive

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 8—(CP)—It is virtually impossible to write anything about the United Nations General Assembly without dealing with the Soviet angle because most of the exciting things that happen there are initiated by or for the Russians and their Slav neighbors.

The same is true of the Council of Foreign Ministers which now is holding its third get-together in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in order to accommodate Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia who is thus able to keep an eye on the United Nations at the same time as he is sitting in on the Four Power council at work on the peace treaties.

This week the Assembly was reeling under a number of unexpected Soviet moves, typical of the many by which the Russians, with a fine sense of timing, and possibly with a bit of humor, manage to keep everybody uneasily guessing.

Wants Cost Estimates Cut

One was precipitated by the slim Fedor Gusev, lately Russian Ambassador to Britain and earlier the first Russian Ambassador to Canada.

With all seriousness he electrified the budget committee with a proposal that the estimate of expenses for 1947 be reduced from $23,000,000 to $3,000,000, and suggested that even that amount would not be needed.

He accused Secretary General Trygve Lie of already creating a secretariat which could be reduced by 30 to 40 per cent.

This was surprising from a country that spares no expense in its foreign activities, renting palatial Long Island homes to enable its delegates to stay away from hotels and giving lavish parties.

To cap the climax of this new attitude the Soviet delegates followed up with a reversal of their former stand and now say that Geneva is the proper place for the U.N.

There may be something in the Russian argument for lowering costs of the U.N., and certainly there is merit in the Geneva idea from almost any standpoint, but it probably came too late. The organization is likely to stay in the United States, either here or in San Francisco.

Deny Any Race For Sources Of Uranium

London, Nov. 7—(CP)—British sources said today they have no information that there are supplies of uranium in the Antarctic or anywhere in the Commonwealth outside Canada comparable to those located in the Canadian Northwest.

(Previous official announcements have described Canada, Czechoslovakia and the Congo as the principal sources of uranium).

United Kingdom sources, commenting on published reports that the United States planned a naval expedition to the Antarctic to place claims over vast areas believed to contain sources of uranium, said there is "certainly no race" to examine possible uranium sources in the Antarctic because there is "not the slightest indication" that uranium would be found there.

In Canbera J. J. Dedman, Australian defence minister, said an Australian government act taking control of atomic energy sources will be examined to see whether it covers Australian territory in the Antarctic.

In Melbourne Sir Douglas Mawson, explorer, said small parties now are operating in the Antarctis, an area divided into five spheres—four claimed by Australia, Norway, the Falkland Islands and New Zealand and the fifth unclaimed.

Uranium is important in atomic research developments. Early supplies were drawn from the Canadian Northwest, although later finds were made on Belgian territory in the Congo.

Story Discounted

The Daily Herald published today a Washington dispatch saying that Britain was leading a "six-nation race for uranium" in the Antarctic, but noted that evidence of the presence of atomic energy from that source had been discounted here.

The paper quoted Prof. Frank Debenham of Cambridge as saying a survey mentioned in the Washington dispatch "refers only sketchily to the possibility of uranium deposits." Debenham formerly was the British Polar Research Institute.

The survey referred to wes made by Sir Douglas Mawson, Australian explorer and described partly explored south polar regions as resembling uranium-bearing areas of Canada.

The Herald said that a 30-man British expedition first sent out in 1943 was "firmly established" at Marguerite Bay, due south of Cape Horn, Admiral Byrd's old base, while the United States Russia, Norway, Argentina and Chile were reported planning efforts to overtake this lead in the search for uranium.

The British group was reported scheduled to be relieved by a fresh group of young scientists expected to leave England soon in a 300-ton wooden ship, the "Trespassy."

Students Heckle Admiral of Fleet

Edinburgh, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Boisterous students today shouted down Viscount Cunningham, Admiral of the Fleet, at his installation as Rector of Edinburgh University. He finished his 40-minute address after rebuking them.

Galleryites shouted "Barnacle Bill the Sailor" and shot peas into the audience. After the naval leader had talked half an hour the students began chanting "Viscount Cunningham, you have spoken too long."

"This is not a political speech," the Admiral responded. "But I feel you ought to hear it. It would do you no harm and if you want to hear you must keep reasonably quiet."

Silence followed.

NOW THERE ARE TWO OF US

I wish to join you and make it two who think as you do about digitalis (writes a Massachusetts colleague), and I care not who knows how I feel about it After more than thirty years of it, pretty active ones at that, I have yet to see a case in which I could honestly ascribe any benefit to the drug. I can count a dozen at least in which, I believe, patients were saved from an early end only because we took them off the drug. Moreover your suggestion that B-complex is a real heart tonic is excellent. I have found the syrup not only a good menstruum but a satisfactory succedaneum for digitalis (——, (M.D.)

Menstruum — solvent, or an agreeable vehicle in which to administer disagreeable medicine.

Succedaneum — a remedy used as a substitute.

Although my colleague implies he doesn't care who knows his opinion I cannot reveal his identity without his express permission.

Now and then a real doctor seems to be more or less in accord with my teachings about digitalis—usually less. Most good doctors whose views I have sought, do not agree with me at allon the contrary they are apparently as firm in their conviction that digitalis is beneficial in certain functional deficincies of the heart as I am in my conviction that the drug is not worth taking in any circumstance.

Now I'm trying to tell you what I believe is the truth, and I do hope no reader will misunderstand what I say. I say this: If you consult or employ a doctor and the doctor prescribes digitalis or any other medicine, you should take the medicien no matter what any other doctor may say about it—or else discharge the doctor and employ another or doctor yourself if you are fool enough. I'd take digitalis, yes, I'd take castor oil or even mashed potato if my doctor ordered me to do so—or else I'd tell the doctor where to get to out of here and right now.

In the booklet CVD, which deals with heart troubles, angina, valvular leakage, anoxia, capillary circulation, analgesic thrombosis, blood pressure, Buerger's disease, slow heart failure and reserve power, are further details regarding the use of vitamin B complex. For copy of the booklet send ten cents—and for heaven's sake folks, keep it clean—there is really no excuse for using any sticky or filthy substance, pins, needles, twine, stitching, staples and the like—and a stamped self addressed envelope.

Whether you take vitamin B complex in syrup, pill, capsule or other form, remember it is not medicine but a group of food constituents which are essential for good nutrition. Therefore you should continue it daily the year around or at least for several months in order to get full benefit from it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lost Support

Can you suggest any exercise for prolapse—I believe that is the term for injury of the supporting muscles in childbirth.

(Mrs. K. R. T.)

Answer—Yes, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on "Tumor, Displacement, Cancer."

Best Part of Lettuce

Friend of mine seeing me prepare head lettuce for luncheon said I should not remove the limp outer leaves, as they contain valuable elements. I argue that they are best removed and discarded as they contain any poison spray residue or any foreign matter from handling.

(Mrs. E. C. W.)

Answer—If evidently bruised or soiled the outer limp leaves should be discarded. Otherwise they contain most of the calcium and most of the vitamins in the lettuce. Likewise cabbage.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is "sterling" applied to money?

"Sterling" appears to have been first applied to English money in the time of the Norman kings.

According to the commonly accepted hypothesis, the term was derived from "Esterling," the name given to the merchants of the Hanseatic towns in North Germany who early traded with the English and who made coins so much more stable in value than any other money then in circulation that they became associated with sound money and the standard of purity.

This interesting theory that "sterling money" was originally "Esterling money" was advanced as early as about 1300 by Walter de Pinchebek, who referred to the Esterlings as the original "moneyers." There are two objections to this theory. In the first place, Esterling seems not to have been applied to the Hanseatic merchants until just before the beginning of the 14th century; and in the second, it seems improbable that the stressed first syllable of a name would be the part dropped.

It is certain that "sterling," virtually in its present form, was applied to English silver coins as early as 1180, during the reign of Henry II, and that the excellence of these pennies and the stability at which they were maintained resulted in their wide circulation on the continent.

Gradually the term was extended to include current coins in general, and finally it came to signify coins of standard fineness. The records of the 13th and 14th centuries contain many references such as "four thousand pound of sterlyings" and "ten pound of sterlings." "A pound of sterlings," that is, a pound in weight of English pennies called sterlings, became, by ellipsis, "a pound sterling." A statute of 1166 declared that the English penny called a sterling "shall weigh 32 wheat corns in the midst of the ear."

Presumably "sterling" is of native English origin and was at first descriptive of some characteristic in the design of the Norman pennies. It is not uncommon for coins to acquire their popular names from something in the design. Thus, for instance, we have "Liberty nickels" and "Lincoln pennies."

Perhaps "sterling" is derived from Anglo-Saxon "steorling," little stars, and at first referred to the little stars or "asterisks" in designs of some of the early pennies; or perhaps it is a corruption of "staerling," starling, and had reference to the four birds conspicuous on coins in the time of Edward the Confessor.

In Scotland the term was confused with "Stirling," and one often hears it said that sterling coins were so called because they were first minted at Stirling in the time of Edward I.

From silver coins to silver bullion was a natural transition, and silver of an accepted fineness came to be known as "sterling silver," which is about 95.5 per cent fine and never contains more than seven percent alloy.

The term had already acquired its present figurative sense in Shakespeare's time. In "Hamlet" Polonius tells Ophelia to "think yourself a baby, that you have taken these tenders for true pay, which are not sterling," and in "Richard II" the deposed King uses the expression, "an' if my word be sterling yet in England."

Public Speaking Contests Held In Frankford and Sidney Schools

Frankford, (Special) — The public speaking contest at the Frankford School, was held in the auditorium of the school on Tuesday afternoon with the principal of the school Mr. J. A. Warren acting as chairman for the occasion. The judges for the contest were Mrs. J. Finnegan, Mr. S. Martin and Mr. F. Anderson. There were only two contestants in the junior group. Barbara Stickle speaking on the subject "My Trip Around Western Ontario" won first honors and Nada Stavjanik came second. Her subject was "Our Trip to Canada from Czechoslovakia".

In the senior group the contestants were as follows:

Donald Wannamaker — "The Canning of Corn at Frankford"; Colin Macaulay—"Roger Young"; Eva Hrachoveo — "Stephen Foster"; Helen Rose — "The Early History of Frankford"; Ted Williams — "Ted Williams"; Dorothy Moran — "Life and Work of Thomas A. Edison"; Carol Sine — "Jenny Lind".

The winners of the senior group are Colin Macaulay, first, and Carol Sine, second. These two contestants were also chosen to represent Frankford school South Hastings Finals to be held in Queen Alexandra School in Belleville Friday evening Nov. 8th.

While the judges were making their decision the children enjoyed some community singing led by their teacher, Miss McCullogh.

Visiting Day

Wednesday was visiting day at the Frankford public school. A large number of parents and interested friends took advantage of this opportunity of seeing the children at work. The rooms were all tastefully decorated for the occasion. The school consists of seven rooms under the principalship of Mr. J. A. Warren. One teacher Miss Laver has her classes temporarily in the basement of the school. She has Batawa children up to the 3rd grade and as soon as accommodation is available will move her classes to Batawa.

Sidney Public Speaking Contest

The Public Speaking contest for the Sidney schools, sponsored by the South Hastings Educational Association was held in Wallbridge, Monday evening. Through the kindness of Rev. Hillis and the trustees the United Church was made available for the meeting. A good-sized audience was on hand to hear the twelve contestants—six juniors from grades 4, 5 and 6; and six seniors from grades 7 and 8. The speeches were exceptionally well-chosen and delivered, showing that the pupils had put a great deal of time and preparation into their work.

The following is a list of the contestants, the school from which they came, and the topics chosen in the order in which they spoke:

Juniors: Bessie Rush, Avondale, Prince Edward County; Jacqueline Smith, S.S. 13, Annie Rudolph, a Brave American Girl; Ann Herrington, S.S. 10, How to Wake up; Joan Meyers, Quinteview, Our School Section; Delmer Wannamaker, S.S. 5, Different Ways of Travel; Lorna Fair, S.S. 13, Our Flag.

Seniors: Jackie Geen, S.S. 10, Comets; Sheila Moore, Quinteview, Pioneers of Ontario; Everett Harry, S.S. 5, A Boat Ride; Hazel Hearns, S.S. 17, Gov. Gen. Alexander; Alvin Donaldson, Avondale, Why I Am Proud to be a Canadian; Lois Benedict, U. 23, Abraham Lincoln.

Rev. Hillis, M. J. F. Wilson M.L.A., and Mr. F. Anderson, Principal of Frankford Continuation School acted as judges. After some deliberation the judges gave their decision; Lois Benedict and Hazel Hearns, first and second in the senior group; Jacqueline Smith and Lorna Fair, first and second in the junior group. Lois Benedict and Jacqueline Smith were chosen to represent Sidney township in the South Hastings finals to be held in Queen Alexandra school, Belleville, on Friday evening, Nov. 8th.

During the intermission while the judges were making their choices, Mr. R. H. Macklem, I.P.S., Mr. Brooks Allen, Pres. of S.T.E.A. and Mr. Bleecker deputy reeve of Sidney gave brief addresses in which they congratulated the speakers Mr. S. M. Nicholson, reeve of Sidney was then called upon to present the prizes to the winners. An expression of thanks is due the Sidney council for their donation of the prize money for the winners.

These meetings and contests are of value to all who attend, and to all who take part, and the association is looking forward to having more schools take part in them next year.

RICHEST MAN?

Step up girls, and meet Dr. John Thorburn Williamson, a bachelor, Quebec-born graduate of McGill University, described as quiet and scholarly. Dr. Williamson will be the richest man in the world if current tests confirm the promise of a diamond mine he discovered in the remote Shinyanga region of Tanganyika. He came to South Africa after leaving the university in 1933. After three years in the copper mining areas, Williamson became interested in diamonds and went prospecting in Tanganyika. His search revealed deposits which led to the opening of his mine in 1941. Today it is turning out the bulk of the town's $4,000,000 annual yield of export diamonds. He recently refused an offer of several million pounds sterling for his mine.

Expert Amplifies Ilsley Statement On Income Tax

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)— A finance expert here today amplified Finance Minister Ilsley's statement in his speech last night that the income tax revenue would be reduced 25 per cent as a result of the tax reductions that go into effect on Jan. 1.

This does not contradict the statement Mr. Ilsley made in his budget speech that the tax in the middle income group would be reduced by from 10 to 15 per cent after Jan. 1.

The 25 per cent figure used last night was the over-all average. The exemption for single persons was raised from $660 to $7.50 and married persons from $1,200 to $1,500. This increase meant that some additional 500,000 persons would no longer have to pay income taxes and in their case the reduction will be 100 per cent. in the high income brackets the reduction will be less than 10 per cent.

PARKING METERS ENRICH CORNWALL

Cornwall, Nov. 7 —(CP)— Those silent traffic cops—the parking meters—are doing a great job of helping fill the city's coffers. Officials at city hall said today that during the first five months the meters were installed they showed a cash return of between $5,000 and $6,000. They estimated that about 325,000 drivers parked their automobiles in restricted areas.

Madoc Junction

Sunday School Party

Madoc Jct.—On Friday evening, November 1st, a happy time was spent at the school house, when old and young attended the Hallowe'en party, put on by the young people in the community under the auspices of Eggleton Sunday School.

The teacher, Miss Helen Bailey and pupils had artistically decorated the school with orange and black streamers while owls, black cats, bats, etc, hung around the walls. Glowing jack o'lanterns grinned from every window with two huge ones at the front of the school.

Miss Hilda Stapley was organist for community singing and also played marches, while those in costume paraded across the stage. The judges were Mrs. B. Stapley, Mr. Murney Stapley and Mr. Murney Kirkey.

Small children comprised the first group with prizes being awarded to little Audrey Stapley, and Bobby Clarke, to Anna Mae Clarke and Marilyn Reid.

Larger children formed the second group with Gladys Madill, Glenn Clarke winning prizes.

In the 3rd group prizes were awarded to Mrs. R. Stapley and Mr. Charles Bridges.

Miss Bailey gave a humorous reading and a Hallowe'en reading was given by Master Carl Reid.

A short Hallowe'en play was then presented with Mr. Charles Bridges director, and with Gladys Clarke and Rosella Fitchett, Ross Bridges, Vernon Clarke, Harold Reid, David Madill and Glenn Clarke taking parts.

A number of Hallowe'en games were enjoyed with Miss Rosella Fitchett as leader.

The Sunday School superintendent Mrs. Warren Harlow, moved a vote of thanks to Miss Bailey, the pupils, Mrs. Bridges and all who assisted with the program. This was seconded by Mrs. B. Stapley.

Abundant refeshments provided by the ladies were then served by members of the girls' S. S. class.

Personals

WEDDINGS

McCULLOUGH—PITT

St. Charles' Borromeo Church, Read, Ont., was the scene, recently for a very pretty wedding, when Miss Mary Eileen Pitt eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Pitt, Read, became the bride of Mr. William Francis McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCullough, of Lonsdale, Ont. Rev. R. J. Coyle officiated at the Nuptial Mass, while Mr. Jack Pitt, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jim Hanley served the Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in an ice-blue dressmaker suit, with brown accessories. Her only attendant was Miss Evelyn McCullough, sister of the groom, wearing a grey dressmaker suit with black accessories. Both the bride and her attendant wore corsages of pink roses.

Mr. Leo Pitt, brother of the bride, performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Leo McCullough and Mr. Joe Pitt.

Mr. William Hanley played the wedding music, with Miss Rose Hanley as soloist. Miss Hanley rendered the appropriate selections, "Ave Maria", "On This Day" and "O Beautiful Mother".

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents. Later a dinner was served to about thirty-five guests at the New Queen's Hotel, Belleville. From there Mr. and Mrs. McCullough left for a motor trip to Watertown, Syracuse, Clayton, and other points in the United States.

After their return Mr. and Mrs. McCullough will reside near Lonsdale.

PAID IN FULL

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP)—The dignity of the Champaign County Circuit Court was upset momentarily at the conclusion of a divorce trial. C. E. Tate, lawyer for the wife seeking a divorce, concluded arguments and Judge Grover W. Watson began to prepare the decree. In a gentle voice the wife called her estranged husband to her side. Suddenly she administered a sound punch, remarking: "That's one I've owed you for a long time."

VOTE ON TWO-YEAR TERM

Bratnford, Nov. 8 (CP)— When civic elections are held in this city Dec. 9, voters will decide whether to elect mayor and aldermen every second year instead of annually. The question whether aldermen should be elected by city-wide vote rather than by wards will also be on the ballot.

Holloway St. Y.P.U. Presents Pleasing Pageant

The Holloway Street Young People assembled in the Church for their meeting of November 4.

An opening sing-song was conducted by Miss Shirley Hitchon with Miss Margaret Hillis assisting at the piano.

The purpose of the Young People of the United Church of Canada was read in unison and Mr. Bruce Sultor of Albert College, led in prayer.

Miss Maude Burke president, welcomed the several new members and visitors and took charge of the business meeting. Roll was called showing a total attendance of 41. The minutes of the last regular meeting and of the Hallowe'en party held on October 28, were read and adopted. Plans were made for completing the Group's Missions' objective of $100 before the end of the year and a special Missions' meeting to be devoted to assisting Rev. Floyd Honey, soon to leave as a missonary to China, was announced.

Worship Period

The Worship period arranged by Miss Ruth Ireland and Miss Beth Robertson, Christian Culture conveners, opened with quiet music rendered by Miss Dorothy Mills. A call to worship was read and Miss Rosslyn Robertson led in prayer. Following the singing of a hymn, a pageant was presented by a number of the members, the main action being very capably carried out by Maude Burke, Ross Green, Gordon Moynes and Mr. Perkins.

Two delightful organ and piano duets were given by Mr. Wm. Connor and Miss Meribeth Holgate and appreciation of the Group for their kindness in bringing this very enjoyable entertainment was expressed by Rosslyn Robertson.

The recreation period in the Sunday School rooms was directed by Mr. Max Maguire, following which the Culture Grup served dainty refreshments.

A Friendship Circle and the singing of "We're on the Upward Trail" completed the evening and Mr. Perkins closed the meeting with prayer.

BIG SUGAR PRODUCER

Cuba has approximately 7,000,000 acres devoted to rasing sugar cane.

Energetic Club Of Holloway St. Holds Bazaar

The large Sunday School hall of Holloway Street United Church was made doubly attractive Wednesday afternoon for a very successful bazaar and tea under the auspices of the Energetic Club of that congregation, the decorations being carried out in a color scheme of pastel yellow and pale green with the different booths being individualized by their own combination of colors. Mrs. G. Greatrix, convener of the miscellaneous table decorated in two shades of purple including sprigs of genuine Jersey Island lavender, was assisted by Mesdames E. Shortt, M. Meldrum, D. Daniels and D. McAllister.

The "Christmas Gift" booth decorated in the traditional red and green of poinsettas and Christmas bells was in charge of Mrs. G. Elliott and Mrs. W. Whalen.

The "Baby" booth in the usual pink and blue, included a large blue boot with a baby doll sitting in it, displaying babywear to anvantage. This booth was convened by Mrs. D. Fraser, with Mesdames A. Smith and J. O'Neill as her assistants.

Artistically Arranged

The "Plant" table was artisticcally arranged to represent a home, with a small house and an adjoining fish-pond; the plants being arranged around it. The convener was Mrs. A. Wyatt, assisted by Mesdames M. Burtt and S. Nighswander. The "Apron" booth, with Mrs. H. Regensburg, as convener, was decorated in the patriotic colors of red, white and blue. Here the assistants were Mrs. T. Poste and Mrs. Jack Grills.

At the "Home-baking Table" in black and white, the ladies offering the tempting wares wore costumes corresponding with the color scheme. Mrs. L. Buck as convener was assisted by Mesdames W. Slavin, O. Wager, and J. Scriven. On the platform the "Wood-working" booth, attractively decorated in orange and arranged in tiers, displayed hand made rocking-horses, hobby-horses, wall brackets, trays and lawn chairs. Messrs. D. Ferguson and A. Lennox were in charge of these exhibits.

Popular Resort

As is usual at this kind of function the tea room was a very popular resort. The table was most attractive with its cloth of beautiful cut-work centred with a crystal bowl of purple 'mums, and tall ivory tapers in crystal holders standing guard on either side of it.

Mrs. A. C. Campbell convened, with Mrs. D. Ferguson and Mrs. Fred Taylor. Pouring for the first hour were Mrs. A. Lennox and Mrs. W. Oliphant, being later relieved by Mrs. C. Gibson and Mrs. C. A. Perkins. The ladies who were serving were Mrs. H. Bird, of Stirling; Mesdames W. Anderson, A. Stewart, F. Rayfield, D. White, A. Downey, C. McDonald, R. Spafford.

Entertainment for the children was provided during the evening, and included movies, games, a fish-pond and a refreshment booth; all of which were in charge of the male members of the Club.

The bazaar in its entirety was convened by Mrs. L. Hopkins, with Mrs. Nighswander and Mrs. W. Slavin as her assistants. Treasurer for the occasion was Mrs. W. Johns.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

SODALITY MEETS

Some fifty members of the Sodality of "The Children of Mary" of Saint Michael's parish, assembled on Monday evening for their monthly meeting. Presiding was Miss Mary McDougall. The chairman of the Eucharistic Committee, Miss Joan Finkle, announced that weekly visits to the hospital by the sodalists would begin this week. Volunteers were accepted for the next four weeks.

Miss Mary Agnes Wilkinson once more stressed the need for rosaries for the international drive being made for the Catholic people of Greece. It was decided at this meeting that boxes for children at Christmas would be packed as in former years under the direction of the Apostolic committee, having as its chairman, Miss Doris Trudeau.

The president, together with Reverend Sister Mary Lenore, moderator of the Sodality, highly commended Miss Rita Frawley and her co-workers for their success in arranging a most enjoyable Hallowe'en dance. Miss Loyola Chapelle, of the Catholic Truth committee, announced that there would be a display of Catholic literature at the rear of the Church for two Sundays in November.

Following this an interesting and informative address on "Our Lady of Fatima", was given by Miss Mary Dunlop, who explained to the girls how the Blessed Virgin appeared to three small children in Portugal in 1917, and told them that only through her rosary could the next war be averted. If the nations heeded her words, peace would reign throughout the world and Russia would be converted.

Reverend Sister Mary Lenore then addressed the meeting, showing the significance of Our Lady's statements at Fatima. The Blessed Virgin said that if the world did not pray, precisely during the next pontificate, a new and more terrible war would take place. This, Sister Mary Lenore pointed out, turned out to be true, and as a result we must turn to prayer because it is our only means of salvation.

The meeting then adjourned to the Assembly room for a short choir practice in preparation for the next Communion Sunday. Refreshments were served by Our Lady's committee.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg, (Special.)— On Monday evening a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the Oddfellows' Hall to honor, Mr. Harold Geen and his bride, the former Miss Marie Snarr, of Hoard's Station.

Rev. B. Heywood acted as chairman for the occasion, and invited the newlyweds to take chairs on the platform. After a few remarks he asked Miss Molly Mumby to read the address which was signed on behalf of the Thomasburg Community and the guests of honor received a lovely set of dishes for which both Harold and Marie expressed sincere appreciation. Dancing was enjoyed after which dainty refreshments were served.

The regular monthly meeting of Christ Church Woman's Auxiliary was held on Friday evening at the home of the President, Miss Emma Porter.

The Women's Missionary Society of Thomasburg United Church held a Hallowe'en concert in the Oddfellows' Hall on Thursday evening with entertainment appropriate for the occesion and delicious refreshments.

Miss Merle Bateman underwent an operation in the Belleville General Hospital recently. Her many friends hope she will have a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wood, Lois and Doris Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bailey and Jimmy, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McTaggart and sons of Consecon.

The many friends of Miss Margaret Grills will be sorry to learn that she is a patient in the Isolation Hospital in Belleville.

Mrs. Prentice is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Mouck.

Several members of the local Women's Missionary Society, attended the Madoc District, Sectional Rally held at St. John's United Church, Tweed, on Wednesday, when Dr. Florence Murray, of Halifax, medical missionary in Korea for twenty years, was the guest speaker.

Rev. F. C. Beazer and Mrs. Beazer of Roslin, Miss Emma Porter and Mrs. A. A. Richardson were tea hour guests on Sunday of Mrs. A. C. Porter and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Geen.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vance have disposed of their home in the village and have purchased Mr. Edward Good's farm just north of the village.

PERSONALLY YOURS

To receive a dainty handkerchief as a gift is a very subtle form of flattery.

There is so much more to it than just an exquisitely embroidered square of sheer linen or a wisp of lace. Each dainty square depicts hours of labor and skilled workmanship to produce the very plainest of them.

Your daintiness and femininity can be measured by the type you carry and use.

The Georgia suggests that those planning to give handkerchiefs as gifts choose now while the selection is at its best.

We are featuring a wide range of imported Swiss handkerchiefs, petit point, beautiful embroidery and fine lace edges—bound to please the most discriminating taste.

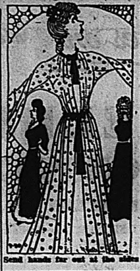
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Dame Fashion Curves



Send hands far out at the sides

Except during the period of the boyish shape, when women wore frocks cut like pillowcases, Dame Fashion has always given accent to the waistline. Now she is playing up the bust. And how! Look at the girls in the chorus. Look at the girls on the silver screen. Look at the girls whose photographs appear in newspapers and magazines. They are posed to display the clear-cut outlines of the twin facades. Do they all grow like that? Well—sometimes. If you haven't got them, you can buy "falsies". Brassiere manufacturers say they're going like a house afire.

Demountable bosoms! Every girl who wears them hates them. She would grow her own. Nature has supplied various sizes and designs. If they are small, almost flat, it is not likely that they can be developed. If they have a medium amount of curve and fullness, an extra inch of the bust measurement may be added by faithful regard for calisthenics that will act favorably upon underlying muscles. The job is not an easy one. The beauty quester who would put up a better front must make up her mind that she'll have to work at the developing project for at least six months, devoting ten or twenty minutes to it every day.

A simple, helpful exercise is the breast stroke used in swimming. You don't have to have a lake or an ocean to do this. Sit in a straight-backed chair, head balanced, chest high. Draw the fingers together, pointing outward. Place the hands at the chest, send them straight forward, then far out at the sides with a strong muscle pull; then back to first position.

Arm-swinging: swing one arm at a time. Double up the fist, drop the hand at the side and send it in a wide circle, far back, as if swinging a lantern. You have to stand when doing this one. Use plenty of muscle force, so the breasts will lift and fall.

Deep breathing: stand tall, inhale deeply through the nostrils, holding the breath while you count five. Exhale through the lips, forcing out all the air, drawing in the abdomen, lifting the chest.

Every night anoint the hands with cocoabutter. Rub the breasts round and round with slight upward pressure. Take no chance of injuring the delicate glands. As the hand goes upward at the side, lift the breast gently. Let the cocoabutter remain on overnight.

Every morning, bathe the breasts with cold water. The best method is to turn on a cold spray. The idea is to spur up circulation so the blood streams will get in their revitalizing work.

New Soapless VEL Cleans Without Suds

by Frances Thompson
noted homemaking authority

Most women have always looked to the suds in soap for its cleaning power. Now, however, a new and revolutionary soapless cleaner has been discovered which cleans without depending upon suds. At the cost of over one million dollars soapless VEL has been perfected.

NO SUDS REQUIRED

Soapless VEL makes plenty of suds, but the suds are unnecessary to the cleaning action. In fact VEL cleaning power continues long after the suds dissolve. Another noticeable difference from soap is in the action of VEL on water. Soap combines with water to make a cloudy milky-white solution. When VEL suds dissolve, the water is left as clear as soft water in a rain barrel. VEL makes the water act soft, too. As a result you plainly see how much grease and grime VEL removes.

SURPRISINGLY LITTLE VEL NEEDED

Using too much VEL may give you disappointing results. It's surprising how little you need. A teaspoonful or two of VEL is usually plenty for a dishpanful of water. You'll be delighted to see how sparkling clean VEL leaves glassware and dishes . . . and how VEL leaves no soap scum on your dishpan.

"VEL" is a registered trademark of the COLGATE-PALMOLIVE-PEET CO. LTD.

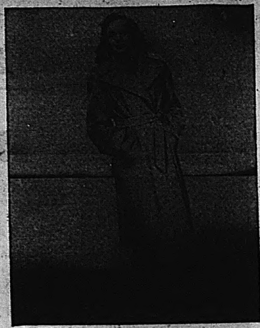
Exercise for Beauty and Pep



By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU know that outdoor activiy is often a cure for that tired, bored, what's-the-use feeling? Fatigue is more often the result of an accumulation of waste products than from over-work. You can get rid of body poisons by exerting energy that sends the blood streams hustling from the crown of your head to your toes.

This is the ideal season for long walks. Not hot, not cold, usually. Trees and foliage, lovely, give you something to think about and gladden your soul. Plump vitilizing ozone into your lungs; you'll get pink carnations in your cheeks.

Digestion Better

Digestive organs will function better for the air washing of the lungs and the body movements of a brisk stride. Everything, in fact, will be for your beauty good.

Outdoor workers sit down to a meal with keen appetite and a feeling of rest. When they hop into bed at night there is enough muscle fatigue to invite refreshing rest. Of course, everybody can't be an outdoor worker; everybody wouldn't want to be. But if the physical machine is to keep young every woman should have at least one hour of outdoor life every day.

If life is kicking you around at top-notch speed, if you dash out of the house to the office at eight o'clock, drag back at six, you can at least give yourself the benefit of deep breathing exercises.

Take a deep breath through the nostrils, holding it during three long steps—this while you are hurrying to train or bus in the morning—then exhaling for three steps. Keep the head balanced, the chest lifted.

Hold in your tummy; this practice alone will keep the midsection in fine form if diet is balanced and correct.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Husband Strayed on Their Wedding Night

It seems scarcely possible to conceive of a young husband who would walk off and leave his bride on their wedding night, for no better reason than that he happened, by chance, to run into a girl he used to know.

Oh, of course, there are all sorts of things you might suggest to explain such behavior.

The first, most obvious, would be to say that the two of them must have quarrelled. But they hadn't. Or you might guess that the girl he ran into was the real love of his life, and that he was bowled over by the chance meeting. Except there seems every reason to believe that she wasn't. Or you could brush the whole thing off by putting him down as "pure heel", jumping to the conclusion that the girl was a poor picker and had made a bad error of judgment in sizing up the character of the man she had chosen for a husband. But I'd hesitate a long while before accepting that explanation.

Here are the facts of the case. Size it up for yourself, as you read the letter, and decide what your opinion of the men would be. Then I'll tell you how I feel.

"Dear Mrs. Fairfax:

"I know this letter will sound fantastic to you, but I really do need advice most desperately.

"This boy I went to college with, and I, became engaged just before he went overseas. He served with the medics in England for the greater part of two years. He was discharged from the service August 2, 1946, and exactly a month ago today we were married.

"Our trouble began on our wedding night. That night (about eight hours after we became man and wife) we checked into our hotel, had dinner and started up to our room. In the elevator, however, my husband threw his arms around a complete stranger—to me—and kissed her! A few seconds later, he explained that he and this girl had been stationed together. He invited her into our room for a drink. After far too many for either of them, she said goodnight. My husband insisted on seeing her to her apartment. They left, while I stayed at the hotel. At four-thirty the next morning (four and a half hours after they'd left) my husband came back, went to bed, and didn't even offer a word of explanation.

"Miss Fairfax, I'm 22 and my husband is 27. We're both supposedly adult individuals. His behavior on our wedding night didn't kill my love for him, but I can't quite trust him any more. Although he has been a perfect husband during the past month, I often find myself thinking about that night and wanting to ask him about it.

"What should I do, Miss Fairfax? What can I do?

"A Flustered Wife"

Now, you readers of this pathetic and very brave letter, did you decide, as you read it, that this young wife had grounds for annulment or divorce? That you can't understand how she could go on loving a man who had treated her in such a callous fashion?

If you did, I can see why you would feel that way, but I think you are wrong. I think, in the first place, that this wife certainly is, as she says, "an adult individual" to have been able to pick up her marriage and go right ahead with it, after such a stunning shock right at the outset; to have held her love, even if not her complete faith, intact; and most of all, to have been able to do all this and keep her mouth shut at the same time, making no hysterical scenes and evidently not even insisting on an explanation. How many wives do you know who would be capable of such restraint.

But I think she is so right. And I think so for the following reasons:

What I believe happened here was that a young veteran, still so close to the searing experiences of war that they were almost more real to him than anything else, and still emotionally unsettled by them, suddenly met someone—a girl, in this case— who had been through these tremendous experiences with him. In the flash of a second, the present dropped away and he was overwhelmed by the past, a perfectly natural thing to have happen. It would not necessarily indicate, by any means, that the girl had meant anything significant to him in that past. It simply meant that, because of their mutual experiences, she represented a certain type of understanding which his wife, no matter how much he loved her, could not give to him, not having experienced the same things.

Whatever may have happened between the two in that four-and-a-half-hour period, I believe it was understandable and forgivable, under the circumstances, however tragic for the wife. I further believe that the husband's later silence on the matter could well be attributed to his own terrific shame and remorse for what he had done to his bride; that it was too deep and dreadful to him to be able to bear mentioning. And, finally, I believe that it was something which he would be very unlikely ever to repeat, but, instead, would probably spend the rest of his life trying to make amends by being that "perfect husband" he has since shown he can be.

So go right ahead, "Flustered Wife", and do your best to understand and forget. In time, you may be able to talk this all over, when its sharp outlines have softened a bit. But hold to your love and faith in this man. I believe you will find them justified.

Fashion Flashes

NO MATTER what you like in the way of a hat, you can find it! Amidst all the exotic turbans and wimples, there are same attractive hats of the Spanish sailor type. A handsome sailor is in yellow felt with big clipped ostrich pompons in black and henna, above and below the side brim.

Quite the thing for a regal appearance is a beautiful evening gown of black silk moire patterned in gold and silver thread leaves. The strapless top fits snugly and dips toward the back, and the skirt billows into a train below the wide, snug midriff.

It takes doing to make black youthful, but some designers, especially Emily Wilkens, can, as witness her charming date dress of black wool jersey. Its gored bodice is cut low and square fore and aft, and pulls taut, if desired, with a drawstring that ties in a neat shoestring bow in front. Sleeves are long and tight; skirt is full and soft. Big sister is sure to steal it!

Growing in importance is the wardrobe of integrated pieces for plane travel. A good luggage-saver is a five-piece wardrobe starting off with a long sleeved, deep peplum jacket of black Lyons velvet slashed with wide bands of military braid across the bodice. With it is a street-length skirt to make a travel suit, and a long velvet skirt for evening, with a decolletage blouse of silver lame and a cap sleeved blouse of chiffon, to be set for day or evening.

Simply wonderful coat season Saffron-yellow woollen is used for a trim, double-breasted, snugly fitted coat detailed with collar and notched revers of black Alaska sealskin. Easy sleeves are deeply cuffed.

Ideal for dress or town or travel wear is a versatile suit of palest sand-beige woollen with tuxedo collar, cuffs and lining of nutria. Nice with a dark brown frock or suit or with its own beige skirt.

A slow start, but improving as the season's trends, crystallize, is the word on velvet. A beautiful afternoon frock is of rust-colored velvet with eyelet embroidery laced with black velvet ribbon that is inserted in the sweetheart neckline and also in a slash at the hem.

Who's got the button? Well, for one, we can think of a charming suit of black wool which has pearl-centred red buttons zig-zagging down the jacket from the high, round, collarless neckline. Rippled coachman back is caught with similar buttons at the waist, and they also mark wide, diagonal tabs in the sleeves that are lined with red.

Very new and handsome is the full coat that it cut and handled like a casual cloth coat. White American broadtail is used for a handsome coat of this type, a three-quarter-length casual with wrap-around self belt. Deep shoulder yoke, upstanding petal collar and five-button closing above the waist are other details.

The Beaded Bag is Back

By ALICE ALDEN

THE BEADED BAG is back with a bang, which is quite logical as it is a natural complement to formal evening fashions. Perfect with an evening frock or with a very smart informal after-five outfit, is this beautiful bag designed by Lujean. A pouch bag, so designed that it will stand conveniently on any surface, Lujean has made it roomy enough to carry all the items that women consider indispensible, yet it has a fragile look. Gold and jet sequins are set on black satin in a herringbone design. It has a zippered opening and sequined handle.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hostess to Address Doctor by His First Name?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently I was invited to a dinner where a doctor and his wife were also guests. The hostess addressed the doctor by his first name, and several people said afterward that this was extremely rude. But since the hostess called everyone else present, including the doctor's wife, by his or her first name, I maintained that there was no reason why the doctor should be an exception. Don't you agree with me that the hostess was correct?

2. When three or more couples are dining together in a restaurant, what should the seating-arrangement, and most escorts fail to see that the girl is properly seated.

M. L.

1. Yes, indeed I agree with you. If the hostess knew the doctor's wife will enough to call her by her first name, she would, of course, also call the doctor by his first name. (The fact that the doctor has a title doesn't mean that he must always be addressed as "Doctor Smith". Friends of his, like the hostess, would, naturally, call him by his first name.)

2. When a number of couples go to dine together in a restaurant, usually each man sits by the girl who is his guest. This is the most convenient arrangement as far as ordering and check-settling are concerned. It is not the waiters' duty or responsibility to arrange the seating or to suggest arrangements. If each man is to be host for his girl-companion, he usually seats her next to him. If one of the men is the host, he indicates to the guests where they are to sit.

Invited to Wedding Reception by Casual Friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I have been invited to the wedding reception of the son of a casual friend of ours. We have met the son only once, and have never met the bride-to-be. Under these circumstances, should we send the wedding gift to the prospective groom, since he is the one we know? And would you please suggest a gift appropriate to send?

2. To whom shall I reply to the invitation—to the mother of the bride-to-be or to the girl herself?

3. Since we are invited only to the reception (to which we will drive by car) is it necessary for me to wear a hat?

W. P.

1. Even if you have not met the bride-to-be, you should send the wedding present addressed ot her at her home. And since your friendship with all concerned is on such a casual basis, your wedding gift may be, if you wish, something simple and inexpensive; for example, a set of eight or twelve tea napkins or cocktail napkins, or a half-dozen salad or dessert plates, medium-size white crystal or glass vase, or perhaps one of the new plastic trays, or a gadget for buffet service.

2. Your invitation-reply should be sent to the person (or persons) in whose name (or names) the invitation is issued. . . .usually, the parents of the bride-to-be.

3. To a formal wedding reception you should wear a hat.

Christmas Seals

The Belleville Shrine Club sponsored the 1944 Christmas Seal sale and worked with the Kingston Club until 1945 when all clerical work connected with the mailing and listing of some 20,000 letters were handled locally. This work is done without gain by the Shriners.

The funds derived from the 1945 sale paid for the seals, mailing, clerical work, mass X-ray surveys at Marmora, Madoc and Tweed. Sufficient funds are on hand to purchase the 4,000,000 Seals, 25,000 letter heads envelopes, postage and to take care of all clerical work for 1946.

Have you ever wondered how long you will live? To 60, 80 or 100 years? Life does not go on forever, yet why shorten it? Some adults, for instance, believe once they have passed 30 they are no longer susceptible to a disease like tuberculosis. On the contrary, tuberculosis may strike at any age. Last year one-half of those who died of the disease were over 30 years of age.

Tuberculosis is a sly enemy. The much-advertised danger signs are not symptoms of early tuberculosis but of active advancing disease. Early tuberculosis gives no warning. Only the X-ray can find the disease at a time when it is almost always completely curable.

Also contrary to popular belief, tuberculosis is not inherited. It is caused by a certain kind of germ, and like all germs, they are living organisms.

After tuberculosis has become active, it can take one of two courses. If neglected it will advance and the patient may die. When discovered early and treatment started quickly, it is almost always completely curable. Every year tens of thousands of tuberculosis patients return to useful work, their disease arrested. A history of tuberculosis does not stand in the way of earning one's living.

BEFEZZED PLAYBOYS DOING

If you ever saw a temple of Shriners parading, stepping as high as majorettes, and probably feeling as high as so many kites, it is unlikely that you fell into the error of mistaking them for the male auxiliary of the WCTU. But you might easily misunderstand the Shriners, just the same. It is true that the Shrine has been called the playground of Masonry, and that some Masonic purists are inclined to regard the playboys with suspicion. It is true that they are all Masons, but probably not many of them are profound students of the Ancient Free and Accepted Order. But they give the impression of treating Masonry not so much as a religion as a romp. They are obviously out to enjoy themselves and we do not know any body of men who enjoy themselves more and in more different ways. They are, as a rule, middle-aged. They are, as a rule, successful business and professional men. Their cost of living, we suppose, is considerably above the standard set for human subsistence. They are generally free spenders, for they have it to spend, and they say to each other: "It's only money, anyway."

The Crippled Children

But there is another aspect of the Shrine which is not so generally understood. It is a charitable or philanthropic one, and when one understands it he would be ready to forgive the Shriners for far more displays of exuberance and eccentricity than they are ever accused of. The truth is that the Shriners of the United States and Canada—and maybe in some other countries, so far as we know — have for years been maintaining hospitals for crippled children. In their playful mon the Shriners do not let any

GREAT WORK — — By J. V. McAree

haps more than anybody else has been responsible for generating the drive and enthusiasm that have combined to make this undertaking of the Shriners a success. We met Mr. Kendrick many years ago when he came to Toronto to judge a dog show and we showed a bull terrier under him. Later we met him in Philadelphia. Later still he became mayor of Philadelphia and probably could have had a distinguished political career. But he seems to have been first of all a Shriner, and when he had the opportunity to employ for a Masonic purpose his political and business gifts, combined with the urbanity and good fellowship that distinguished the typical Shriner, he probably realized that he had found his life work. It was in 1922 that the first Shrine hospital for crippled children was opened at Shreveport, La. Since then others have been built until there are now fifteen of them, including one in Winnipeg, another in Montreal and still another in Honolulu. These hospitals have cost in the neighborhood of $40,000,000, every dollar having been contributed by Shriners.

Costs a Lot of Money

It costs about another million a year to run the hospitals and this is provided by an annual tax of $2 on every Shriner. There is another method whereby one by donating $60 is freed from all annual dues. This $60 becomes an endowment in perpetuity, only the interest being used for current expenses. As noted, the Shriners pay everything. Now and then the public is invited to buy tickets for some football game or circus or other entertainment, the proceeds of which go to the hospitals, but it is assumed that the public gets value for the money thus spent, and outsiders probably feel a sense of gratitude to the Shriners for permitting even this nominal participation in a good work. The fifteen institutions have about 800 beds, nearly all of which are occupied at any given time with a waiting list of 1,200 little patients. Any crippled child is eligible. There is no distinction as to race or creed or color. Any crippled child, less than fourteen years old whose parents are unable to pay for hospital treatment is welcomed.

Always a Waiting List

There are, of course, more children in need of such treatment, as the Shrine hospitals provide, than there is accommodation. So the children are selected by the local Shrine temples, and any Shriner who comes across a crippled child may nominate it for a hospital cot. The Shriner then becomes the sponsor of the child and is expected to take a personal interest in it, not only while it is undergoing treatment, but later in life. Many children, formerly crippled, are now living happy useful lives as a result of the care, and the personal interest taken in them by individual Shriners. There are some of the best orthopaedic experts in the land at the head of these hospitals. They employ the latest discoveries of science, and there is no limit to the time the child can remain in the hospital so long as it is being benefited. We have seen a series of before-and-after photographs of crippled children and they are simply astounding, bordering on the incredible. So we say God bless the Shriners in a great work, and they may step as high as they wish; it won't be too high for us.

Lounge Room of Shrine Club Will Be Officially Opened Saturday

Pictured above is the beautifully appointed lounge room of the new club building of the Belleville District Shrine Club at 51 Highland Avenue which is being formally opened on Saturday evening. Luxurious appointments ensure the acme of social comfort to Shriners and their friends. Interior decoration is the last word in modern mode while up-to-date furnishings blend into the general color scheme with an eye-pleasing effect. Fluorescent lighting will afford a brilliant overall illumination while the suffused glow of reading lamps will give Shriners an opportunity to relax in reading or other social comforts. Also housed in the spacious building will be the headquarters of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Society, an important social service work that is sponsored by the club. Headquarters of the Christmas Seal Committee, Shriner-famous annual endeavor held in aid of their program of free X-ray examinations for residents of the county, will also be housed in the building. Administrative offices of the club are located in yet another part of the building as will the nurses' offices.

Another photographic angle of the lounge room of the Belleville and District Shrine Club showing its beautiful appointments and furnishings. A large number of city guests have been invited to the official opening on Saturday night which will be attended by high-ranking officials of the Shrine from all parts of the province. Officiating at the opening ceremonies will be Noble H. B. McConnell, Potentate of Rameses Temple and his Divan, of Toronto. Assisting him and acting in a host capacity will be Noble D. L. Storey, president of the Belleville Shrine Club, Noble Harvey Stewart, its secretary, and members of the club.

M.S. Nightingale Acquitted On Espionage Charges

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP) — A second jury verdict that disagreed with the findings of the Royal Commission on espionage was in the records of the Ontario Supreme Court today with the acquittal of Matt Simons Nightingale.

The Commission reported its conclusion that Nightingale had given information to the Russians while he was a communications expert with R.C.A.F. from 1942 to 1945.

A 10-man jury took three hours yesterday to decide Nightingale was innocent. The charge against him was one under the Official Secrets Act of 1939, one of communicating information.

A fortnight earlier, another jury in the same courtroom acquitted Eric George Adams, former official of several government financial branches, of conspiring to communicate information. The commission had reported its conviction that he, too, had communicated state secrets to the Russians.

Will Not be Pressed

Further charges still face both men but it is considered doubtful that they will be pressed.

The Nightingale verdict brought an end to a series of four espionage trials that began Oct. 1 in the Provincial Supreme Court. He and Adams were acquitted, while convictions were entered in the case of H. S. Gerson and J. S. Benning, former Munitions Department officials. who have both appealed five-year sentences.

A third acquittal arising from prosecutions in Canada's spy probe was that of W. M. Pappin, found innocent by county court Judge A. G. McDougall of charges arising from an attempt to get a false passport for a Russian agent.

Four Other Cases

The series in Supreme Court was the first of two. The second will begin in Carleton county court before a judge alone Tuesday when David Gordon Lunan, former Canadian Information Services editor, goes on trial. At least three other cases will follow his.

Tomorrow in city court, Miss Agatha Chapman, 39-year-old Bank of Canada economist, is slated to be committed formally for trial on a charge of conspiring. However, the committal has already been postponed once because of Adams' acquittal.

The Crown alleges that Miss Chapman acted as a contact between Adams and Kathleen Willsher, now serving three years after pleading guilty to conspiring to communicate information.

Once freed, Nightingale and his attractive, dark wife, Olive, said they planned to go to Montreal as soon as possible.

Nightingale belongs to a family which lived for years in the Lake Beauport region near Quebec City.

His brother, now farming the family land there, was among those who heard him acquitted. A big grin on his face, he later told reporters "Now I can go back to milking the cows."

'Ace' Wizard Radio Brain Now Being Built

London, Nov. 8 (Reuters)—Viscount Mountbatten's memory machine had better move over and make room for "Ace," a wizard radio brain which tackles simultaneous equations with 50 to 100 unknowns.

The British Department of Scientific and Industrial Research promises that Ace—automatic computing engine—will "hear" and "remember" orders better than Eniac—electronic numerical integrator and computer.

Eniac was referred to by Lord Mountbatten in a recent speech before the British Society of Electrical Engineers.

Two or three years will be required to build Ace and the cost will be about /125,000 ($500,000), the Research Department said in giving these details of its proposed operation:

Ace will be "told" a problem by passing through it a pack of cards with punched instructions (on Eniac a problem must be prepared through a laborious two-hour process of plugging and switching.)

Prefabricated units, stored is a library will "pop" the question and Ace will flip out the answer in the demical system, in numbers represented by a series of ones and zeros.

Ace can multiply two 10-figure numbers in 2/1,0000ths of a second).

Ace probably will be unique. further scientific advances are expected to outdate Ace before he really gets going.

Leading the team working on Ace are Sir Charles Darwin, Director of Britain's National Physical Laboratory; Dr. A. M. Turing, Ace's 34-year-old inventor; Dr. J. Rr. Womersley and Prof. D. Hartree of Cambridge University.

Officials and Salesmen of Canada Bread Co. Attend Banquet Here; $30,000 Distributing Plant Opened

Belleville and district salesmen of the Canada Bread Company temporarily adopted a new role on Wednesday evening when they played hosts to fellow salesmen and company officials at a banquet held in the new $30,000 distributing centre recently opened at 164 East Moira Street.

Special guests at the function were salesmen of the Oshawa and Peterborough districts with some 77 in all being in attendance. Company officials present were Mr. A. V. Loftus, general manager, Toronto; assistant general manager, W. Antliffe, cake factory manager, Gordon Prowse, Toronto, and manager of the bread division, Edward Cross, also of Toronto.

The out-of-town guests were taken on an inspection tour of the new distributing centre and later were entertained by a troupe of dancers, singers and magicians from Toronto under the direction of Ken. Butler

Members of Christ Church Ladies' Guild, under Mrs. Theobald, catered to the guests.

Brief addresses were given by officials and it was pointed out that the company branch here had increased its business five times since it began operation in this district nine years ago.

The guests were formally welcomed by Mr. George Meades, local manager of the company.

Chairman of the occasion was Mr. J. F. Holloway, manager of the Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough districts.

USES RODEO TACTICS

Bisbee, Ariz., Nov. 8 (AP) — Rancher Paul Leindecker adopted rodeo tactics to bag a deer. Leindecker was riding his range when he saw the deer and spurred his horse in pursuit. He bulldogged it, as a rodeo performer does a steer, tied its legs, slung it behind the saddle and rode home. Now the deer is in the corral at his ranch.

POLICEMAN AVERTS TRAGEDY BY TACKLING RUNAWAY HORSES

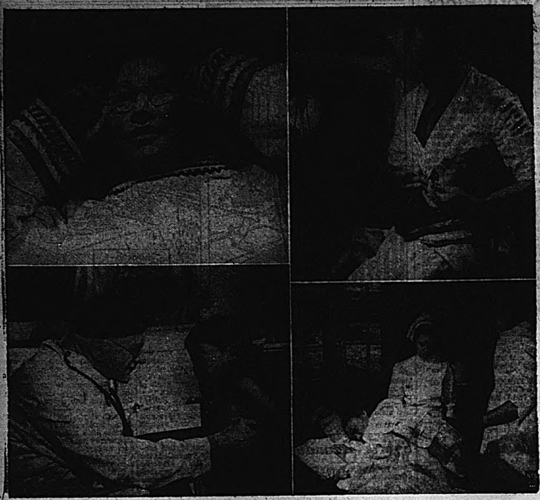
SGT. LEO FRANCOEUR WINS Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD
is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.
The DOW AWARD
DOW BREWERY • MONTREAL

The traffic was heavy on Notre Dame Street, Montreal, as Police Sergeant Francoeur drove homewards. Suddenly there was confusion on the sidewalk! A team of horses had become frightened, bolting onto the sidewalk and pulling the wagon crazily along behind them. Pedestrians scattered in all directions to avoid the pounding hooves. But Francoeur jammed on his brakes, leapt from his car, and headed for the charging animals. Catching the bridle of one horse, he held on grimly as they dragged him a full block. Then, hoisting himself to the wagon tongue, he managed to get his hands on the reins . . . and after a few seconds, he had the wild chase halted.

This man's courageous action, above and beyond the call of duty, is in keeping with the fine traditions of his service. We are proud to pay tribute to Sgt. Leo Francoeur through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Government Doctors Check Eskimo Health



More than 1500 Eskimos have been X-rayed and examined this year by Department of National Health and Welfare doctors of the Eastern Arctic Patrol in the most extensive Arctic health urvey yet undertaken. The Government medical group included eye specialists from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, who were required to fit only those worn by pretty Letia (top left). In the cramped quarters of an R. M. S. Nascopie cabin, Dentist R. W. Frank, (top right) of Vancouver, found general condition of teeth to be sound. Physical examinations, such as that being made (lower left) on young Eskimo boy, by Dr. Geo. Hooper of Ottawa, showed little organic disorder, no throat infection or venereal disease. At Pangnirtung, Baffin Island, government doctor James Osborne (lower right) prepares for spinal operation on Eskimo girl, Noobooya, assisted by nurse N. V. Rundle.

More than 1,500 Eskimos have been X-rayed and examined this year by Department of National Health and Welfare doctors on the Eastern Arctic Patrol in the most extensive survey yet undertaken on the health of the Eastern Arctic's 6,000 native inhabitants.

Visiting 15 posts form Lake Harbour on Baffin Island to Dundas Harbour on Devon Island in a 10,000 mile swing through Arctic waters on the R. M. S. Nascopie, the government medical group obtained X-ray and medical records of a significant cross-section of the population. The X-ray films are now being interpeted and the findings tabulated with the aid of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association.

Immune To Many Diseases

Cases of healed tubercular bones show that the Eskimos can build up a degree of immunity to white men's diseases. Cancer nervous, mental and heart diseases, common among Canada's civilized population, were not in evidence, according to Dr. H. W. Lewis, medical superintendent for the Eastern Arctic.

Fractured bones are common; gangrene from frostbite is occasional, and gunshot wounds rare for people living by high-powered rifles. Drownings are among the commonest causes of death for adults. Severe rheumatic conditions were not seen, and no cases of appendicitis or venereal disease were encountered on the trip. The doctors found not one case of infected sore throat or tonsilitis.

Dentist in the medical group found the general condition of teeth to be sound.

Eyesight Good

Among the examining group were eye specialists from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. They found that vision among the Eskimos was good. Out of 1,547 Eskimos 128 required glasses; out of 39 whites examined 29 needed glasses. Greatest benefit from the glasses came through use in sewing and hunting. By arrangement between the C. N. I. B. and the department, these glasses are supplied free to the Eskimos by the government.

The group found a scarcity of children of three years and under and estimated that nearly 50 per cent of all known deaths occurred during these years. Since love of children is strong among only attribute this high rate of infant mortality to malnutrition and ignorance of early infant care. Pamphlets on pre-natal and infant care are being prepared in syllabic writing, now widely used by Eastern Arctic natives for distribution next year Eskimos learn quickly, and it is believed that health standards can be raised through education.

Not Long Lived

Clinical findings on all Eskimos examined have been card indexed. Statistics bore out suspicion that longevity was rare; the oldest man found was 67, and few beyond the age of 60 are known. It is considered doubtful that Christianity has yet supplanted the early Eskimo belief that the practice of self-destruction by freezing or drowning when old age becomes a burden gives them a preferred treatment in a future state.

A check of the inoculation program inaugurated two years ago showed a possibility of completion by next year. The program guards against re-occurrence of epidemics of whooping cough, small-pox, diphtheria and typhoid aggravated by abnormal movements of population in the north during the war. Future plans call for further protection for the natives through medical examination of Arctic travellers.

Madoc

Trinity Anniversary Services

Madoc, (Special) — The anniversary services of Trinity United Church, Madoc, were held on Sunday, Nov. 3 when a large and appreciative congregation listened to the guest speaker, Rev. A. J. Wilson D.D., editor of the United Church "Observer" as he delivered two eloquent sermons. In the morning Dr. Wilson took for his text Hebrews 11, 39-40. The speaker traced the important contribution which men and women of faith have made to the growth of the church and the development of all the good that has been witnessed through the centuries. In picturesque language he described the great procession through the ages as those men and women marched over the steep ascents through peril, toil and pain" and declared that all who are serving in the church of today, some in important positions, others in a more humble way, are a part of the great procession climbing the heights. In the evening the theme was taken from the book of Genesis chapter 28 verse 12 and chapter 31 verse 11. The speaker described how God comes into human life and guides men and women who are willing to be led by Him. The appearance and message of the angels to Jacob is symbolic of the approach of God to man. He does not leave us to our mistakes, blunderings and sins but seeks to lift us up and make of us His loyal servants. The minister of Trinity Church, Rev. Alfred Poulter had charge of the services and welcomed Dr. Wilson to Madoc and to Trinity Church, also the many visitors who were present. The minister of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Rev. J. G. Murdock assisted at the evening service.

The Trinity choir ably assisted in the services with several well rendered numbers including two ladies' quartets by Mesdames H. Poulter, I. Hulin, E. Rankin, and H. Mutton. Church decorations consisted of baskets of mums, colored foliage and evergreens, pleasingly arranged. The thanks of the minister was expressed to all who contributed in making the anniversary a success.

Mr. and Mrs Walter Whytock spent Sunday with relatives at Bloomfield, Prince Edward County.

VANDALS DEFACED MEMORIAL

Penetang, Nov. 8 —(CP)— Vandalism defacing of Penetang's First Great War Memorial may have incited the building of an addition to this Simcoe county town's over-crowded hospital. Twenty-four of the thirty-two brass-lettered names on the monument in honor of those who died between 1914 and 1918 have their letters removed, marked and scratched. In view of this, it was decided to build a more suitable memorial to honor the Second Great War dead and the hospital idea was suggested.

Wilson with whom she is residing, made the day enjoyable when she entertained in her mother's honor Mrs. Hugh McFee of Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Bush and daughter of Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilson and family.

The honored guest also received a number of birthday gifts and one which she especially prized was a large vase of beautiful mums from her granddaughter, Mrs. William Fox of Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett entertained the members of the Endeavor's S. S. Class on Tuesday evening. Mr. Herb Burke of Fuller was the guest speaker and gave a wonderful address. Mr. and Mrs. William Bray furnished the special music.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Wilson were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Barlow and Lois of Belleville.

MARMORA

Deloro Safety Committee Meets

Marmora (Special) — The November meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held in the Electric Shop on Tuesday with Chairman C. H. Buskard presiding over a good attendance of members.

The first report was that of the Suggestions Committee submitted by G. Brooks, who mentioned six suggestions had been received in October and also gave six recipes. G. H. Rennie, in reporting for the Competitive Committee, said that one award had been given for a worthy suggestion and that the star had been awarded the General Division. The report of the Inspection Committee was handled by W. M. Regan who told of this committee making thirteen suggestions. George O'Neill was appointed floating member for November. In speaking for the Publicity Committee, A. W. Drew called attention to a Winter Hazard's contest to be conducted in December. He also reported that Safety First calendars for 1947 have been purchased for each employee. J. A. Rice in his report for the Health and Investigation Committee referred to the holding of prone method practices, the inspection of First Aid boxes and the findings of his committee on three minor accidents occurring with the past three months. The chairman then presented the monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds after which M. J. Corrigan reported for the plant bulletin.

Since the last monthly meeting, Messrs. M. J. Corrigan, G. Brooks, and N. A. Kilpatrick attended a meeting of the Eastern Division of the Industrial Accidents' Prevention Association in Belleville and each briefly gave his impressions of the meeting, which strongly appealed to them. The closing item of business was the passing of a motion submitted by C. T. Nicholson and seconded by D. Robertson to amend regulation 20 of the constitution regarding the classification of accidents.

CAPS EXTEND WINNING STREAK TO NINE STRAIGHT

Also Stretch First Place Margin Over Cleveland to Three Points

(By The Canadian Press)

Though Detroit Red Wings have recalled Les Douglas and Gerry Couture, two of its best point getters, Indianapolis Capitals continue to trample opposition in the American Hockey League.

The Caps, a farm club of the Red Wings, stretched their Western Division first place margin over Cleveland Barons to three points and extended their unbeaten streak to nine straight games last night by dynamiting the Springfield Indians, 10-0.

Tom Ivan's crew piled up a 4-0 lead in the first two periods and then fired six goals into the Indian net in the final round. Tony Bukovich led the assault with two goals and two assists and Enio Sclisizzi also counted twice for the Caps.

Tony Licari, McCaig, Simpson, Millar and Wochy scored the other Cap goals.

It was Rookie goal tender Ralph Almas' second 10-0 shutout victory of the season. The 22-year-old netminder, who jumped direct to the Caps from the amateur ranks this season, has allowed only 19 pucks to get by him in 11 games, the best back stopping record in the circuit.

In the only other game, St. Louis Flyers prevented New Haven Ramblers from moving into a first place deadlock with Hershey Bears for the Eastern Division leadership by nosing out the Ramblers, 2-1.

After a scoreless first period, Eddie Olson and Harvey Fraser sscored for the Flyers in the second with the Hec Pozzo assisting in both plays. Alan Kuntz netted the lone Rambler goal less than two minutes before the end of the game to deprive net minder Hec Highton of a shutout.

ST. PAUL SAINTS DEFEAT OILERS

By The Canadian Press

St. Paul Saints of the United States Hockey League last night defeated Tulsa Oilers 10-3 behind the stick-handling of Vic Myles, a Tulsa player last season, who scored three of the Saints' goals and assisted on another.

The Fort Worth-Dallas and Minneapolis-Omaha games both ended in ties—5-5 for the former and 3-3 for the latter. Buck Davies and Joe Shack each scored two goals for the Saints and Normie Smith, Schwartz and Dew counted the last trio.

Fort Worth's Bob Drainville scored two goals for his team while Frank Eisenzoph, Jones and Weaver ciunted the others. Squee Allan and Peterson scored two of Dallas' counters while Gerry Bellemarre rang up three markers for the Texans.

Minneapolis' Art Strobel scored twice and Walt Melynk made the third counter in the tie affair ot Omaha. Scorers for the Knights were Sam Kennedy with two markers and George Homenuke.

CANADIENS WIN FROM CHICAGO BY 4-3 COUNT

Game Bears Out Boucher's Statement That N.H.L. Teams Are Evenly Matched

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With a hope that the brain cells can stand the rich diet, we give you as food for thought the observation of New York's Frankie Boucher on the theory of National Hockey League relativity this season:

"The teams are more evenly matched but we have a long way to go and anything can happen in this league."

That was what the Rangers' manager was quoted as saying in Toronto, where his team meets the Leafs tomorrow night. What else can a coach say in a season like this?

Take Montreal Canadiens. There the Stanley Cup champions were, night before last, in a humble tie for the cellar. So they beat back Chicago Black Hawks, 4-3, last night. That victory hoists them to within a point of the top, shared by Boston Bruins and Toronto.

Had Chicago won, it would have been even more upsetting. Following their 6-2 win over the last place Detroit Red Wings the previous night, another win would have seen the Hawks leap all the way from the foot of the class to the head in two nights. As it is, they remain tied with the Rangers for fourth position.

Race Very Tight

The reason for all the leapfrogging, of course, is the tightness of the race, with only three points separating first and last place after 23 games have been played. It may be one team will show some foot in the five game week-end coming up. On the other hand, they could huddle closer together.

With Chicago and Detroit the only teams scheduled for a single weekend contest, the other four all get double chances to open up a little space.

The Canadiens' management injected two new bloods into the lineup last night. The pair, rearguard Roger Leger and forward Leo Gravelle, helped the club considerably.

Leger, brought up from Buffalo Bisons of the American League, made the plays for two Canuck counters. Gravelle, a blond speedster from the amateur Montreal Royals, scored a third-period goal.

The Habitants punch line did most of the damage, however, with centre Elmer Lach tallying twice, Rocket Maurice Richard once, and veteran Toe Blake getting two assists.

Two of manager Johnny Gottselig's pony boys, Max Bentley and Bill Mosienko, netted goals and Red Hamill scored their other. The Hawks finished strongly after Montreal opened up a 2-0 lead in the first 30 minutes.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Elmer Lach, Montreal, whose two goals led Canadiens to a 4-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Max and Doug Bentley, Chicago, who turned in a fine game and earned a goal and an assist respectively.

Toe Blake and Roger Leger, Montreal, veteran and newcomer who each notched two assists.

N.H.L. LEADERS

(By The Canadian Press)

Standings—Toronto, won 3, tied 3, lost 1; Boston, won 2, tied 5, lost 1, points 9.

Points—Taylor, Detroit, 5 goals, 9 assists, 14 points.

Goals—Richard, Montreal, 6
Assists—Taylor, Detroit 9
Penalties—Jackson, Detroit, 19
Shutouts—Durnan, Montreal; Brimsek, Boston, 1.

MAY INCREASE PENALTIES

Toronto, Nov. 8 —(CP)— Minimum penalties for certain traffic offences may be increased shortly it was reported in Queen's Park circles Thursday. A report released Wednesday, showed 598 persons were killed in Ontario and 9,804 injured in 13,458 traffic accidents in 1945.

Cause for concern was found in the fact that of 109 drivers believed to have left the scenes of accidents only nine were apprehended. More intensive investigation of such incidents may be sought from the municipalities where they occur.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Belleville Hockey Association will inaugurate a "booster" campaign in the immediate future with which it expects and hopes to raise sufficient funds to send two hockey squads away in the full glory of uniforms and equipment along the long winter trail. While some revenue will come through an agreement with the Price Advertising Agency which has the advertising franchise for the Hume Arena, it will hardly be sufficient to cover initial expenses for equipment etc.

• • •

Dick Beare was appointed chairman of the "Booster Club" and will form a committee to help get things underway. It was felt by the executive and players that the "booster" idea was a good move and that through its medium sufficient funds could be raised to start the hockey ball rolling.

• • •

Tickets for membership in the association under the "Booster" aegis will be sold at one buck per pasteboard, and should sell like the proverbial hotcake. Not that Dicky Beare and his colleagues will not accept more than one simoleon, in fact they'd appreciate a fiver, if you feel so inclined. However, the fans in particular and the public in general are asked to get behind the idea and support it to the limit.

• • •

The newly-formed Belleville Hockey Association is deserving of support. They are laying the foundations of what is hoped to be championship teams of the future. Starting from scratch, insofar as a city hockey administration is concerned, they have a tough row to hoe in front of them. And they can't do it alone. Mr. and Mrs. Phan must needs put their shoulders to the wheel.

• • •

So when a "Booster" representative, and we don't mean the fluid that starts new hirsute shoots sprouting atop cue-ball domes of tired business men and others, asks you, snap the strings on the family purse and buy a ticket. It is an investment in youth and good clean sport. You won't be sorry.

• • •

Western University Mustangs footballers resent, and rightly so, the "packed team" tag put on them by Montreal sportswriters the week preceding the big game with McGill. Whether the Mawryall scribes had a sour-grapes complex or what they didn't pull any punches about the "packed" angle of the Metras herd.

• • •

Jack Parks, sports editor of the London Free Press takes up the cudgels on behalf of the Mustangs and their mentor. "Of the current team," he writes, "eleven are London boys who moved up to the university through the normal channels. Windsor has seven lads on the club and if the Montreal scribes can find another college closer to Windsor than Western, we would like to hear of it."

• • •

"Four other players," Parks says, "are Western Ontario athletes who come from a radius of forty miles of London and there are two Hamilton and two Toronto players to round out the squad."

• • •

The big holler, he goes on to say, about Western appears to rise from the fact that the smallest college in the Big Four has been playing the most consistent football since 1938. They have not been defeated since the last game of the 1938 season despite the recruiting of high-powered talent by other spots . . . Western's athletic star started to rise when Bill Storen and Johnny Metras dropped in here in 1935.

• • •

"They set up a pattern of football which so far no other college has been able to match . . . Johnny Metras has taken average Canadian schoolboys and made them into a sound unit with a plan. If any care to take pot shots at the Mustangs and their methods, they would be on firmer ground if they condemned the move which brought Metras here. It has been coaching just a bit ahead of the other fellow, not a packed team, which has kept the Mustangs in there."

• • •

"For the benefit of those who have been banging Western" Parks says, "we ask them to look at the McGill roster. Seven of the Redmen come from outside Quebec province. Kingston has only five natives on the Queen's squad and the backbone of the Toronto team came into the Intercollegiate via Argonauts."

• • •

Western's roster hardly supports the packed team theory, the London scribe says, "and as far as the howl about scholarships is concerned, there are no more awarded here than at any other school and scholastic standing, not athletic prowess, governs these awards."

Which may be partly the reason why a certain starry halfback who wore the Queen's colors a year ago, was not seen in a Western football "saddle" this fall.

• • •

Aside to the Latta baseball team: Art. Fidler, veteran Strathroy hurler who flung you right out of a championship this fall, keeps his age a deep dark secret, but he had a pro tryout with the Washington Senators of the American League away back in 1930 and eventually played with the Chattanooga team. Feel better?

It will be Russian Cossack versus Arabian Sheik in the main bout at the Hume Arena tonight when Emir Badui of the colorful land of the tented Arabians meets haughty Kola Kwariaani, Siberian Cossack. The smaller, more agile sheik should prove a good match against the roughhouse tactics of the burly Don, and the mixture should be productive of some fiery excitement. Sandy O'Donnell who is not averse to a little of the more unorthodox methods of rassledassle- meets the big Dutchman Henry Piers while Pat Flanagan will cross mat rapiers with Natie "Nasty" Brown.

"AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN . . .
WE WILL REMEMBER THEM."

Tomorrow is Poppy Day when you will be met at the street corners and offered a red poppy to wear in your coat for a sign among your neighbors and fellow citizens that you have not forgotten the day, or the men for whom it is especially memorable in the calendar of our yearly observance.

• • •

It is the 28th Poppy Day. The new number of this anniversary is a new reminder of the meaning and the purpose of this act of remembrance. This wearing of the blood-red poppy, on a day in November, is a custom that has come down to us out of the memorial rituals of the First World War.

• • •

And because the meaning of the ritual does not change, it was continued during the Second World War, and now that peace has come again on earth we shall go on to perpetuate this seemly observance. It will be a good tradition of our people, of the service and sacrifice of our sons and brothers and comrades who died for their country in the cause which was ours.

• • •

And those gallant lads who followed in the footsteps of the First War heroes, did not halt very long in Flanders Fields where their fathers and uncles lay in poppy-strewn fields. They went farther on to do what had to be done in their cause which was ours. But we can stay on this day of all the year, to remember them, even as we remember those others who went before them. So when you are offered a red poppy tomorrow to wear in your coat, that is the meaning and the purpose of your remembrance.

THE BIG SEVEN

Toronto, Nov. 8—(CP)—There are football teams and football teams, training systems and training systems, but there's a high school team in Toronto that IS a team and its coach attributes that fact mainly to his training system.

There are some who say that Riverdale Collegiate's senior squad this season is one of the best balanced school teams Toronto has seen in years. Some of the old-timers say 20 years.

With pride coach Fred Pollard points to the season's five-game record — five wins; 144 points scored; 18 points scored against. Pollard insists the secret lies in fine conditioning.

The special secret of this condition was only revealed the other day when Hal (Toronto Globe and Mail) Walker happened along at a Riverdale practice session. The boys were not sprinting around the field, they were not doing calisthenics.

They were divided into two teams and were playing — soccer.

"It works better," Pollard said. "They don't mind running into condition this way."

"Some players just won't work at the drudgery of getting into shape. But when they have something like soccer to keep them on the move, they're bound to run themselves into shape."

North Bay's loss is Montreal's gain. Sandy Marling, Northern Ontario 1946 golf titlist has been transferred to Montreal on business and promises to give the Quebec tee artists a run for their money next summer.

Sandy is one of the outstanding golfers developed in Ontario's northland and has made many friends at the North Bay Club where he was senior 'A' champion this season.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 8 (CP)—It was just a routine race on an off-day at Pamaica Park and the fact that a filly named Biding Time lost by a head was of little moment to those who hadn't risked a straight bet on her...But it was the end of an era, the last time to the post for the green and white silks of the late Edward R Bradley, the scrupulously honest, hard-hitting horseman whose association with racing forms one of the distinguished sagas of the turf.

The B Line

Everybody remembers the Bradley horses...Their names always started with the letter B and he didn't turn up many duds ...Among the best were Black Servant and Behave Yourself and Bubbling Over, to name a few, and finally there was Bimelech, the apple of the colonel's eye... The colonel was sure he had another Kentucky Derby winner in the bibically-named colt, but along came a nobody called Gallahadion to beat Bimelech to the wire...When the colonel died this summer his brother John took over the string for a while, but the Idle Hour racing interests have been sold now for $3,000,000.

Playing Out the String

John, you might say, was just "Biding Time", and it fell to the lot of a rather mediocre filly by the name to bear the Bradley banner for the last time...Oddly enough Biding Time was beaten by a horse named O'est Tout, which hardly needs translation as "That's All."

Treat 'Em Rough

The 13-year-old chestnut Resorte and his Mexican army rider, Col. Huberto Moriles, are the outstanding performers at the International Horse Show here but it wasn't always that way...For years Resorte was a most recalcitrant beast and nobody wanted any part of him...Finally Col. Mariles, his patience exhausted, shagged a rock at the horse... startled, Resorte came galloping back to find out who had the gall to pull a trick like that...It's been sweetness and light ever since.

Around the Circuit

The St. Lawrence University basketball team will meet McGill University of Montreal Feb. 15 and Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., Feb. 19, both games on St. Lawrence home courts at Canton, N.Y....The famed New York Celtics quintet, which introduced basketball here 21 years ago, meet New York's football Giants in an exhibition game at Madison Square Garden Monday ...The Celts will parade their original cast of Johnny Beckman, Nat Holman, Dutch Dehnert, Joe Lapchick, Chris Leonard and Pete

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Plenty of fireworks in a deal helps to make bridge exciting. Sometimes the interesting features bob up in the bidding. At other times they may develop in the course of the play.

There is nothing unusual in this deal:

NORTH
♠A Q 5 4
♥Q 5 4 2
♦J 10 9 4
♣8

WEST
♠K 7
♥9 7
♦7 6 5 3
♣J 10 9 5 3

EAST
♠J 10 6 3
♥10 6
♦A K
♣A 7 6 4 2

SOUTH
♠9 8 2
♥A K J 8 3
♦Q 8 2
♣K Q

As hands go, these look like millions of others ordinarily encountered in a bridge game. And the bidding of them was almost monotonous. It goes like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	1 S
2 H	4 H

The opening of one heart merely announces a hand that is better than average, including five tricks. The one spade response simply tells of a hand with more than two tricks and that biddable suit.

The heart rebid by south says the hand contains a rebiddable suit. The fact that it is a higher number than partner's one spade bid admits another trick. Thus, south shows six tricks.

A jump admits seeing tricks enough to help make a game. And it takes ten tricks for a game in hearts. Therefore, north's jump to four hearts is an admission of the other four tricks.

There are some players who have a wrong impression about a jump bid. They seem to have the idea that a jump always shows an unusually strong hand. It does no such thing.

A jump is simply a signal that the jumper sees enough to make a game in the agreed suit. It means nothing more than that. Thus, a game is reached here without anything hot in the bidding.

But the opening lead from west is a club. This develops something odd in the play. Can you see how a defender can spice the play to defeat the contract? Look sharp.

BEDS REMOVED

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP)— Boston firemen aren't going to sleep on the 48-hour weekly tour that voters granted them in the recent election. Mayor James M. Curley ordered all beds removed from fire houses with the remark that firemen would be in the fire houses for eight hours of work daily and "therefore would have no need of beds." The beds were provided originally for 24-hour straight stretches.

Post-Schedule Playoffs Begin When Toronto Indians Take on the Balmy Beachers

Seven Teams in the East and One in West Still Eligible for Grey Cup

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Eastern Canadian football season right on the verge of post-schedule play-offs, immediate attention is focussed on Toronto where the O.R.F.U.'s semi-finals get under way with Toronto Indians meeting their traditional city rivals, Balmy Beach.

Being a sudden-death playdown, it will be short and sweet. The team which comes out of the fray on the long end of the count will know it has overcome a major stumbling block in the hunt for the Grey Cup.

Today there still are seven teams in the east which are contenders for Dominion Gridiron honors. By tonight there will be six and Saturday's five games—including two intercollegiate tits—will further narrow the field to four. Biding their time in Winnipeg, meanwhile, are the Blue Bombers, five-time Western Canadian champions, who wait to meet the best in the east in an attempt to annex their third Grey Cup.

The balance of the weekend schedule sees Hamilton Wildcats play host to Sarnia Imperials in the second O.R.F.U. semi-final. Wildcats are gunning for their fourth Ontario title and may well come out the victors.

The Imps bear on their battle flag the names of many greats in that era when Sarnia was tops—the years between 1929 and 1939 when they won 10 O.R.F.U. titles and scored two Grey Cup Victories.

Queen's Travels to Western

Also on Saturday are big four battles between Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes with Ottawa Rough Riders meeting Hamilton Tigers. In the College circuit Queen's is at the titlist Western field and Toronto travels to McGill in Montreal.

The interprovincial fight for the second play-off spot shares the spotlight for the weekend as Rough Riders and Alouettes gun to pop into the big four's No. 2 spot. The situation facing Montreal requires them to defeat the Toronto team or at least earn a tie to be sure of post-season money.

Should the Alouettes lose and Rough Riders top the luckless Tigers, the Montrealers will have to meet their nemesis of the season in a sudden-death Wednesday game at Ottawa to settle the two-way tie for second place.

Much Speculation

There is much speculation over tonight's game in Toronto. Indians who had topped the O.R.F.U. last year, unashamedly say they still consider themselves the better team.

Beaches feel they have been playing in and out ball all year and are due to settle down to some playing that will scalp the Indians and tame either Wildcats or Imperials. There has been a steadying influence in the return of veteran Bobby Porter to the quarter position and there's an undercurrent of feeling around Beach quarters that the Redshirts will be disposed of "a la 1945".

inners of the two O.R.F.U. games meet in the Union final next week, while the Union titlist will meet the big four kings November 23.

Canadian Horses Prominent At N.Y. Horse Show

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadian horses were prominent at the national horse show in New York yesterday, with the two representatives from Quebec Province emerging as serious challengers for the open title. Prince Rex, an aged bay gelding from the Mount Vernon ranch of Vernon G. Cardy at Val David, Que., scored a surprise victory in the "knock down and out" class for open jumpers and a stablemate, a six year-old black gelding named Atomic, finished second.

With two of the eight open jumping events still to be held, Prince Tex is tied with Richard Webb's Tops'l at seven points each. Chamarro, the favorite, leads with 10.

Prima Canera, the Italian giant, who wasn't much of a heavyweight boxer, is doing all right financially in his new wrestling career. The total gate at his U. S. appearances in the last two weeks has been $35,000.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, said during a baseball discussion yesterday at Donora, Pa., that he would seek a sum in excess of $30,000 a year. Later he qualified the remark with the assertion he was "merely batting the breeze."

Ben Hogana of Hershey, Pa., and south open Golf Tournament at Pinehurst N. C., with a six-under-par 282. It was his third victory in the event and added $1,500 to his winnings.

In Basketball Association of of America Rames last night, Providence Steamrollers downed Chicago Stags 73-65; New York Knickerbockers won from St. Louis Bombers 68-63, and Philadelphia Warriors took Pittsburg Ironmen into camp 81-75.

In Mexico City racing yesterday, Gilgar, with Canadian Jockey Emil Roy Aboard, won the six- furlong featured premio ometepee to pay $12.60 for $2.

Headingly defeated Dublin University 9-5 in an English rugby match played at London yesterday.

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, Toronto boxer, has been signed to meet Paul Zenit of Mexico City, in a ten round feature bout at Mechanics Building, Boston, Nov. 18, it was announced last night.

MONEY SOON RECOVERED

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP) — Harold rancis put nine $100 bills in a sock, but forgot to tell his wife about it. She sent the sock and some other clothing to a needy family. The $900 was recovered after extensive explanation.

Is He Oldest Election Officer?

Orillia, Nov. 8 (CP) — John L. Jenkins, 91, knows he is the oldest deputy returning officer on the list of officials approved for municipal elections here in December—now he want to know if he is the oldest election officer in Ontario.

New Order Aimed At Booing Of Grid Officials

By BOB MEYERS

Los Angeles, Nov. 8. (AP)—Football fans apparently haven't heard much about it, but a recent anti-booing-of-officials order issued by the Pacific Coast conference presents interesting possibilities if rigidly enforced.

The order, issued rather quietly, declared, in part, "if rooting sections yell or count off the yards as an official steps off a penalty, the official will keep on stepping off more penalty until the yelling or counting stops."

Inquiry at the office of Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt's office brought a cautious response, "No comment at all".

But one anonymous conference member admitted knowledge of the order, and with wonderful redundancy, explained it was aimed at breaking up "undignified hooliganism".

Sideline wits, however, quickly envisioned humorous possibilities. Sports Writer Jack Geyer pictured planned sabotage—rooting sections in which rivals had infiltrated to boo all decisions, plus penalizing their opponents to pieces.

Another saw a referee, unable to halt booing, stepping off yard after yard—and walking right out of the stadium.

Or what happens if one section calls off the yards, approving the penalty and rubbing it in on the rival rooters? Does the referee reverse his steps, or what?

College authorities, however, applauded the move and deplored an apparent trend toward organized verbal arguments with officials.

"And don't think officials won't enforce the order, which is backed by the rules," said one.

CHAPTER 9

"Look Sally," he persisted. "I'm not going to hound you—to force my friendship on you; but someone should shake you out of this morbid aloofness. Listen—Doctor Bacon thinks you're too conscientious—too sober—too bound up in your work. We both feel you need fun and excitement. Carolyn's having a few people over at her house tonight and she asked me to bring you along. Will you go? It will do you good. The party's something in the nature of—well, an announcement although I shouldn't be the one to tell you. Nothing formal. You know I'm getting through here this summer—August—" He sounded flutered.

"Wh-at? Getting through here?" she stammered.

"I expect to go into the Army. When I leave I should like to feel you—you don't hate me—that I— that you are my friend.. You haven't answered my question. Will you come tonight?" His hand caught her and held it.

Sally shook her head. She was horrified at the sick feeling she was experiencing—at the terror that made her want to run away and hide from his kind, penetrating gaze. "Oh, you don't understand—no one understands," she cried. "Blair—" She bit her lip and said stiffly: "Thank you, Doctor Hallock. I'm —I'm sorry —I truly am, but I—it will be quite impossible for me to go tonight. Will you explain to Carolyn and wish every happiness and you, too?" She tore her hand free and ran down the stairs.

She felt that she needed exercise—to get away from everything—even her own thoughts. She stopped at the bulletin board and saw she was to go duty at 7 next morning. Pediatrics. Good! She liked working with the children. That meant her evening was free. She would go and have dinner with Aunt Clem. She walked around the hospital building to the Annex and went up to her room for hat, bag and coat then turned to confront Norma Holden.

"Have you heard the big news, Maynard?" she asked.

"I don't know," Sally replied guardedly. "What news?"

"Doctor Hallock is leaving us—going into the Army."

Sally said nothing and Norma went on, a note of triumph in her voice, and Sally wanted to warn her to speak more softly but knew it would be misunderstood.

"He's going to be married before he goes. I told you she was out to land him and I was right. I hear she's announcing it tonight. Pretty cute, isn't he? I feel sorry for the other girl, though she had it coming to her for being such a sap. Don't you agree? But of course you—being you—wouldn't. Lucky I didn't fall for his line—like—you know—" She switched the idea she had planned to put across, feeling, perhaps, it safer to let it remain just a hint and went on: "Sunderlin's sore at him for some reason. Probably she's on to his tricks and—well, s'long, Maynard Thought you might be interested." She hurried on down the hall to her room.

Sally stood for a moment looking after the girl who for some unknown reason, hated her. Just why had Holden told her this?

"What's all the row about?" Margaret Adams asked, coming into the hall from her own room. "Why, what's the matter, Sally? You look—you look queer. Anything happen?"

"Nothing," the girl replied dully, "only Holden just told me about Doctor Hallock leaving and his approaching marriage. She intimated also that Hallock is in wrong with Sunderlin—because of one of the nurses."

"She meant you of course."

"Me? But that's ridiculous. How could she mean me, Margaret?"

"She's been crazy about that man ever since he came here and I honestly believe the lug has never given her a thought That's what hurts. She knows it and is taking it out on you. And you know Sunderlin.." the older nurse added seriously. "I'd better go talk to her.."

But Sally shook her head. "No she said. "If my reputation can be so easily lost, it can't be worth very much."

Sally was passing the superintendent's door a few minutes later when one of the student nurses called to her.

"I've been looking for you, Miss Maynard," she said somewhat breathlessly. "Miss Sunderlin wants to see you in her office at once. She looks terrible," the girl added softly. "Has something happened—to you?"

"Not that I know of," Sally replied and retraced her steps to knock on the superintendent's door. At the sharp "Come!" she entered. The woman at the desk didn't raise her head from the letter lying on the blotter before her.

"You wish to see me, Miss Sunderlin?" Sally asked, coming to stand before her.

"I do," the woman said stonily. "Sit down, Maynard. I want to say that I am bitterly disappointed in you. Bitterly disappointed. To think that you—your splendid uncle's niece, whom I have trusted implicitly—capable of such flagrant violation of rules—such disgraceful conduct—"

Sally who had but just seated herself sprang to her feet. "What do you mean 'disgraceful," Miss Sunderlin?" she demanded hotly. "How dare you insult me?"

The superintendent stared at her for a moment in something like admiration. But it was only for a moment. She renewed the attack. "I said 'Sit down, Maynard.'"

"I prefer to stand," Sally replied with deadly calm. "Now then, just what am I accused of —what do you mean by 'disgraceful conduct'? I demand an explanation and I mean to have it."

• • •

The door opened and Doctor Hallock entered. Sally looked at him in consternation. So he was in on this, too. How shameful —how humiliating!

"I'll see you later, Doctor," the superintendent said in a milder tone. "You may go now. I'll send for you after I have finished with Miss Maynard."

The young man acted as if she hadn't spoken. He came to stand beside Sally and his voice was coldly hostile.

"I suppose I know what this is all about, Miss Sunderlin. And I want to say just one thing. You have a dangerous female on your nursing staff who will stop at nothing to accomplish her purposes. Her jealousy and vindictiveness have caused her to deliberately poison your mind with lurid tales of Miss Maynard's association with me. I want to say right here that Sally Maynard has never once met me by appointment in the more than a year I have been in Linton's. I admire her more than any girl have ever known not only because she is a fine nurse, a quiet, well-bred woman and a female who minds her own business, but because she doesn't deal in gossip. She has never once accepted an invitation from me. I doubt if she even likes me although I admire her immensely. There, Miss Sunderlin, is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me God." He patted Sally's shoulder and turned to leave the room. Sally's knees threatened to let her down.

• • •

"Well!" the superintendent said, the wind completely taken out of her. "That seems to put a different light on the affair. Sit down, Sally, and tell me all about it. You know I have always been fond of you—"

"And yet—" The girl stopped and swallowed hard. "Skip it," she said and suddenly felt very tired. She sank into a chair and her hands clenched tightly to still their trembling.

"And yet I was ready to believe evil of you, you were going to say?" the woman asked. "Doctor Richards warned me to ignore this letter of accusation on the grounds that it was unsigned; but I felt it my duty to investigate just the same.

Sally said nothing.

"Doctor Hallock seems to think he knows who the writer of this letter is. Do you, Sally?"

Sally shook her head. Even if she was sure she wouldn't tell.

"I'm sorry, Sally," Miss Sunderlin said, a frown on her smooth forehead. "I'm extremely sorry and I hope this slight misunderstanding won't mar our hitherto cordial relations. I might say that you are a very fortunate girl, my dear."

"Fortunate?" the girl murmured bitterly. "I don't understand."

"Fortunate in having such a loyal friend as Doctor Hallock. He is a fine young man and a splendid surgeon. Would you mind telling me just why you don't like him?"

"But I do—" Sally said impulsively, and bit her lip.

"I see." The woman smiled understandingly. "But discipline must be maintained. Is that it, my dear? You know, of course, that he is leaving us? So—it may not be so difficult for you after that. I'm sure you understand. Try to see my side of it, Sally. After all, I must have discipline. Goodby for the present."

After the episode in Miss Sunderlin's office, Sally sought out Margaret again and invited her to go along to Aunt Clem's. She felt more keenly than ever that she had to get away from the hospital for a while.

And it was at Aunt Clem's beautifully appointed dinner table that Sally heard the news that lifted the pressure lying like a heavy weight upon her heart.

"I didn't expect you tonight, Sally," her aunt said as she served the steaming, delicious soup. "I somehow felt you might go to Carolyn's." She waited until the maid had left the room then went on, a shale disapprovingly: "This man she is planning to marry—this Richard Gregory—is no one I ever heard of. Did you, my dear?"

Sally who had been only half listening shook her head then as the name slowly registered on her consciousness she stammered: "Wh-what did you say his name is?" Her head whirled for a moment and the hand holding her spoon dropped to the table.

Ship Went 'In Bond' On Alaska Highway Is Authorized

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Shipment of goods "in bond" over the Alaska highway has been authorized by the Canadian government, it was announced Thursday.

Simultaneous announcements were made here and in Washington that goods in bond would be permitted to move over the highway and connecting roads in both directions between Alaska and the United States.

The government said the new arrangement was an implementation of undertakings given by Canada when it gave the U. S. authorization to build the highway.

Under the previous regulations, there had been no provision for shipment of goods in bond by truck over Canadian roads.

The Alaska highway system, the announcement declared, is not yet in condition for general civilian traffic. "It is not anticipated," it added, "that it will be possible to use the road without restrictions for some time to come."

Couldn't Take His 18 Canaries So He Ate Them

New York, Nov. 8—(AP)—Ismail Hindeway, forbidden by the government to take his 18 canaries to Egypt last August, believes he has solved the problem in a practical way—he says he ate them.

The 286-pound Egyptian sailed yesterday for his homeland on the Marine Carp. When asked where his canaries were he said:

"I have eaten them. I mut get to Alexandria to see my sick mother."

In August Hindeway wept on a Hudson River pier when officials told him he couldn't take his little friends aboard the Marine Carp.

"I have no wife. I have no family. I cannot leave my little children. I cannot live without them," Hindeway cried to the sympathetic officials.

Search Shifts To Mexico City

New York, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Developments in the alleged $900,000 Mergenthaler Linotype Co., embezzlement shifted today to Mexico City where Federal Bureau of Investigation agents attached to the U.S. Embassy said Mexican police had joined in the hunt for James Collins, wanted here for questioning in the case.

Collins, also known as Julius Lobel or Julius Davis, has been the object of a country-wide search for more than a week.

The F.B.I. agent and Mexican police said they were checking a tip that Collins was seen yesterday at a Mexico City racetrack. They said Mexican authorities would arrest Collins immediately if he were located.

Collins last was seen in California two weeks ago.

New York officials, meantime, promised swift Grand Jury action against William Arthur Nickel, former $1.00-a-week bookkeeper for the Mergenthaler firm, and his alleged associates.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 8 —(CP)— Base metal stocks recorded a substantial advance in the early session and the industrial issues posted a minor index gain at mid-day while other groups were down narrowly. Turnover was comparatively light at 928,000 shares for the first three hours.

The mining division was featured by the heavy trade in Quemont on a price advance of ¾ to 18¼.

Hudson Bay gained 2 points, Smelters a point and Mining Corporation gained 20 cents. Western Oils held steady on the whole.

Among the stronger industrial groups were the bank, steel and utility issues. Page-Hersey firmed 1½ and Beatty B added a point.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Slow-motion recovery ruled in today's stock market with the rails pacing a selective advance.

Aside from a few fairly active flurries, dealings were quiet from the start. Offerings came in after mid-day and extreme gains of fractions to two or more points were reduced in most cases near the fourth hour. Assorted losers persisted.

Canadian issues were irregular at mid-day with Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram each up 1/8. Dome Mines was off 1/4.

TORONTO PRODUCE

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

President Cold To Major Changes In Official Family

Washington, Nov. 8. (AP) — Scattered Democratic demands that National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan be fired from the party helm and the cabinet found President Truman cold toward any major changes in his official family, it was reported today.

The President is said to be standing behind Hannegan despite the searching Democratic defeat in Tuesday's Congressional elections.

Hannegan went to the hospital here yesterday for a physical checkup. There was no immediate reaction from him to an assertion by Rep. Roger C. Slaughter (Dem.-Mo.), that Mr. Truman ought to dismiss his old friend and political ally from his job as Postmaster General.

Previously Ed Crump, head of Sherby County (Tenn.) Democratic organization, said Hannegan ought to be ousted.

Friends said Hannegan wants to retain his cabinet job and expressed confidence Mr. Truman intends to keep him there.

Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley (Ky.) is reported ready to step down to head the new minority party of that chamber.

But House Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) has said he doesn't want to go back to the job of minority leader, which thus seems likely to fall to Rep. John W. McCormack (Mass.), who has been serving as majority leader.

Republican Senator Robert A. Taft outlined a proposed $25,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000 budget, compared with the $41,500,000,000 Democratic budget this year. The Ohio Republican indicated there is hope in his mind for tax cuts, observing that he doesn't want to pay off the national debt "too fast".

1,400 Occupants Vancouver Hotel Ordered to Leave

Vancouver, Nov. 8 —(CP)— The old Vancouver Hotel, stately, brown-stone centre of a veterans housing crisis last January when it was "seized" by homeless ex-servicemen, was back in the news today as its more than 1,400 occupants got eviction notices and promptly replied they would "fight" the order.

The 536-room, mid-town structure now houses more than 1,100 adults and 300 children, all ex-servicemen and their families who cannot find accommodation elsewhere.

Yesterday the Canadian Pacific Railway, owners of the building, served eviction orders, advising the lease will not be renewed because the structure may be sold. The veterans have six months to seek new accommodation in housing-short Vancouver.

Bob McEwan, veteran who led fellow squatters to the hotel Jan. 26 and who is still there, said the vets would "fight" the notice. A mass meeting of veterans affected would be held Sunday to "protest the dictatorial attitude of the C.P.R."

Hilton Murphy, R.C.A.F. veteran, longshoreman and father of two children, said "They'll have to drag me out before I'll move." J. S. Russell, R.C.N.V.R. veteran and now a baker said: "We'll fight for it first."

Call Emergency Meeting.

The housing committee of the new veterans branch of the Canadian Legion called an emergency meeting of its branch for tonight. In a resolution to be presented to the meeting, it declared the railway company's decision "criminal, particularly in view of the government's furore to provide decent housing for the people of Canada."

Following the seizure of the hotel, it was operated as a veterans' hostel by the Vancouver Citizens' Rehabilitation Council under a lease from the owners.

A hostel operating committee was set up under the chairmanship of Hon. H. H. Stevens, former cabinet minister who appointed a veteran of the First Great War, F. A. Pauline, as manager.

The hostel committee appointed a janitor for each floor. All occupants, responsible for keeping their own rooms clean, are provided with bed linen once a week. Rents for rooms range from $12.50 to $40 a month, depending on size and number of occupants.

Prime Minister May Reconsider His Retirement

Ottawa, Nov. 8 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, master of political statements open to varied interpretation, has observers pondering today an involved series of remarks on his political future.

He said he will consider "very carefully" whether he should reconsider his previously-announced decision not to lead the Liberal party in another general election.

The Prime Minister was answering queries yesterday arising out of his statements at Prince Albert last election campaign and other occasions since that he did not intend to campaign again. However, he made clear yesterday that he did not intend to resign in the near future.

What he said was this:

"The next election would normally come in 1950. Well, between now and 1950 I am going to consider very carefully my intention not to lead the Liberal party in another campaign."

Discussing the possibility of his retirement in the immediate future, he added:

"I am not retiring at present, let me tell you that; nor have I thought of a definite date of retiring nor have I said anything about such a date."

Thus, while making no definite commitment, Mr. King spiked any suggestion of immediate retirement. However, he threw an added complication into the welter of speculation on the possible choice of a future leader of the Liberal party.

Any party should realize, Mr. King added, that it must be prepared eventually to select a new leader and that applied to the Liberal party. He was ready to retire any time the party desired, but he was giving no thought to such a contingency at the present.

It was too soon to consider what would happen a number of years hence.

Soviet Govt. Asks Hungary Hand Over Large Acreage

Budapest, Nov. 4 (Delayed) — (AP) — Hungarian government sources said today the Soviet government has asked Hungary to hand over between 150,000 and 200,000 acres of land, valued roughly at $100 an acre, on grounds that the land is Russian property under terms of the Potsdam agreement. The informant said the Hungarian government is embarrassed by the request for the land, already redistributed and re-equipped under the land revision law.

Union Reporters Seek $100 Weekly Minimum Wage

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A pair of eastern United States newspapers at which the C.I.O. American Newspaper Guild went on strike — continued publication yesterday, and two Detroit evening dailies reached readers several hours late because of a dispute involving A.F.L. printers and mailers.

Mailers Guild employees of the Philadelphia Record and Camden, N.J., Courier-Post, both owned by J. David Stern, walked out in support of wage and other contract demands. Mr. Stern said he expected both papers would continue to publish with executives filling jobs normally held by Guild members.

A union spokesman said the Guild had made "deep recessions" from its original demands for a $100 weekly minimum wage for experienced reporters The union rejejcted the company's offer of a 12 per cent raise with an additional five per cent for night work.

Publication of the Detroit Times and the Detroit News was delayed when employees affiliated with the A.F.L. International Typographical Union were called to union meetings in the composing and mailing rooms of the Times.

A similar work stoppage had caused the Detroit Free Press, a morning newspaper, to miss all its election night editions.

W. E. Anderman, Times publisher, called the meetings "unauthorized work stoppages" and said they delayed publication of the Times more than six hours.

A union official said the Detroit news management halted the first edition run of that newspaper because of a "gentleman's agreement" with the Times management not to publish when either newspaper is shutdown by a labor dispute.

Meanwhile, no break appeared in sight to end strikes which have closed the Los Angeles Herald-Express and four Springfield, Mass., dailies—the Morning and Evening Union, the News and the Republican.

At Springfield, A. F. typographers, pressmen and stereotypers are seeking a $80 weekly minimum wage. Newspaper Guild employees of the Heart Herald-Express have rejected management's offer of raises up to $10 for experienced reporters formerly receiving $70.

Johnny Lujack Will be Ready To Play Saturday

New York, Nov. 8 (CP)— Hot compresses applied to Johnny Lujack's injured right ankle have reduced the swelling and the 21-year-old Notre Dame quarterback will play abainst Army Saturday, it was announced today.

Lujack was hurt Wednesday in a practice scrimmage and it still is doubtful whether he will be able to go all the way in the Yankee Stadium tilt that sports writers have billed as the battle of the century.

Notre Dame is a slight favorite for the climatic contest that probably will decide the top-ranking United States college team of the season.

GOT ONLY $10

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)— How much is a 100-year-old cello worth? Yves Chardon, first 'cellist of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, whose instrument was stolen from his car on a visit here Sept. 28, values his at $2,500. But when he and police, making a tour of the city's pawnshops, found the cello, they learned the pawnshop proprietor had paid only $10 for it.
